Deputy Mayor Ben Corke Outlines Municipal Projects At Kiwanis Civic Dinner

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke outlined a few projects which would be undertaken in Belleville during the next few years and called for a degree of thinking municipally which would be in accordance with the progress which the community has experienced since 1943. He was speaking at the annual civic dinner held for members of council and city officials by the Kiwanis Club at its regular weekly dinner meeting at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

Noting that the city had experienced the greatest natural growth in its assessment during the past year, Deputy Mayor Corke compared the city's 1943 satistics, when it had a population of about 15,000 and an assessment of $11,000,000, with those of 1962 — a 30,000 population and a $30,000,000 assessment.

He urged that local thinking keep pace with figures and suggested that greater projects and expenditures were necessary for the proper expansion of the community. He pointed out that the city has a tremendous natural asset in the Bay of Quinte and that this resource should be both utilized and improved.

In outlining some of the municipal projects which would be forthcoming during the next few years, Mr. Corke mentioned the construction of a new overpass on North Front Street, the provision of additional hospital accommodation, and the widening of Church Street with the provision of a bridge across the Moira River. This latter project would amount to approximately $1,300,000.

He also mentioned that new schools, streets and sewers would have to be provided for in the near future. In a casual manner, he suggested that the council chambers could stand some new furniture was also proffered.

Looking back on the past few years, the deputy mayor said that he felt the theme of harmonious council advocated by Mayor. Haig, who was absent due to a temporary illness, has worked well and is pleased that the city was experiencing the highest level of civic administration in its history.

During the question and answer session which followed Deputy Mayor Corke's address, the possibility of additional access routes on both the east and west sides of the city in order to relieve traffic congestion in the centre of the city was discussed. Addressed in this letter Elliott stated that he was meeting the Deputy Minister of Highways to discuss this matter in the very near future.

Mr. Corke was also presented with a "chain of office" by Kiwanis President George Hume. The chain of office consisted of a large iron key ring with several equally large keys reputed to be the keys to the city gates.

During the course of the meeting Alderman Stuart Robb led a sing-song which was interspersed with selections rendered by the "Kiwanis Korus." President Hume announced that Mr. Khalid Babaa, director of Arab Information, of Ottawa, would be the guest speaker next Tuesday.

Billet Stranded Students In Homes in Wellington

Snowplows fought a "hard battle against the driving drifting snow and managed to keep traffic moving at a crawl.

"At times we couldn't see across the street" one resident said.

The village was hit by a two-foot fall of snow a few days ago that almost tied up traffic and business.

The main highway arteries were kept clear but byways and feeder roads were impassable.

A school bus bringing students from Prince Edward High School in Picton to an outlying area here was forced to stay in the village overnight. Students were quartered in private homes.

This morning villagers dug themselves out in freezing weather.

Buses and school vehicles moved slowly this morning and eventually reached their destinations.

Villagers state the storms of the past week have been the worst in over a quarter century.

Indonesia Forms Shadow Regime For New Guinea

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia today announced it has set up provisional government offices for Dutch West New Guinea at Makassar, South Celebes.

The announcement said the staff of the "Indonesian government" will assist the newly-appointed Indonesian "governor" of the disputed territory, who President Sukarno says is already in West New Guinea.

In an order of the day to troops in the New Guinea border which has been designated the jumping-off spot for the "liberation" of the territory, Sukarno told them not to be shaken by the attempts to assassinate him last Sunday.

"Much on," he said, "Our enemies known no immoral, inhuman terror because we are afraid."

Troops continued to flow into the area and the government said Brig. Sudarso, army commander of the "liberation force" Tuesday, is to set up his headquarters in Makassar, soon.

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT

But despite the warlike noises, Western diplomatic sources in Jakarta were guardedly hopeful that a peaceful settlement of the Indonesian claims can be worked out.

They said they believe Sukarno's invasion threats are serious, but that no attack is likely before the last four months of this year.

The sources felt the Indonesians would be willing to bargain with the Dutch for the right to administer the territory, leaving the question of actual sovereignty till later.

Youth Admits Many Charges Of Entering, Theft, Held In Custody Until Jan. 16

TRENTON — In Magistrate's Court at Trenton on Tuesday, Gerald Keith Mennie, 18, of Trenton, pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking, entering and theft in Trenton, one breaking and entry and one attempted entry, also in town, and two charges of breaking, entering and theft in Frankford and one charge of breaking and entry in the village.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills asked for a pre-sentence report on the youth and remanded him in custody until Jan. 16.

Inspector F. J. Rutherford testified that Mennie had admitted being involved in the breaking and entry at the Canadian Tire Corporation store on Nov. 17; the robbery of the Trenton Country Club on Dec. 6; the robbery of the L.O.L. Hall on Dec. 8, and the theft and a robbery at the Trenton Inspector Gardens on Aug. 29, and attempting to enter David's Bowl-O-Drome on Nov. 16.

The inspector said that Mennie had been "generally cooperative" when questioned. The inspector said that Mennie had admitted holding two cleaning girls at the Country Club in the country club, at gun point, in the 4 o'clock hour. He said that Mennie had told him that he and a companion had rowed to the Cummings Canning Co. and the Cooperage Mill property on Aug. 29; that they had taken $15 in cigarettes and clothing from the Sea Cadet stores in the building and had rowed their loot back to the Cooperage Mill property.

Donald Slauenwhite, 17, of Trenton, has pleaded guilty to being involved in the various incidents in which Mennie was charged

Mennie also pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking, entering and theft (Legion Hall and Blair's store), to theft from and not one charge of breaking and entry (hydro office.) Chief Police Lobe Dafoe testified Frankford gave evidences in court.

Inspector Rutherford said that $118 and three bottles of rye whiskey had been taken from the country club. He said that police had found no connection office in the L.O.L. Hall and that $3 in dimes, nickels, pennies and quarters had been the upper part of the building. Tempted by the coin found in the Cooperage Mill yard. At David's Bowl-O-Drome, Mennie and his companion had been "scared" away by the caretaker, the inspector said.

Chief Dafoe said that $60 in cash; $40 in cigarettes and about $2 bottle of rye whiskey had been taken from the Frankford Legion Hall; 30 packs of cigarettes and an undetermined amount of cash from Blair's pool room and that the hydro office had been ransacked but nothing taken.

Mennie was represented by Roderick Campbell and S. Gordon Robertson acted as Crown Attorney.

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, John Howard, 37, of Batawa, charged with robbing Leo Woo, proprietor of a cafe in Frankford, of $52 was remanded until Friday of this week. Robert Temple of Belleville is representing the accused.

Russell Ramsay of Trenton, directed to dispose of a dog, termed "malicious" in a previous hearing, said that he had managed to arrange for the dog to be boarded or given away as yet.

"I'll give you two weeks to arrange this" said Magistrate T. Y. Wills, adding "... and that'll be final."

Donald Tucker of Windsor, charged with failing to appear at court in Belleville on a car theft charge, was remanded in custody, for one week, in order that he might secure legal representation.

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke outlined a few of the projects which would be undertaken in Belleville during the next few years and called for a degree of thinking municipally which would be commensurate with the progress which the community has experienced since 1943. He was speaking at the annual civic dinner held for members of council and city officials by the Kiwanis Club at its regular weekly dinner meeting at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

Noting that the city had experienced the greatest natural growth in its assessment during the past year, Deputy Mayor Corke compared the city's 1943 statistics, when it had a population of about 15,000 and an assessment of $11,000,000, with those of 1962 — a 30,000-population and a $30,800,000 assessment.

He urged that local thinking keep pace with such figures and suggested that greater projects and expenditures were necessary for the proper expansion of the community. He pointed out that the city has a tremendous natural asset in the Bay of Quinte and that this resource should be both utilized and improved.

In outlining some of the municipal projects which would be forthcoming during the next two years, Mr. Corke mentioned the construction of a new overpass on North Front Street, the provision of additional hospital accommodation, and the widening of Church Street with the provision of a bridge across the Moira River. This latter project would amount to approximately $1,000,000.

He also mentioned that new schools, which were considered, would have to be provided for in the near future. In a casual aside on the subject, that city council chambers could stand some new furniture was also suggested.

Looking back on the past few years the deputy mayor said that he felt the theme of harmony in council advocated by Mayor Hicks had been absent due to a temporary illness, has worked out quite well and that the city was experiencing the highest level of civic administration in city hall in its history.

During the question and answer session which followed Deputy Mayor Corke's address, the possibility of additional access routes on both the east and west sides of the city in order to relieve traffic congestion in the centre of the city was discussed. Alderman Walter Elliott stated that he was meeting the Deputy Minister of Highways to discuss this matter in the very near future.

The deputy mayor was presented with a "chain of office" by Kiwanis' President George Hume. The chain of office consisted of a large iron key ring with several equally large keys reported to be the keys to the city gaols.

During the course of the meeting Alderman Stuart Robb led a sing-song which was interspersed with selections rendered by the "Kiwanis Korus." President Hume announced that Mr. Khalil Babas, director of Arab information, of Ottawa, would be the guest speaker next Tuesday.

Billet Stranded Students In Homes in Wellington

Snowplows fought a hard battle against the driving drifts, ing snow and managed to keep traffic moving at a crawl.

"At times we couldn't see across the street" one resident said.

The village was hit by a two-foot fall of snow a few days ago that almost tied up traffic and business.

The main highway arteries were kept clear but byways leading out of the village were plugged.

A school bus bringing students from Prince Edward High School in Picton to an outlying area here was forced to spend the night in the village. Students were quartered in village homes.

Buses and school vehicles moved slowly this morning and eventually reached their destinations.

Villagers state the storms of the past week have been the worst in over a quarter century.

Indonesia Forms Shadow Regime For New Guinea

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia today announced it has set up provisional governmen; officers for Dutch West New Guinea at Makassar, South Celebes.

The announcement said the staff of the "shadow govern. ment" will await the newly-appointed Indonesian "governor" of the disputed territory, who President Sukarno says is already in West New Guinea, or on order of the day to troops in the South Celebes— which has been designated the jumping-off spot for the "liberation" of the territory—Sukarno told them last Sunday.

"March on," he said. "Our enemies resory to immoral, inhuman terror because we are right."

Troops continued to flow into the area and the government said Brig. Subarto, named commander of the "liberation forces", Tuesday, is to set up his headquarters in Makassar, soon.

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT

But despite the warlike noises, Western diplomatic sources in Jakata were guardedly hopeful the peaceful settlement of the Indonesian claims can be worked out.

They said they believe Sukarno's invasion threats are serious, but that no attack is likely before the last four months of this year.

The sources felt the Indonesians would be willing to negotiate with the Dutch for the right to administer the territory, leaving the question of actual sovereignty till later.

Inspector McConnachie said that $80 in cash; $40 in cigarettes and one bottle of rye whisky had been taken from the Frankford Legion Hall; 30 packs of cigarettes and an undetermined amount of cash from Blair's pool room and that the hydro building had been ransacked but nothing taken.

Two-Year Term for Mayor Inadvisable

Mayor A. M. Haig, in his inaugural address to the 1962 City Council, suggested it consider changing the term of mayors from one to two years.

To do so would be to conform with the present trend in this province; nevertheless, we are opposed.

Mayor Haig did not outline his reasons for suggesting such a change, beyond stating that if the terms of aldermen all expired at the same time, (instead of half in one year and half in next as at present), the city would make a big in electoral expenditures.

It is simple, though, to suggest some advantages of the two-year term for mayor which might have merit in mind if all council members were elected for two years at a time: longer planning would be encouraged; there would only one, instead of two, "breaking-in" acquiring which the council members learn-wind together as a team; and the period of ...ption every program before council and reconsidered not only on its merits but Vish probable effects on the results of a "p... election would be halved.

...ese advantages, however, nor any ...ch we have ever heard advanced, ...compensate for the major drawback. ...ts saddled with an inefficient mayor ...put up with him for two long years pow... will be some who will suggest that ...gradable likelihood of any incapable mayor ...

Last ...d if the voters use common sense ...most ... go to the polls. Unfortunately, both ...later be further from the truth. Quite ...full-known, esteemed and capable persons ...ve mounted campaigns for the difficult ...of guiding a council, of conducting public ...siness where the principles are not always identical with those to be followed in a private business. Just as often a man who has proven his ability and his worth as an alderman proves surprisingly unable to lead as capably as he has followed.

This, in itself, seems to us an adequate answer to any suggestions that the mayor should be elected for a two-year term as long as we hold annual elections for aldermen, as we do at present. There would also be the added objection that interest in aldermanic elections would prove low, and the turnout of voters poor, every other year, when there was no contest for the mayoralty.

It may be objected that these reasons are not so convincing if aldermen's terms all expired at the same time, and elections were held only every two years. Then, however, additional objections immediately arise. If there is any protection which citizens could enjoy against the possibility that a two-year term might saddle them with an inefficient chief magistrate for a two-year period, it would be that half-way through the two-year term for mayor they could elect a "strong man" as alderman, to provide the leadership the mayor was failing to give. Or, in the alternative, if there were a split in council and the citizens' opposed the mayor's views, they could place at the head of the poll any alderman who had led the opposition to the mayor in council. This protection, and it would be slight enough, would be lost if all council members' terms coincided with the term of office of the mayor.

Even under a reasonably efficient mayor and council, the electorate would tend to lose interest in municipal affairs mid-way through the two-year term. Decisions on questions on which the verdict of the electors was required would be postponed, until the next election date. The small saving in the cost of elections would hardly compensate for these results.

Let us keep the present system. Providing as it does for an annual accounting to the electorate by the majority of the council—the mayor and half the aldermen—with the certainty of a continuance in policy by reason of half the aldermen in any year being hold-overs from the previous year, it is as near to perfection as we are likely to attain in this imperfect world.

It Does Not Work in Reverse

Making children pick up after themselves may stifle their creativity, according to psychiatrist Mrs. Laura E. Morrow of Passaic, N.J.

What joy would leap in the hearts of millions of parents if some psychiatrist could produce evidence that the reverse were true—that children who managed to escape the chore of picking up after themselves were certain to possess creative ability. Aside, of course, from the ability to drive mother to tears and father to a choice between rage and drink.

No More Alger Heros

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Is the Horatio Alger variety of success story completely out of style in the real world of North American life today? A union publication in Detroit raises the query, and turns the spotlight on a revolution that has been taking place in the way of selecting men for top positions in business and industry. . . .

The rags-to-riches stories of the Horatio Alger series of paperback fiction were popular years ago, because they reflected the real life that people saw happening. Boys did enter factories as messengers, and some thousands of top executives, there are only 20 men in top positions who began their careers as boys. It is no longer to be old-but now, for the general manager or the president to be a man who started by sweeping the workshop floor or running errands for the boss. Today's $50,000-a-year man, typically, is someone who stepped off the ladder part way to a 000-a-year run, and went up from there. On the first day with the firm, as a beginner, he was sitting behind a desk, and standing in front of it.

Partly, the change in pathways that lead to the upper levels of big business can be explained by the growing emphasis on schooling. A man without his matriculation certificate has little chance of getting to the middle brackets. In the promotion system of many big organizations, still a man without a university degree has little chance of getting beyond the middle brackets.

Schooling is not the whole explanation, however, of the modern situation of which the AFL-CIO Teelsfin complains, in which a factory hand rarely rises to manager or even the factory. If this is a bad thing, and evidence must be found to take the blame for killing the Horatio Alger aspect of our modern society, then some of the blame must be taken by the trade union movement itself, which has developed its own moral code with respect to the man who pushes aside, union leaders keep trying to get more money for a day's work, but the same organized drive to get more for what union men do has produced a negative philosophy, which bears fruit, in many cases, in the determination to do less for what union men get. The same line of reasoning which makes it a praiseworthy ambition to get more dollars for laying bricks can be easily twisted to make it a praiseworthy ambition to lay fewer bricks for a dollar. In some factories and in some craft unions, a man who works a little harder, or does a little more than his workmates, is in many cases ostracized.

One can only guess at the number of ambitions that have been stifled by the elevation of potential superintendents and managers from the ranks, hand down, by the moral code which makes it a sin to work too hard, or to attempt to do more than the others are doing.

Politics has had its rogues, and sometimes its ruffians. But also it has had its statesmen.

Years ago that gifted English woman Rebecca West, spoke in London at the Mother of Parliaments. She told of the men who had come, down through the centuries, of how they had risen to power and passed to them or children what they had seen who had come after them with new ideas and new laws, and perhaps a new social consciousness.

With all that could be said against them, she declared, there was this to be said for them: most of them had cared a great deal for the common good.

That is true of Canada. Good men have gone to Ottawa, and had, but often not always, the best-laid interests, spoken, in the remains true that most of them cared for the common good.

Politics, in this group moves the foul pest who puts a fancy printed advertisement into a fair election, and your mind is on it and marks it "Personal." He, too, will come to no good end.

If his aim is annoyance alone, he defeats it. There is always a quick moment of pleasure in pitching his message to the wastebasket and vowing you wouldn't be caught dead with his product.

Politics Defended

Ottawa Citizen

Mr. Davie Fulton, minister of justice, spoke in the Maritimes recently, and the other day he was asked this:

"Very often one hears people say 'let's leave politics out of this' or 'this is a matter that is above politics.' Well, that's a strange comment to make in a democracy.

"Politics is the lifeblood of a democracy and it seems to me to be the height of hypocrisy to talk of politics as if it were something to be ashamed of. Keep politics out of it, indeed!

"Place what above politics? Issues on which there ought not to be a free and public public discussion, I suppose".

Canada would have these truths told often. For too many among us, whether in ignorance or malice, are prone to think of their own democratic nests, to wrap themselves in garments of smug superiority, disdaining politics.

They need to be reminded of the country where things are "kept out of politics", where Kremlin, decided by a push-button.

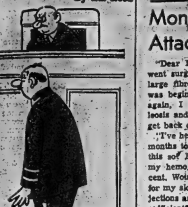
And they need to have recalled for them, too, those other tyrannies of our times where politics was taboo, where those who sought to resist them knew the fate (in Franklin Roosevelt's memorable phrase) of "the unfortunate victim".

And why in a democracy, the sneers at "politicians"? After all, who but politicians built up our edifice of freedom, who were the architects of our parliamentary system, who gave us the British Commonwealth of Nations and America and your own Confederation?

Burke was politician ("he gave up to party what was meant for mankind") and Pitt and Fox and Peel and Gladstone, and the immortal Churchill. I am a child of the House of Commons" Disraeli our own John A. Macdonald and Winfield Leader. And there was a politician — a politician incarnate — named Lincoln.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS



TRIVIAL THINGS

"All these little things are devouring me alive."
My eyes cannot see, my ears cannot hear,
Even my brain is being destroyed.
Only the husk of me smiles weakly and on.

Thus wrote James G. Gilkey as he emphasizing those trivial things in life which often defeat us when God really intended that they should be to us a source of power and joy. After all is said and done, life is made up of a multitude of trivial things. We can imagine that every one Lord's life forthirty years appeared frequently to be a series of trivial incidents — sawing and hammering in the carpenter shop, repairing here and building there. Yet through these years God was preparing the Carpenter of Nazareth to go forth and to become the Savior of the World.

"He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much," declared our Lord on one occasion. A little profit on a mighty volume of goods made the merchant rich. A life given to apparently trivial things which have contributed to the happiness and welfare of others adds up to be a full life in the end. If trivial things appear petty to us, or if they make them seem a series of trivial things can make life almost unbearable. Yet upon the trivial we can build great superstructures while we will contemplate at the close of our lives with joy and to which our friends will point with admiration and joy.

Trivial things are insignificant only if we handle them insignificantly.

"My wife needed a dress so I broke into the store, but I got caught when she sent me back to change it."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 10th, 1942.

The weatherman reported an official low temperature of 25.8 degrees below zero for last night and there were no persons in Belleville to doubt his word. It is hard to believe but for the past several days, at least three robins have been making their home in the city and have been feeding on spilled grain near Graham's Cold Storage building. They have been living in a nearby barn. Employees of Graham's noticed the birds for the first time early this week and marvelled that robins would brave the rigors of a Canadian winter rather than make the trip south.

Water pumped by the Belleville Water Purification Plant in 1941 amounted to $37,185,000 gallons, an increase of 984,000 gallons over the previous year, according to a report submitted to the Belleville Public Utilities Commission this week. Pumping at the city station last day saw 3,526,000 gallons go through mains, pipes and the low of 1,900,000 gallons. This is the largest amount of water pumped by the plant since the installation of filters. In 1930, prior to the use of the filtration system an amount of 984,000,000 gallons were through the city pumps.

Red foxes are more plentiful this season in the district north and east of Belleville than for many years past, according to rural residents who annually make a report on the quantity of these animals, as well as a profitable sideline.

Mr. James Marshall of Pine Street, is visiting friends in Paris, Ont.

Mr. Russell Billings of the Haines Shoe Store in Trenton, has been transferred to the Belleville branch of the same firm.

Mrs. C. F. Anderson and young son, Leslie, of Carroll, Man., are visiting her parents at their home on Park Street, College Hill.

Dr. F. D. Parks has returned home from Syracuse, N.Y., where he visited friends.

Mrs. T.H. didn't give her age. From her letter, handwriting and wording and so on, I'd guess her to be in her 20's or 30's. That leaves her in the "young adult" bracket. On the other hand, physical defects are generally (but not always, of course) to be found in those in the 30's or 40's or so. Maybe she's one of those individuals who gets many diseases" late, and "late problems" early.

Well, anything over monunucleosis demands patience. The hemoglobin count that Mrs. T.H. mentioned is very low under the circumstances. The liver injections are helpful and the vitamins a precaution, but cautious. But what she needs is lots of My Beauty Shoppe and adequate diet — and gentle exercising. Till we cover fully, but shall have letter Nature take whatever time happens to be required in her case.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that cheaper brands of aspirin are just as effective as the "trade name" brands. If this is not true, will you explain the difference? Is there a difference in artificial sweetness?

— R.K."

Aspirin is aspirin, and that's the whole story. As to artificial sweeteners, I haven't suspected that in some instances candy-coated aspirin might be advertised. I do not approve of this. Children can, if need be, take aspirin on hand with aspirin, with a drink of water. But small boys get enough candy either, once, have been known to mistake aspirin for "candy" and not disappointed. Artificial sweetnings, when nobody was involved, have been a help to the candy coating is worth such a risk. Do you?

Note to W.G.: I doubt it meat, and a pin of beer or brandy, of course, is a form that I'd not on your gout. Diet, it is now believed, is of relatively little importance than used to be believed.

Sleepless Nights Are Exhilarating

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When I was out of town, not long ago, giving a lecture in a strange city, my hosts invited me to take part in a poker game following my talk. There is nothing dreadier than going back to one's hotel room in a strange city, so I gratefully accepted.

The game began at 10 in the evening, and we played straight through until seven in the morning, when I washed and shaved, gulped down a hasty breakfast, waited to be interviewed and returned to my office to work for the rest of the day.

On the infrequent occasions I have stayed up all night, the following day has always proved to be exhilarating, in a strange sort of way. One seems to lose a sense of time, and to be floating in a sort of Einsteinian continuum. Yesterday, today and tomorrow all blend into a curious amalgam.

There is also, I have noticed, a sharpened mental acuteness that does not exist at other times of time. The senses and reflexes, instead of being dulled from fatigue, seem to be heightened, and the familiar becomes as the familiar voices and expressions acquire greater depth and significance.

Perhaps we become more intelligent without any sleep at all (which is far preferable to only an hour or two) but what does seem clear is that we can get along as simple as is possibly.

Yet go back to everyday life and we can not understand is like operating on a human being without a scrap of knowledge of anatomy.

There is nobody quite so much a nobody as he who is content to make his great love still fingernails.

The young ladies in front of us got off the bus. I trust it was their stop.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE CONVENTIONAL ROBOT

We are in a very large sense products of the standards, whereas we should be inspired by them to raise them to higher standards. We are born with equipment. It is a sacred heritage. It is personal, individual and unique to us alone.

Leaders are the most prominent and jealous of it — fight and give their life and sacred honor to keep it as what makes them and simple as is possible.

Yet go back of everything. The usual schedule of wake-eat-and-sleep, wake-eat-and-sleep induces a new order of mentality, an unthinking acceptance of the customary. Our minds become stale, our spirits stifled, by repeating the same mechanical actions in unvarying patterns.

The focus of the mind is fixed at a different angle in the morning following a sleepless night. One catches a second wind, just as a mile runner does when he has passed the crucial lap, and huge reservoirs of power seem to well up. At least, that was the impression to me — until I collapse early in the evening.

But the day itself is provocative. That morning, in a while, but hurry of energy, I dashed off a long magazine article I had been promising to write for months. I am sure it is better than anything I might have written in my usual placidated mood. Moreover, the people around me that day seemed more interesting, the food more piquant, even the air had a tang that is absent on more conventional mornings.

I don't recommend this as a regimen, and I know that people need their sleep. But they also need to break the pattern once in a while, too, and I recommend staying up all night in any ardent pursuit. It gives the whole rest of the week a distinctive flavor of its own.

Mononucleosis in General Attacks Young Adults

"Dear Dr. Molner?: I understand surgery for removal of a large fibroid tumor. Just as I was beginning to feel strong again, I contracted mononucleosis and haven't been able to get back on my feet.

"I've heard that it takes eight months to a year to cure it. Is this so? My hemoglobin was showed my hemoglobin is only 45 per cent. Would this be the reason for my slow recovery? I get injections and vitamins. Are these sufficient? — Mrs. T.H."

I hesitate to discuss a cure for mononucleosis, because there isn't anything we can really do.

Rest and nourishing food during the feverish stage of the disease are very important, along with moderate precautions to prevent complications — antibiotics, mainly, to avoid the risk of infection setting in while the patient is still weak and tired. And that's about all.

It is true that full recovery may take several months, and where some infection has left a drain on the system — like an operation — has also been increased, it may take that much longer.

I cannot, however, agree that it "takes eight months to a year," because in most cases the patient will be back to work to normal a good deal sooner. In some, it will take that long.

The disease, in general, attacks young adults, which, of course, is a term that covers a good deal of leeway — high school or boarding school students, college students, and young married people. Occasionally it attacks somewhat older, but not as a rule.

Mrs. T.H. didn't give her age. From her letter, handwriting and wording and so on, I'd guess her to be in her 20's or 30's. That leaves her in the "young adult" bracket. On the other hand, physical defects are generally (but not always, of course) to be found in those in the 30's or 40's or so. Maybe

By GREGORY CLARK

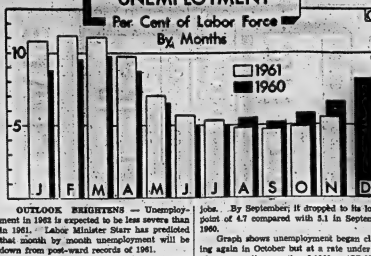
Two very smartly-groomed young ladies took the seat in the bus just in front of me. The other half of the seat behind me was taken by a stout lady with parcels. She was what is called the motherly type.

As is the custom when ladies sit down in buses, they fell to ...ing the two stylish ...inor matrons in front of us did was reach back and pat their hair, patting it lightly. This revealed that they had on ... ...e very long fingernails, brightly painted.

The ...ays, said the elderly lady beside me, not too confidentially, "these girls with those long fingernails can't be much of a housekeeper."

"Mmmm, I guess I know I was not hard of hearing.

"Mmmm, definitely," went on the lady, "trying to do washing and dusting and vacuuming, not to mention, flinging around pots and pans, opening windows, shaking mats over the kitchen door-step cellar, with those long brittle fingernails!"



"Mmmm-hmm," I reflected.

"I couldn't imagine," said my seat-mate, "even giving myself a nice very long fingernails, long stiff fingernails.

The young ladies in front of us got off the bus. I trust it was their stop.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS — Unemployment in 1961 is expected to be less severe than in 1961. Labor Minister Starr has predicted that month by month unemployment will be down from post-ward records of 1961.

Unemployment hit its peak in February with 11.3 per cent of the labor force without jobs. By September, it dropped to its lowest point of 4.7 compared with 5.1 in September, 1960.

Graph shows unemployment began climbing again in October but at a rate under that of corresponding months of 1960. (CP Newsmap.)

Snow Like Moving Curtain Sweeps Over Picton Area; Roads Blocked, Shops Closed

PICTON (Special) — High winds whipping a five-inch fall of snow into a white curtain practically "blinded" this town and outlying districts yesterday.

Visibility was almost zero.

"It was the worst blizzard-like storm I have ever seen here," said a townsman. "The driving snow was like a moving curtain and we couldn't see the next-door house. It lasted for hours."

In the outlying districts roads were blocked. Traffic was halted and the snowplows fought a desperate battle, sometimes against losing odds.

Last Friday the town was almost buried under three feet of snow. Following thaws, rains and later freezing temperatures caused an icy crust to form. Yesterday's heavy fall whipped over the slippery crusted surfaces of streets and highways in gusting clouds.

Heavy drifting completely tied up traffic to and from the town practically all night. Buses, cars and trucks were stalled. Near Cherry Valley ten cars and heavy trucks were snowmired for hours.

Several school buses failed to reach their town destination from country areas.

BUSINESSES CLOSE

Several places of business closed and sent employees home in the early afternoon.

The Prince Edward High School was closed today.

Seventy-five percent of business and industry personnel who live outside the town were forced to remain at home.

Added hazards came when icy, slippery surfaces were heaped on roads and highways after snow was cleared by plows.

Town and district snowplows worked all night. Shovellers battled hard to clear paths from home to pavement. Many cars were forced to remain in garages as drifts formed big roadblocks.

Buses battled against the driving snow in Milford where the South Marysburgh District School is located.

One of these school vehicles forced its way through the heavy drifting snow. Two others were stalled in the village.

BILLET STUDENTS

Another 100 were forced to remain behind. They bought groceries and food and were billeted in village homes.

Picton started to dig itself out in freezing weather this morning, after a storm in which, as one resident puts it, "it was humanly impossible to see."

Departmental snowplows cleared the highways running from the town to outside points. Town plows battled sidestreet drifts. An army of shovellers went into action in a concerted effort to bring conditions back to some semblance of normalcy.

PLAN BRIDGE

RANGOON (AP) — Construction of the Taketa Bridge with Canadian aid under the Colombo plan will start in March. Under the agreement Canada will contribute $900,000 in aid plus another $900,000 from sales of Canadian wheat in Burma. Burma will make up the balance. The 833-foot, nine-span bridge will shorten the distance between Rangoon and the town of Taketa by about five miles.

EXPORT SALES

ments boosted export sales for January - October to $4,801,000,000, up 7.2 per cent from $4,478,100,000 a year earlier. Imports in the 10 months rose 4.4 per cent to $4,748,900,000 from $4,548,800,000.

Part of the increased values for both exports and imports since mid - year reflected the decline in the Canadian dollar's exchange value to a discount below the U.S. dollar. This has meant that exports sold for U.S. dollars and other foreign exchange bring higher returns in Canadian dollars, and similarly imports cost more in terms of Canadian dollars.

The report indicated that there would have been a trade surplus in October if it hadn't been for some $18,000,000 in defence imports of U.S. aircraft being financed under mutual defence arrangements.

Exports to the U.S.in October jumped to $320,200,000, a gain of 34.3 per cent from $237,800,000 a year earlier. Shipments to non - Commonwealth countries overseas rose 22.4 per cent. But the month's exports to the United Kingdom showed a year-to-year drop of 13.9 per cent and those to other Commonwealth countries declined 5.8 per cent.

Detailed trade figures for the January - October periods of 1961 and 1960, in millions of dollars:

	Exports
United States	$2,612.7	$2,500.7

WILLIAM ALLEN

he is aiming for the prime ministers' job, was later elected.

Mr. Allen becomes only the second Metro chairman Toronto and its 12 suburban neighbors have had in nine years.

FIRST OF ITS KIND

Mr. Gardiner, who won his nickname from his bluff over-riding approach, was originally appointed by the province to implement when the metropolitan system was set up in 1953, the first of its kind in North America.

Mr. Gardiner's 24 colleagues on the council returned him eight times to the $25,000-a-year job.

Mr. Allen, a Liberal, favors immediate transfer from the municipalities to Metro of all responsibility, traffic and planning services.

While Metro's councillors were electing Mr. Allen, government members rallied to caucus by Municipal Affairs Minister Gay were coming to the conclusion the Metro experiment had worked extremely well and need not be discarded, despite pressure for amalgamation.

The caucus drew up a list of problems confronting Metro for study Mr. Gay and his department, and, like the Metro council, threw out an intruder.

GOVT. CONCLUSION

Ken Bryden, New Democratic Party member for Toronto-Woodbine, branded the caucus to make a statement. He said afterwards he was interrupted and the minister ejected him "quite brusquely."

Toronto and the 12 surrounding municipalities formed the Metro system in so co - ordinate certain essential services while retaining autonomy in other fields.

Such matters as arterial roads, trunk water and sewage lines, tax collections come under Metro control. The municipal authorities were united shortly after the system came into being but fire protection is still within the jurisdiction of the individual members.

Recently there has been increasing pressure for amalgamation, either into a single city or four separate boroughs.

WARY OF SNOW

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— Tennessee parents, unaccustomed to — as a rule — being swamped doctors with calls saying it was okay for the children to eat the stuff. They were afraid recent atomic bomb tests had contaminated the snow with radioactive dust. Dr. John Leake, state health director, said tests showed no contamination. "I tell them to go ahead and make snow cones," he said.

Three Ambulance Operators Will Discontinue Service At the End of This Month

Unless city council takes action in the meantime, the city of Belleville will be without an ambulance service at the end of January.

This was stated today by John R. Bush, one of the three ambulance operators in the city who said that council had been advised that all ambulance service in Belleville would be discontinued on January 31st at 6.00 p.m.

Mr. Clifford Ireland of Willowdale who into last year planned to take over, ambulance service in the city providing he was given an exclusive franchise, is said to be no longer interested.

Mayor A. M. Healy at the last meeting of council in 1961 said that he was opposed to an exclusive franchise for the operation of an ambulance service, noting that this almost invariably led to subsidies being paid by the municipality.

"It is up to city council now" stated Mr. Bush. "Belleville ambulance drivers have notified council by letter that they will discontinue service on January 31st."

Mr. Bush said that city ambulance operators had been invited to attend a meeting of the city finance committee on Friday evening.

HEADS POLICE FORCE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A former New York City patrolman, who rose to the rank of captain, assumed command of Buffalo's 1,300-man police department today. Howard E. Finney was sworn in as police commissioner Tuesday.

night as their school when the buses were unable to make their return trips.

Highway crews were hard put to keep roads open in the affected areas. Some secondary roads were reported closed by the drifting snow.

Up to nine inches fell within a few hours Tuesday in the Niagara Peninsula, cutting visibility to the point where snowplows were called off the roads. Schools in the Welland area were closed for the afternoon.

Snow was reported throughout Georgian Bay area as far south as Parry Sound. The Owen Sound area had measured 11 inches of snowfall by noon Tuesday.

Heavy snowfall hampered the efforts of Port Dover firemen to fight a blaze in an old frame business block. Damage was estimated at $15,000. A restaurant, three stores and two offices were consumed. Four families were forced out of upstairs apartments.

APPOINT OFFICER

OTTAWA (CP) — Lt. - Col. A. J. Baker, 51, of Ottawa has been appointed chief training officer of St. John Ambulance. J. H. Molson, chancellor of the Order of St. John, announced Monday. Col. Baker retired recently from the Canadian Army as assistant adjutant - general of the staff of the director-general of army personnel.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hobbs and Jacqy were Sunday dinner guests in Picton of Mrs. Blanche Hobbs and Mrs. B. Polles.

Ambassador For Christ Topic At Parkdale MF

The Ladies' Missionary Fellowship of Parkdale Baptist Church met on January 4th in the church. A reception committee comprised of Mesdames S. Blake, C. Breaton and T. Mitchell, welcomed the WMS of Calvary Baptist Church, Picton, and Trenton Baptist Ladies' Fellowship as they entered the church to participate in the worship service of the Parkdale Baptist L.M.F.

Mrs. C. Breaton, vice-president, extended a cordial welcome to the visiting groups. Mrs. R. Snyder, president, opened the meeting and led in the Scripture reading.

A poem, "Responsibilities", was read by Mrs. Tyrell, while a trio of ladies from Picton Calvary Baptist Church, Mesdames Heel, Dulmage and Tolley, sang a well known gospel song, "The Old-Fashioned Way."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. T. Delaney of Trenton Baptist Church, was the guest speaker, her topic, "Ambassadors for Christ," who said, in part, "every Christian can be an ambassador for Christ; we can all represent Him for He has given us the credentials of our ambassadorship and a message of reconciliation to give to the world."

At the conclusion of the meeting the ladies were served a delicious lunch in the basement of the church with a time of fellowship.

The ladies of Parkdale Baptist M.F. were thanked by the guests for their kind hospitality and a most enjoyable evening.

Mrs. A. Hannah presided at the piano during the meeting.

White Cane Club Enjoys Recreation

The first recreation meeting of the White Cane Club for 1962 took place at the Kiwanis Centre Monday night with an excellent attendance.

President Pat Sherlock officially welcomed everyone with a special welcome to Franklin Lott of Shannonville, who just recently joined the club.

A presentation was made on behalf of the club by Vi Waite to Mary Kuzyma, who is being transferred to Toronto in the very near future. Mary most graciously expressed her thanks and said she always enjoyed the hospitality at the meetings and would miss Belleville.

TABLE BOWLING

Table bowling was enjoyed by all, the winners for the ladies were: high, Alice Smith; second, Flossie Aitkins; low, Pat Baverstock. Winners for the men were: high, Charlie Dolan; second, Gerald Maracle; low, Allie Wright.

Walt Waite, Tom Wardhaugh and Bill Doe assisted at the men's game and Gladys Selden, Laurie Towner and Maude Rollins assisted the ladies.

One night while reclining in bed, a club member, whose name is Arlie Scott, composed a song which will be adopted as the official club song. With Maude Rollins at the piano Arlie's song was taught to the members for future use. The words are:

We're those White Cane gatherings,
'Cause they mean so much to us;
They help me get acquainted
With those I cannot see.
The welcome I receive there,
Makes me feel I want to roam.
Right back to the White
Cane meetings
Where I feel so much at home".

The Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. Reds Coleman, served a delightful lunch with thanks expressed by Helen Ward-haugh.

40 Teen-Age Girls Take Car Course

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—Forty teen - age girls here have decided the mysteries of motor mechanics are no longer strictly male business.

When the lunch - hour classes were offered at the beginning of term, Mr. Hamilton said, more than 100 girls registered. They had to be restricted to girls in the upper grades.

"With more girls in high school driving automobiles and tractors," Mr. Hamilton said, "I thought it would be a good idea to give them a general knowledge about cars."

The course is designed to give students a basic knowledge of how an automobile works and enable them to make minor repairs and adjustments.

But if it has done wheeling wolves out of a "come hither" from a distressed maiden driver, at least one oil their sex has benefited.

One of Mr. Hamilton's students reported she was making progress in her homework by working on her boy friend's car.

Women's Activities

ST. OLA — The first meeting of the new organization United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. R. J. Wood on January 3rd with 12 members present.

Mrs. Wood gave the devotional message and prayer. Mrs. Merton Ham gave the treasurer's report which was most gratifying. Mrs. Wood is the convenor for the new study book. There was quite some discussion concerning procedure of the new organization; also in regards to the carpet fund and other items. There is also need for a good used wood furnace for the church as the two box stoves have become inadequate. Mrs. Harry Phillips was appointed secretary-treasurer for this proposed fund, and it was decided to buy new books for this office.

Mr. McAllister closed the meeting with prayer, after which refreshments were served and enjoyed by all.

Alpha Lambda Outlines Aims And Purposes

The purpose of the sorority is to give members cultural advantages and expanded social contacts, unified with other young women also desirous of developing these interests. This is achieved through a definite course of study and many social events with the ultimate aim of making an "art of living".

The sorority was founded in 1931 and is international in scope, having chapters in the United States, Mexico, Europe and Japan.

Alpha Lambda chapter was formed in Belleville in 1948, in 1956, in recognition of the 125th anniversary of Beta Sigma Phi, Alpha Lambda joined with 6,200 other chapters in forming a silver anniversary chapter called "Cammi Mu".

EXEMPLAR CHAPTERS

Two Exemplar chapters, composed of members who have completed the four years course of study have also been formed in Belleville. These are Xi Alpha Mu formed in 1958 and Xi Beta Zeta formed in 1961.

Although the development of an appreciation of cultural subjects, self-improvement and the art of being gracious and sociable are the main objects of Beta Sigma Phi, Alpha Lambda chapter makes many generous contributions to local institutes and charities. The project in 1961 included shopping for the "Good Samaritan Cupboard" at the Belleville General Hospital, which supplies layettes for infants in need and the donation of a scholarship to Moira Secondary School. Alpha Lambda has also undertaken the adoption of two children through the "Canadian Save The Children Fund".

To support these and other efforts, the main undertaking of Alpha Lambda each year is the sorority dance, "The Black and Gold Ball". Since 1952, this has become an annual affair in that is eagerly anticipated in Belleville. At the "Ball" a sumptuous buffet supper is served and many prizes are given.

This year, the dance will be convened by Mrs. N. Desmond and all members are confident that once again the Black and Gold Ball to be held at the Club Commodore this month, will be a social success.

'National Survival' Topic At Xi Alpha Mu Chapter

Hi Alpha Mu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi had a most stimulating fall session. The cultural programs, selected and presented by the various members, have been of "Awareness", including the discussion of the five freedoms and associations, questions and answers periods followed these presentations.

On October 31st, W. O. Cochrane of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, spoke to the chapter on "National Survival". The subject included the blast and fire damage caused by a five megaton bomb; the radiation and fall-out resulting from such a blast; the rescue procedure that would be required of the army and the 11 steps to survival, which people in fall-out areas should take.

Maj. Cochrane allowed questions at the end of each phase of the lecture, thus enabling members of the chapter to clarify pertinent points.

The Hi Alpha Mu chapters portion of the Beta Sigma Phi Scholarship in the Humanities was presented to Miss Elinor Beech at the Quinte Secondary School graduation by the chapter president, Mrs. Jack Sisson.

SYMPTOMS OF EYE DISEASE

In November, Miss Virginia Philpot of the C.N.I.B. spoke to the group on the many and varied activities of the Institute. Miss Philpot stressed the importance of recognizing the signs and symptoms of eye disease and to be aware of any difficulties children might be having. Also in this month, the chapter entertained the members of the newly formed exemplar chapter Hi Beta Zeta.

The "Ways and Means" committee of Hi Alpha Mu have organized the chapter into smaller groups to make sprons for little girls. The sale of these will help to replenish the chapter treasury.

The 1961 activities of the chapter came to a happy conclusion with the annual Christmas party at which time the members were joined by their husbands.

Bishop Evans Gives Talk On 'State of the Diocese' At Church of Redeemer WA

The Women's Auxiliary of The Church of The Redeemer was hostess to the Ontario Diocesan Board for its January meeting.

The Diocesan president, Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell presided and the rector, the Rev. H. Robinson, said the opening prayers, using Psalm 68 as his theme.

Prior to addressing the meeting Bishop K. O. Evans dedicated the beautiful banner which the women of Pakistan made and embroidered for the W.A. of this Diocese.

The Bishop commenced his address by expressing pleasure at being present, and wishing everyone a "Happy New Year." He stressed the great loyalty of the women of the Church, and of their great interest in missionary work, though in the past few years men have also become more interested in the work of the Church promoting a healthy condition, which promises well for the future.

DIOCESAN TALK

Following these opening remarks, the Bishop went on to give what might be termed "A State of the Diocese" talk, which included favorable comment of the W.A. annual meeting and the youth rallies, as it is possible at these events to provide unlimited inspiration, co-operation shown with regards to the appointment of a woman youth worker his home front. New growth and interest has been promoted and young people are responding well to excellent leadership, and the Story of the Woman's Auxiliary in Ontario Diocese" was highly praised. Great loyalty and "esprit de corps" of the many people involved having made this book a reality.

Lastly, His Lordship spoke of the tremendous change in the Diocese as a whole, of the number of new Churches being built and of the energy shown by the younger clergymen in the mission parishes.

CENTENNIAL YEAR

1962 is the Centennial year of the Diocese and it is the earnest wish of His Bishop that the entire Diocese be captured that was present when this Diocese was founded in 1862. Bishop Lewis, the first Bishop, believed that "Truth is One," and every Christian is asked to participate fully in a complete demonstration of faith.

The president thanked the members of the Church of The Redeemer for their hospitality and the Bishop said the closing prayers.

Club Activities

ST. ANDREW'S C.G.I.T.

The St. Andrew's Presbyterian C.G.I.T. group held its meeting on Monday evening at seven o'clock in the church. There was a worship service which consisted of a Scripture lesson, the offering and a prayer.

In the business meeting activities were discussed for each month of the year and that there would be pajama party in the month of January. The mission study was discussed.

The group is discussing South America and is working on a bulletin board. There was a member business discussed. A few games were enjoyed. The meeting was closed with "taps".

Club Activities

AMELIASBURG

TOWN-COUNTRY CLUB

The fifth meeting of the Amelisburg Town and Country Club was held at the home of Pat Townend on December 16th. The meeting opened with the 4-H pledge. Roll call was "One thing of interest I have learned in cutting out and marking a garment."

Mrs. Pulver discussed when to wear shorts. This is governed by good taste. One should always wear clothes suitable for the occasion and place. Shorts may be worn on the beach, bicycling, playing tennis and badminton, sailing, and for most sports at home. They are not correct in hotels, theatres, trains, planes, city streets, conferences and church functions. A discussion on the fit of garments took place. There should be no unnecessary wrinkles.

The members were divided into pairs to make samples of a neck or arm facing and altering for skirts. For the remainder of the meeting the leaders helped with sewing problems.

Lunch was served.

A work meeting was held at the home of Donna Spencer on the afternoon of Dec. 28. Mrs. Smith attended this meeting. The leaders and Mrs. Smith helped with sewing problems. The members were taught how to insert a zipper and how to reinforce a curved seam.

Festive Fashion

By VERA WINSTON

A fairly wide, stiff belt of the fabric circles the waist of this overblouse dress of silk serge. Ideal for late afternoon wear, it comes in black or deep beige.

The peplum flares slightly below the belt and the gored skirt also flares out in the direction of the hemline.

Classic Navy Will Return To Fashions

TORONTO (CP) — Classic navy will return to the Canadian fashion scene for spring. Although no one color will be dominant the biggest color news is the return of navy in coats and suits," Vivian Wilton, fashion editor of Chatelaine and Style, told members here for the 14th Ontario market here Monday.

Other prompt of colors will replace the hot pinks and purples of last season. They are the neutrals, pastels and a red, white and blue combination.

With the stress off color, clothes will become curvier and feature more detail. Ruffles, fringes and loops appear on summer dresses and there are a lot of prints. The newest prints are flat, stylized patterns known as "art nouveau."

The navy trend, principally beige, are shown in rustic or homespun fabrics.

SOME PASTELS SEEN

The pastel colors for spring are blue, pink, green and yellow. The tested peach and apricot tones have not turned up but may appear later for summer, Miss Wilton said.

The most significant coat shape for spring curved close to the body with seaming at the bust to give a concave look to the front. The narrow collar was set away from the neck and was notched. A yoke or arm shape was the fitted styles with a clearly defined waist and full skirt. The flared gores of both were narrow.

Most suits had short jackets with either small collars or none at all.

Now in the casual field was the hipster, a low - slung pant without a waistband. Some were shown with midriff-baring tops.

In nightwear, shifts were expected to be popular. Tiered gowns by as much as 6 to 1. The yoke and sleeves of many were cut in one piece.

MAIL CALL

Question — An old friend who lives several hundred miles away sent me an announcement of her daughter's marriage. Does it call for an answer, or should I send a gift? If a gift, how should it be addressed? Mrs. D. B., Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Answer — A wedding announcement is sent to relatives and friends, of the bride and groom, and of their parents, mainly to spread the glad tidings. It does not have to be acknowledged, nor does a gift have to be sent. If you want to send a present, however, it should now be addressed to the bride and groom and sent to their new home.

• • •

Question: A friend of mine is moving to a new home after living in an apartment and I'd very much like to give her a housewarming shower. Is this proper? If so, should the shower be held at her home or mine? At what time of day should the shower be held and what type of entertaining should be included? — Mrs. H.D., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: It's appropriate for one friend to give a housewarming shower for another. However, while the couple involved would give a housewarming in their new home, a household shower should be held at the home of the friend who is acting as hostess. If only women will be present, then the party could be planned around a luncheon or afternoon tea. If husbands are to be included, which is often the case, then a dinner or a late-evening party would be a better idea. The opening of the presents provides enough entertainment, so it's not necessary to plan anything further in this direction.

B.C. Artist, Joy Caros, Has Made Success of Using Oil on Black Velvet

By JIM PEACOCK

PAINTS PORTRAITS — Mrs. Joy Caros (right), wife of a Vancouver policeman, has turned her hobby of painting into a fulltime career. Specializing in portraits and figure studies of Orientals and Eurasians, Mrs. Caros has sold her work in Canada, United States, Australia and Europe. Model Susan Chew of New Westminster, B.C., stands beside a painting of herself. (CP Photo).

VANCOUVER (CP) — The works of Vancouver artist Joy Caros, alive with realism, are scorned by the surrealist art fanciers, but Joy couldn't care less.

"If the artist can't explain what he's doing," she says of modern abstract art, "then how can we understand it? Most of it is covering up bad drawing.

"When I see a painting, I don't like to wonder what it is. I like to enjoy the feeling."

Mrs. Caros spoke as an artist whose prolific talent has enabled her to earn a comfortable living from the sale of an average of seven original works a week at prices ranging from $80 to $500 a painting.

She has worked a great deal with oils on black velvet, one of the few painters doing this type of work. She said she's been offered many times more than the price of any painting to reveal the secrets of her success on velvet.

PREFERS PORTRAITS

Her greatest satisfaction comes from painting lifelike portraits of ethnic types and she gets particular delight from painting Orientals and Eurasians.

"Portraits, that's all I'm interested in. I did two seascapes in Hawaii and it took as much out of me I was a bear all day.

She had just returned from Honolulu where she spent two weeks plucking models from the beaches, streets and restaurants to pose for 25 paintings which she later put on display at shows in Victoria and Vancouver.

Born in Trail, B.C. and raised in Vancouver, Mrs. Caros is the wife of a Vancouver city policeman and mother of a nine-year-old girl and five-year-old boy. She began painting full time five years ago, turning a part-time hobby into a profit-making career through rather an accidental experiment with oils on black velvet.

"I was doing portraits in pastels. With pastels, you work on a velvet-like paper. I did a show for a department store here and they asked me to come up with something special. So I tried oils on velvet.

NUDES CAUSE FUSS

Since then, most of her work has been on velvet, although she is doing more on canvas now. And it has sold across Canada, the United States, Australia and in Europe.

Some of her paintings are of nudes, a matter that involved her in public controversy here two years ago when nudes on velvet were hung in a Polynesian restaurant. They still hang there and later ones have been among the top-priced sellers for Mrs. Caros.

"But you should see the looks I get from my neighbors when I hang a nude in velvet on the clothes line at home to dry.

She has been invited by singer Frankie Laine to do his portrait and hopes to get this done early in this year. Then she will return to Hawaii to prepare paintings for a show in California, where she has won several awards and later in 1962 she hopes to travel to Hong Kong, Mexico, Tahiti and Thailand to paint works for shows in Toronto, New York, Los Angeles and elsewhere.

A prolific painter, she turns out as many as three or four paintings three by four feet in size in a day, but many don't go on sale. "Nothing that I don't like goes out of my house.

Spice Cake Made To Customers' Order

By Mary Moore

"Will I make a cake, a pie or a pudding for dessert?" As one man in Herbie called for "Cake!" Marianne piped up "With a thick cocy filling . . ." Peady was more specific "Make a spice cake." Gary got his vote in too "Make a thick icing on it Grandma." Danny asked "Can I have a piece of cake now?"

So Grandma, having the answer to her question, got to work and made

It's a beauty and you will love me for this.

2¾ cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon single acting baking powder, ⅝ teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, ¾ teaspoon cloves, shake of pepper, ⅝ cup margarine or shortening, ⅝ cup brown sugar, firmly packed, 1 cup white sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 large eggs, 1 cup buttermilk.

Cream the shortening until it is very light. then gradually beat in both sugars until very light and airy. Beat in eggs one at a time, then add vanilla. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, soda, salt and spices and add them, one-third of each at a time, alternately with the buttermilk, using a folding motion. Pour into 2 layer cake pans 8½ x 1¼" (or use 3 9" pans). Line on bottoms with buttered wax paper, and buttered on sides. Bake at 350 deg. F. 40 to 50 minutes for 30 to 35 minutes if baked in 3 layers. Cool 5 minutes in pans, then turn out on cake racks to cool

While cake are baking make Sour Cream Filling: Heat 1 cup dairy of natural sour cream a little. Mix together ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons flour, then stir in 1 egg yolk. Add the warmed sour cream slowly, stirring, then return to heat and cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thick. Remove from heat and add shake of salt, shake of cinnamon and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Cool and chill before spreading between cakes.

When cakes and filling are cool, spread filling between cakes and cover with Coffee Frosting: Cream ¼ cup butter add 3 tablespoons instant coffee powder and, while creaming, add 3 cups sifted icing sugar, alternately with 3 to 4 tablespoons milk or cream, until of rather thin spreading consistency. Spread over sides then top of cake. If desired sprinkle top liberally with chopped pecans or walnuts or Brazils or almonds.

OPPOSES TV PROGRAM

VICTORIA — (CP) — Professional engineer W. M. Smardon is urging parents to oppose a school board plan to give children lessons in survival training. "My objection is to the idea of telling children they could have bombs dropped on them," he said. "I have a seven-year-old child and it hurts me to think what the effects on her would be."

Many Future Events Planned At River Valley WI Meet

STIRLING — The January meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held on the afternoon of January 4th at the school. The room was nicely decorated with "A Happy New Year" motto, and a bouquet of glowing poinsettias.

Mrs. Allen McDonell was hostess and Mrs. Percy Craighead lunch convener. Fourteen members, one visitor and five school children were in attendance.

Mrs. Vernon Harry, vice-president, opened the meeting, welcomed the group and also extended congratulations to the president and her new baby, born on January 3rd.

Mrs. George Heasman presented a full financial statement and the necessary papers have been signed to adopt the FWIO project for a child in another country and the $60 has been remitted. The correspondence included a nice array of thank-you cards and a calendar which were displayed on the table for all to see.

BIRTHDAY LUNCHEON

A letter was read from the F.W.I.O. president re the birthday luncheon to be held in Toronto in February. Four members from River Valley have made their reservations. No one will be admitted without a ticket which should be procured as soon as possible. Information in a letter re. the area fee of $5. was read and on motion the delegate to the district annual in May will be instructed to vote in the affirmative. This will eliminate collections at the Trent Valley area convention next autumn. A letter re the West Hastings Farm Forum which is scheduled for Moodey evening February 9th at River Valley School was read and plans were made accordingly. The speaker will be Mr. W. J. Musgrove, principal of Moira Secondary School and the arrangements are in charge of Mrs. E. B. Phillips, Belleville District Federation Area representative. Letters with full particulars have been sent to each branch secretary by Mrs. Harry Coulter.

The district director at River Valley will have literature to distribute later this month to the folks in the valley. The West Hastings district officers' conference will be held March 7th at the River Valley School kitchen and Mrs. James Heggadon, president of the Federated Women's Institute of Canada will be in charge of the two sessions that day. Further particulars will be given at the February meeting.

The W.I. members were invited to attend the 4-H Homemaking Club's achievement day at the Stirling Community Hall on, January 20th at 1.15 p.m. under the direction of the home economist Wilda Waldron. The 4-H Club at River Valley is under the direction of Mrs. Glenn Bush and Mrs. Philip Conley.

The secretary distributed the F.W.I.O. conveners' reports. These are to be read and preserved as they contain valuable information for each department of work. Mrs. Jack Bush completed plans for the sale on Monday evening at the Hickson Sales Barn at Hoards. An executive meeting had been held last week to arrange the food.

MEN'S NIGHT

The agriculture group are in charge of men's night at the school on Friday evening January 12th and a euchre party the week following. Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Allen McDonell and Mrs. Percy Mucullen will be the conveners in charge of these events. At the men's meeting there will be no admission charge. The speakers will be Messrs. Sidney MacDonald, agriculture representative and Grant Richardson. There will also be special music and the refreshments will be provided by Institute members.

The February meeting will be held on the first Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Tucker and will be based on "Current Events" and it is expected that the president of West Hastings district will give her official message. During February the home economics group are planning two card parties at the school.

PUBLIC RELATIONS REPORT

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, public relations officer, thanked the secretary for the bouquet of spring flowers and get-well wishes received on behalf of the many Institute members. She also told of the wedding of Miss Julia Lane, a former home economist in this area, which was held at Barrie Island Church. She displayed a W.I. English diary and a Somerset Institute apron which had been sent to her as a gift from Abbot's Leigh W.I. members. She also displayed English newspapers which members carried home to read.

Mrs. MacMullen read a letter of thanks from Mrs. E. Coombs, link secretary, for the rain hats which were gifts from River Valley to each W.I. member at Abbot's Leigh and needless to say, the friends in England were delighted with this gift.

The link secretary distributed a lovely Christmas card and a book mark to each River Valley member. The book marks were fashioned of leather, satin and other materials and some were hand colored, many of the members were delighted with their individual gifts.

Mrs. Roy Tucker passed around "The Pennies for Friendship" jar and reported $1.67 for December. For her A.C.W.W. message she told of the lovely piece of tapestry depicting South Australia, with flowers worked by the State Handicraft committee and forwarded to London for the world president's chair. When the tenth triennial conference convenes in Melbourne, Australia in August the main theme of study will be food, friendship, leisure and learning.

The offering was gathered by Susan Bush and several coupons were handed in for the coffee urn.

FINE PROGRAM

Mrs. Allen McDonell convened the program based on scripture verse. She read a review for a "Happy New Year". This was centred around faith, assurance, prayer, work, kindness, prayer and meditation and were much food for thought.

The story of pennies for friendship was read and an outline of what the triennial conference makes of them. This voluntary gift of the Associated Country Women of the World is the world organization of Country Women. In the year ending March 1960 the voluntary givings were $31,227, given in pennies for friendship by thousands of Countrywomen A.C.W.W. strives to build international friendship and understanding and to improve rural conditions in many countries.

The motto baked on a conservative-sledge was read and included this thought, "I give my pledge to save and faithfully defend from waste the natural resources of my country — its soils and minerals, its waters, forests and wild life, for home and country."

AGRICULTURAL MESSAGE

Mrs. Roy Bush gave a message on agriculture and told of the value of an institute in the community. In 1897 the idea of Institute work was a vision of a brave venture which gave practical ideas toward better homemaking and good citizenship. Today in a rapidly changing world there are greater problems confronting the women across the country.

The agriculture convener has a choice of a large variety of subjects as she leads her group in the study of production and marketing, scientific farming methods, quality and grading, preservation of rural welfare, home beautification and gardening, and many other items pertaining to farm life in general.

Mrs. Roy Tucker gave an outline of various ways of building friendship in South East Asia. Here, rural improvement clubs are run by home economics classes or high standards where the teaching of handicraft, cooking, poultry keeping, nutrition, sewing and so forth is most worthwhile. She also read a clipping which outlined what the four Institutes in the North West Territories and the one in Mariner Junction in the Yukon were doing. These women of the north have no rural life, as we know it, but they are very interested in handicrafts.

EVENING SESSION REPORT

Mrs. Jack Bush read a report of the evening session of the Trent Valley area which had been prepared by Mrs. Ralph Thomas. The convener, Mrs. Allen McDonell staged a contest, "Holidays of the Year," and the winners were Mrs. J. Bush, Mrs. V. Harry and Mrs. Ross Holland, and they were rewarded for their efforts.

Mrs. Jack Bush told of the money bestowed recently on Mrs. Percy MacMullen by the Stirling News Argus and the members gave her an ovation and the gift — a wrist watch — was displayed.

The meeting closed, after which the group in charge served sandwiches, relishes, cookies and tea and all enjoyed a social half hour. The school teacher, Miss M. Blackburn, joined the group for refreshments.

Mrs. Roy Tucker voiced appreciative thanks for the program and lunch and graciously invited everyones in the Valley to attend the February meeting at her home.

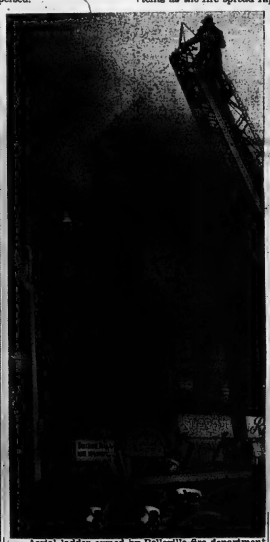
Scenes At This Morning's Fire On East Bridge Street



SURPRISE — This is not exactly the season for taking a shower in the open air but a number of spectators received an unexpected bath when a hose coupling came adrift from the high pressure pumper on the Trenton aerial truck. The stream of water sprayed a goodly number standing on the side of Bridge Street opposite the fire. The crowd in the immediate area quickly dispersed.

SALVAGE CREWS — Store owners and volunteers worked hurriedly to save records and store contents as the fire spread rapidly. Here office records and stocks from nearby stores are seen being carried to safety.

COFFEE FOR FIREMEN — Salvation Army Major John Carter serves steaming coffee to two city firemen taking a brief rest. Firemen are E. Merritt and W. Skinkle.

Aerial ladder owned by Belleville fire department goes to work in an attempt to contain the blaze. Hydro crewmen had to switch off power and cut power lines before the aerial ladder could be used.

FULL POWER — Steam and smoke almost obscures burning building as water from two aerial trucks and from a half dozen hand held hose is concentrated against the fire. Trenton and Point Anne firemen answered the call to aid Belleville fire fighters.

Record Volume, Revenue Is Reported by Post Office

OTTAWA — New record in the postal service, and increased emphasis was being placed on problem of the user of post office services, as well as how the department might adjust its operations to suit the convenience of such patrons.

One such change, Mr. Hamilton noted, was a system whereby Canadian postmen, who already knocked twice, would arrange for special service for people who are at home when the letter carrier arrives with registered mail, C.O.D. items and shortpaid letters. The new service, provided on an optional basis and at additional cost of 25 cents to the patron, had been extremely well received. A housewarming gift of $120,000 in the form of free postage to patrons wishing to inform correspondents of their change of address was also extended during the year. In an attempt to keep track of wandering patrons, the Post Office Department dropped the former two-cent postage rate on official change of address cards and encouraged the six million Canadians who change address each year to take advantage of the new free service.

Higher in mail volumes, surpassing last years almost four billion pieces, and substantially increased postal revenues over the $193,593,016 mark for the previous year are reported by the Hon. William Hamilton, Postmaster General, in a year-end statement. Mr. Hamilton said that while final figures for 1961 had not yet been compiled, every indication was that both volumes and revenues would exceed last years record-breaking figures.

In addition to setting new performance figures, Mr. Hamilton noted that 1961 had been an important year in introducing changes and improvements

SLAYER SENTENCED

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP)—Mary Madigan, 28-year-old babysitter charged in the death of a child in her care, pleaded guilty to manslaughter Monday after two doctors found her sane and was sentenced to eight years. Miss Madigan was accused in the death of Gail Sue Nemmers, 5. Police quoted her as saying she held the child tightly against her to show her affection. The child died of suffocation.

New Highways And Building Promised Voters

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — New highways and a new $500,000 provincial government building for Kenora were promised Tuesday night by Premier Rob, erts.

The premier told a Progressive Conservative election rally he has "more plans" for the Kenora area. He spoke in support of Peter Robertson, candidate in the Jan. 16 provincial by-election.

Mr. Robarts said a new provincial government building, to be started next July, will bring eight provincial departments under one roof.

"The building will be second capital for Northwestern Ontario," he said.

Given 30 Days

WHITBY (CP) — "I don't see why restaurant owners should have to put up with a 10-round fight every time they sell a cup of coffee," Magistrate R. B. Dreiper said Tuesday.

He sentenced Paul McWhirter 24, of Toronto, to 30 days on a common assault charge to which McWhirter pleaded guilty.

Evidence was he entered a restaurant, asked for a cup of coffee, then accused proprietor James Papavasiliou of picking $35 from his pocket.

He seized the proprietor by the collar and was threatening him with a table knife when he was grabbed by another customer.

Fellow Who Packs Paunch Unsung Hero of Our Times

The fellow who packs a paunch is one of the unsung heroes of our times. He is the great nonconformist of this generation, and his protuberant tummy is a badge of distinction, a token of true bravery flaunted in the face of the calories-counting mob.

Anybody today can be skinny and stroll the land like a rampant bleanpole. All you have to do is do without what most of mankind has struggled for over the last 1,000,000 years—food.

Every time these emaciated wretches meet an honest fat man they poke a bony finger in his chubby stomach and say things like:

"You're putting it on again, I see."

"I'd do something about that watermelon, if I were you."

"Better get rid of it—or you won't be long for this world."

It is high time the fat men formed themselves into a protective society to guard themselves against detractors. They should carry a neon-lit sign on their stomachs saying:

"Please do not touch. Contents valuable."

After all, fat men have always had a firm place in history.

Buddha was fat. Benjamin Franklin was fat. Samuel Johnson was fat. (It is probably true also that Nero was fat—but then you'll find a black sheep in almost any flock.)

A fat man, if left alone, is generally one of nature's noblemen. His crime, if any, is that he simply enjoys the good things of this world — and doesn't mind showing it. He is no hypocrite.

The ordinary fat man is peace-loving and law-abiding. His rarely robs banks, beats his wife, fights cops or cheats at pinochle. He wisely spends most of his energy enjoying himself. He doesn't have any energy left to get into trouble.

All fat men ask is that they be left alone to go through life enjoying peace of mind—and a piece of cake, too. Their motto is, "live and let live."

But skinny people won't let them. Skinny people can't stand the sight of a comfortable, contented fat man. They reek of a false self - virtue. They want everyone to be like them—hungry.

"You're cutting your life short," they jeer at the fat man. Maybe so. On the other hand, a lot of elephants outlive an awful lot of gazelles.

It's about time fat men started fighting back. Our suggestion is that on a given day of each month—and at a certain hour—every fat man should turn around and fall down on the nearest dieter and smother him.

Farmers' Union Talks on Hog Marketing Bd.

BONARLAW — The December meeting of Local 171, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, Melrose Avenue, was chairman and opened the meeting.

Letters from the head office were read and discussed. One was about the proposed constitution of the National Farmer's Union, which was explained by Gordon Williams. Another was read by Wes Finch about the Hog Marketing Board. The Hog Marketing Board used to be made up of seven elected area directors and four appointed directors, but last spring the province was divided into 11 zones and a director was elected from each zone. Now the Hog Marketing Board wants to add three appointed directors. The Farmer's Union feels that the directors of any marketing board should be elected by the producer. Appointed directors might not put the interests of the producers foremost.

Some of the members were at the recent Hastings County Cheese Producers meeting. They reported that a resolution was passed asking the Ontario government for a grant to help cover the cost of erecting new milk houses and the cost of refrigeration unit. The members at the meeting decided to send the F.U. should support the cheese producers and a resolution was drawn up similar to theirs.

Several members offered their homes for meetings through the next few months. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby.

It was also decided to hold some card parties this winter.

Refreshments were served and a social period followed.

GIVEN LEAVE TO APPEAL

TORONTO (CP)—The CPR was granted leave Tuesday to appeal Chief Justice J. C. Mc-Ruer's ruling that they broke the law in letting 700 Royal York Hotel workers. The appeal will be heard at next month's criminal sessions of the Ontario Appeal Court.

Two Canadians Armed to Teeth To Fight Castro

BUFFALO (AP) — A well-armed young Canadian, whose home is in Fidel Castro country, and two Americans in Florida were cut short by U.S. immigration authorities, who charged them with violating the United States neutrality laws.

Gerard Gaudreau Leduc, 20, of Portneuf, and a companion were arrested here at a bridge terminal Monday. Mr. Police said they were armed with carbine cartridges, 38-calibre revolver, more than 100 rounds of ammunition, 12 hand grenades, two pistols, a rifle, two daggers and other combat gear.

Gaudreau Leduc admitted Monday that he crossed the Peace Bridge, connecting Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont., by virtue of a previous deportation order. He will be sentenced Jan. 15.

His companion, David R. L. Corbin, 21, also of Toronto, was allowed to return to Canada. He had no previous immigration violation.

Plan Penalties For No Shows Or No Seats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board on Monday to allow U.S. air lines to take money from "no show" passengers—but also to let passengers collect cash penalties when there are no seats to go with their tickets.

The board gave tentative approval to new rules, effective March 1, which would allow the airlines to collect a penalty of $5 or 50 per cent, whichever is larger, when refunding money to a passenger holding a ticket which he did not use or cancel in advance of the flight.

The rules would also allow a passenger to collect a penalty of $25 or 50 per cent, whichever is larger, if he finds there is no space on the flight for which he holds a ticket.

Hen Upsets Hive of Bees On TV Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Things were buzzing for a while in the studio of WPIX, television station of The New York Daily News.

An educational program was on the air Monday, and a hive full of bees was used to demonstrate how bees communicate with each other.

Some birds also were in on the act.

A hen kicked over the glass-covered hive and sent 1,000 bees buzzing around the studio for nearly an hour.

Announcer Joe Bolton was stung on a finger. A bat and pigeon which also were in the show went unscathed.

Some cameramen and technicians beat a hasty retreat at first. But the show went on, and the bees finally were vacuumed or bug-bombed.

Once-Quiet Cape Breton Ferry Terminal Swept off Feet in Building New Mill

By IRA DEYDEDALE

PORT HAWKESBURY, N.S. (CP) — You've got to step smartly and watch out for pulpwood trucks when crossing the main street in Port Hawkesbury these days.

This once-quiet Cape Breton ferry terminal has been swept off its feet in a whirl, of activity accompanying Nova Scotia Pulp Limited's construction of a $40,000,000 pulp mill at Point Tupper, two miles southeast of here on the Canso Strait.

Two years ago streets were deserted except for an occasional car. Now there's a constant roar of traffic. Giant trucks grind by far into the night carrying pulpwood from the forests in the centre of Cape Breton Island.

It's not long since the sloper back of the town were deep hunting grounds. Now the sound of bulldozers and hammers tells that the woods are being cut and homes are being built.

Little more than 1,000 people lived here two years ago. Now there are 2,500. Total assessment early in 1960 was $714,000. A year later it was $2,800,000 and may be about $5,000,000 this year.

MORE POLICE

"It's a typical boom town," said Cpl. David Cleeman, a native of Joggins, N.S. who heads the RCMP detachment. The force has been increased to four from three, with a fifth man being used occasionally.

Accommodations are so crammed that it's often necessary to drive 40 miles to Antigonish or 30 miles to St. Peter's for a room for the night.

"It's not the same Hawkesbury," said one guest house operator, "You don't know your own husband anymore. You don't have time."

She told of one visitor who wanted lodgings for the night. "I told him I didn't have anything—not even a double bed he could share with someone else. But he needed something, so I gave him a cot beside the TV. The next day he asked me to reserve the cot for him that night too."

In addition to the sulphite mill, now in final stages of construction, a $1,750,000 salt storage plant and deep-sea terminal have been built by British American Oil at Point Tupper on the Cape Breton side of the Canso Strait.

GYPSUM DEPOSITS

In the same area Bestwell Gypsum Company is developing storage and shipping facilities for recently discovered deposits from the River Denys area of central Cape Breton.

Industrial Estates Limited, a provincial Crown corporation set up in 1957 to promote secondary industry in Nova Scotia, says more development in the area is likely. It holds 1,000 acres of potential industrial land there.

A new school, new church and $1,000,000 shopping centre are ready or nearly completed.

About 1,000 men are employed on construction in the area. Another 300—to become permanent personnel at the pulp mill—have started to arrive.

New housing for 92 families is expected to be completed early this year in two housing projects directly behind the old-section of town. Other private housing has sprung up in outlying areas and through Port Hawkesbury.

Rent—less than $50 a month on the average two years ago—now runs between $80 and $125. Room and board is $20 and more a week compared with $12 to $14.

BUTTER 75 CENTS

John William MacIntyre, 65-year-old general storekeeper on the main street since 1920, says there has been no increase in prices but the turnover has been greater. He sells butter at 75 cents a pound, milk at 27 cents a quart and bread at 22 cents — in each case slightly higher than in Halifax.

The town has borrowed more than $700,000 for capital expenditures, including $310,000 for water and sewer extensions, $300,000 for a new school and $70,000 for street improvements.

TOWN GROWING — Newly constructed houses overlook Canso Strait at Port Hawkesbury, N.S., where construction of a $40,000,000 pulp mill has more than doubled the town's population in the last two years. A sulphite mill, development of the area's gypsum and construction of bulk storage plants are also helping the growth of this former Cape Breton ferry terminal. (CP Photo).

Reported Offer $100,000

Als Seek Sandy Stephens

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ted Workman, owner of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, arrived here Tuesday with a reported offer of $100,000 to Sandy Stephens for a three - year contract from the Minnesota quarterback.

Workman was accompanied by J. I. Albrecht, former assistant Tennessee coach and now a Montreal talent scout.

"We need Stephens and mean to sign him," said Workman, of the quarterback who sparked Minnesota into — and then helped win — the New Year's Day Rose Bowl game. "We're convinced that the Canadian game is tailor - made for Stephens."

A year - around public relations job with a large Canadian firm also would be offered Stephens, it was reported.

Stephens, just returned from Hula Bowl play in Hawaii, said he will visit Cleveland, where the National Football League Browns are interested in him, and talk with New York Titans, American Football League team, before signing anything.

Beaver Players to Help Blues

KITCHENER (CP) — Jack Humphreys, general manager of Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, said Tuesday that New York Rangers of the National League have called up three forwards from his club.

Two others have been sent down.

Pearson, 23, another left winger, played 22 games with the Rangers in 1959-60. He is from Flin Flon, Man., where he played hockey for the Bombers of the SJHL. He is sixth in the EPHL standings.

Hextall, a 20-year-old centre, was with Brandon Wheat Kings of the Manitoba Junior Hockey League. His father, Bryan Hextall, is a former New York Rangers star who won the NHL scoring title in 1941-42.

Jean Ratelle and Rod Gilbert are joining the Beavers. Gilbert has been out of action this season following a back injury. Both starred with Guelph in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit.

No Truth In Rumor Says Leader

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP)— President Al Leader of the Western Hockey League said Tuesday he has heard nothing of a rumor that a San Diego, Calif., group would pay $150,000 for a league franchise.

Leader made the statement to reporters following a meeting of league directors where the matter had been expected to be discussed. He said he has not been approached by any one from San Diego.

Directors Tuesday gave Winnipeg formal permission to withdraw from the league. Winnipeg had suspended operations for 1961-62 season because of poor attendance, and is said to be seeking a berth in the U.S. International League.

SONNY UNDER KNIFE

Dr. Mike Mandarino, physician for the club, said the shoulder was put back in a cast after the operation and the cast would remain on for two to three weeks.

"But Sonny should be all right for next season," the doctor added.

Makes Pro Debut With Barons

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Al Cullen, Woodstock Athletics 20-year-old netminding whiz, will make his debut in professional hockey tonight with the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

Cleveland general manager Jackie Gordon was pleased with the youngster at the training camp this year and hinted that he would get a call before the season was out. Al's chance came Tuesday when, regular netminder Ley Binkley collided with a player during practice and injured his foot.

Al will play against the Bears at Hershey tonight and on Saturday he will be in front of the Cleveland team when the Barons tangle with Buffalo Bisons.

He owns a 3.95 average in the OHA Senior League for the third-place A' edge, the third-best in the league for regular netminders.

CFL Brass Meets In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — General managers of the nine Canadian Football League teams opened a two-day session at the Conrad Hilton Hotel Tuesday in conjunction with the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention.

Commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg said after the first meeting that several matters and recommendations were discussed but that there would be no announcement.

In reply to a question, he said one of the matters discussed concerned a proposal that would reduce the number of players on a Canadian pro team to 11 from 12.

"There's no question that public opinion in Canada generally is against a change," said Jim Finks of Calgary Stampeders.

"We think we have a pretty good game the way it is," Halter added.

Besides Finks and Halter, others attending the meeting are Perry Moss of Montreal, George Terlaje of Ottawa, Lew Hayman of Toronto, Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton, Jim Ausley of Winnipeg, Joe Ryan of Edmonton, Ken Preston of Saskatchewan, and Herb Capozzi of British Columbia.

MAIN DROPPING OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Lorne Maine, 31, of Montreal, seven years a member of the Canadian Davis Cup tennis team, announced Tuesday he shortly will resign his job as team captain. Main said he and his wife have adopted two children and he needs more time to spend with them than in previous years.

Blues Want Harris

The Price Isn't Right

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs admitted Tuesday that New York Rangers are after centre Billy Harris — but at Imlach's asking price it appeared unlikely there would be any immediate deal between the two National Hockey League clubs.

"I'm willing to make any deal I think would help the Leafs," Imlach said. He added that the only Ranger players the Leafs are interested in right now are Andy Bathgate and Dean Prentice.

Bathgate, a right-winger with Rangers since the 1954-55 season, leads the NFL scoring race. Prentice, left winger with the team since the 1952-53 season, is tied for seventh.

Ranger manager Muzz Patrick said he would like to get Harris, who has spent most of this year on the bench because the Leafs are strong at centre ice. New York is weak down the middle.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Napanee Comets blast off across the city hockey horizon here tonight in what should be a dilly of a puck battle.

They tangle with the Pepsi's, who took a 5-3 verdict from them down Gibbardville way Monday night, and the Les Douglas crew is going all out for revenge.

Lammy Lamirande's merry men are now at full strength with all the player decks cleared for action, and they have no intention of having their long winning clipped at the hands of the Douglas men.

They have racked up eleven victories in a row, winning some by lopsided scores, but recent events prove that the other clubs in the league are reaching their potential and any or all of them will be forced to be reckoned with from here in.

The Pepsi's, with Lady Luck and Joe Break on their bench snatched a heart-breaker from the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters in Trenton last Friday and Monday night the Comets gave them full value for their victory money.

Game time is set for 8.30 and a good crowd should be on hand to see what should be the best league game of the season.

A report out of Kingston quotes Lorne Cook, eastern OHA convenor as saying a Kingston club has been given a bye in the Lakeshore Intermediate "A" playdowns. The report states the Kingston club will meet, "Napanee, or Belleville, or what have you."

For the information of the apparently misinformed the Pepsi's, if their application for Allan Cup playdowns is finalized by the OHA, will not take part in the Lakeshore playdowns. They will, if sanctioned as Allan Cup playdowns participants, meet the OHA senior champions from Western Ontario.

But thereby hangs another tale.

A few weeks ago playing coach Lammy Lamirande applied to the OHA for participation in Allan Cup play, and, it is reported, was given the green light.

However, at an executive meeting the other day the matter was brought up and the decision was that a meeting will be held in London, January 21st, with representatives of Western Ontario clubs to discuss the Belleville application.

OHA president Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, indicated the major problem is to find playoff time without delaying the declaration of an OHA senior winner for the Eastern Canada final.

It appears the western group decided on playoff dates before the Belleville team became an actual reality due to delays in securing an entry in a league. However, that is no reason why the Belleville club should be denied the opportunity to participate in Allan Cup play.

The Belleville entry will likely meet with stiff opposition from the Western Ontario senior group, due to the fact the latter has decided on playoff dates.

And what about the northern champions? In other years the Eastern Ontario champions played off with the NOHA champs to decide who took on the Western Ontario representatives. This, I believe, is not fair to the northern association. The southern division of the OHA should declare its champions first and the winner take on the north before going on to Eastern Canada play.

However, the OHA as the governing body should have the final say. There has been too much of the tail wagging the dog in the past.

OTTAWA (CP) — Thirty sport-minded Canadians were appointed Tuesday night to the task of working the paunch off Canadian amateur sport, and perhaps invigorating it with the dollar vitamin but how they will go about it was uncertain.

Health Minister Monteith, in announcing the formation of the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport, said only that the council will advise the government in implementing legislation enacted at the last session of Parliament.

Parliament in the session voted $5,000,000 for the job of encouraging and developing fitness and amateur sport in Canada. The council has been entrusted pending the formation of the advisory council.

Mr. Monteith said the first meeting of the council will be held within the next two or three weeks.

"We are anxious that the council get moving as quickly as possible so that no time will be lost in getting the project moving and in full operation."

OTTAWA CONFERENCE

Mr. Monteith said the federal government also hopes to arrange for the setting up of a federal-provincial committee at the deputy minister level with administrative matters arising out of the federal-provincial aspects of the program."

He said a federal-provincial conference is being planned prior to working out agreements with the provinces.

Chief reaction of the people appointed to the council—ranging from an Anglican bishop to all-time hockey great Maurice "Rocket" Richard—was delight at formation of the council and pleasure at being appointed.

"There should be a wealth of ideas from the wide cross-section of sport represented on the council," said its chairman, Kenneth P. Farmer of Montreal, president of the Canadian Olympic Association from 1953 to 1961.

Melville F. Rogers, president of the Sports Advisory Council and one of two Ottawa appointees on the new council, said it was too early to know exactly what its plans are.

The names of the 30 members and the chairman of the council—five from the Atlantic provinces, eight from Quebec and eight from Ontario — were announced by Mr. Monteith.

Its membership includes another National Hockey League veteran, Howie Meeker, who now lives at St. John's, Nfld., recently appointed Anglican suffragan bishop of Rupert's Land, Rt. Rev. J. O. Anderson of Winnipeg; two Roman Catholic priests, and some of Canada's best known sports writers and editors.

Another well - known sports personality is Joe Poirier, a social worker whom he isn't playing defence for the Eastern Football Conference Ottawa Rough Riders.

Council appointee Vern Degeer, Montreal Gazette sports columnist and reporter, already has a project in mind.

"I understand Gail Terriere (Canada's representative for the world hockey tournament) need funds and maybe they can be taken into early consideration," he said.

DeGeer also worked as an office boy for Prime Minister Diefenbaker when he was practising law in Saskatoon.

Other newspaper men appointed to the council are: Charles Maher, a columnist with La Patrie, a Montreal weekly; Andy O'Brien, also of Montreal, sports editor of Weekend Magazine; Thomas (Scotty) Melville, Regina Leader - Post sports editor; and Toronto Ted Reeve.

MCFARLANDS NAMED

Another council member, Mayor Harvey McFarland of Pickering, Ont., says he may come up with some "special projects" when he knows more about the council. Mayor McFarland was sponsor of Belleville McFarlands, who once won the world hockey crown.

Other members of the council include Margaret Lord, Hamilton, vice - president of the British Columbia Golf Association; James Worrall, Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association; Dr. Harry Ebbs, Toronto, director of the University of Toronto school of physical education.

Archie Told To Fight Johnson

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission put the heat on odd Archie Moore Tuesday to sign within 20 days for a defence of his remaining piece of the light heavyweight crown against NBA champion Harold Johnson or face suspension.

Johnson, who has been pursuing Moore for a return title bout for more than seven years, started the fire by firing a formal challenge and a certified cheque for $2,500 as a forfeit with the commission.

In Los Angeles Monday promoter George Parnassus announced Moore had agreed to meet Argentine heavyweight Alejandro Lavorante in a non-title bout at Los Angeles in March.

Moore, who won the 175-pound division championship nine years ago and has set a record in the length of his reign, is recognized as champion by New York, Massachusetts and Europe. He outpointed Italy's Giulio Rinaldi in New York last June. That was his first title defence in nearly two years.

The National Boxing Association had lost patience with ancient Archie long before then. After several warnings and more than a year of non-title activity, it stripped Moore of recognition. Johnson won NBA recognition by knocking out Jesse Bowdry in Miami Beach last February.

Calls for $9,300,000 Deal

NFL May Sign Huge TV Contract

By JACK HAND

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League was expected to announce $9,300,000 television contract today, giving the Columbia Broadcasting System exclusive rights to all regular-season games for the next two years.

The contract, calling for $4,650,000 a year, would give each of the 14 clubs about $320,000 after certain fees were deducted. This sharing is a wealth of dollars from baseball's TV deals in which each clube draws up its own contract and pockets the proceeds.

The NFL contract with a single network was made possible by congressional action last summer after a similar deal was nullified by a federal judge, who found it in violation of anti-trust laws. The law now permits such contracts in professional football, baseball, basketball and hockey.

The NFL expected to end its three-day meeting today. Rozelle relayed requests of the league players' association to club owners Tuesday. After the requests were discussed, Rozelle was instructed to confer with the players for further discussions.

The league went along with the players' request to synchronize a change making it illegal to grab any player by his face mask. It carries a 15-yard penalty, however, only if the ball carrier could be grabbed by the face mask.

Americans Probe Our Juniors

CHICAGO (AP)—The policy-making council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association heard a report Tuesday indicating several Canadian hockey players for U.S. schools have questionable eligibility under NCAA rules.

In the second day's session of the NCAA's 56th annual convention, the council received preliminary reports from several committees, including one studying the increase of Canadian hockey players into the ranks of 70 hockey-playing NCAA members.

The committee on NCAA code violations also began its report and there were indications at least two schools may be cited for infractions.

The hockey problem stemmed from reports that Canadian junior hockey players for U.S. schools may have been subjected to Canadian hockey subsidization, contrary to the NCAA code. Personality affected are players coming from the Junior A clubs.

A survey of 32 Junior A teams in Canada is being undertaken by a special committee headed by Marcus Freiday, faculty representative of the University of Michigan.

It is reported that some Canadian Junior A players receive pro hockey tickets and get compensation from pro clubs, which would be in violation of the NCAA code.

The council is not expected to act in this matter until its April session.

JOCKEY INJURED

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Jockey Richard Winant of New York City was severely injured at the Fair Grounds Tuesday when a loose horse ran into his mount, throwing it on top of him. Winant's injuries were diagnosed as broken rib, severe shock and internal injuries.

ZOLLNER REPLIES

DETROIT (AP)—The owner of the National Basketball Association's Detroit Pistons answered Tuesday a $5,500,000 suit filed against him Nov. 28 by the team's former general manager, W. Nicholas Kerbawy. Fred Zollner denied that he had conspired to ruin Kerbawy's reputation by firing the 48-year-old executive last Sept. 30.

High Scorers Are Scarce

Richard Record Safe This Season

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

There won't likely be many players "gaul enough" in the National Hockey League this season.

And it could be a banner year for 20-goal men, the platoon that supposedly separates the men from the boys.

With the season just past the halfway mark, Gus Mahoney of Montreal Canadiens and Camille Henry of New York Rangers already have reached the 20-goal circle.

Another 22 players with 10 or more goals could reach the mark before the season ends March 25. So could some who have fewer than 10 goals, but were bogged down by injuries during the first half of the season.

Since the NHL adopted its 70-game schedule in 1949-50, the low mark for 20-goal men was 10 in 1952-53. The high was 23 in 1958-59. There were 20 in each of the last two seasons.

LEAFS HAVE MOST

Toronto Maple Leafs, who tonight would take first place with a victory over Boston Bruins in the league's only game, appear to have the most candidates.

Mahovlich and Mahovlich, brilliant left winger who today celebrates his 26th birthday, should hit their 30th goals soon. Howe has 19 while Mahovlich goes into tonight's game with 18.

Three players, Andy Bathgate and Earl Ingarfield of New York and Ralph Backstrom of Montreal, have 17.

There are bracketed at 15. These are Bobby Hull and Ab McDonald, of Chicago and Don McKenney of Boston.

Others like Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore of Montreal and, Murray Balfour of Chicago have an outside chance. They all have missed games with various ailments.

Toronto will be without Red Kelly and Eddie Shack, both recovering from injuries. Dick Duff, who sat out a game at New York with a charleyhorse, will dress.

Terrier Manager 'Blue' Come, Come Mr Gaudette

MONTREAL (CP)—Len Gaudette, general manager of Galt Terriers, the team which is to represent Canada at the 1962 world hockey championships in Colorado Springs, next March, says his team is weaker than the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who finished second in the tournament two years ago.

In an interview here, Gaudette said although the team is weak, it has "good chances of winning the world title if the players make up for their lack of ability with a bigger dash of fort."

"We can present high-calibre hockey," he said, "but we can also come back home with a fifth-place finish."

Gaudette picks Czechoslovakia, Russia, Sweden and the United States as the teams to watch in the tournament.

"Canada beat the Czechs only once during the last three world tourna m e n t s," Gaudet said, "and the Russians have always entered strong teams."

Terriers Nip Bulldogs

GALT (CP) — Galt Terriers, Tuesday night posted their first victory of the season over Windsor Bulldogs. The Terriers' 3-1 win, league's only game, appear to have the most candidates.

Nine Terrier forwards, headed by big Frank Mahovlich, have 10 or more goals.

Mahovlich and Mahovlich, brilliant left winger who today celebrates his 26th birthday, should hit their 30th goals soon. Howe has 19 while Mahovlich goes into tonight's game with 18.

Three players, Andy Bathgate and Earl Ingarfield of New York and Ralph Backstrom of Montreal, have 17.

There are bracketed at 15. These are Bobby Hull and Ab McDonald, of Chicago and Don McKenney of Boston.

Others like Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore of Montreal and, Murray Balfour of Chicago have an outside chance. They all have missed games with various ailments.

Toronto will be without Red Kelly and Eddie Shack, both recovering from injuries. Dick Duff, who sat out a game at New York with a charleyhorse, will dress.

He joined the club last week and has practised twice.

Galt goalie Bouf Hurley played a strong game, particularly in the first period when his 15 saves held the Dogs at bay. Hurley's total was 30 stops, four more than by Windsor's Ross Childs.

SERIES HERO TRADED

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP)—Hector Lopez, a standout in New York Yankees' world series triumph over Cincinnati Reds, was traded Tuesday—but not by the Yankees. In a winter league deal, the veteran outfielder was sent from Cervera Zulias to Marleboro in exchange for Allan Lewis, an outfielder, and cash.

Baby Hab Tops Junior Points Race

TORONTO (CP)—Andre Boudrias of the first-place Montreal Canadiens has a four-point margin in the scoring race in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

League statistics released Tuesday, complete to last Sunday's games, show Boudrias with 24 goals and 37 assists for 61 points.

The Canadiens and Hamilton Red Wings, who have run far ahead of the other four teams, share the first four places in the scoring race and six of the top 10.

Hamilton's Walter (Pit) Martin, who has the most goals with 30, is second with 57 points. Sharing third are Lowell MacDonald of Hamilton and Reiean Richer of Montreal with 51 points each.

Montreal goalie Jim Holmes leads the goals - against averages with 2.8. He has chalked up two shutouts, a mark equalled only by Jon Bamford of Guelph Royals.

HISTORIC COLLEGE

Promoter Told 'No Fight'

QUEBEC (CP)—Gene Letourneau, national commissioner of the Canadian Amateur Federation, and federation president Arthur Bernard said Tuesday the federation cannot sanction a proposed Canadian heavyweight championship fight promoted by Bull Alderman Robert Guertin.

Mr. Guertin Monday night said he would act as promoter in a heavyweight title match between Montreal's Bob Clerous and Cecil Gray of Halifax.

The two CBF officials said in a joint statement that Mr. Goerzin's offer cannot be accepted until Clerous is cleared of a suspension imposed by the Ontario Athletic Commission when he did not fulfil a contract to fight George Chuvalo in Toronto last Sept. 18.

Mr. Letourneau said another reason for the refusal is that there is no boxing commission in Hull.

"If the Ontario Boxing Commission lifts Clerous's suspension, the federation will sanction the Clerous-Gray match," the officials said.

The fight was cancelled Sunday night after the original promoter, Harold Darwin of Ottawa, said he was subjected to pressure. Mr. Darwin came from the Ontario Athletic Commission and Toronto sports promoter Frank Tunney who claimed Clerous had failed to fulfil his contract.

AGA KHAN SECOND

DAVOS, Switzerland (AP) — Karim Aga Khan placed second in the giant slalom race opening the British ski racing week here Tuesday. The youthful leader of some 10,000,000 Ismaeli Moslems, finished behind British champion Charles Palmer-Tomkinson.

The Royals thumped the Browns 9-1 as Braddon, Adams, Mills and R. McLean each netted two goals and Storms had one. C. Purcell bagged the loser's goal.

The Macs edged the Black Hawks 3-2 on goals by S. Moore, J. Drummond and P. Heyes. M. Semarak and P. McKenzie fired the Hawk goals.

The Rangers whipped the Frontenacs 11-0, led by B. Cousin's three-goal effort and the goaltending of Middleton. T. Meagher and B. Buchanan each scored two goals while R. Doyle, J. Parks, B. Meagher and R. Wilson had one apiece.

Barons stopped the Bruins 4-1. M. Loose starred for the winners with three goals while M. Allore got the other. None of the Bruin goal scorer was not listed on the scoresheet.

The result of two midget games were not in although once again the schedule called for three games to be played.

The Uxbridge-Scott Memorial Bishop Sis 2-1 on goals by B. Smith and C. Jones. J. Mason drew an assist. Hannah fired the losers' goals with assists for Culloden and Rutherford.

Rideo Boys topped the Rovers 3-2. Flindall, Legacy and Follwell scored for the winners with Chappel, Derry and Darlington drawing assists. Lemessage, and Mallory scored for Rideo.

Mother Won't Budge From Farm

DEAR DORIS:—My mother is 75 years old. She insists on staying on the old family farm alone.

This means that she has to hire help to look after the cattle and land. She is often sick and her doctor says she has "deterioration of the mind." Because of her condition, the farm is in a state of bankruptcy. But none of her family can make her understand.

What steps should he taken? We don't want to hurt her, yet she will have to be taken care of.—MRS. J. O.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR MRS. J. O.—Send out an S.O.S. to your Registered Welfare Officer and your doctor. Together they can help you to tell your mother about the attractions of a home where she can be comfortable, and not have to do all the work herself.

The Welfare Officer will be familiar with the homes for the aged which are available in your area.

Don't be put off by her stubbornness. She should be told what is going to be done and action should be taken firmly, although in a kind a manner as possible. Most old people get used to the new surroundings and find themselves happier and less lonesome than they have been for years.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am interested in becoming either a home economist or a social worker. I am 18 years old and in grade ten. Could you please tell me what positions are open in these professions?—DIANA.

DEAR DIANA—You may write to the Department of Labor in Ottawa for monographs on the professions of home economics and social work.

A general idea of the positions open to home economists are: hospital dietitian, commercial dietitian, food administrator, teacher of home economics, food researcher, fashion commentator, textile researcher.

A social worker may do casework with individuals, group work, administrative work, community organization, psychological research, psychiatric social work, medical social work.

As knowledge of the profession of social work increases, jobs in the area of helping people continue to open up for these trained workers.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am feeling very sorry for a girl who goes to school with one of my daughters. She is past 15 years and is in grade 10. Her mother is so strict and mean to her that she is not only the talk of her school chums, but also the talk of all the mothers.

This girl is not allowed to dress as the other girls do in grade 10. She is not allowed to attend school functions and to top it off her mother maintains she is raising her girl to be a lady. Right now she is just her mother's maid.

Her dad gives in once in a while, but then the poor kid suffers twice as much. Her mother was not treated like that as I know they kept open house for all their friends. —A BEWILDERED MOTHER.

DEAR BEWILDERED MOTHER — She'll never make a lady that way. She'll make an unhappy, ill-adjusted prude.

This unnatural mother sounds like a thoroughly spoiled person. She will not let the spotlight leave her for a minute—even to shine on the one who should be her pride and joy.

Would she be allowed to come to your home for dinner and some fun, occasionally? Is there anyone who could talk to the father about what is happening to his daughter's personality and chances for happiness?

Unless some older person can make the mother see reason, it would be better for the daughter to be sent away to school, where she can breathe easier. One of these days she will rebel—I hope!

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Our daughter was married last July and as they have been planning to further their education, entered university in September. Now she finds she is pregnant and feels as if her whole future is spoiled.

What I should like to know is: Is it advisable for her to continue with her university course? The year ends in May. She seems to be doing well with her studies.—MRS. M. M.

DEAR MRS. M. M.—So Nature Strikes Again! The best laid plans o' mice and men . . .

By all means have her finish her year, as long as her doctor O.K.'s it. Perhaps she will have to take a year out while the baby is tiny; but even this has sometimes been successfully fitted in with a university course, if the studies aren't too arduous.

Her whole life and happiness in living will be affected by her level of education. I'd say keep at it, even if this means taking one year in two and stretching it out over a longer period.

Sunday Afternoon Culture Klatch Quietly Disbanded

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's once - secret Sunday afternoon culture klatch has been quietly disbanded. But, strangely enough, a lot of television's sternest critics inside and outside the industry don't know it.

More than anything else, it indicates the many of them don't watch much television or they would know that what used to be called "highbrow" shows now are thoroughly dispersed in the networks' evening schedules.

Both CBS and ABC have long spoofed "spectacularly" on Sundays, each devoted to a drifter, not game, CBS follows with an hour-long golf show. NBC has been dedicated to professional football.

Sunday afternoon has become, if anything, a sports - lovers' oasis.

GET LATE SHOTS

Whether from fear of Washington interference or a genuine desire to balance their programming content, all three networks have been putting frequent public service shows into valuable evening spots on the schedule — where none of them have been taking bad lickings in audience polls from rival entertainment programs.

Most of the programs that gave Sunday afternoon their reputation for uplift have died from sheer, uncomplicated neglect by the viewing audience. Omnibus, for instance, was given every possible chance by the networks before it went down for the count.

Last season NBC had a disastrous experience with a high-level debate show, "The Nation's Future, which drove so many viewers to CBS that its competing western bit the peak of the popularity polls.

Recommended tonight — Pay-TV from the Shade Tree, CBS, 10, 11 — Jack Carson and Anita Louise in a Steel Hour drama.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When rookie Jimmy Baird's firing eye is right, he can give goaltenders a rough time in the Western Hockey League. It was right Tuesday night.

Baird scored three goals to pace Vancouver Canucks, in last place in the Northern Division, to a 3-2 victory over San Francisco Seals, last in the southern division.

Seattle Totems and Calgary Stampeders battled to a 2-2 overtime tie in Calgary. The Stamps are two points behind the first-place Edmonton Flyers in the Northern Division Seattle is a point behind Edmonton.

Baird, 21, turned in his second three - goal performance since the Canucks picked him up from Seattle a few weeks ago as the Canucks came from behind a 2-1 count in the first period to win going away.

Playing coach Phil Maloney got one goal and three assists for the Canucks, while their fifth goal came from Bob McCusker. Harry Pidhirny and Ken Girard scored for San Francisco.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Avelino Gomez rode a double at tropical park Tuesday, including an easy victory aboard a 31-to-1 shot, Island Ford, in the feature sixth race.

Island Ford ran six furlongs in 1:10 3-5 and paid $65.80.

Gomez also won the fourth race on Irish Princess ($5.70) and moved into fourth place in the jockey standings, breaking a tie with Eugene Monacelli. Gomez now has 24 winners.

Ingys' Tax Ruling Is Delayed

MIAMI (AP) — The federal court ruling that Ingemar Johansson owes and must pay the United States $1,000,801 in income tax was delayed Tuesday pending outcome of a new trial motion.

U.S. district Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. issued an order staying execution and enforcement of his ruling Dec. 14 that Swedish fighter owed tax on his American earnings.

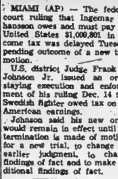
Johnson said his new order would remain in effect until determination is made of motions for a new trial, to change the earlier judgment, to change findings of fact and to make additional findings of fact.

Good Season For Batters Says Ted

CHICAGO (AP) — Ted Williams said Tuesday he wouldn't be a bit surprised to see someone in the National League hit close to 60 home runs next season or bat .380 or .390.

"You'll never get me to belittle the present day ballplayer, but expansion to 10 teams is bound to help the hitter," baseball's last .400 hitter explained. "You've got 40 pitchers or so in the majors who wouldn't be there except for the addition of the new teams.

"Sure, it helped Maris hit 61 it had to — and that's not taking anything away from Roger.



Williams, now a consultant to the Red Sox front office, said Maris will be under terrific pressure next season.

"They'll (the pitchers) be working on him like they never worked on him before."

Two New Movies Push Year Off to Promising Start

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The saga of the American ex-Europe has intrigued writers from Mark Twain and Henry James down to Tennessee Williams and Irwin Shaw.

They are Tender is the Night and Light in the Piazza. If these are a sample of what the movie fan will get, it could be a good year.

David O. Selznick says glowingly of Tender is the Night: "It is the kind of movie we used to make."

It bears the stamp of Selznick at his best. Although he owned the story, developed the script and supplied Jennifer Jones, his name is not on the film. It was produced by Henry Weinstein, who received several hundred memos from Selznick during the filming.

Tender is the most profound of the F. Scott Fitzgerald tales, a study of how a psychiatrist loses his own stability while saving the sanity of a patient he marries. It is played against a background of Europe in the '20s.

After a couple of false starts, Jason Robards Jr. proves he can be as great on the screen as he has been on the stage. He is welcome at a time when Hollywood needs new stars.

The film has only two minor drawbacks: Overlength and an old-fas; score that ranges from Tristan and Isolde in love scenes to Saturday-serial scare music for a suspense scene.

Light in the Piazza is pure romance. Offhand, it sounds like a problem drama: The attempt by a compassionate mother to find a normal life for her grown daughter, whose mental age was arrested at 10 by accident.

Olivia de Havilland is perfect for this sort of thing; no star has ever been more faith romance. Yvette Mimieux is a revelation; she's an actress, not merely a cheesecake queen. George Hamilton is surprisingly good as her Italian suitor, and Rosanno Brazzi plays his suave, knowing father.

HELICOPTER RESCUES CREWMEN — An RCAF helicopter preparing to carry off crew members, hovers over the stern of the freighter Suerte, which grounded Monday night on a reef about 500 feet off Shut-In Island near Halifax. Tuesday helicopter rescued all 32 crewmen after hidden rocks ripped huge tears from reaching the vessel. — (CP, Wirephoto from National Defence).

Dairy Outlets May Add Magarine to Wares as Butter Consumption Is Going Down

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—More dairy outlets may add margarine to their wares as butter consumption continues to slump, farm and dairy trade spokesmen said Tuesday.

They were commenting on the decision of the Borden Company, a national firm, to add margarine to their stocks for 1,200 — door sales in parts of Ontario.

H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said he is sorry to hear of the decision because Borden's is a large firm and for competitive reasons other companies may do the same.

He said the dairy industry is "the only part of Canadian agriculture today which is really in a crisis."

W. K. D. Jehn, executive secretary of the National Dairy Council of Canada, said other processors and distributors have been making or handling butter substitutes. With butter consumption slipping badly in last three years, more might follow suit.

SUBSTITUTE HALF PRICE

Butter substitutes enjoy roughly a 2-1 price advantage at retail level, Canadian butter output continues to rise although consumption has fallen from an average 324,400,000 pounds over the period 1954 to 1958 to an estimated 285,700,000 pounds this year despite an increase in population.

Butter is a multi - million-dollar government headache on which some sort of action is anticipated before April 30—end of the dairy year.

Stocks at year's end totalled a record 200,000,000 pounds-plus, most backed away as government property at zero - degree temperatures. About 80,000,000 pounds are in butter oil—a converted form of butter which can be turned back to the original product.

The government is under pressure to lower the support price of 64 cents a pound for grade A creamery butter at Montreal and Toronto. If the price were lowered, it is argued by the dairy trade, consumption would go up.

The problem is to insure that the dairy farmer suffers no loss of income, although the Dairy Farmers of Canada have offered next year to accept two cents a pound less if the price is cut 14 cents to the consumer.

This would leave the government to pay a subsidy of 12 cents a pound to the farmer—or about $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 annually under production runs around 350,000,000 pounds.

A 10 - cent - a - pound cut was pondered by the cabinet last year and then shelved.

Canada's butter exports are negligible because world prices are well below levels here. Some reduction in Canadian consumption is attributed to a trend toward fat - free diets.

Dairy Farmers Seek Higher Butter-Subsidy

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Leeds county dairy farmers are seeking a 14 - cents - a - pound butter subsidy from the federal government.

They also want the price of skim milk powder to be raised to 12 cents a pound through a government support policy.

The requests were made in a brief submitted to John R. Matheson, Liberal MP for Leeds, by the county federation of agriculture and the Leeds local of the Farmers Union last Friday night.

Most of the county's 2,000 farmers are engaged in dairy production.

The brief called for an immediate consumer subsidy on butter to help more surplus stocks and suggested reductions could be accomplished by cutting the support price.

Packed Galleries Stand as Woman Says Grace

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Packed galleries of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors stood here Tuesday as a woman said grace before the trial of 41 sect members on charges of terrorism started and then was adjourned.

The 41 members of the religious group were committed in 16 preliminary hearings last year. Sixteen separate trials will be held a few special to a size court sitting, probably lasting more than a month.

The delay of defence counsel Harold Dean in arriving for the trial forced postponement until Wednesday.

Crown prosecutor T. G. Bevan-Colhurst told Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker that Mr. Dean had been advised early Monday he was to act for the first couple to be tried.

Fred P. Jmaeff and Alec A. Barisoff are charged with unlawfully placing a bomb under a church at Wynndel last April 13.

Frank Sinatra Will Marry Juliet Prowse

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frank Sinatra, vowing he's ready to settle down, will marry Juliet Prowse, one of the nicest girls I have ever known."

Miss Prowse, the leggy actress who can-can kicks for a movie shocked Nikita Khrushchev, made the announcement at a beaming Sinatra confirmed it.

"A great girl . . . a wonderful girl," he confided to a reporter who found him frisking the round of golf at Hillcrest Country Club Tuesday. "I'm very, very happy and very, very lucky."

"You really shook us up," the reporter remarked.

"I'm a little shook up myself," he quipped. "I'm 46 now. It's time I settled down."

Asked when he and the 26-year-old South Africa - born beauty will wed, Sinatra answered:

"The wedding probably won't be for some time. Whenever she set the day, that's the day for me. I'll let her call all the shots—that's the way I am."

"I know she wants to have her parents come over from South Africa and I want to have them here, too."

The announcement caught Hollywood by surprise. Only weeks ago they had Juliet headed for the altar with singer Eddie Goldstone, her agent, and Frank linked with Marilyn Monroe.

"Juliet has been my one romance," said Sinatra. "Our dates have been private, not public."

The proposal took place while the two dined at Romanoff's Monday night. He presented her a ring on her finger. Friends who saw the ring said: "It was a beauty but not the usual Hollywood blockbuster."

It will be her first marriage. Sinatra's third. His previous wives were Nancy Barbato, his childhood sweetheart, and Ava Gardner.

Only Sinatra's three children, by his first wife, were given prior knowledge of the announcement.

"They were all very happy. They all think Juliet is a wonderful girl. She and Nancy, Jr., have been friends for a long time. They're crazy about each other."

Fire Destroys Calgary Club, Business Block

CALGARY (CP) — The fifth and sixth persons taken in Calgary in just over two months struck the city overnight, destroying 40,000 square feet of club and a central four-storey business block.

Firemen were called at 11 p.m. to a three-alarm blaze at the rooming - house basement in South Calgary, then split their numbers to 140 Sth. Ave. and joined other units answering a four-alarm call sounded for a fire at the Lee's Club in the city's main intersection.

There was only one injury. A fireman fell into a shale where he jumped from the second floor of the Lee's building.

Damage in the downtown fire was not immediately estimated. It broke out in the basement of the 58-year-old building, then spread to the Lee's Club, a restaurant and shop and three floors occupied by a secretarial school.

NEAR OTHER FIRES

The fire was just three blocks from the scene of two fires that left a sub-zero city Monday. Seven persons died in the Nov. 25 blaze in one of a business-apartment building.

Witnesses said the Glencoe Club fire broke after a flash of light and a "great ball of fire" in a stairwell beside the kitchen.

The club contained a dining room, lounge and cocktail bar in its two-storey section, and eight sheets of curling ice, skating rink, badminton courts and a coffee shop in the rest of the building.

"It was the third fire we've had in a week," said Glencoe President Bob Borland. "There's nothing yet to indicate it was anything but an accident. I get the impression they can't all have been accidents."

Arson has been mentioned in one of the earlier fires, which Borland said he and Victoria Arena Nov. 16 after demolition crews had torn down part of it. A fireball is believed responsible but no proof has been found.

The Nov. 25 blaze, in which three children from one family died in a blaze that destroyed their two - storey home at Bowness on Calgary's northwest outskirts.

Liberal Leader Pearson Calls for General Election 'As Soon As Possible'

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson Tuesday combined a call for a general election "as soon as possible" with announcement of an old-age pensions platform frankly designed to win votes.

He said an election should be called soon to give voters a chance to render their verdict on the incptness of the government of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The Liberal party's new pension plan would call for contributions by employers and employees—and the self-employed if they wished to join on a voluntary basis—and payments of supplementary pensions on top of the existing $55 monthly pensions paid now to everyone over 70.

The supplementary pensions would be $30 extra a month for every one starting a year after the Liberals inaugurated their plan, and reaching as high as $150 a month for individuals who have made contributions at the full rate when the plan is fully operative.

Initially, it would take a year to get the plan operating with contributions amounting to one cent of the payroll each week. Within 10 years the contributions would amount to 2½ per cent of contributions would go up little with incomes until they would amount to five per cent of five per cent for persons with incomes of $500 a month or more.

SPLIT CONTRIBUTIONS

The Liberals envisage employers and employees splitting the contributions, with individuals contributing about two per cent of their earnings.

Mr. Pearson gave details of the plan at a press conference a few hours after the platform promise was first made public in a pamphlet issued by Liberal party headquarters.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, asked for his comment, said he had not had time to study the pensions promise but would say he help recall that it was the Liberals—whom he described as "the six buck boys"—who first raised the $40 basic pension to $46 in 1957. They were defeated that year by the Conservatives, who subsequently raised the pensions to $55.

Mr. Pearson also ranged over international and domestic affairs but devoted most of the time to the pensions plan.

DOING THE TWIST

The opposition leader, just back from two weeks in Mexico, said he hasn't been able to sort out all the press reports of Castro and government affairs but it appeared the Diefenbaker government had decided a new American dance, the twist, in its dramatic pilgrimage to Quebec City Dec. 30. Everybody had landed back where they began.

The chief issues of the new parliamentary session opening Jan. 16, in addition to foreign affairs and defence, would be employment and the state of the economy, he asserted, with Canada's approach to foreign trade and Britain's possible membership in the European Common Market the key economic issue.

Drys Apply To Set Aside Liquor Vote

TORONTO (CP)—An application by the drys to set aside the Nov. 25 liquor plebiscite they say is a sham in Etobicoke Township will be heard by a Supreme Court judge Jan. 30.

Mr. Justice Wells Monday heard a notice of motion Tuesday from Rev. Stanley R. G. Hall, chairman of the Vote-No committee, which claims the vote and subsequent recounting are illegal.

Mr. Justice Morand ordered that an amended notice of motion be served on the Etobicoke Township returning officer and the Vote-Yes Committee and returning officer.

The application is being made to have the vote on dining lounges (approved by 52 per cent vote) and cocktail bars (approved by 51 per cent over the required 60 per cent in a recount) declared invalid.

The committee maintains that Senior County Judge Robert Forgie, who confirmed the recount, erred in allowing 1,649 rejected ballots marked by ticks with the words yes and no to be counted.

The committee's notice also says there were irregularities and unlawful activities around the polling stations while votes were being cast.

19-Year-Old Sarnia Youth To Be Questioned

NORTH BAY (CP)—Provincial police from Fabreville planned to question today a 19-year-old Sarnia youth held here in connection with the abduction of a teen-age Sarnia girl.

No charges have been laid.

The youth was apprehended by provincial police at a downtown bus stand early Tuesday. The girl, aged, 14, was found at a friend's house, apparently unharmed.

A province-wide search for the couple began Monday following the girl's disappearance from home. Fabreville police warned the North Bay detachment the couple had been in North Bay before and might head there.

Police said a car found abandoned near here was used by the Sarnia couple.

TORONTO (CP)—A 16-year-old boy was charged with abduction Tuesday after he and a 16-year-old girl hitch-hiked to Niagara Falls, Ont., the honeymoon city.

Police withheld their names. The two left home the boy's home in suburban Scarborough Sunday, police said, and hitchhiked to Niagara Falls, where they spent the night in a parked car.

States Kennedy Reluctant to Resume A-Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House visitor quoted President Kennedy as saying Tuesday he is reluctant to resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

Georges Cedacol-Pisanoski of Paris, president of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, said Kennedy told him the United States will do its best to negotiate an agreement to ban nuclear tests.

But he told reporters Kennedy expressed also to a Bermuda meeting with British Prime Minister Macmillan calling for resumption of nuclear testing in the air in the event that became necessary to safeguard U.S. security.

Meanwhile a low-yield underground nuclear test blast set ninth to be announced by the Atomic Energy Commission in the current series, was set off Tuesday at the Nevada test site.

Low-yield nuclear devices are explosive force equivalent to not more then 20,000 tons of TNT.

Bandits Take $30,000 Worth Of Furs, Jewels

TORONTO (CP) — Two men wearing silk stockings as masks and carrying guns robbed Mrs. Georges Hoskins, wife of a brokerage house president, of $30,000 worth of furs, jewels and other valuables Tuesday.

The men forced Mrs. Goodeerham and a maid into a separate closets in their exclusive Frybrook Road home, locked them in and ransacked the house. They tore the telephones from the wall and fled on foot.

Mrs. Goodeerham, who's son one of Toronto's best-known bankers, broke out of the closet and from a window asked a passerby across the street to call police.

George Hosking, chauffeur for Neil J. McKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, turned in the alarm.

Mr. Hoskins, president and director of Draper, Dobie and Company, Toronto, said the men who commanded the combination of the house safe but Mrs. Goodeerham "is sure" she could identify one of them.

Last September, Mrs. Goodeerham's brother, Harry Knight Jr., reported his suburban Caledon home was robbed by three masked men who forced the maid with the words "get on the cellar and stole a gold brick valued at $10,000.

Dispute Underlines Britain's Difficulty With Wage Policy

By DAVID CANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The mails that have been late in Britain are perhaps the most noticeable indication of the trouble the government is facing in its efforts to get a long-term national incomes policy.

The postmen, who have always taken pride in their service, started their work-to-rule campaign on New Year's Day. Angered over the government's pay freeze circumvented the conciliation procedures used to settle pay claims in the past, they launched a slowdown campaign by following to the letter every rule in the post office book.

The postal dispute, however, is but the beginning of troubles over the freeze.

Within weeks the government will be faced with pay demands for roughly 6,000,000 British workers. Included are engineering personnel busmen, building workers and railway workers.

BIG HEADACHE

These disputes foreshadow a king-sized headache for Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd and his colleagues. Lloyd announced the austerity measures last July.

They were to be the prelude to an intermediate phase of income restraint which was to culminate in a long-term policy to be co-ordinated by the new national council for economic development. Labor, management and government were to work closely on the council to make it a success.

The only hitch is that the Trades Union Congress — Britain's equivalent of the Canadian Labor Congress — has not yet agreed to participate in the government's new venture. It is also fighting the wage-freeze policy.

At a meeting with the union-phase unit this week, the union leaders displayed two attitudes. Lloyd and senior officials at the treasury now are preparing a detailed document in reply to the union's request for support for the council.

The TUC — a co-operative — made it plain they would not co-operate on the intermediate phase until they knew what Lloyd meant by "restraint" and how it was going to work.

The crucial question, asked when the chancellor was going out of his way to be conciliatory, was: "What about profits and dividends?"

NOT SATISFIED

Lloyd repeated to the union leaders his common sentiment that "any unreasonable wage action" would be taken if "aggregate profits showed signs of increasing excessively as compared with wages and salaries." He did not specify them.

The TUC's economic committee meets again today to consider the matter further. They hope to have the chancellor's proposals by the intermediate period of income restraining before them.

The question of union participation in the planning machinery will probably hinge on these proposals.

Faster and Lighter Auto Lower in Height Seen Ahead

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Automobiles of the 1970s may be faster, lighter, and lower in height but they may cost more because of greater intricacy and better construction materials.

Electrically - powered automobiles may be "very attractive" for limited city use, says Dr. George Solt, a retired member of Rand Corporation, but "future piston engines will look the best and cost the least all around."

Hoffman was one of dozen of speakers appearing before various panels of the U.S. Highway Research Board Tuesday at the opening a week-long study of programs designed to make future highway travel safer and more comfortable. Among the 2,800 technicians attending are about 150 from Canada.

One of the most exciting projects, according to some delegates, is that much future high-way travel may be governed by ally-controlled, with the driver turning the steering chore over to special separate control roadbeds.

SPARE TIRE MAY GO

Hoffman said the height of the car of the future may drop as much as six inches but the length and width may remain unchanged. The horsepower race will increase; engine weights will decline and fuels may provide more power. Better tires and smoother highways may lead to elimination of the spare tire. Springs may be replaced by torsion - tubes or even liquid springs while shock absorbers may be discarded.

Among technical papers to be presented were a number by politan Toronto research scientist, said use of an hybrid-phase—in winter road salt solution could reduce rust—a body corrosion as much as 77 per cent.

Cess, Metropolitan Toronto traffic engineer, reported on an experiment whereby traffic lights are controlled by a remotely-operated electronic computer. The experiment was "a technical and operational success."

WELL OF SOIL TESTS

Prof. D. L. Townsend of Queen's University, and Thomas H. Cassidy of Ontario department of highways combined to suggest a new method for judging vulnerability of certain soils to frost, which can cause heaving of roads during the spring thaw.

The present method is to assess soil given characteristics. Townsend and Cassidy, examining frost performance of 138 Ontario highway subsoils, suggested better results could be obtained by examining the soils pores, rather than the grain.

Prof. H. R. Edwards, also of Queen's, provided a brief progress report on an experiment in "automotive driver" reactions in slowing down on approaching cities and towns.

Edwards said he may have his report ready by next May.

Indian Rock Paintings Collected in 4-Year Search

TORONTO (CP) — Several years ago Selwyn Dewdney, a school text illustrator dropped into the Royal Ontario Museum now to get some information on Indian headdress.

While talking to Kenneth C. Kidd, the museum's archeologist, he became interested in Indian rock painting sites in Quetico Provincial Park.

Mr. Kidd suggested the paintings, known as pictographs, be recorded before they were affected by time and weather.

Mr. Dewdney, a former London, Ont., high school teacher who was stranded in boat lore during his Saskatchewan boyhood, took the suggestion to heart. In the summers of 1957, he began to work in the park, about 60 miles west of the Lakehead on the Ontario - Minnesota border.

He explored the park by canoe, finding 11 sites and making rough drawings, later refined at his London home. The next summer he roamed Minnesota and northwestern Ontario, recording 25 sites, to which he added another 46 sites in the following two summers.

He returned to the museum Tuesday when former Ontario premier Leslie Frost opened an exhibition of fifty water color reproductions of the pictographs.

Nobody knows why Indians painted these crude images on rocks or what they mean. But it is known they are more than 150 years old and that the latest ones were done by the Ojibway Indians.

Mr. Dewdney's replicas show animals, men, canoes, symbols and mythological creatures. He traced the paintings on Japanese rice paper, which is transparent when wet, and took notes and photographs.

Mr. Dewdney and Mr. Kidd collaborated on a book called Indian Rock Paintings of the Great Lakes, which is also the name of the exhibition. The volume traces the search and discoveries of the paintings.

Mr. Dewdney's work was financed by the Quetico Foundation, which is dedicated to the preservation of wilderness for recreation and scientific use.

Peru Avalanche Kills 4,000 People

Chunks Of Ice Torn From Peak Wipe Out Town

Mountain Lake Pushed From Bed by Snowslide

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A giant avalanche of snow and water caused by a thaw roared down on the town of Ranrahica and several ranches in northwestern Peru in Wednesday night and authorities said they feared between 3,000 and 4,000 persons lost their lives.

The avalanche rushed down the Huascaran Mountain, ripping up trees, crushing farmhouses and sweeping aside livestock in its destructive path.

The village of Ranrahica, about 200 miles northwest of Lima and 30 miles north of the commercial centre of Huaraz, was reported to have been wiped out.

The town has a population of about 3,000 and police there said about that many persons are missing.

One unconfirmed report said a small mountain lake was pushed from its banks, flooding the surrounding area.

Meagre information from the scene said enormous ice chunks were torn from the side of Mount Huascaran, a 22,200-foot peak, highest in Peru.

The ice melted and at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday a great mass of ice, snow and water broke loose and roared down the mountain on the mountain and crashed into the agricultural community below.

Communication lines were destroyed in the deadly swath, hampering rescue and preventing accurate reports on the extent of the disaster.

The first news reaching Lima just after midnight said the avalanche was more than half a mile wide and 12 yards deep.

FORD ASSEMBLY PLANT STRIKE IS CONTINUING

Charges of Police Brutality Heard

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A strike at the Ford of Canada assembly plant here continued today amid charges of police brutality.

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (CLC), said Wednesday police beat up and arrested several pickets at the plant.

He said in a statement at least one picket was attacked by a policeman when he took a picture of another incident.

"He was slashed over the head with a billy and taken to hospital," Mr. Burt said.

Insp. Edward Heath of the Oakville police department said Mr. Burt's charges were not true. He said three pickets were arrested and John McLaughlin of Cooksville, was taken to hospital with head injuries he suffered when he slipped on ice.

McLaughlin was kept in hospital overnight.

Police said the other two pickets arrested were Dorman Locke, 32, Burlington and Eric Snowdon, 31, of Hamilton. All are charged with obstruction and creating a disturbance. They were released on $100 bail.

CLAIMS ROUGHED UP

Mr. Burt also said pickets were prevented from speaking to people driving through the picket line—and were roughed up and thrown into ditches when they tried.

A union spokesman said Andy Pavlick, vice-president of Local 707, had asked the provincial police for protection from local police in this town midway between Toronto and Hamilton.

The strike started Wednesday as a surprise move by the Local UAW members and came two days before a scheduled strike deadline of midnight Friday. The union had pleased with the town to strike the deadline.

A union spokesman said Wednesday night, the strike would continue until an agreement is signed.

CHARGE AFTER ACCIDENT

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Miceli, 41, of Toronto was arrested Wednesday night and charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident. The charge was laid in connection with an accident Monday in which Harris Wilfred Baxter, 64, of suburban York Township was killed.

ELEVEN TRAPPED IN SMALL MINE FOUND DEAD

Shaft Is Filled With Smoke, Debris

CARTERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — William Orlandi, director of the Illinois mines and mineral department, said that 11 miners trapped in a small coal mine 168 feet below the surface were found dead early today.

He said the bodies were found by rescue teams that had been seeking to locate the men for several hours.

Orlandi said the bodies will be removed to the surface after the mine has been ventilated. Rescue workers had described the bottom of the shaft as "murky and filled with smoke and debris." They said poisonous carbon monoxide gas was present in the tunnel.

A member of the rescue team said the men apparently were killed in a gas explosion because of the blast was not determined immediately.

The men were trapped in the mine Wednesday night after the explosion which twisted steel and debris out of the mine opening, breaking the windshield of a parked auto. Heavy smoke poured out at first, keeping rescue teams from entering the mine.

Claude Beatty, owner of the mine, said it appeared the explosion occurred at the bottom of the shaft. It wrecked the tipple building which housed the elevator mechanism and apparatus which is used to hoist coal from goodola cars.

MINE NOTORIOUS

Dale Horsley, a son of one of the dead miners, said his father considered the mine "one of the most modern he had ever seen." He said his father, Alpha Horsley, had been a miner for 36 years.

Since the mine has been open only a short time it does not have an extensive network of tunnels. It has a ventilation shaft about 16 inches in diameter running from the 300-foot tunnel to the surface.

3-Year-Old Girl Dies in Fire

ORILLIA (CP) — A three-year-old girl died in a fire early today at the Rama Indian reserve 15 miles east of the south shore of Lake Couchiching.

Police are still searching for the body of Mrs. Lillian Beck in the ashes of her parents' eight-room frame house.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pavia, both 32, and Mr. Pavia's brother Gilbert, 20, were treated in hospital for burns to the head, hands and arms after trying to rescue the child from her second-floor bedroom.

Reds May Be Building Bases On Ice Islands in Arctic

OTTAWA (CP)—The possibility that Russia may be building mobile bombing bases on ice islands in the Arctic Ocean is raised by references to the islands in a Soviet publication.

"The drift stations in the central Arctic basin have acquired a permanent character," says the third and latest volume of Problemy Severa (Problems of the North), published by the Soviet Academy of Sciences and recently translated and published in English by the National Research Council of Canada.

Russian scientists have completed several huge drifting ice islands in the past war years, these scientific settlements are supplied by transport planes and helicopters.

It is known that RCAF reconnaissance planes for a long time have kept a watchful eye on Soviet ice island activities.

Russia has complained at times about alleged spy-plane flights over its Arctic drift stations.

Severnaaia said Wednesday that if Russia could land transport planes on the ice islands—as it has—it could also land and take off bombers. Exact location of the Soviet stations could not be known at all times by United States forces.

The 201-page Russian volume says at one point: "Now there is established a regular air service [to the] bases where the foot of the Soviet scientist has not trod."

"In the last years, and even . . . our country has surpassed the countries of Europe and America in the scale of scientific work and in the development of applied scientific work. The Soviet Union is firmly taking first place in Arctic research."

Problemy Severa says significant geographical discoveries have been made, among them the discoveries of numerous ice islands in the "Arctic seas" and of a ridge of mountains—Lomonosov ridge in the Arctic Ocean.

Other experts have discounted any possibility that the discoveries might include those of islands in what is generally considered the Canadian sector of the Arctic Ocean.

Other polling made in Problemy Severa:

There has been extensive use of aircraft for ice reconnaissance "over the whole expanse of the Arctic."

"A network of more than 100 [polar] stations has been established on the Soviet coasts and islands of the Arctic Ocean."

Tonnage of cargo shipped by the northern sea route increased tenfold between the 1933-37 and 1951-55 periods and several ports, including one built on the Arctic coast.

"With the introduction of a powerful fleet of nuclear icebreakers and other heavy icebreakers the navigation period will be extended considerably and the northern sea route will be able to handle a greater volume of traffic."

Weather Death Toll in U.S. Tops 100 as Cold Hangs On

CHICAGO (AP) — Winter's longest and most bitter siege of cold weather held a tight grip over most of the eastern two-thirds of the United States today, causing much suffering and inconvenience to millions.

Blizzard conditions which plagued some sections of the country Tuesday and Wednesday let up, but the weather was blamed for more than 100 deaths.

Of the 104 storm-related fatalities reported in 24 states, 59 were attributed to overexertion in snow shovelling, pushing cars and similar activities. Fourteen persons died in traffic accidents on the freezing and below-zero weather and 11 in other weather traffic accidents on ice-coated and snowcovered streets and highways.

No general, immediate relief from the cold was forecast. But snow, which hit eastern and southern areas Wednesday, had ended in most well over-shoe depths, causes other than blast, heart and radiation.

Fear Epidemics Worst Threat After A-War

OTTAWA (CP)—If a nuclear attack should ever be launched against Canada, the most fear, dread and horror will not necessarily causes other than blast, heat and radiation.

U.S. Ministers Are Expected To Talk on Foreign Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and United States cabinet ministers are expected to concentrate trade on one vital issue—foreign trade—in two days of talks starting here Friday.

Other problems of joint concern will be largely ignored, informants say, in order to devote almost full time to trade and Canada's policy that discriminations facing both governments.

Four cabinet ministers from each side will meet in the first seventh annual meeting of the Joint Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs, which will meet primarily with the snowballing trend in Canada-United States economic unity produced by the European Common Market.

Canada's chief interest will be in learning more about the U.S. trade policy, and in attempts to reduce Common Market tariffs by cutting Canadian tariffs. This proposal is to be discussed soon by President Kennedy to the U.S. Congress where it will face a tough battle.

Finance Minister Fleming, who will be the main Canadian spokesman, isn't underestimating the importance of this new policy.

REFUGEE FAMILY WOULD RETURN AS IMMIGRANTS

Hungarian Says He Made Mistake

OTTAWA (CP)—A Hungarian refugee and his family who left Canada Christmas Day after deciding they would be better off in Sweden want to return to this country as immigrants, it was learned Wednesday.

Ferenc Pal, his wife and three children were brought to Canada from Sweden a year ago by the Deep River, Ont., refugees committee. The committee paid all expenses, found the Pals a home and Mr. Pal a job as an oil serviceman.

Shortly before Christmas the family decided to return to Sweden, where they had been sent from an Austrian refugee camp. Their main reason for returning were that Mr. Pal could get more work as a mechanic as an automobile electrician and his wife—a former fashion designer—could get free medical attention in Sweden.

HELPS THEM GO

The Deep River committee which had spent $2,500 bringing the family to Canada agreed to contribute another $1,100 for their passage back to Stockholm. The family left Montreal by air Christmas Day, arriving in Stockholm Dec. 26.

Six days later—on Jan. 2—Mr. Pal wrote to the immigration department from Stockholm that his decision to return had been a mistake and that he and his family would like to come to Canada. He said he didn't want to return to Sweden but agreed to go by the indifference of his wife and children.

"I know I was miss, and I dig miss sleep before we come back, but I liked my family and more I said it," Mr. Pal said in a letter to C. E. S. Smith, assistant to G. F. Davidson, deputy minister of immigration.

Mr. Pal said he had obtained a job in Stockholm as an automobile electrician but had been told he would have to learn Swedish. He asked Mr. Smith to instruct him on what steps to do in order to re-enter Canada as an immigrant.

LOAN

Mr. Pal said he had obtained the job in Stockholm as an automobile electrician but had been told he would have to learn Swedish. He asked Mr. Smith to instruct him on what steps to do in order to re-enter Canada as an immigrant.

LOAN

Mr. Pal said in his letter that he has $800 toward the cost of his family's return to Canada. He asked whether he could borrow the rest of the fare for him and his family from the government and repay the amount later.

While he was in Canada Mr. Pal quit his job as an oil servicman, complaining that he should be allowed to work as an automobile electrician with his oil servicing qualifications. However, in his letter he said he will quit his job in Sweden if he is allowed to return to Canada. He said he has a friend in Ottawa who is willing to find work.

The immigration department said Mr. Pal's request will be considered.

Allan Roos, chairman of the Deep River refugee committee, said in Deep River that there still is about $1,500 left in the committee's fund, He indicated that not all members of the committee would be willing to contribute more money to bring the Pal family back to Canada.

MADRID (AP)—A new U.S. B-52H superbomber roared into the Strategic Air Command base near Madrid today after a record-smashing 12,619-mile flight from Okinawa without refuelling.

The huge jet and its eight-man air force crew headed by Maj. Clyde T. Evely, 39, of Petersburg, Va., broke the world distance mark of 11,235.6 miles without refuelling. It had been held through the first 15 years of the jet age by a propeller-driven Soviet Tupolev named the Truculent Turtle.

Aviation experts here called the flight a potent example of the new plane's ability to deliver a cargo of nuclear-armed missiles almost anywhere in the world.

The Boeing superbomber had been refuelled over Greenland by North American controllers when it set it down on the Trevion base's 10,000-foot runway, the longest in western Europe.

The takeoff from Okinawa was at 10 a.m. Wednesday (7 p.m. EST) and the landing here was 6:09 a.m. EST, a total of 22 hours, nine minutes short.

Will Maintain West's Presence In West Berlin

State-of-Union Message Given to U.S. Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today challenged the Atlantic alliance to shed timidity for boldness and join in partnership with Europe to bring new prosperity to free men everywhere.

Now is the time, Kennedy said, to seize the initiative against the economic offensive mounted by Russia and her Communist allies.

In a state-of-the-union message he prepared to deliver to Congress in person, Kennedy told Congress and the American people that "the basic strength and purpose of the United States" to talk, when appropriate, and fight, if necessary" to maintain the city's presence in West Berlin.

The president begins his second year in office in a world still beset with the hazard of catastrophic war, pitched U.S. foreign policy to "the goal of a peaceful world of free and independent states."

But he said the obligation "to fulfill our own faith" begins at home.

SETS OUT PROGRAM

And to strengthen the U.S. economy, he advocated a six-point program that included stand-by authority both to lower or raise taxes and to pump federal money into public works if necessary to meet the threat of recession.

Kennedy came out as vigorously as he did in 1961 for federal aid to public school construction and teachers' salaries. He also asked Congress to finance rail into a wall of religious controversy that has in the House rules committee — the Roman Catholic president proposed no direct help for parochial schools — and traditional hostility of many predominantly minded congressmen to federal school aid.

As anticipated, Kennedy presented a program to combat unemployment by urging Congress to furnish $4.9 billion in federal aid through the social security system.

He said, in fact, he would recommend a whole new public works program stressing "reclamation instead of waste."

The president promised "a massive attack on mental illness" and aid to medical education, librarianship and vocational rehabilitation. He asked Congress to broaden federal-state welfare programs and to provide college scholarships and loans for the training of nurses.

'Moscow Molly' Gives Soldiers A Good Laugh

But to Western troops she's "Moscow Molly," a husky-voiced disc jockey who beams music and propaganda toward West Berlin these cold winter nights.

Her nightly half-hour broadcast starts at 11:45 p.m. Most soldiers have heard the show. Their ratings of it range from silly and laughable to clever and dangerous.

Don't Fence Me In is the theme song that introduces the program. Down with the Berlin wall. Then the successor to Ann Sally and Tokyo Rose comes on with a greeting along the line of: "Hiya, you poor, homesick soldiers. It's a bad weekend. This is Barbara, your favorite American soldiers in West Berlin. . . ."

Between numbers she talks such jive as "I got a telegram from a cat up in Bremen who says we goofed."

A typical ghost goes: "Well, that's it, chummies. We've pitched our cotton. You pitch your woo. Sleep real nice now."

"She tries to be hep but she's two years too late," commented a soldier. "She doesn't realize rock 'n' roll is out of date and the Twist is here."

If You Are From Big Missouri It's Good Place to Be Away From

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—You isn't as bad as the statistics indicate.

In Stewart, after a record December a snowfall of 156 inches and frigid temperatures that the thickness of the blanket on the ground has shrunk to five.

A day or two of rain and sleet compressed it to 4½ feet.

Everywhere you look people are shovelling snow.

Riverside had plenty rougher than Stewart this year. The Salmon River, on the town's edge, washing out the road from Hyder, Alaska, to Premiey Mines and cutting off the only link with the outside.

The Wickstrom family, the only residents, had an exciting time for a few days as raging waters deposited chunks of glacial ice, trees and rubble in their front yard.

tore Congress, in what he termed his "one of sadness" Diefenbaker declared somberly "the news will be worse before it is better" and described the condition of the economy as the most serious.

In the same House chamber, Kennedy said, today has had its months that were marked by both successes and setbacks. In the period, he concluded, "the military position of the free world improved . . . the peace-keeping strength of United Nations was reinforced . . . the united strength of the Atlantic Community lay flourished . . .

"Thus," Kennedy said, "we in the free world are now moving inevitably toward unity and cooperation, in the teeth of the old Bolshevik principle that in the very time when entrenching, any rumbles of discord can be turned across the Iron Curtain. It is not free societies which have within them the seeds of inevitable disunity."

Kennedy recalled saying on his inauguration that few generations had been granted as great a challenge as the present, in hour of maximum danger.

WELCOMES IT

"This is our good fortune," he said then, "and I welcome it now as I did a year ago."

Kennedy made his strongest plea for liberalized trade program to cope with global challenge, and urged that no time be lost, that, in a world we did not make . . .

Growth of the European Common Market poses the greatest test of all challenges to increasing exports which he said are essential to paying for U.S. commercial abroad.

Delay in establishing a new trade policy at the present time, he said, would make machinery, machine tools, motor vehicles and other durable goods ... ity, he said, they are likely to ... United States already ... stock abroad more than it imports.

The new Democratic leadership of John W. McCormack of Massachusetts and Carl Albert of Oklahoma has promised full cooperation with the president and publicly expressed confidence over the chances of enacting most of the program.

McCormack was elected speaker Wednesday to succeed the late Sam Rayburn. Albert moved into the Democratic floor leadership post vacated by McCormack. A new Representative, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, replaced Albert as Democratic whip.

Last Saturday evening, despite all adverse weather conditions, Odd Fellows' Rally was held at the Odd Fellows' Temple, 371 Front Street, Belleville, with a large number in attendance.

The initiatory degree was conferred by Orient Lodge No. 134 of Welland-Crowland, assisted by Grand Master Stevens, the Welland district.

The opening began with a delicious dinner served by the ladies of the Concert, Polly and Rebekah degree staffs, assisted by Sister Rebekahs.

The head table was beautifully decorated with flowers and candles depicting the colors of Odd Fellowship displayed in crystal candelabra. Those at the head table were Noble Grand Ivan Wilson, Vice-Grand Pollitt, PDDGM, which was followed by a grace, said by Brother Lloyd Wilson, JPNG.

CLOSER WORKING TIES

Brother McKenney says in brief, his remarks concerned closer working ties between Grand Lodge officers and local lodges. He said he was glad that more effective work at a local level could be accomplished by the change and that an urgent need for Odd Fellows to get active was necessary for the Order, because sooner than later, he thinks, the chance to ... present day freedom will be ... regrets only are left.

The appreciation for Dr. McKenney's address was expressed by Brother E. R. Nelson, Vice-Grand of the Belleville Lodge.

Other distinguished Brothers present included: Earl Fox, Grand Warden of Ontario, Stirling; H. E. Ryger, Deputy Grand Master, of Welland District; A. In Washington, U.S. authorities said the United States will make a strong effort to persuade join the United States to adopting a policy of standstill tariffs to promote enlarged world trade.

"We will make our pitch and watch the reaction," one authority said. "We will ask the Canadians to go along with us in adopting a similar policy in Canadian tariffs."

"We are frankly baffled by the amount of protectionist sentiment we hear expressed in some Canadian places. We have always counted on Canadian support for a liberal tariff policy in the past. Canada must come to realize that she cannot expect to get all the benefits from what the United States may adopt without providing some benefits of her own."

Around The Tee

All is in readiness for the curtain of the last days of recreation to be held at the Curling Club this season. On Friday evening the first rocks will be curled to open the competition for the women's field for members of the local club and early Saturday evening the prizes will be distributed and the good social time that starts on Friday evening will be continued until the early hours.

Last year the first spiel was held for the Steve Flintoft trophy and the event was sponsored by the board by the donor with the help of the directors. That season rinks were entered to make the affair a success and those playing merited a good time. This year when the date was announced there was a flood of members getting their names in and the result was that the draw was more than filled.

The event is strictly a men's affair. Last season prizes in the extras are all supplied and served by the men and it is hoped that the social women of the club are barred. Bridge and cribbage will be on hand but boys are not curling there are usually three or four games of each. There will be wonderful snacks that are set about the clubhouse. There is a golf course dinner at noon on Saturday. Even if one is not curling it is well worth while to go for the fine time that will be provided. Curlers who wish to enter the spiel nine will be on hand and a lot of the sheets will be played off previously with ties executed by the curlers on the ice.

The draw for three games on Friday starting at 5.15 p.m. The second game starts at 7.15 and the third at 9.15. On Saturday there will be draws at 9.30 a.m., 11.30 a.m., 2.30 p.m., 3.00 p.m., 3.00 p.m. with the last game starting at 8.30 p.m. The winners will be decided on a point system and it is understood that there will be no interest to anything tried before.

On Friday evening the rink lineups are being skipped by Bob Bastable, Bill Holway, Jr., Frank Dressin, Ken LaPrairie, Rev. C. W. "Tex" Coleman, Dave Duff, Archdeacon J. B. Smith and Murray Johnson will open the spiel but those rinks may have not been drawn at the time of writing. At 7.15 rinks skipped by Bill Riley, Harry Gibbs, Ev Gowsell, Hugh Murray Joe McKay, Al McClelland Dick Reed and Hugh Graham will take the ice and they will be followed at 9.15 by rinks skipped by Mar White, Charles Lovett, Tom Carruthers, Ernie Williamson, Frank Johnson and Peverley Art Bannon and ...

A rink of Lloyd Sheppard, Tom Carruthers, Dave Brown and Dick Reed are bringing brooms home some of the silverware from the Oshawa open spiel which concluded Wednesday night. Mac lost a tough one in the semi-final of the McLaughlin trophy, the highest award at the spiel, when he was beaten on last end by Murray Roberts of Toronto.

Another Belleville rink of Don McNevin, Jim Walker, Ron Bens with Gordon Edwards as skip, went down in the eighth of the same competition when they were beaten by Dr. Charles Ba'lle of Orillia. Dr. Baillie went on to defeat his opponent in the semi-finals and got Roberts in the finals but this result has not been obtained. Each local rinks covered themselves with glory and showed that Belleville curling is well respected when they go out after the petie mocyy at different spiels.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week the preliminary round of the Ontario Tankard will be played in the local rinks in expection that at least eight clubs in the district will be represented. Each of this event will proceed to the zone finals at Colborne and the winners there will go to Toronto to play for the olders' cup up for competition in the province.

L. G. Phinney Is Re-elected Chairman by His Colleagues On Trenton Education Board

TRENTON — L. G. "Lew" Phinney was re-elected chairman of the Trenton Board of Education at last night's inaugural meeting of the board. Mr. Phinney served as chairman in 1961. Vice-chairman will be Dr. T. A. McNally, separate school appointee to the board.

Committee chairmen appointed were: Finance, George Greer; maintenance, Del Topping; management, Ronald Reid; planning, T. S. Ketcheson; supply, Lou Knack; auxiliary services, rules and regulations, Gerald Farrar; teacher - board relations, Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths. Each chairman picked members of his committee and this committee setup will remain in effect until after the February meeting, when the result of ar. administrative survey will be made known. A management consultant firm is presently engaged in this survey.

O. W. Larry, clerk - comptroller, administered the oath of office to acclaimed members T. S. Ketcheson, Mrs. Griffiths, George Greer, Del Topping and Lou Knack. Dr. McNally was also sworn. All three members, with the exception of Mr. Greer, will serve two-year terms. Straws were drawn to determine which of the six would serve two-year terms. Mr. Prescott, the shortest straw.

Since Mr. Reid, Mr. Phinney and Mr. Farrar are filling out the final year of their two-year terms, it is not necessary that they be sworn in.

Following his re-election, by secret ballot, as the chairmanship, Mr. Phinney thanked retiring member Paul Tripp for his interest in board activity during the past year.

Present at the meeting were public school supervising principal V. P. Carswell, high school principal W. E. Houston, building superintendent John Goode, Mrs. Marjorie Gothard, and Miss Eva Baker, who serves as secretary - treasurer of the board.

MUST PAY TUITION

The parents of one high school student will be notified that unless payment for their child's attendance at Trenton High School is forthcoming by Monday next, the school principal, W. J. Houston, will be authorized to forbid the student to attend school. The parents in question live outside the corporation, but own property in town, which fails to come up to the assessment requirements of a shade more than $3000, as laid down by the Ontario government.

All parents in similar circumstances were notified by the board secretary on Dec. 1 that the provincial ruling would come into effect by the first of the year. At last night's meeting of the Trenton school board of finance and property, it was told the members that one of the parents had phoned the board office to say that they would not pay the prescribed fee.

"It's not fair to others who pay and it's not fair to Trenton ratepayers," said Mr. Greer.

"Is there any reason to believe that it's a case of hardship?" asked Mr. Reid.

"I don't think so," replied Mr. Greer.

"I think it's a disagreement with policy," board secretary Eva Baker supplied.

"We'd better get the ruling in writing from the assessor and then take action," suggested T. S. Ketcheson.

Board members agreed that this was the wisest procedure and that the student's parents would be served an ultimatum as to the payment, with Monday as the deadline."

NO EXCEPTIONS

Fearing that they would "set a precedent" if they allowed one out-of-town resident to attend two day classes at Trenton High School, without paying a fee, members decided to permit no management committee, headed by Ronald Reid, working in Co-operation with the high school principal, to decide upon a fee and inform the would-be student of their decision.

A Bayside resident had written to the board, asking that he be allowed to attend two daily classes at the high school to supplement her night study courses.

"This could happen a dozen times," supervising planning chairman T. S. Ketcheson. "If we permit one person to attend without a fee, there was a "moderate amount" of failures. What do you mean by "moderate?"

"About 20 per cent" was the reply.

You also note that 18 per cent of the student body achieved first class standing," said Mr. Reid. "Is this good?"

"It's a good showing in this type of school," said Mr. Houston, "We're always aiming at reducing the number of failures. We give all the help we can and there is constant attempt at improving teaching standards and a great deal of attention is paid to morale. We try to get the students themselves interested in their education".

FALSE EXCUSES GIVEN

"I was talking to a teacher the other day, and she told me that some parents of high school students have written notes to say that their children were ill, and that the students were seen wearing Legend in the Christmas season", said Mrs. Griffiths, "Don't something be done about that?"

"We have to honor the parent excuses," said Mr. Houston, "The parents need to be impressed with the importance of their children's education and their attendance at school. There is always a high legend in the Christmas season", said Mrs. Griffiths, "Don't something be done about that?"

It is interesting to read and observe the various reactions and counter-reactions to the invasion-liberation of Goa by India. It is equally interesting to note that each side of the argument has the most commendable grounds possible for its arguments — theoretically, at least.

Those who term it an invasion and oppose it find in the long history of the Indian Prime Minister's advocacy of non-violence and arbitration in matters of international dispute adequate grounds for cries of hypocrit and turncoat, as this attitude was casually and swiftly discarded when India's interests were at stake with a smaller nation.

For those calling the incident a liberation, grounds were found on that old, well-but-oft-improperly used cry of colonialism. And wonderful excuses were readily trotted out from the recent histories of the nations where many of the cries against invasion were coming from.

The Goa incident should have brought home to all a most valuable lesson. Whether it will be heeded or discarded is a moot point with human nature favoring the latter. The lesson is that duplicity will never advance the cause of world peace or understanding.

It is unfortunate but there appears to exist no nation in the world today that is not guilty of some form of infidelity in the matter of the relationship of words to action or vice versa, in international or national matters.

Brave words and good intentions are betrayed by false actions so often that soon speech will be a useless vehicle for the conveyance of thoughts and intentions between nations.

It may well be that this sort of action might be expected of the newer nations, unaccustomed to the responsibilities of democratic self-government, until such time as they matured internationally.

Such action, however, is unworthy of any nation which has lived under a democratic government for a half-century or more, as have the majority of the democratic governments of the west.

We in the west are seeing our worst past actions reflected in the current actions of the east. They have but followed our worst examples, such as should have been buried forever. Our harvest is ripening and it looks as though there is more chaff than grain.

The solution to this situation is not one which can be applied, or even determined, in a matter of a few minutes or days or, perhaps, even years. It would lie somewhere in the midst of our basic ideals, most of which were discarded some time back as impractical for an age of materialism and materialism.

The solution lies somewhere in that period of our history when the nations of the world looked at the west in envy of her philosophical riches which featured the rights and sanctity of the human being as an individual. Lies not in that morass of capital assets, material craving and overtaxing bureaucracy which presently stifles the image of man, the individual.

Somewhere the men of faith might find this vital factor and, if mankind is both wise and fortunate, it will be used, not discarded.

Now is not a time for each to be calling the other black.

Hmmm

English-speaking Canadians who have been worried about the flurry of secessionism which has reared its head in the Province of Quebec under the championship of Dr. Marcel Chaput will no doubt find some measure of relief in a recent decision by the separatist leader.

Although the good doctor has steadfastly refused to answer any questions put to him in English by newspapermen, it appears that his views may still be revealed to the English-speaking population. Despite his insistence on use of the French language and an abhorence of English as being a sign of weakness towards his purpose true, Dr. Chaput's forthcoming book is to be translated into English and published by an English company in good old English-speaking Ontario.

C'est la vie et c'est la guerre.

"We human beings find it strangely difficult to enter imaginatively into other people's experiences. We may know about these with our minds but we do not easily feel them in our hearts, unless we have had at least a taste of the same experiences ourselves. The historian's job is to enter imaginatively into the experiences of large numbers of his fellow human beings."—Arnold Toynbee, speaking in the BBC Home Service.

Fleming Never in Danger

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Whatever may really have been happening in what has become known as the Cabinet's "Grassy Christmas," the dismissal, or resignation of Finance Minister Fleming was in no way involved, not even remotely.

And what will, one day, be the scene in the East Block in that frenziest 48-hour period before Prime Minister Diefenbaker took his Cabinet on a fantastic journey to Quebec City may never be known until on some far-distant date the official diaries are made public.

But all the principals in this political drama—or was it comedy?—are agreed, and the hard evidence supports them, that at no time, anywhere along the line, was Fleming's job in jeopardy.

NO LOVE LOST

It long has been no secret that there is no real love lost between the Prime Minister and this Finance Minister or Justice Minister Fulton.

They were rivals for the Conservative leadership, and a contest like that, when the playing is for keeps, leaves its scars.

Who that heard it could forget Mr. Diefenbaker's dramatic pay-off line, "Dief the Chief lied to this day", when he made his bid for the leadership which, he felt, he had won on the hearts, would lead to the Prime Minister's office and residence at 24 Sussex Drive, driving ambition?

A lot of hasty things were done and said by the three rivals at the leadership convention, and, when the emotions stirred then, may still be felt more than five years later that Fleming has stood firmly together, ranks closed in the simple interests of self-defence, in getting more.

From the ire of the Government's fumbled firing of Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne, it has been plainly evident that no matter how much the Prime Minister might have wanted to get rid of Cabinet colleagues, he could hardly move Fleming.

To have transferred him then when he was under fire, would have been to admit that he — and the Government itself — was wrong in the Coyne affair.

Then Fleming was in trouble again following his serving of the famed "Commonwealth or Common Market" ultimatum to the British, at the economic conference in Ghana.

And again, even if the Prime Minister had failed to shuffle Fleming out of Finance, the doughty Donald was safe and sound.

Then, too, Fleming has been under the constant shadow of recurrent massive and mounting deficits.

Thus, while he seemed always to have his own unending troubles, he was never in danger of his post.

WOES HIS INSURANCE

For his very woes were his best insurance.

As long as he was on the spot, Cabinet colleagues, by their loyalty of old associates (if not exactly friends) and just plain political sense, were assured that he stay put.

Finally, as the "Tough Guy" of the Cabinet, he did emerge as something of a hero, when by a hint of need shoulding with inter-government hell-raising, he forced British Labor's Prime Seal, Edward Heath, to produce the "secret" text of London's opening statement to the Common Market negotiations.

Fulton, too, had his troubles. The Opposition, the Canadian Oriental community and even Fulton's own colleagues and party raised hob with him for blowing the Chinese Canadian immigration. Additionally, he was in the hot water of the Columbia River dispute with British Columbia's Premier Bennett. So he, also, being under fire, could do nothing but remain in the Justice Department.

Then how was it that the Cabinet journeyed down to Quebec City so that Diefenbaker could entertain for an almost fairy-tale "non-shuttle of the Cabinet"?

Parliament, after the opening of the new Session next week, may learn something of the strange and wonderful circumstances. Almost anything could have been cooking — anything except Fleming's political goose.

Letter To The Editor

Praises Mrs. Pugh For Stand on French Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer:

In article in your paper, of January 9th, "Board To Investigate Teaching of Oral French in City Public Schools"—three cheers for Mrs Hazel Pugh for having such a forthright, even though her motion was defeated! For shame!

As Dr. J. R. Scott's suggestion that "where French courses have been introduced, there was more French spoken than in Belleville"—what kind of a standard is that? At this rate, there will never be any French ever spoken by Belleville students!

French would be a much more popular subject if it didn't have to be crammed into four or five years of high school. It is then the experience that it started at Grade 3 level, it is much better for all concerned. As educators are agreed, the younger the better, for learning a language. As a parent I am concerned, French in public schools is a "must" and can be fun!

Advertising Key to Peace?

Baltimore Sun

A prominent advertising man —Charles H. Percy, president of Bantru, Bartlon, Dunstine and Osborne, Inc.—thinks that as engaged by sort of people Nelsen Audit this country's diplomatic sales pitch would be a flopcroo.

Mr. Brower asks: "Why are we, who are so expert at selling packaged goods, so ineffective at moving men's souls?"

Mr. Percy has put a fair interesting question just hand there.

The answer, he says, is the government's failure to "grasp the brisht sword of our creative skills and wield it against the enemy."

The particular sword he has in mind is the nation's advertising men whom, it turns out, he wants wrap up in the old shiny new government department all their own, then turn loose on the Soviet Russians.

Even if the government does not immediately leap up to respond to the Percy proposal, let Mr. Brower not think that either his sincerity or the power of the advertising world goes unrespected.

Ad-men-ders, however, how Mr. Khrushchev manages, in Mr. Brower's word, to "suit action" to the old States so handily without a single bona fide advertising man to tell him how it's done.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A TRULY COMMITTED LIFE

Anyone who has ever visited the church in Assisi, where St. Francis labored and lived for God and his fellowmen cannot help but be impressed by the simplicity and effectiveness of this man's service. He did not have much to give the Lord, but he gave him all he had. And because he did, millions of Christian believers for widely differing church affiliations have been blessing him through the centuries. He is an example of what a simple, honest man can do who gives every thing he is and has to God.

"Lord, make me an instrument of thy peace!", prayed Francis. "Where there is hatred let me sow love; where there is injury, pardon; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; and where there is sadness, joy. Let it be Thee that we are born to eternal life."

Scriptures tell us that into the heavens at times swing bodies from outer space, to add to the glory of God's name in heavens, into the rolling mass of humanity come souls of unusual individual vee, by his consecration, love, and devotion to all that God stands for, righteous making the world in which he lives shine with a new splendor and causes, succeeding generations to speak of him with reverence and awe.

Such a man was St. Francis of Assisi. He is the model of every believer. He is brother of every needy man. He is an example of what God can do through a truly committed life.

Clarification of a sweeping order that all persons expected to be given shortly by Motor Vehicle Controller, under which passenger automobile production in Canada will be stopped within the next three months. Under the plan, Munitions Minister Howe announced last night that manufacture will be discontinued as soon as existing manufacturers already fabricated parts are assembled — by the end March, or early in April. Meanwhile, monthly production rate must be reduced to one-third this month. The new order was described in the announcement last night as a direct result of an acute shortage of steel, rubber and other strategic materials required.

Frigid temperature has slowed construction operations on the new Trenton airport to a standstill, according to city officials this morning. Employees of the construction company building the bridge will necessarily be laid off during the cold weather conditions before progress can be made on the bridge work in preparation for pouring concrete.

The possibility that the Henry C. Daryaw, Kingston caller that sank in the St. Lawrence River last November, will be salvaged for its cargo of 1,200 tons of coal, has been speculated in Kingston recently. The ship was well known in Belleville. It became one of the few coalers to make regular trips up the Bay of Quinte.

A shipment of 25 blankets was received at the city lodge on Saturday for the use of transients who spend the night there. The need of blankets was recognized by Mr. Cyril Wallis, manager of the Dominion Bank and president of the Belleville and District Y.M.C.A. House. He made a requisition for a supply and the shipment arrived in the Red Cross and the blankets were immediately forwarded from the auxiliary room at the Kingsway. Last night sixteen men slept in the lodge, and the night before nineteen wanderers enjoyed the shelter of the lodge.

Strictly Personal

Guests Are Obligated to Contribute?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the major differences between the sexes is that when a man asks a woman to marry she still loves him, he is seeking the answer; when a woman is married the same question, she is seeking reassurance.

Most of us are habitually aware of our obligations as hosts, but are sadly unaware of our obligations as guests. A real contribute some lightness and charm to the gathering, and not to sit stiffly, expecting to be entertained.

When a man measures himself for some minor fault, he is obliquely calling attention to his lack of major faults; in the same all expressed self-criticism is a bid for praise.

It is a sin dismally true, throughout history, that the people in the high moral principles have the lowest capacity for tact; and so, when the high-principled people get bogged down, they tend to blame the world for its failure, rather than themselves for their clumsiness in personal relations.

What is commonly meant by a "good marriage" is a marriage that is not boring, and is bad by anyone except its participants.

Those who have wrong ideas are not nearly so dangerous as men who have right ideas approximately — that is, before they understand all the ramifications of these ideas, and before they can act upon them with the grace and assurance of power and prudence. (Nothing illustrates this more fully than the rigid intolerance of the Puritan volume, a right idea that swiftly became perverted into a burning disease it tried to cure.)

The very existence of the fact that great causes generally have good consequences should make us extremely modest about any view we may hold, because the grand design and purpose of the universe is not known to us, of itself, is a profound form of piety.

When a man tells you "I'm putting all my cards on the table, you may be sure he is holding back the highest honor hand than yours.

A witty woman is rarely a pretty woman — for wit in a woman's way of drawing attention from the beauty of her external appearance to the unmirable qualities of her mind: it is significant that there are no female comedians, except a few of exceedingly dark looks.

Respect for the law has been all but obliterated in this country; and the fact that its obliteration has not been caused so much by the infractors of the law as by its enforcers, its upholders, its practitioners and its quite "legal" beneficiaries.

There should be nothing but sympathy for Mr. MacDonald and his provincial New Democratic Party as it tries, unsuccessfully to ward off the kisses of the Communists in the coming provincial byelections. It is an old Commie trick to fasten themselves to another party and often with the motive of destroying.

To Your Good Health

Bus Rides to School Upset Teenage Student

"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, a freshman in High school, has to ride on the bus 45 minutes to get to school because she gets sick on the bus, our doctor prescribed some tablets for her to take before breakfast. The tablets help, but she can't eat any breakfast and this worries me terribly. This morning she had only two salty crackers and a glass of milk.

"Can you possibly suggest something substantial she could eat so early in the morning — 6:30 a.m.? The bus ride home doesn't bother her, only the A.M." — Mrs. B.K.

Since the bus ride bothers her in the morning but not in the afternoon, I suspect that her troubles — both the car sickness and the inability to eat — are psychological rather than purely physical.

Not that her misery isn't real enough. Of course it is. Our nerves can play all sorts of mean tricks on us.

I think, if you exercise patience and diplomacy, you can overcome the problem.

Since she can eat salt crackers and milk, continue giving her these — but gradually and carefully add other things. An egg in the milk, and a bit of sweetening and flavoring if desired, will help a great deal nutritionally, and she may tolerate it easily.

Next toast and jelly instead of the crackers, or in addition to them. Gradually work in a small glass of fruit juice or a piece of fresh fruit.

I think eventually you'll get a substantial breakfast that way, and the "bus sickness" should disappear.

Keep in mind (but don't tell her) that this change of a freshman is probably significant. She's under the nervous tension of getting used to a new environment and new problems. As she becomes accustomed to things, she'll calm down.

Indeed, that is quite likely the reason why she is upset going to school, but at ease going home — a good thing for you to remember, but of no particular value to her, since she isn't aware of the underlying subconscious to these stresses.

Don't belabor the situation. Don't argue. Don't keep harping on it. And don't try to force the issue to get it solved. Just add to her discomfort. She needs calm, easy, tactful help. And I'm sure they help, we are all right but I predict that this will occur when she won't need them.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause a strong odor in the case of a pair of boots that gets wet parties and bed. Her mother thought it might cause it. Would you advise a checkup by the doctor? — H.H."

Mild infection, certain vitamins, and insufficient water are all common causes of this trouble. Also, cleaning, soiled clothes and bedding could accentuate it. By all means have a medical checkup. Among other points, infection might influence the eating, and treatment could correct the problems at once — in addition to warding off future troubles that could be serious.

"Dear Dr. Molner: We are greatly concerned over our 15 month-old grandchild. She passes out from holding her breath, it seems like blue. Most people say it is temper. Is there anything that can be done to bring her out of it? — Mrs. B.A."

In this case I agree with you, right. She always has come out of it, hasn't she? She always will. It's tricky that some babies acquire — holding their breath for a few seconds.

If they hold their breath long enough, they "pass out." At that point they have to start to breathe again. It's been happening for centuries. But it's scary.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of my booklet explaining what causes sinus trouble, and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, Box 156, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long self-addressed envelope, stamped and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In Paris I saw historic paintings of Napoleon's battles, and in action. He had 130,000 men at his command and every regiment had a different uniform in some respect, and some with various styles of hat. Ornate uniforms of unique design and decoration.

Who made the uniforms for this seventh of a million men? There were no sewing machines in those days. Every stitch of all that vast army wardrobe, with all its gold lacings, lace and embroidery, was done by hand. The dress uniforms, the service uniforms, the fatigues, the greatcoats, capes, bushes, shakos, and other ornate headgear they wore, all had to be done, every one, by somebody's hands.

And the boots! There were no trains, trucks or buses on which to transport his armies all over Europe and up into Russia. It was all done on the march. Who made the boots, every half-million pairs, custom made, as we now say; bench-made?

And all this single act warmaking that we are liable to overlook when we compare the past with the present, and all of us in frowsy olive-drab.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

VALUES

A successful man or woman, and the happy one as well, must have a keen sense of values in this world. And so she is bound to remain but one of those confused.

Character is a collection of values. It is an amalgamation of those qualities which, when rightly united, make for strength, gentleness, sweetness, fairness, kindness, forwardness.

Each value loses much of its weight when a few values are confused.

We live in a very material world with physical calls and qualities all about us. Because of this, men have always craved something to balance it. And so we have spiritual values, without which no man can be truly happy truly progressive or great.

When all else withers and looks — and is — small in the material world, then it is that spiritual values come to soothe and inspire and make us go on there all alone.

The comparatively content, of this single world, of fields, afraid to dare and ride, build cities, suffer privations and ideas, or who find one, when their cause seems lost, all achievement is a daring thing.

Faith nurtures the brave. It is not for the timid. Or get among the mountains and universe and it's very cloudy clouds float over their snow covered tops and you understand God better. You take a different appraisement upon life if you go to your room, or book, or friend, or loved ones at nightfall richer and more silently impressed than the vast chaos in life.

Experience make values, and become a part of all values.

Dalrymple Case Transferred to Next Assizes

The Grand Jury, deliberating since Tuesday afternoon, returned to the courtroom Wednesday afternoon at which time they presented their decisions in connection with two criminal cases to the Honorable Mr. Justice G. Thompson, Judge for the January assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The Jury returned a "No Bill" against Roy Keith O'Hara of Consecon, charged with criminal negligence, in connection with a motor vehicle accident in Trenton on August 11, 1961, in which Edward Reeves, age 23, was fatally injured. Reeves was struck by a car driven by O'Hara on Water Street, in Trenton. Mr. Reeves died instantly.

Mr. O'Hara was represented by T. J. Lally.

At the preliminary hearing which was held in Trenton on October 3rd, evidence was given that enough alcohol had been consumed by the deceased and the defendant to put them both in an intoxicated condition.

Donald Leslie Dalrymple of Belleville, was also charged with criminal negligence, in connection with the death of a young girl, 15-year-old Elsie A. Seeck, on July 31, 1961. The accident occurred on highway No. 2 just east of the city.

The Grand Jury returned a "True Bill" against Mr. Dalrymple. Acting for Malcolm Robb, solicitor for the defendant, Bernard W. Hurley asked his Lordship to have the case traversed to the next sittings of Supreme Court.

The case will be tried during the next assizes of the Supreme Court, which will be held in the fall.

Toastmasters Hold Meeting

The regular meeting of the Belleville Toastmasters was held last week in the banquet room of the Belmont restaurant. Members present were: Bruce Lynch, Bill Lewis, Don Southcotte, Ernie Cassidy, Pat Gallery, Bob Long, Bob Gilham, Stan Watkins, Ray McCoy, Chris James, Bill Downing, Peter Atkinson, Ed Paskal, Ernie Finkle and Doug Spillane.

President Bruce Lynch presided over the meeting. It was decided to ask Frank Murray, of CJBQ, to come to one of the meetings as guest speaker. Don Southcotte was table-topics master. He had each member give a one-minute talk on the odd titles of books, after they were finished they were told what the book was actually about. Doug Spillane was toastmaster of the evening. The speakers were Ed Paskal with his "Ice Breaker", Bruce Lynch talking about "Lost Leaders," Pat Gallery on "Education" and Ray McCoy on "Beg Shortage."

Bill Downing gave the general evaluation of the meeting. Individual evaluators were Ernie Finkle, Ernie Cassidy, Bill Lewis and Stan Watkins.

The aim of the club is self improvement in speaking. To achieve this each member has an opportunity to talk for varying lengths of time at each meeting. Prospective members are welcome at meetings, on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at 6 sharp in the Belmont banquet room.

MORE LIKE HOME?

STRATFORD (CP)—A grand jury believes Perth County jail would be more homelike if benches for prisoners are removed. Following inspection of the jail the jury recommended Wednesday that the benches be replaced with "antique bar room chairs."

Set Up 22 Tourist Regions, Hastings County Is Divided Between Three of Them

The Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity is dividing the province into twenty-two tourist regions and will match dollar for dollar, money raised by tourist organizations in these regions for the promotion of their districts, up to a maximum of $5,000.

J. A. Wood of Napanee, district inspector of the Department of Travel and Publicity, informed The Ontario Intelligencer of this plan yesterday.

Legislation covering the change was passed at the 1960-61 session of the Ontario Legislature.

The new regions will cut across county boundaries, the dividing lines between regions being located solely with regard to the most natural flow of tourist traffic.

Belleville itself will lie within the Bay of Quinte Tourist Region, but the great bulk of Hastings County will be part of the Land O' Lakes Tourist Region.

The Bay of Quinte Tourist Region will consist of that section lying part of Highway 401 from the western boundary of Hastings County to the eastern boundary of Lennox and Addington Counties, including all of Prince Edward County.

Department of Travel and Publicity officials will shortly present a cheque for promotion work in this area to regional tourist interests, at a meeting to be held in Picton, on a date not yet definitely decided.

Most of Hastings north of Highway 401 will be part of the Land O Lakes Tourist Region, which will stretch from the western border of Hastings to the eastern border of Lennox and Addington.

The northern nine townships of Hastings, including the village of Bancroft, will be included in the Madawaska Valley Tourist Region, which will extend to the west to the border of Victoria County, which will be in the Kawartha Region.

George Baptiste Given 6 Months On Theft Charge

A Shannonville man was sentenced to six months in the county gaol by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county magistrate's court this morning.

George Baptiste pleaded guilty to a charge of being in possession of stolen goods. He was charged with being in possession of a .22 J-J C. Higgins rifle which had been stolen from Leonard Maracle of Shannonville.

Constable A. A. Guadry said that Baptiste had tried to sell the rifle to the proprietor of the Sidney Inn. The constable said that when he was unsuccessful at selling it he went out to the gas pumps where the gun was sold to three boys. The constable said the gun was not recovered.

BELGRADE (Reuters) — A strong earthquake today struck the Dalmatian coast, leaving a number of buildings villages devastated and at least one man dead.

At Ploce the railway station collapsed, badly injuring, three persons and troops set to work clearing blocked railway lines and roads.

Fashion Find

By VERA WINSTON

A useful find is the type of dress that is good for late afternoon wear as well as for an evening of dining and dancing or theatre-going.

This one succeeds on all counts.

It is of pastel or bone white sheer wool, which makes it perfect for resort or cruise, too. The tie neckline is cut in one with the bodice, the top of which flares out just slightly, as does the skirt which is made on a camisole bodice.

Silver-Haired Models Show New Fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — Grandmother's wardrobe now is fine fashion for the fashion - wary teen - ager, fashion writers attending the New York coutiere group's press - week activities learned Wednesday.

So drove the point designer Jane Derby opened the shows Wednesday by sending well-dated, silver-haired models into the runway in a series of costumes as young as the new year.

She had taken the stuff of which trousseaux are made, of lingerie, tucked batiste, soft fabrics, soft cottons with tiny floral patterns, and lace, lace, lace — to make a summer collection that dazzles age, she said.

Altogether ignoring the spring trend to frills and furbelows, tight bodices, constricting midriffs and deep, deep decolletage, Miss Derby made simple, semi - fitted unfettered costumes that made the prettiest youth seem serenely elegant and a dowager downright ageless.

For his fashion rejuvenation program, designer Rosal took the traditional grandmotherly wardrobe of black and navy blue crepe with dotty white collars, and reshaped the neck lines, modified the bonnets, and streamlined the white trim.

ROME (Reuters) — Bikini bathing suits with matching stole, silver snakeskin shoes and skin-tight jumper suits were the highlights of boutique collections shown Wednesday at the opening of the Italian spring and summer fashion week.

Maxim of Milan reduced bikinis to the bare essentials. They were mostly made of linen and decorated with lace wrapped around the hips to make the pants effect. Matching long - sleeve shirts went with the Bikinis.

Vittorio Serra of Rome showed more modest bikinis — the panties reaching to the waist with matching three-skirt styles.

Jumper suits which fitted like a second skin came from Botti of Milan who chose flower-printed nylon jersey as a fabric and featured low-cut backs.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Cherry U. — For Don's sake, we should move to the city.

Howard U. — Why uproot all of us? Let him adjust to the others.

• • •

Cherry U. — We have a 5-year-old son who gives evidence of having great artistic ability. For example, one day while we were visiting friends, he wandered away from the other children, sat himself on a high rock in the park, and made a dozen or so sketches of the scenery. One of these was used as a cover illustration for his school paper. Don was the youngest contributor.

But he's under two painful disadvantages here. First of all, he suffers from being different. Children his age don't consider him much fun to be with, and he's left to himself while the others gang up and either kid him or ignore him. Also, there are no art classes near by and because there are no other children interested in the city Don would find hundreds like himself.

• • •

Howard U. — I like it here and so does Cherry. Her worry about Don and his art is no reason for leaving all this behind and moving to a city apartment.

It's a better idea to keep him here among a bunch of regular guys than to isolate him among artists and such. Cherry should be trying to make him an all-round boy first, not a child genius. They don't grow up to be very happy or healthy.

I try to encourage Don by putting his sketch pad and a crayon out for a half-hour or so each week. I tell him even an artist must develop his muscles. It's important, I think, for him to become good at other things, too, not just art. It would help him to try to make the Little League team, for instance. He might not be so touchy.

• • •

The Council: In view of Don's tender age, we agree with Howard that there are many inbred advantages still available for Don in the neighborhood of the woods he now occupies. There's a good chance for him to develop some community feeling and backing there by going in a setting where his parents are well-known, everyone is fairly "averaged," stable, and his distinction in art gives him a certain prestige. The wholesome attitude of the well-rounded toward their fellow men is a valuable preparation for a would-be Rembrandt to absorb. They certainly will influence his future work with balance and validity.

But when the boy reaches his teens, we'll buy Cherry's reasoning. In a small community the odd ball stands out like a sore thumb. Too long around and he may believe himself odder than he really is. Whereas in a metropolis, the wonderful variety and diversity of the inhabitants serves as a shield for him who would dare to be a bit different from the rest-door neighbors.

According to Dr. Israel Zwerling, associate professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, the big city can give children a special sense of security and promotes their mental health. It does this by bringing together so wide a sampling of human types that a child is able to find a group where he fits comfortably. How much better this would be for Don than to have to continue doing what he must do now — make himself comfortable in the only group available. The latter is okay as an exercise in adaptability, but not as a forever-struggle.

Also, as Cherry realizes, since talented or just "interested" people converge on the Big City, special classes taught by experts abound. Besides, there's the stimulating tempo of city life, the rich facilities for enlightenment — museums, libraries, "native" markets, docks, terminals, restaurants.

Eventually, then, move Don to the city where he'll just be one among many Dons.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

AFTER THE PARTY'S OVER

The party may be over — but the talk goes on and on.

Next morning it goes something like this:

Or: "Mary, probably still planning Pete's gaze back, that way he danced with that blond all evening."

If the dishpan is between husband and wife over the breakfast table, then no harm's done as long as it stays in the family. But it's very discourteous to the host as well as to his erring guest to broadcast details of a party all over the neighborhood. As far as both are concerned, it's best to let sleeping lampshades lie.

Telling tales out of school is not a privilege born of gossip, and while it is meant to be malicious, it still can cause wounded feelings among the principals if it ever got back to them.

Naturally, a host doesn't want any gossip connected with a party in his house. It might create the impression that either it was a dud or right wild. And, of course, the guy who danced with the lampshade would just as soon everyone forgot the whole thing for obvious reasons.

The kind of the matter is that the tale bearers are oh, so sharper than they didn't make a boo-boo—for a change. And because able to point a finger at another indiscretion only proves how above-board their own behavior was.

What party gossip fail to realize is that by spreading stories they're failing to comply with the unwritten rule that a social errors should be locked up with the silver once the party's over. Inevitably, guests who were there might chuckle among themselves over Joe's dancing ability, but it's indiscreet to tell it to Joe's friends or co-workers and give him an undeserved reputation as a party buffoon.

If someone commits a social lapse, the most courteous thing to do is keep it under your party hat. Who knows? Some day you, too, might get the urge to dance with a lamp shade, and wouldn't that be a new Twist?

Eggs Extraordinary

By Mary Moore

On Monday I told you that I would give you today some extraordinary egg dishes.

We are told that eggs are plentiful and that the price is down. Hens' eggs are also a valuable protein and general favorite all good cooks should know how to make the best of them. I am giving you 2 outstanding egg dishes now.

BAKED EGGS (using 8):

Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in a large shallow baking dish in the oven heated to 350 deg. F. Remove hot dish and spread on tip it to make butter flow up sides. Break each of 8 eggs into a saucer and tip them one at a time into the hot buttered dish. For super carnation and evenly pour 1/2 to 1/2 cup cream or rich milk over all. Sprinkle top generously with salt and pepper. Bake uncovered at 325 deg. F. They require about 15 to 20 minutes to set but they cook more after they are removed from the oven. So either serve at once or remove from oven while they are slightly softer than they are liked. Good for breakfast, lunch or supper.

EGG CROQUETTES (an excellent meat substitute):

3 hard-cooked eggs, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 very small onion, 2 tablespoons parsley finely chopped.

Force peeled hard-cooked eggs through food grinder along with the onion and parsley. Melt butter, stir in flour and salt, then stir in milk until very thick. This is very thick as the hard until smooth. Add ground eggs and onions and parsley and mix well. Spread on platter to cool and chill. With buttered hands shape into 10 cylindrical croquettes and place on wax paper and chill again. When ready to deep fry have fat or oil heated to 370 deg. Roll each croquette in beaten egg and fine crumbs. The mixture is soft so must be quickly handled. Carefully lower into deep hot fat, but don't crowd them. Fry until rich brown. Slide out on slotted spoon and drain on paper towels. Serve at once.

EGG AND NOODLE CASSEROLE:

6 hard-cooked eggs, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1-4 cup mayonnaise, 1-4 cup butter or margarine, 1-4 cup flour, 2 cups milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 lb. process cheese chopped, 3 oz. medium noodles, cooked and drained. Soft bread crumbs.

Cut eggs in halves lengthwise. Remove yolks, mash with parsley, onion and mayonnaise. Refill whites. Melt butter, stir in flour, then milk and seasonings until thick. Stir in cheese until it melts. Blend half this sauce into cooked and drained noodles. Pour noodle mixture into large casserole. Sprinkle crumbs over stuffed eggs and arrange eggs on top of noodles at centre. Border with remaining sauce. Bake at 350 deg. F. for 30 to 40 minutes or until bubbly and heated through. Serves 4 to 6.

Not a Social Error to Show Slip, It's Chic

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—How can you buy clothes that will help you quit smoking, stretch your wardrobe, and save you embarrassment on a breezy day?

This incongruous riddle was solved nicely in parts by Designers Pauline Trigere and Edward Abbott on the second day of the New York Couture Group's semi-annual fashion press.

Miss Trigere took up the problem of the non-smoker who finds she has more hands than she knows what to do with.

Her fashions for spring include thin (nine inches-wide) stoles to handle after dinner cigaret smoke; big cuffed sleeves; wide capes to flail matadors; slits; and dark dresses; and suits, and coats, all with pockets for digging deep with clenched fists.

Even her husband's closet is design inspiration for Miss Trigere. His tuxedo, furnished inspiration for a short black jacket with a ruffled collar that seems to be a handsome cocktail suit. Then the jacket, pegs off to become a startling decolletage dress for formal wear.

Mr. Abbott raved about his cone-shaped silhouette, wide at the hem and narrow at the waist, more inverted, was shown in his models' petticoats.

The mannequins spun by reveal lingerie of exactly the same floral pattern, or at least the same hue, as the costumes they wore.

KEEP NUTRITION

Vegetables or fruit that are to be served raw should not be cut, shredded or left on the table to dry, since exposure may cause loss of vitamin and mineral content.

Club Activities

KUM DOUBLE CLUB

HALLOWAY — The Kum Double Club met at the home of Earl and Beatrice Snider for its last meeting of the old year on December 27th, with a good attendance.

The worship service was in charge of Gordon and Ruth Roth with the theme "The New Year." The Scripture was chosen from Philippians 3: 12-15 and read by Irene Wellman, and the meditation given by Eileen Bowers, and prayer by Verna Townsend. Two readings entitled, "Recipe for a good New Year," and "A new start" were given by Lorna Hough and Marie Emerson, respectively. Mary Huffman presented the story "It was the last evening of the old year," and Lois Morgan read "How's New."

The president, Lois Morgan took charge of the business. The minutes read by the secretary, June Donaldson, were approved. Offering amounted to $3.20. Twenty three were present. A report on the Coupley rally held in Colborne recently was read, and a card of thanks received by E. Hance.

The next meeting is to be held in the church on January 10th, when the new officers will be installed. Conveners for that meeting will be Freddie and Irene Wellman.

The howler was given by Marie Emerson. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

LONG SERVICE

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Van Vliet, for 30 years executive director of the Red Feather Sheltering Home here, is retiring to her family home at Lacolle, Que. A registered nurse, she first joined the home when a shoulder injury forced her to give up her hospital work. The shoulder improved, but Miss Van Vliet stayed on.

Egg in Cooking Gives Added Nutrition

When you add an extra egg to your cooking, you are adding a dividend of good nutrition. It gives a bonus of valuable protein, vitamins and minerals plus good flavor.

The Poultry Products Institute says they offer no apology for suggesting adding an extra egg to your cooking and here are a few ways it may be done.

To get a smooth rich texture in cream sauce to be used on cooked vegetables, add an egg.

To help keep the meat loaf from crumbling when it is sliced, add an egg to the meat mixture.

You round out the flavor of the sauce for chicken or turkey a la king, add an egg.

For a tasty topping for a fruit cobbler add an egg plus a tablespoon or so of sugar to tea biscuit dough before adding liquid.

To round out the amount of protein, add a sliced hard-cooked egg for each two servings of macaroni and cheese.

To produce a delicious sponge gelatine, beat an egg into partially set gelatin dessert.

Lines on Life

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

What is character? For one hundred years now, many have been answering that question, staunchly maintaining that education by itself would refine a man's nature, and make him the man he should be.

Unfortunately, despite great hopes, education has not produced the magical answer. Many of us have lived through the Nazi barbarism, and have been witnesses to the corruption of which men of learning were capable. The "scientific barbarity" of Hitler's professors could hardly have been surpassed, because men of great learning did not necessarily match their great knowledge with greater character. Learning does not produce wisdom, and there were no bigger fools than they. Had their education been coupled with a zeal for virtue, they could have helped to build a world, rather than destroy it.

"A little knowledge is dangerous thing," said Alexander Pope. But even great knowledge can be gravely dangerous, if there is no passion for its proper use.

The ancient sages of Israel taught: "Let not your learning exceed your virtue, lest you be like a tree with many branches and few roots." In the end, we discover that a learned man who abdicates responsibility to a moral law is much more dangerous than the illiterate, uneducated man of evil.

Those who cry only upon what they've been taught at school, have suggest that education will solve all problems have missed the message of the moment. The difficulties we face have not been created by the uneducated people, or by those who don't know better. Hardly a social dilemma exists which is not the result of our inability to do more than the rules allows. We may have refined our mentality — but we're still in danger of losing our morality.

Mass education is a great desideratum, and who shall oppose it? We rightly want to spread knowledge and to fight ignorance. But the education of the heart, as well as the mind, is still our basic lack. The education of the heart — this is still the heart of education.

What, then, is the education of our heart? It is the deliberate training of our inner life, aiming to produce both the ability and the desire to rise above our limitations and place. It is the endowing of our will with a spiritual fortitude which refuses to be reduced to the lowest common denominator. It is the earnest exercise of our humanity that we become more and more capable of the grand gesture, in spite of the little peas of the people with whom we must be forced to dwell. It is the ability we seek to master, the uncommon secrets of strength, to transcend the ordinary by reaching out for the extra-ordinary.

Is this a program for saints? Hardly.

For, things are now so ordered that even if few are satisfied with being less than the best, we must yet learn how to rise beyond today's ordinariness merely to keep our heads above the low water levels of conformity. At every turn, we are cajoled, brainwashed or mesmerized by social pressures and influences to: "Be like everyone else"; "be a regular fellow"; "live modern"; or "follow the crowd." The call of the hour is geared to the glittering, the gluttonous and the gullible. And he who defends from heartening to its furious sound is accused of being "curious" or "queer," "square loughs." The result: smart people with high "intelligence quotients" who possess very low "ethical quotients." The challenge is to raise our E.Q. to the level of our I.Q. A suggested approach:

1. Let us want what we have, instead of only seeking to have what we want.

2. Let us prize our moral position, more — race after material possession, less.

3. Let us honor the creative contributors to our community who elevate and inspire, instead of worshipping the decadent dead-heads who degrade man, pandering to the lowest and the basest in us.

4. Let us, above all, remember the words of the poet: "A man's reach must exceed his grasp, or else what's a heaven for?"

Instead of saying that we are headed for the worst, let us keep our vision trained on the best. We may not reach the highest — but we'll be rescued from sinking to the lowest.

SIMPLE REASON

Young Couple Honored at Presentation

STIRLING — On Friday evening, recently, the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Heasman of Stirling R.R. 4 was the scene of a presentation party in honor of their daughter Grace and her husband Mr. Cameron Stine, on the occasion of their recent marriage.

Mr. Harold Detlor was master of ceremonies and he expressed congratulations and best wishes to the newlyweds. Mr. Jack Bush led in a singsong of old favorites with Miss Marilyn Conley, as pianist. Appropriate selections were read by Mrs. George Heasman, Miss Betty Hanna, Mrs. Allan McDonell, Mrs. Jack Bush, Mrs. Clifford Lensing, Mrs. Roy Tucker and Douglas Detlor. A recitation was given by Miss Carol Vandervoort and a piano solo by Miss M. Conley. Mr. Walter Savage gave a most interesting talk re the contents of an old newspaper printed during the Spanish American war.

Mrs. Roy Bush read an appropriate address to the young couple and they were the recipients of a floor polisher, mixette and other kitchen utensils on behalf of the River Valley community and friends.

Mrs. Vernon Harry read an address on behalf of River Valley Women's Institute, as the bride is a valued member of that organization and presented Grace with a large TV table and tray.

Both Grace and Cameron graciously voiced thanks for the party, program and gifts and Grace introduced her new in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stine of Sidney. All four parents spoke briefly.

At the close of the program the ladies served refreshments and the group enjoyed a social half hour and each expressed personal wishes to the newlyweds for a happy and successful matrimonial voyage through life.

Questions Advice on Tipping

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I just wonder if the information you received on tipping is correct. If a dining-room steward on a ship receives $10. from each person per week, having 40 or 50 persons to collect from, his tips alone would amount to much more than the weekly wages of the average man.

In fact, it would be perhaps 7 or 8 times as high as that of a wage earner. Also what about their wages, if any?— A SEA GOING BELLEVILLE READER.

DEAR SEA GOING—Sounds pretty rosy, the way you put it!

Fact is, the dining room steward serves about eight people as regular diners at his tables during a sea voyage. The tip is more usually $6 than $10, and this is in the first-class dining room where possibilities are higher than in the far more populous tourist class.

Also, there is that period between trips of four or five days or a week when there is no direct service to travellers and no tips received. As for wages, they are not high, and take tips into account.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I have a sister who has just had her fourteenth birthday. Her birthday has changed her. She torments and bothers me. I have a wonderful father and a loving mother.

It's just my sister; she's nice but sometimes she's a problem to my mother and me.—YOUNG SISTER.

DEAR YOUNG SISTER—When you are both ten years older, you'll start appreciating each other. Right now your sister feels grown up-ish and shows off by tormenting you. She loves it when she can make you angry.

The trick is—Don't show that she makes any impression. She'll stop!

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I'm nearly 18 and I like a boy who is 18. I know he likes me too because I talked to him on the phone and he told me so. But he doesn't ask me to go out. What shall I do? — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED—Either he is not used to dating girls, he is shy, or he has no money. Could you invite him to a school-sponsored party? Something has to give—if he does like you.

Transport Director Gives Women Driving Advice

By EDNA BLAKELY

TORONTO (CP)—Women are particularly nervous when it comes to winter driving but can gain confidence if they understand the problems, says Ethel McLellan, director of women's activities for the Ontario department of transport.

"The first thing a woman starts down her suburban street and there are no other cars around, she should try her brakes gently. This will give her the feel of the road."

Before getting into the car, brush any snow off the windows. It's important to do the roof and the hood too so that the snow won't blow and block either the front or rear windows.

Mrs. McLellan says she has never found a scraper that's long enough to suit her and she carries an old curling broom around.

"A curling broom or a discarded house broom will do. This means a woman can do an efficient job and still stand far enough back to stop the snow from getting up her sleeves.

PREFERS CLEARING

Mrs. McLellan admits she's never tried it herself but she said a friend of hers used a tin of household cleanser in the car. The powder provided the necessary abrasive if the woman gets stuck on ice.

Six basic rules have been devised by the Ontario transport department for safe winter driving.

The first is to start gently on packed snow or ice. Use second gear if the car has a manual shift. Turn wheels straight ahead to ease starting. When stuck in snow, start in low gear and move forward slowly as far as possible and then shift quickly into reverse. Continue the rocking action until free.

Windows and windshields should be kept clear of ice, snow and slush. If the lower back windows are left slightly open it will help to keep the inside glass from fogging. To help others see you, use headlights during daytime snowstorms.

AVOID SPEED

Speed should be adjusted to the slipperiness of ice and snow on the road. A single brake application will indicate how easily wheels will slide.

Remember that it takes from three to 12 times more distance to stop on snow and ice than on dry pavement, so keep well back of the vehicle ahead and drive at slower than normal speeds.

Anticipate braking situations and start slowing down well before reaching a turn, intersection or crest of a hill. Slow down to a safe speed to avoid a front end skid at a turn, a rear end skid on a curve, sliding into an intersection or tobogganing down a hill out of control.

Pumping brakes will prevent the wheels from locking and skidding. Pumping is a quick application of the brakes followed immediately by full release. This gives alternate intervals of maximum braking effect and steering control while the wheels are rolling.

Melrose UC Women List Officers

The first meeting of the United Church Women of Melrose branch met at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren last Wednesday evening, with an attendance of 14. The pastor, Mr. Doug Steven called the meeting to order with a short worship service consisting of Psalm 90, followed by prayer.

Mrs. John Milligan introduced the program with a paper on "Spiritual Inventory of the Church Worker". In this she compared human lives with business firms. Take stock of oneself at the beginning of the year and decide upon one's assets, aims, plans, policies, processes, liabilities, dividends and losses. Start now to put first things first and love and faith will replace hate and bitterness. Look upon your God — given needs with a fair pride, turn a critical eye upon the liabilities, and with determination and God's help the yearly inventory will be accurate.

Mrs. E. Embury read the hymn "Standing at the Portals" and several members read inspiring sections on the theme "Various Roads That We Travel", followed by a "Prayer for the New Year".

NEW STUDY BOOK

Mrs. Milligan introduced the Study Packet for this new organization which has finally bloomed into existence after 10 years of planning. The basic study book entitled "Signals for the Sixties", examines the church in an attempt to arouse the people to the need and opportunities for Christianity in this day-to-day living and thus overcome the complacent attitude. Another book to aid and awaken the dormant talents is "Hasten the Day" by Jessie Beattie.

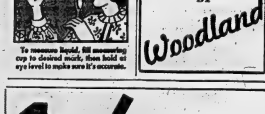
The leader also explained briefly the methods of program planning in order to make the best of the study material. If all the women of the church avail themselves to become vital workers and learners in "The United Church Women", their influence will be unequalled by anything undertaken so far.

Mr. Stevens congratulated and expressed thanks to the past members of the Women's Missionary Society who have carried the women of the church to the present stage by their faithful service.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

Mrs. Kenneth McMechan presented the slate of officers and Mr. Stevens conducted the election as follows: president — Mrs. Grant McLaren vice-president — Mrs. Newton Dentile; secretary — Mrs. John McFarlane; treasurer — Mrs. Jack Sherman.

A ballot was cast and the slate was accepted.



Mrs. McLaren presided over a short question period and appointed Mrs. Roy Badger to act as program convener for the next meeting to be held on Wednesday afternoon, February 7th, at the home of Mrs. J. McFarlane.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

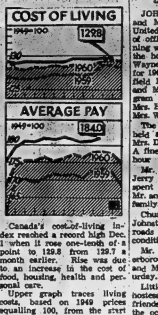
First Titular Head of Korean Junta to Hang

SEOUL (AP) — Chang Do-young, first titular head of the junta that toppled civil rule in South Korea, was convicted yesterday of plotting against the military government he headed.



The unanimous verdict was set up by his former colleagues sentenced him to be hanged.

Chang, the army chief of staff at the time of the May coup and a hero of the Korean War, served only after the coup was so accomplished fact to head the ruling junta and take the country's premiership. Throughout his two months in office the real power was held by Gen. Chang Hee Park, the leader of the coup, who replaced Chang as head of the junta.

Condemned to death with Chang on similar charges of counts — revolutionary activity was his former secretary, former Col. Lee Hoi Yung. The five-men tribunal also ordered life sentences for four defendants, including two former junta members; gave prison terms ranging from five to 15 years to nine persons and acquitted nine others.

SUBJECT TO APPEAL

Death verdicts automatically go to an appeals court. If appeal there, they must be reviewed by Gen. Park.

Canada's cost-of-living index reached a record high Dec. 1 when it rose one-tenth of a point to 123.8 from 123.7 a month earlier. Rise was due to an increase in the cost of food, housing, health and personal care.

Lower graph shows the index of average industrial wages and salaries which stood at 184.0 Nov. 1 compared with 183.3 a month earlier and 178.3 a year ago. (CP Newsmap.)

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

—Topics this week: Asian flu virus, chickenpox, mumps and measles, and the storks.

SPENT VIRUS?

What happens to an influenza virus between epidemics? It appears that the virus still travels between humans—but incognito. At least it may not be recognized as influenza.

Researchers have recovered the Asian A2 virus from patients in the years since its world-wide epidemic of 1957 —indicating the virus is still around.

This means that the virus is still creating immunity in avoid populations — and because of this it could be that he Asian flu has spent its epidemic force.

VIRUSES MARCH ON

Infectious diseases are often influenced by social forces —and a new study, initiated at least three of themchickenpox, mumps and measles—are hitting children at younger ages than they once did.

There three virus diseases were once highly common among adolescents. But now it appears, they are occurring largely in the preadolescent years. This may be due to the increase in the population, or the fact that people move around more now, and live closer together.

STORK, OF COURSE

Writing to the Journal of the American Medical Association, a physician says he has heard of doctors delivering babies, and doctors delivering mothers. Which, he asks, is correct?

Dietitians say the' word deliver may be used passively, as to give birth—or actively to mean the disburdening of one who is pregnant. Very an AMA expert Hence, the mother, delivers the baby, and the doctor, or the doctor delivers a woman of her child.

BRAIN OF TROUBLE

Clots of blood sometimes form in the body's blood circulation system — and sometimes these clots travel to the brain, to lodge in a narrowed blood vessel, cutting off the blood supply to part of the brain.

Now doctors find that patients may actually receive omens that such an episode is coming.

The most prominent omen is headache—often felt on the same side of the head as the blood blockage will occur. Sometimes the patient experiences a general sense of illfeeling. Some patients felt numbness in limbs or had sudden difficulty speaking.

U.S. Scientists Take Credit For Work Done by Canadians

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government scientist read the American report in silence and put it on his desk with a sigh of resignation.

The report was one of a number published recently announcing that U.S. scientists have found a way to remove radioactive strontium-90 from milk.

The process talked about in this news report was developed under direction of Dr. B. P. Migdovsky, chief of the big chemistry and nutrition animal research institute of the federal agriculture department. He announced it in Ottawa early in 1959.

The work was done under auspices of the agriculture department. Dr. Migdovsky developed the method to the point where a pilot plant could have been built. However, the Canadian government decided against further development work and the process was turned over to the U.S. department of agriculture.

The American scientists are using this Canadian process in an attempt to develop facilities for removing strontium-90 from milk on a commercial basis in the event such action ever should become necessary.

CREDITED IN JOURNAL

Dr. Migdovsky has received credit for his work in scientific journals. However, news of the reports from the United States persist in giving credit for the development to American scientists.

Strontium-90 is an isotope produced by nuclear explosions. After it falls to earth from the stratosphere it settles on plant life, it enters the human body via the food chain.

A sufficient quantity of strontium-90 deposited in the bone will cause cancer.

Present levels of strontium-90 in the world are so minute they can hardly be measured. As a result there is no present need to remove strontium — 90 from any food products.

Dr. Migdovsky tackled the problem that would relate to milk in the event of a nuclear war or accidental nuclear explosion. Either could cause contamination of milk.

He developed a highly technical filtering process which leaves treated milk relatively unchanged with respect to composition and flavor. The method involves the use of certain chemicals known technically as ion-exchange resins.

The federal government decided against pilot - plant development, partly because of the high costs involved. When the U.S. learned that no more work were to be done in Canada it offered to take over the task of developing a pilot plant in the hope that this would lead to development of a commercially feasible process.

This work now is being conducted by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, the U.S. public health service and the U.S. department of agriculture outside of Washington. No figures on the costs of this research have been made public.

Best estimate today is that animals retain in their systems only about five per cent of the strontium-90 they eat during plant life. A dairy cow secretes in her milk about one-tenth of the strontium—90 consumed daily.

This amount of strontium - 90 in milk is so small it can hardly be measured and it constitutes no danger to health.

Under Dr. Migdovsky's system upwards of 90 per cent of strontium - 90 that gets into body via the food chain, in the event of a nuclear war and contamination of food this means in milk could be removed in the safest foods to consume in an emergency.

Six Canadian Catholic Priests Return to Cuba

OTTAWA (CP) — Six Canadian Roman Catholic priests expelled from Cuba last September have returned to the Caribbean island and are again carrying on missionary activity there, it was learned here.

They were among nine Canadian Catholic missionaries tossed out, along with a boatload of Spanish missionaries, in culmination of the revolutionary government's anti-clerical campaign.

The Canadian government protested expulsion of the nine Canadians. The Cuban government apologized, said a mistake had been made, and agreed to allow them back in. Six returned to Cuba Nov. 13.

Two teaching brothers did not go back—it is understood they have been posted to Italy. The ninth Canadian, an ordained priest, now is in Canada. The clergy represented the Society of Foreign Missions, Montreal.

CNR President Writes Letter To Engineers

MONTREAL (CP) — CNR President Donald Gordon has told the railway's engineers company negotiators "find it difficult to avoid the conclusion" that the decision to circulate a strike ballot among the engineers was made by the union's head office in Cleveland.

"I think you will agree with me that influence of this kind from outside Canada on what matter affecting your persons interests in Canada is highly understable," he said in a letter to the CNR's 2,800 engineers.

A strike ballot was sent to engineers of both the CNR and CPR after conciliation board efforts on their contract disputes with the companies were brought down late last year.

Mr. Gordon said in his letter, mailed last week, that C. J. Travers, assistant chief engineer of the union, had told the CNR the engineers would be asked their opinion of the conciliation board report. This would be done without recommendation from the union's negotiating committee

Consequently the question of whether the engineers approved of a strike "was not the kind of enquiry he had in management to believe would be asked."

Mr. Gordon said cheques totalling almost $220,000 have been mailed engineers as replacement for arbitrary allowance—special payments given engineers preparing for or ending a run, according to a set formula instead of on the basis of time actually worked.

$3 Million Damage in Three Ontario Downtown Fires, Calgary in Last Two Days

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Major downtown fires in three Southern Ontario communities and Calgary Tuesday night and early Wednesday caused dam- age estimated at $9,000,000.

Separate fires in Brockville Wednesday destroyed a $500,000 hotel and a $150,000 service station - garage combining - six now cars. A guest was charged with arson in the hotel fire and remanded for mental examination.

A five-hour blaze in Belleville destroyed a century-old row of business buildings in the heart of the city Wednesday. Unofficial loss estimates ranged to $500,000 or higher in the destruction of six stores, a bowling al- ley, law offices and two apart- ments.

Businessmen in the lake Erie town of Port Dover figured dis- mage at $100,000 in a fire which swept through a two storey brick building, burning out a restaurant, three stores, two offices and two apartments Tuesday night.

A $75,000 fire in New Hamburg, Ont., Wednesday destroyed a garage and service station owned by M. J. Haffner.

In Calgary, separate fires, described as $2,400,000 private club and a four-storey business block containing a restaurant, a store and a secretarial school.

Three persons suffered burns in the Brockville garage fire and a Calgary fireman broke an ankle, but no other injuries were reported in the seven fires.

A guest at Brockville's Grand Central Hotel, 21 - year - old George Saombath, was reported missing by police after the fire but turned up later at the local armories taking an army educational survival course.

Hotel guest Pierre Lloyd Davis of Trenton, a 45-year-old railway conductor, was charged with arson and remanded in custody for mental examination.

Three persons suffered burns in the explosion-marked fire at Jane's Motors garage and service station, two firemen and the hotel.

Mechanic Herman Hebart, 36, of Athens, was taken to hospital with severe burns. Mrs. Jane Vanderwoude, wife of the garage owner, and her 21-year-old daughter Margaret were treated for minor burns at the hospital and released.

'Work-to-Rule' Game Piles Up Mail in Britain, No Settlement in Sight

LONDON (CP)—"And that," said Britain's postmaster-general, "is a very naughty question."

It was Reginald Bevins' final reply at a press conference Wednesday before dashing off to tackle again the chaos which in varying degrees has beset the 24,961 post offices, 12,500 telegraph offices and nearly 8,000,000 telephone stations under his administration.

He had been asked whether he contemplated pushing through swiftly any changes in the rules for the "work - to- rule" game.

His reply suggested that the move — which could eliminate some of the loopholes that have made the postal workers' slowdown so effective—was indeed occurred to him.

There has been wide speculation that Bevins has something up his sleeve if the situation gets desperate, but he has declined comment on any such question.

He has certain controls over setting rules and procedures but any major change, it is felt, would require lengthy legislative deliberation. And it almost certainly would bring a cry of "unfair" from a large segment of the population which generally seems to be sympathetic towards the postmen if not always in favor of their methods.

The postmaster-general also announced that no parcels will be accepted in London post offices after midnight except those bound for overseas or the armed services. Offices elsewhere in Britain will not accept packages addressed to London. Packets sent by the more-expensive letter rate will be handled as usual.

The campaign has disrupted service in London more than anywhere else although mail is starting to pile up in some large cities such as Edinburgh, Glasgow and Birmingham.

Bevins said he figured only about 30 per cent of the total 173,000 general post office employees are abiding by the rules. The worst congestion is at the Mount Pleasant Station in central London where 2,000,000 letters now are "on the floor."

Because of the postal delay more people — particularly in business — are resorting to telephone calls and telegrams.

Under the out-of-date rules both customer now carry only 35 pounds; telephone operators handle one call at a time and look up numbers requested even if they know them by heart; porters measure parcels instead of classifying them according to size by guess.

True Floating Exchange Rate Needed Says Bank Head

MONTREAL (CP)—W. Earle McLaughlin, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said to day Canada should return to a "true floating exchange rate."

"The present manipulated rate of the return to a fixed rate will either result in a restriction of our freedom to pursue an appropriate monetary and fiscal policy or lead to the reimposition of direct exchange controls such as we had during or immediately after the Second World War," he said at the bank's annual meeting.

He also called for a reform of Canada's entire tax structure guided by an incentive tax policy and advocated setting up a "permanent royal commission" as soon as possible.

Mr. McLaughlin said Canada has had three types of a floating exchange rate since September, 1950, when it was announced the Canadian dollar would be free to find its own level in the foreign exchange market.

JUDGE BY MARKET

The first type was a "true" floating rate which existed between 1950 and December, 1961. The dollar's value was determined solely by supply and demand in the market, aside from smoothing operations through the exchange fund account.

The second, from 1960, to last June 20, Canada had a "managed" floating rate, he said. There was no announcement of a change in the rate but the government exerted downward pressure on the Canadian dollar by the purchase of U.S. dollars in the open market.

The third rate, brought down June 20, 1961, Canada has had a floating rate which the government has maintained through public announcement or by exchange fund, he said.

"Whatever merits or faults of the wisdom of this manipulation as a temporary measure," he said, "I do not believe that even when guessed the original move from a fixed to floating rate solely meeting the present system as a permanent exchange rate policy for Canada."

SUBJECT TO PRESSURE

On the one hand, he said, there is all the instability and uncertainty supposed to accompany a floating rate, while at the same time Canada is subject to the same unfavorable pressures besetting countries with fixed rates.

"Any announcements or apparent agreement to a given discount, for example, only creates "uncertainty and confusion" in the exchange market, he stated.

A fixed rate would be impractical for Canada, he said, as nobody knows the appropriate rate until it is tested in the market.

His comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

Windsor Girl Pleads Guilty To More Charges

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Marjorie Joyce Stone, 30, of Windsor, who earlier pleaded guilty to 17 fraud charges, Wednesday pleaded guilty to three more and was remanded until Monday when another five charges will be read to her.

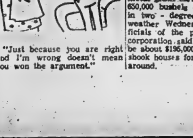
She pleaded guilty Wednesday on three charges from Hamilton of cashing stolen bonds there. The remaining five charges also involving stolen bonds were laid in Chatham.

Magistrate Donald Menzies said he had hoped to agree all the evidence in Wednesday, but he found the five Chatham charges were improperly worded.

Evidence, read by Assistant Crown Attorney J. Baker, was that the girl had cashed all three bonds there was transaction in Hamilton, opening an account in a bank there and depositing more than $100 but taking the remainder in about $1,000 cash.

STOLEN IN JUNE

The bonds in question were stolen last June from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wharry of St. Thomas.



The three charges today bring to today than $13,000 the value of the documents involved in the nine months the girl operated in southwestern Ontario. She actually received close to $8,000

She was agrested in London Dec. 12. Eight of the charges were laid in London. The remainder were from Ayimer, Owen Sound, Windsor, Galt, Dundas, Brantford, Exeter, Hamilton and Chatham.

Involved were cheques, bonds and money orders, some stolen and some forged, which the girl said were given her by a man who gave her false identification cards and allowed her some of the money in return.

Cleanup Work Underway At East Bridge Street Fire With Traffic Still Barred

Twenty four hours after the blaze started, Belleville firemen were still pouring water on the ruins of Wrenville Ltd.'s East Bridge Street fire which caused more than a quarter of a million dollars damage.

Firemen and city public works personnel commenced a clean-up operation today following the downtown conflagration which destroyed the four storey Ben Safe block between Front and Pinnacle Streets. Bridge Street was still cordoned off by police with barricades keeping out vehicular traffic.

Pedestrians were allowed to pass along the sidewalk on the north side of Bridge Street but ropes kept spectators off the street area as firemen still were cautious about further collapse of weakened and ice-laden walls.

TWELVE HOMELESS

Twelve persons were rendered homeless in the blaze with only minor personal possessions being saved. One teen aged-boy living with his parents on a third floor apartment saved only the guitar which he received at Christmas.

Six business places were gutted in the blaze, a heavy loss for Wrenville's Meat Market. Other stores ruined included Ruth's Hat Shop, men's and ladies' ready-to- wear store, a home improvement centre, a realty office and insurance office.

Also destroyed was the office of local lawyer Ormonde Butler and a six-lane bowling alley.

Other businesses smoke and water damaged were the Ed Logan Jewellery Store, the Ramsay Beauty Salon over Logan's and the Ed Patrick Barber Shop.

WATER IN LIQUOR STORE

Public works crews were still pumping water from the basement of the Liquor Control Board store, where five feet of water seeped in from the tons of water directed onto yesterday's fire. The liquor store was closed this morning, pending authorization by police and fire departments to re-open.

Traffic has been detoured from East Bridge Street down Front Street. Police Inspector C. Hayes has asked the cooperation of everyone by obeying the barricades which have been erected.

Fire officials said this morning the reason firemen were still pouring water on the ruins was because they were afraid of the fire getting past the fire walls. They said the back wall of the building was still burning this morning.

One official at the city fire department said that one truck alone had pumped 450,000 gallons of water on the fire in a 10-hour period. Altogether, about one million gallons of water had been poured over the building up to midnight last night.

Ice, which formed on the wires and building shortly after firemen began battling the blaze Wednesday morning, did not hamper the operation to a great extent. Some hose has been buried under a thick layer of ice but has been disconnected and dried out.

In addition to the five fire trucks which were in operation to bring the fire under control, 13 lines were used from hydrants in the area.

Thirteenth Straight Time Name of Nixon Appears on Ballot in Provincial Riding

BRANTFORD (CP) — When residents of Brant vote in a by-election next Thursday it will mark the 13th straight time the name Nixon has appeared on the ballot in the provincial riding.

The first 12 times the candidate was Harry C. Nixon. He won every vote. His death last fall forced the by-election, one of five in the province Jan. 18.

Robert Nixon, 33 - year - old head of the science department at Brantford's North Park Collegiate Institute, is in a three-way fight for the seat his father held for 42 years, a Commonwealth record.

Hoping the Nixon invincibility as the polls hasn't been transferred from father to son are the farmer Robert Good, 38, New Democratic Party candidate, and forced-from-industrialist Garnet Brown, Progressive Conservative.

ALWAYS IN FRONT

From the time of his first election, Harry Nixon, a returned soldier in each succeeding contest was almost a foregone conclusion. Sought in the 1959 general election he polled only 1,- 166 votes more than Brown, the 7,246 and CCF candidate Charles Hamilton, 5,080.

Robert Nixon, born at nearby St. George, graduated from McMaster University and then Ontario College of Education. He has taught at collegiates in Paris, Ste. Marie and Brantford as well as Brantford, and since his father's death has taken over management of the family farm.

Mr. Brown, for many years a farmer in the Cainsville-Onondaga district, now lives in Brantford as an executive of Master-Seal Sash Limited in Cainsville, a business which grew out of a project started in his farm wagon shed the has served as a councillor and reeve of Onondaga Township and member of Brant County council.

Mr. Good operates a beef and dairy cattle farm near the home of the Ontario Agricultural College and McMaster University, he served on the Ontario committee of the NDP when the party was being formed.

SERVES CO-OP

Now chairman of his party's Ontario farm committee, he was the first secretary of the Milk Co-operative of Brant district.

Like Mr. Nixon, Mr. Good is the son of a politician, Fred Fisher, W. C. Good, entered public life in 1921 as a Progressive member of Parliament. He stayed in the Commons only one term, the time by-election being taken up by work in the Co-operative Union of Canada.

The riding's rural character has not gone unnoticed in the campaign. All three candidates have been urging a lasting deal for the province's farmers.

Brant is a focal point in the controversy over meat inspection engendered by the arrest of 14 men charged with selling butcher's meat until for human consumption. Several arrests were in the Brantford area.

Leader, NDP Secretary in Word Battle

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson and Carl Hamilton, national secretary of the New Democratic Party, became embroiled Wednesday in a long-range battle of words over their parties' old age pensions programs.

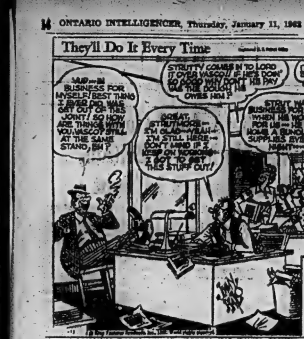
Mr. Hamilton accused the Liberal leader of plodding a two-year-old plank from the CCF platform and of reversing himself on the question of a supplementary and contributory old age pension plan.

Mr. Pearson denied reversing himself, called the NDP pension program irresponsible and claimed features of the Liberal plan covered benefits not provided in the NDP plan.

Their battle of statements was pegged on news reports of statements Mr. Pearson last November and on a policy statement issued Tuesday by the Liberals calling for an immediate $20 a month increase in the pension in the present $55-a-month old age pension.

'DIRECT STEAL'

Mr. Hamilton said the Liberal plan is a direct steal of which was incorporated in the program for the NDP on its fourth birthday last year.



The NDP program called for a seventh increase in federal old age pension financed equally by government, employer and employee contributions and payable to all age 65.

Mr. Pearson, he said, described the New Democrats' program as not very responsible during a visit to Manitoba in 1960 on a speaking tour last November Now Mr. Pearson was advocating a $75-a-month pension for the aged.

The Liberal leader's statement said the New Democrats' plan would cost nearly $700,000,000 a year and impose a heavy burden on federal - provincial finances. His party's compulsory plan would be financed by employers and employees without federal contributions.

Chief McVicker Heads Fire Mutual Aid

DESERONTO — The monthly meeting of the Hastings and Prince Ex-ward Mutual Aid Association was held in Deseronto on Wednesday night with the Deseronto department as hosts. Despite the inclement weather, there were some 40-odd representatives from the fire departments of the two counties.

Chief Cecil Ellis of Trenton presided at the meeting, with the co-ordinator, Chief Vance of Belleville, and the Fire Marshal's representative, H. Mallory, assisting.

During the business portion of the meeting there was some discussion concerning the formation of a team basis for the two counties. Chief Vance also pointed out to the visiting departments that their local councils would be setting their budgets in the near future and requisitions for fire department supplies should be submitted.

VOLUNTEERS

Chief McVicker of the Deseronto department, spoke briefly on the formation and importance of the volunteer fire departments which comprise some 90 percent of the firemen in the country.

Following the business session, the election for president was held with Chief McVicker of Deseronto winning over Chief Ellis of Trenton, and Chief Aquino of Eatons.

Chairman of the Deseronto Fire and Police Committee, Hubert Hagerman welcomed the visiting firemen and wished them well in their endeavors.

At the close of the meeting the Deseronto Department provided a plentiful and tasty lunch for all present.

Canadian C of C Launches Attack On Socialism

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce has announced plans for "an all-out educational effort to inform Canadians about Canada's economic problems" and the dangers which threaten it".

The schember asked its 850 member boards and about 100 chambers of commerce across Canada to co-operate in the project it calls "Operation Freedom".

The announcement said the program is necessary to counter Canadians' apathy and indifference to economic problems and growing dependence on government.

There was also increased Communist offensive and a threat of socialism in Canada by political forces".

W. S. Kirkpatrick, president of the chamber, said the Canadian way of life "is under attack more than ever before".

Mr. Kirkpatrick said member groups are asked to tackle the program with films, literature, speaker arrangement to inform Canadians about our free enterprise system and the dangers which threaten it".

Arbitrage Will Be Considered At Special Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Elimination of domestic arbitrage by members of the Toronto Stock Exchange will be considered at a special meeting of the exchange Jan. 24, Howard D Graham, president, announced Wednesday.

Arbitrage is the process of buying stock in one market and selling it in another at the same time, to take advantage of price differentials and, in the past was considered as part of the process of keeping prices on various exchanges at the same level.

"It is considered by the board of governors that arbitrage is no longer justified in Canada, since communication facilities now are adequate to allow every broker to execute clients' orders in the market where the best price prevails," the announcement said.

Extension of reciprocal 50-50 commission split privileges to members of the Vancouver and Canadian Stock Exchanges will also be considered by the meeting. Such an arrangement has been in effect with the Montreal Stock Exchange for many years.

PROGRESS REPORT

Members will also be given a report on progress of negotiations between the West Stock Exchange, regarding trading privileges for Toronto members on the Chicago exchange. It is expected, the announcement says, that final arrangement for this closer association with the Mid - West will be completed within the next few weeks.

Also to be considered will be a recommendation from an exchange committee that the minimum size of "special - size transactions," or "block trades," be raised to $100,000 from the present $50,000.

Such transactions are defined as those of a size that the regular market on the trading floor cannot provide or absorb the stock within a reasonable time and at a reasonable price. It now is felt by the committee that trading has developed to a point where transactions of up to $100,000 can be absorbed readily.

Press-Radio Kegle Klassic?

Type Versus Tonsil!

There is a special attraction billed for the opening of the Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes tomorrow night that should have a four-column black box heading.

It should be a "must" for circus lovers, graduates of judo and karate schools, those who want to get away from it all; pro wrestlers, and exponents of the "twist."

It is the inaugural clash, sports-wise, of the "top personalities" of The Ontario Intelligencer, and the ditto of the sensilar news outlet, Radio Station CJBQ.

The battle amphitheatres for these gladiators of the fourth estate will be two lanes on the brand new bowling emporium.

General Lyle, tall, dark and handicapped" Thompson, will be in charge of the newspaper C.H.C.'s (Composing Room Comets). (Note to another operator, "Comets" not comics.)

Here they will enjoy the front-laden breezes that sweep off the placid bosom of the ice-bound but beautiful Bay of Quinte. Here they can bask in the blizzards that periodically sweep from Rossmore "cross the bay." Here they can enjoy the delicate aromas that waft up-bay from the fish-huts near Trenton. Here they will enjoy privacy. That is guaranteed.

The runners-up will be given fifty-yard-line seat tickets to the next big fire that breaks out in the city.

Little is known of the past records of these Sir Francis Drakes of the galley and the microphone. Police blotter reveal nothing — yet.

Sir Thomas Hooking, that rambling, rollicking reconteur of the dawn-and-air waves, would not comment on the nipple-spilling abilities of his strike-hungry satellites.)

"We shall go to the air if our ground attack fails," was his terse statement. From force of habit he played a record "When the Maple Pins are Falling I'll Come Rolling Back to You." He had a ball.

"I will say this," he added, "there will be no quarter asked for nor given." He is wrong. The spectators will be paid two bits if they stick around after the fifth frame.

He had, he said, such master keglers on his payroll—comical roll as Al Hall, Bill McKay, Larry MacDonald, Lee Jourard and in the background ready and varie' to tear into the breech that well known ivory hustler Hammy MacDonald.

Hammy, by the way, will supply background piano music for his team, featuring the squad theme, "Oh, How I Miss You Tonight," or in event of accidents "Down and Down They Go."

In case of a goof on his part both teams have prepared a bowling lanes dramatization of "The Fall of the Roman' Umpire."

General Thompson had his varying fonts of Alley Oops laminwashed at a last-minute dress rehearsal. They had mugshots—pardon—photographs taken, uncomfortable in neckties and composing room sarongs. But they smiled.

The General will lead off with Ron Kavaner, scuttlebutt champion of the Navy, Hon comes from Dagwash, N.S., weighs 154, is red-headed, married, 4-F, employed in dry-cleaning at Cornbusk High.

Batting-de-bowling in second position is Paul Prince, another sorrel-top, weighs 175, who graduated in onion growing in Little Spain. He will be flown here from Picton by McFarland. aircraft.

In third position is Bob McCann, no relation to the All or Tomato Cann. Bob is short, stocky, weighs 170, married and happy. He favors the spitball. Says it's messy, but effective. He suffers from finger rust.

In clean-up is the General himself. Six feet, tall, likes spinach, red-heads, and duck-tail haircuts. A former model in a clothing factory he is slim, but cheerful. A graduate of Siwash High, he majored in vocalizing.

The last hope is Don Wood, who attended Forest Secondary while a sapling. He holds the record for pow-hitting and ref-missing in the Big Swamp Lumberjack Hockey League. He should do well bowling. He struck out 78 times out of 80 at bats in the Salmon River Softball League.

Bowling buffs should not miss this epic of the lanes tomorrow evening. They will see bowling they've never seen before.

As a climax sensation the losing quintet will take the place of the pins in an extra frame. The lucky bowler who rolls a strike will be rewarded with their life insurance.—G.H.C.

JOE D'ORAZIO

Joe D'Orazio has been Toronto's major Bowler for ten years. He played a perfect game in 1958. His lifetime average is 241.6. Joe is on the Brunswick advisory staff.

One of the feature events of the Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes will be an exhibition game between Joe and Mabel McDowell.

A Bowling Clinic will be held by Joe D'Orazio and Mabel McDowell on Friday evening and all day Saturday.

"Canada's Mrs. Bowling" At Opening of Lanes

The name Canada's Mrs. Bowling was given to Mabel by the Canadian Press in 1957 when she received the "Tommy Ryan" Trophy by the Bowling Proprietors Association of Ontario for having done the most for 5 pin bowling. This was due to all the instructional work done by Mabel as well as her efforts on behalf of the game.

Among her greatest achievements is her 32 year average of 232 and having compiled a Canadian record average of 251 for a season of 90 games. Her present average in the Toronto City Major League is 233.

Mabel has been Toronto City singles champion a number of times. Captained the Seagrantettes of Toronto to at least 3 City League championships.

She was captain of the Eastern Canada team champions in 1955 and has appeared several years in T.V. bowling. In her last effort, on T.V., she won 4 straight matches.

Mabel is chief instructress for the Bowling Proprietors Association of Ontario as well as chief instructress for the Toronto Star Bowling Clinics.

Mrs. McDowell is also on the Board of Directors for the Canadian Junior Bowling Council and does instructional work for Junior Bowling.

Canada's Mrs. Bowling had the honor of bowling the first 400 game ever bowled by a lady as well as the first 900 triple.

She was co-author with Ed Moody of Toronto in writing a weekly Bowling instructional column which appeared in most papers throughout Ontario.

All - in - all the above gives some of the reasons why Mabel is called — "Canada's Mrs. Bowling", and has traveling right across Canada teaching teachers for the various Principal Investment Bowling Establishments.

Mabel will be one of the feature Bowling stars at the opening of the Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes on Friday, January 18th, when she will play an exhibition game of 3 pins with Joe D'Orazio. In addition Mabel will conduct a Clinic on Friday and all day Saturday, along with Joe D'Orazio of the Brunswick Advisory Staff.

Five-Pin Bowling Is All-Canadian Version Of Sport

Plaza Bowling Lanes Feature All Latest Automatic Equipment

Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes, Canada's newest and most modern, open on Friday, January 12th at 7:30 p.m.

The 20 lanes are equipped with the latest in Brunswick "Gold Crown" automatic equipment featuring the new subway ball return for the ultimate in bowling ease and efficiency.

A comfortable, even temperature is maintained throughout the year through the modern air-conditioning plant.

The acoustic treatment of the lanes does away with the previously deafening sound of rolling balls and falling pins.

Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes cater to family bowling. The aim of the management is to provide healthful family recreation and to make the bowling lanes the focal point of community sporting activities.

Mother need not worry what to do with children while bowling. A free, supervised nursery is available to mothers every afternoon.

Invented by Canadian, Tom Ryan, Five Pins Preferred by Majority

Ever since the late Tommy Ryan, founder of "Five-Pin Bowling", invented this all-Canadian fast-pace sport, it's popularity has continually gained following to the point where today, of 1,800,000 bowlers, 56% participate in 5-pin bowling. This compares with 19% 10-pin bowling, 18% duck-pin, which is popular in Quebec, and 5% candle-pin, which is popular in the maritimes.

Five-pin bowling, open and league, has become the favorite version in 17,000 Canadian lanes for various reasons. Perhaps the most predominant reason is the fact that the sport has become extremely popular with the "fairer sex". Because of the ease of learning the game and the lightness of the ball women of today have organized office, club and neighborhood leagues.

Five-pin bowling has also gained popularity with the family and youngsters particularly on weekends.

This healthful, inexpensive recreation can be learned quite easily. The Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes offer free instructional clinics, by professionals on various occasions during the year.

If you are interested in bowling and would like to learn, or if you are interested in forming a team, call the Manager of Belleville Bowling Lanes, Mr. Ben Lowe, for particulars.

GIVEN PHONEY BILL

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—An 84-year-old woman whose vision is impaired told officers she was swindled out of $50 by a man who gave her play money. Mrs. Edna S. Kellog said she had just cashed her $83 pension cheque when the man asked her to give him change for a $50 bill. She discovered later the bill was one used in playing games.

Ben Lowe, manager of Belleville Plaza Bowling Lanes, invites you to the Grand Opening Friday evening. Carpet in the foreground furnished and installed by Simpson-Sears.

Orders Curtain To Be Rung Down in Opera

NEW YORK (AP)—Wagner's god Wotan had more woes than usual Wednesday night on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera.

Things got so bad that conductor Erich Leinsdorf ordered the curtain rung down in the middle of the Walkuere.

Otto Edelmann boomed along nicely for a while in the role of Wotan, who first appears in Act II. But his voice got bad toward the end of the act.

He agreed with general manager Rudolf Bing that he had better turn over his chore to some one else.

Randolph Symonette was called in a hurry, and he began the third act as Wotan. He, too, had vocal trouble in the bass-baritone role.

It was here that Leinsdorf called a temporary halt to the proceedings.

An announcer on the stage told the audience that the Met was not calling it quits, and that they had better say.

The curtain went up again in seven minutes. And there on stage was the original Wotan—his voice refreshed by the pause.

Of late there has emerged two schools of thought. One comes from Gordon Juckes, secretary manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association; the other from Len Gaudette, general manager of the Galt Terriers, defending Canadian champions.

Mr. Juckes says the Terriers will beat the Czechs, ruled top European club which defeated the Port Arthur Bearcats 5-1, and 10-1, "if they play the right kind of hockey," meaning international rules.

Mr. Gaudette, apparently in a pessimistic mood, stated his team is weaker than the Kitchener Dutchmen which lost to the United States two years ago," and while we can present high-calibre hockey, we can also come home with a fifth-place finish."

The Terriers' manager replays an old world tournament record when he says "the Czechs, Russians, Swedes and the United States are the clubs to watch, and the Russians have always entered strong teams." Okay Leonard, what else is new?

Juckes said the Terriers will have to learn to play the international rules which call for bodychecking only in the checking team's half of the ice.

What are these gentlemen doing, reading old newspaper clippings or have they copies of European hand-outs published after slashing, hacking continental squads were met with some good solid Canadian bodychecks?

The Galt Terriers, like the Canadian teams that have preceded them to world tournament competition, are no different in their former-years' counterparts.

Like the Belleville McFarlands, the Kitchener Dutchmen, the Trail Smoke-Eaters and other squads, they are good Canadian hockey players blessed with average intelligence and the natural aptitude to adopt themselves quickly to international rules, or any other regulations which they may be asked to abide by.

Apparently the same old propaganda malarkey that has met former Canadian squads in Europe is still in vogue—and has seeped over here before the tournament in the United States.

Mr. Juckes told the Czechs and Swedes told him "Canada need not worry about Russia." The word apparently got through to Gaudette on this side of the big pond.

When the McFarlands arrived in Europe the propaganda mills started turning out their grist. The Czechs were the team to beat, they were told. The Russians! Nyet! Didn't the Czech national team beat the Moscovites twice right in Moscow, 1-0 and 2-1 in exhibition games? They did, too.

So what happened? We clobbered the Czechs 5-2 in the first game, and walloped the Russians 3-1. The Russians let the Czechs know they were their masters on the ice, too, but the Macs dropped a 5-3 decision to the Czechs in Prague in the final. Any other night they would have beaten them by two or three goals.

Two years ago an inspired American team shaded the Kitchener Dutchmen 2-1 for the world title, but 10 gets you one that the Dutchies would have taken a series three out of four.

Gaudette had better take that "don't worry about Russia" with a grain of salt. Continental blood is thicker than hockey water and it wouldn't be the first time European teams have banged up on Canadian squads, off the ice, to get them off guard.

The Port Arthur Bearcats were a good Canadian club, but not, I believe, world tournament calibre. Yet they defeated the Swedish nationals, although they dropped decisions to the Czechs.

Gaudette says his Terriers have a good chance to win the world title "if the players make up for their lack of ability with a bigger team effort."

It could be the amiable Len is using a touch of European propaganda. But the Russians, the Czechs won't buy it. They know what kind of a club Canada will ice. Gaudette had better shake his so-called inferiority complex and tell Canada and the world we're going to cop that tournament. If we don't some European clubs will know they've been in a helova hockey series.

Leafs Bounce Bruins, Take Over Top

Keon Lights The Way

By LAURENT CHIARSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Maple Leafs finally have attained what coach Punch Imlach insists is their destiny: Sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League.

They made it Wednesday night by slapping down Boston Bruins 7-3 on a pair of late goals by young Dave Keon.

The win gave the Leafs a one-point edge over idle Montreal Canadiens and set the stage for an all - important meeting between the two teams in Montreal tonight.

"If we let the Leafs get the jump on us, they'll be hard to catch for the league championship," says Blake. "In other words, we'll be in trouble if we lose tonight."

FIND BAUER TOUGH

They never trailed but also couldn't hold a lead until Keon, dubbed as a future super star, scored on a low 20-foot shot at 15:45 of the third period.

Keon saved up the game with his second goal exactly three minutes later. The goals were the 21-year-old centre's 16th and 15th of the season.

Frank Mahovlich, celebrating his 24th birthday, also scored twice for the Leafs. The goals were Big Frank's 19th and 20th making him the third player to reach the 20-goal mark this season.

COUNT FOR BOSTON

Boston got their goals from Doug Mohns, Cliff Pennington, Don McKenney, Jerry Toppazzini and Dick Meissner.

Tonight's game with be eighth of the season between Toronto and Montreal and so far neither club has been able to beat the other in away from home.

In three previous meetings in Montreal, Canadiens, twice won and tied one. At Toronto, the Leafs have three wins and a tie.

Canadiens will be at full strength for this one as Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion returns to action after missing seven games with a knee injury.

Leafs, meanwhile, will be without centre Red Kelly and winger Eddie Shack, both recovering from recent injuries.

Boston also plays again too night, meeting Chicago Black Hawks on home ice in the only other game.

The Hawks will be without two first-line players — centre Bill (Red) Hay and right winger Murray Balfour — for this one.

The Hawks have recalled Chico Maki from their Buffalo farm club of the American Hockey League to replace Hay.

Bisons Take Loop Lead, Whip Reds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo, Bisons, getting all the scoring they needed from Barry Cullen, have taken over the top spot in the tight Western Division race of the American Hockey League.

Cullen scored his 22nd and 23rd goals of the season Wednesday night as the Bisons beat Providence Reds 5-1 and moved past Rochester Americans into first place.

Cleveland Barons advanced to a share of second spot with a 3-2 win over Hershey Bears. Buffalo has 38 points, Rochester and Cleveland 36 each.

Stan Baluik counted for the Reds. Larry Wilson, Wayne Hicks and Chico Maki got the other Buffalo goals.

Cleveland's veteran Fred Glover got the winner, his second of the game. Eddie Mazur also scored for the Barons, while Hec Lalande and Pete Conacher struck for Hershey.

CFL Brass Ends Session

Hints 11-Man Teams Unpopular

CHICAGO (CP) — General managers of the nine Canadian Football League teams ended a two-day closed session Wednesday with agreement on a number of recommendations to be made to the CFL's executive session in Vancouver next month.

Following the meeting a spokesman listed some of the items discussed but declined to state details of any proposals to be put before the annual meeting.

It was learned from Jim Finks, general manager of Calgary Stampeders, however, that the general managers will ask that the use of "taxi squads" be outlawed in the CFL.

The term "taxi squad" refers to the practice of retaining players without their being carried on the active roster.

DISCUSS REDUCTION

The spokesman said a proposal for reducing CFL teams to 11 players from 12, similar to U.S. football teams, also was discussed. There were indications that this would have little favor at the annual meeting.

Another proposal for the drawing up of player rosters including the number of U.S. imports on each team also was discussed, the spokesman said. At present CFL teams are permitted to carry 15 imports each and to dress any 12 for a game.

In regard to the interlocking schedule between the western and eastern divisions of the CFL, the spokesman said the general managers had tried to work out a schedule that would spread interlocking games throughout the season—instead of bunching them at the start, as was done last year.

The CFL was reported to have decided to stick with the formula of each team playing four inter-division games—two at home and two on the road.

Each Club Gets $340,000

NFL Signs TV Contract

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Football League signed a two-year $9,200,000 television contract with a single network (CBS) Wednesday under which each of the 14 clubs will receive about $330,000 a year.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said all the clubs except Dallas made money during the past season.

Under the old agreement, each club made deals with networks or sponsors. A League contract with one network was negotiated last April but was nullified in July when a federal judge ruled it violated an anti-trust law.

A bill was signed in October by President Kennedy exempting pro football, baseball, basketball and hockey leagues from anti-trust law in the area of a single network TV contract.

Will Clean E. German Visa Mess

LONDON (Reuters) — J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, British president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, has called a special meeting of his executive committee in Geneva Jan. 24 to discuss the visa problem which may prevent East German competing in the world championship in Colorado Springs in March.

The East Germans say they have been refused visas but U.S. authorities say they have had no request for visas.

"We must get together to get this visa matter cleared up," Ahearne said, "and I have asked representatives of East Germany and the United States to attend."

First Defeat in 12 Starts

Pepsi's Bow To Napanee

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

It had to happen sometime — and it couldn't have happened to a nicer club.

The Belleville Pepsi's went down to their first defeat in a dozen starts here last night.

A hard-checking fast-skating Napanee Comets crew did the trick turning the league leaders back with a 4-3 victory in the best league game seen here this season.

It was a see-saw battle with the score tied no less than three times. With 13 minutes to go in the game the Comets clung home the winner battled desperately to hold the lead — and did it.

Veteran Bob Senior in the Comets nets was a standout. He held the speedy Pepsi front lines to a goal in the first period and battled back their efforts in the final minutes of the game.

The Comets deserved the victory. They checked hard both ways, were always dangerous on the offensive and threw a packed defence in front of Senior when the Pepsi pressure was on.

The Pepsi's passed up chances to score. They were missing their passes, and their net-front play at times was decidedly sloppy. Moxon in goal turned in a good effort, at times stopping Comet attackers when close in.

The defensive highlight came when the Pepsi's were down two men on two occasions and kept the hard-driving Comets off the score sheet.

Coach Lamirande pulled his goalie with 34 seconds to go in the game, but the Comet defence held and narrowly missed slapping the puck into the empty net.

The score was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, Goegan opening for the Pepsi's and Brady getting it back with six minutes to go.

While whipped in (Brady's pass after 30 seconds of the second frame but MacDonald drove home Gervey's rebound to again knot the count.

Pat Gilmour gave the Comets the lead again after 46 seconds of the final heat and three minutes later Floyd Crawford's shot deflected into the Comet net off Baker to tie the score for the third time.

Bettinger proved the Comet's hero when he drove a hot 30-footer past Moxon at 5.10 for what proved to be the winning goal.

It was a see-saw battle from here in with the Comets battling desperately to cling to the lead and the Pepsi's driving hard for the equalizer.

Seven minors were handed out four to the Pepsi's. Macdonald drew two minors within seconds reducing the Pepsi's to four men on both occasions.

The Comets line of Gilmour, Brady and White provided the scoring punch, Brady getting a goal and two assists, and Gilmour and White one and one.

Goegan, MacDonald and Bekvar were the Pepsi marksmen; Jones, Goyer, Crawford and O'Meara getting helpers.

Chatham Did It

Terriers Muzzled 11-3

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons showed little respect for Canada's representatives to the world hockey tournament as they scored an 11-3 victory over Galt Terriers in Ontario Hockey Association senior action Wednesday night.

Maroons pulled into a 2-0 first-period lead before an estimated 600 fans, and led 5-0 at the end of the second session. They added six goals in the third period while Terriers scored their three.

George Aitken and Ernie Dick sparked the victory with three goals each. Joe Maki added two goals while Ringler were fired by Jim Connelly, Bob Pole and Dave Liciuk. Connelly, Pole, Maki and Liciuk had four assists each, Dick had three and Aitken two.

Ted Sloan's goal was his first in OHA senior company since joining Terriers to help bolster their forces for the world tournament. He was with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League last season. He also had an assist.

Rookie goalie John Campbell blocked 33 Galt drives. Veteran Harold Hurley, in the Galt cage, made 20 stops, 14 in the final session.

Can't Agree With Katz

New Manager for Liston

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Jack Nilon, owner of a food concession business, says he has applied for a license to manage Sonny Liston of Philadelphia, No. 1 world heavyweight boxing contender.

Nilon, 41, announced his move Wednesday night and said he has made application to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission.

The announcement came shortly after Liston was reported to have told the Pennsylvania commission he can't get along with manager George Katz and is considering a change.

Meanwhile, champion Floyd Patterson said in New York he is willing to give Liston a shot at the title "under certain conditions." He said if he fights Liston it would be in the summer, preferably in New York.

"Something may be worked out in the next three or four weeks," the champion said.

Katz's contract with Liston still has about two years to run.

Girl Caddies Popular But Scarce

TOKYO (AP)—Want to be a golf caddy in Japan? In some places you can get a complete bridal outfit and a 100,000-yen ($250) retirement allowance.

Of course, you have to be a girl to qualify.

"The popularity of golf in Japan has increased to such an extent, there is a serious shortage of girl caddies. The golfing population is estimated at 1,500,000. There are 263 courses.

Some courses are offering bridal costume and retirement benefits. Caddies usually live in apartments next to the clubhouse. They earn about 60 yen (17½ cents) for 18 holes.

Other clubs have started using caddy carts—a novelty here—or are taking on bouquet-on-a-pole pushers.

The more desperate ones have sunk to a low level. They hire boys.

From Puck To Politics Or Racket

OTTAWA (CP) — Is Rocket Richard being groomed for an early bid for federal politics?

Reporters suggested this to Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday when the prime minister asked their views on whether or not to announce on Tuesday night to the national hockey broadcast on Thursday and amateur sport.

The former Montreal Canadiens star has been appointment was mentioned and Mr. Diefenbaker chuckled. "He is a great fellow. . . . He makes a good speech, too."

Possible candidate material asked reporters. Or maybe a Senate appointment?

It was an interesting suggestion, Mr. Diefenbaker replied. Such suggestions weren't often made to him except by persons who wanted appointments for themselves.

Western Hockey

The first-place teams in the Western Hockey League's two divisions added more padding to their cup...ions Wednesday night.

Edmonton Flyers, with an outstanding performance from centre Forbes Kennedy, defeated Spokane Comets 4 and Portland Buckaroos, getting the winning goal with less than three minutes to play, edged San Francisco Seals 3-2. Both winning teams were at home.

Edmonton now leads second, place Calgary Stampeders by four points in the Northern Division. Portland has a 15-point lead over Spokane in the Southern Division.

Kennedy, a former Portland player, picked up two goals and one assist. Rookies Don Chic and Keith Wahl and veteran Chuck Holmes scored Flyers' other goals. Spokane scorers were Steve Wrinkle and Del Topoll.

At Portland, Ary Jones broke a 3-3 deadlock for "the Buckaroos' victory. Both Portland's earlier goals came from Gene Achtemichuk, Buddy Boone and Nick Mickoski scored for San Francisco.

Arthur Miller Starts Work On First Play in Nine Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Arthur Miller is at work on his first full-length play in nine years.

Miller was willing to talk because of his enthusiasm for the film version of Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts' novel, "The Counterfeit Traitor," which stars Miss Louise, Keel, Anderson and Earl Holliman. On the same program is "Let's Go Navy", with Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall and the Bowery Boys.

Miller was willing to talk because of his enthusiasm for the film. Director Edward Dmytryk is producing on the basis of any of my plays?"

A View From the Bridge reversed the trend of usual filming. Interiors were shot in England and the French in Paris, and locations were shot during three weeks in Brooklyn.

Miller said producer Pandro Berman and director Sidney Lumet did the film without his aid, except in casting matters. The leading roles are Italian Raf Vallone, Maureen Stapleton and Carol Lawrence.

All My Sons (1947)—"Just all right. I never got any enthusiasm over it."

CHARACTER MANGLED

Death of a Salesman (1949)—"I didn't like it. They made him (Willy Loman) seem mad at the start. Nobody wants to see a drama about someone who's crazy in mind. Also there were technical matters I didn't like, but that is theatre talk."

The Crucible (1953)—"I liked it, but not as much as A View from the Bridge. Both were produced by Frenchman Graetz.

Miller's sole screen play was The Misfits, the only picture work he produced during his five years of marriage to Marilyn Monroe. Some critics termed it minor.

His reaction to The Misfits? "That's hard to say, because I have nothing to judge it against—there's no play version. But the finished film was not the vision that I had."

He said he planned no more screen plays. "They take too much time—two years," he explained, "I think I will stay in the theatre."

He is working seven days out of 10 at his home at Roxbury, Conn., on the new play, as yet untitled. Some days he gets eight hours of work done, some days two.

He said the new play concerns contemporary America.

Groucho Marx Will Return To Weekly Network Tonight

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Groucho Marx, who returns to weekly network TV tonight with a new show, Tell It to Groucho, suggests that some "unrehearsed shows are well equipped to convert their formats to the current trend toward medicine.

Most seasons, he suggests, it could be Hawaiian Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, and Have Scalpel, Will Travel. And certainly, she's going to make the letter with Dennis the Doctor, Bedside 6, The Fee is Right, The Tall Surgeon, and The Gall stones.

The anthology series, consistently the season's most engaging and adult dramatic content, does have an inordinately long and often annoying beginning and conclusion — endless still photographs flashed monotonously on the screen and host Powell making a lengthy trip through a studio to a camera and back into being.

They don't do anything except take up time.

Recommended tonight:

Tell It to Groucho, premiere, CBS, 9-9:30 ESTC—a new format for a familiar comedian; The Gertrude Berg Show, CBS, 9:30-10—more like and give in the schedule for Mrs. G. Goes to College.

By IAN DONALDSON

HALIFAX (CP) — Victor Oland, Halifax brewer and former hockey team operator, says he's convinced the Maritimes can support a professional team.

"But it would have to be a Maritime team—not just a Halifax team," Oland said in an interview.

The idea of a pro team for Halifax, biggest city in the Maritimes, is not new but it has been revived this winter as existing senior leagues in the province continue to play before sparse audiences. The idea of a Maritime team, which would play its home games in a number of centres, is Oland's and Oland's alone.

Oland suggests that about half the team's home games would be played here, a city with nearly 300,000 population. The remainder could be in places such as Moncton, Saint John, N.B., Charlottetown and Sydney, N.S.

The revival of interest in pro hockey here was touched off by Jack Humphreys, general manager of Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers of the Eastern Professional Hockey League and chief scout of New York Rangers.

HOCKEY HUNGER

Humphreys said Halifax's disadvantage in being a town with no other EPHL cities is more than offset by the apparent hunger for professional hockey.

While most of the players on a professional team would be from outside the Maritimes, Humphreys said Oland agreed there likely would be a sprinkling of homebrews. Humphreys also has an Maritimers playing in central Canadian professional hockey.

Oland says "it's just the way Maritimers are" that convinces him the team would have to belong to the whole area. "A guy from Cape Breton living in Halifax for 20 years won't go and see a Halifax team. But the first time the Sydney Millionaires come to town that guy will stand up in the rink and holler his head off."

One of the discouraging things he found as promoter of a pro team here several years ago—it played in a Maritime league —was the attitude of Halifax fans. "Three - quarters of them were cheering for the other team, and quite naturally. They probably were from P. E. I. or Cape Breton or New Brunswick."

MONEY PROBLEM

The big initial problems would be financing and obtaining a franchise. "Most businessmen wouldn't get into it. Anyone with any brains wouldn't invest two cents in a hockey team. The NHL's lack of interest in us down here is another big problem."

H. R. Nicholson, manager of the Moncton Transcript, says "There's no doubt Halifax would support a pro team playing in a top league such as the Eastern Professional.

"We'd need an angel to carry it along for a while. A franchise would cost about $50,000. And players would cost plenty."

Scheduling would raise difficulties. Oland suggests that Maritime team could play games in series as major league baseball teams do. A visiting club would play four games in succession on a Maritime rink with one game here and the others in other parts of the league.

A chartered airliner could carry both teams much of the time, thus saving travel and travel through the three provinces.

Trucker Guilty Of Bribery

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A New York trucking firm employee pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of conspiring to bribe three college basketball players to give points in basketball games.

Superior Court Judge Henry L. Stevens Jr. withheld sentencing of Paul Walker, 30. No testimony was taken in the case.

Walker pleaded guilty to six counts of conspiracy to bribe and bribery. He was accused of giving $1,250 to North Carolina State star Eddie Biedenbach, Jerry Ierowski and $1,000 to N.C State's Don Gallagher to shave points in the N.C. State-Maryland game on Feb. 10, 1960, played in Raleigh.

On the other charge, Walker was accused of conspiracy to offer a $1,000 bribe to South Carolina player Mike Callahan in the South Carolina-N.C. State game in the first round of the 1959 Atlantic Coast Conference tournament here.

The swift action in the case came on the heels of sweeping indictments returned Tuesday by the Wake County grand jury which returned indictments against 18 men. They were named in 85 charges resulting from the U.S.-wide basketball point-fixing scandal.

Player Good In Prelude

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa regained his putting touch Wednesday and led his fellow professionals through the pro-am tune-up for the $25,000 San Diego Open with a seven-under-par 64.

Player was off with his putting in the recent Los Angeles open but Wednesday he belted seven good putts for seven birdies to pick up the $500 first-prize money.

RIDERS GET GUARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Signing of Norb Rey, co-captain of Notre Dame's football team, was announced Wednesday by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference. Rey was used as an offensive and defensive guard as well as defensive end and line backer.

AT THE BELLE — Audrey Hepburn and George Peppard star in "Breakfast at Tiffany's", motion picture or comedy-romance, now playing at the Belle Theatre. Miss Hepburn portrays platinum playgirl Holly Golightly in the glamorous release, which was adapted by George Axelrod from Truman Capote's popular novel.

Audrey Hepburn Proves Comedy Delight in "Breakfast at Tiffany's"

Audrey Hepburn, who won an Academy Award for her very first comedy "Roman Holiday," is even more delightful in her newest film, Paramount's "Breakfast at Tiffany's" which opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre.

Portraying Holly Golightly, the playgirl, Miss Hepburn has Truman Capote's best—selling novel, Miss Hepburn pulls out all stops in making this one of the best, if not the funniest, films of recent years. Whether she is in the midst of a heated argument with her Japanese neighbor or making tender love to co-star George Peppard, she has the audience with her every step of the way.

As the young writer who falls in love with Holly, Peppard takes another giant step forward in his skyrocketing career. Also offering strong support are Patricia Neal, in the first serious role in ten years; Buddy Ebsen, as the horse doctor from Texas; Martin Balsam, as a tail-talking Hollywood agent, and Mickey Rooney as the afore-mentioned Japanese neighbor.

Martin Jurow and Richard Shepherd produced the Paramount release, which was directed for screen by George (Seven Year Itch) Axelrod. Blake Edwards, who will be remembered for last year's comedy hit, "Operation Petticoat," directed.

Rebels Declare War on Secret Organization

CASABLANCA (AP) — The Algerian rebel government has declared war on the Secret Army Organization, the right-wing underground determined to keep Algeria French. But the rebels appeared to hold out the peace dove to French President Charles de Gaulle.
The rebel government-in-exile wound up a four-day meeting here Wednesday with a communique that foreshadowed a new upsurge of rebel attacks in the Algerian rebellion, with Algeria's European extremists instead of the French army as the chief target.
The increasing activity of right-wing French terrorists in Algeria and France has led many rebel leaders to doubt that the French government could carry out an agreement granting independence to Algeria.

TAKES NEW MEASURES
European terrorists have been killing Moslems and pro-independence Frenchmen and exploding plastic bombs almost at will on the streets of Oran, Algiers and other major cities. Secret army units have waged orderly break into government broadcasts, and the organization distributes its placards and leaflets widely. Terrorists invariably escape after their attacks.
The rebel government in its communique said it had taken new but undisclosed measures to combat the terrorists and warned that the underground's activities could jeopardize the chances of the entire European minority in an independent Algeria.

Given 2 Years On Six Charges Of Procuring

TORONTO (CP)—Dennis E. Sullivan, whose defence was prepared by the magistrate with that of the notorious Norman Rae Ryan, Miss Flora Bell, Wednesday to two years in penitentiary on six charges of procuring.
Sullivan, 40, of Toronto, was told by Magistrate Ian Outerbridge: "You are/polite, of considerable charm and appear the gentleman but have engendered a lot of people with the same charm and clean-cut appearance."
Ryan, one of Canada's most notorious criminals, was given a life sentence for bank robbery and prison escape. He became a model prisoner and was released on the intervention of the then prime minister, R. B. Bennett, who met Ryan during a tour of Kingston penitentiary's model farm.
Ryan, who founded one of Canada's criminal reform programs, died a few years after his release and was shot to death in Sarnia in 1936 after identifying a gang of thieves of violent crimes.
The following trial last month the court was told he headed an operation employing five prostitutes working out of three downtown apartments with the co-operation of a taxi driver and a runner. Both these men were given prison sentences.

MILK CAN HELP
HAMILTON (CP) — Drinking milk can help to lessen the danger of strontium-90, attacks the human body, a dairy scientist said Wednesday. Dr. Harry Steenbock of Wisconsin also warned against the use of radiation in milk. Prof. M. Irvine, head of the dairy science department at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, addressed a convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario that carries radioactive fall-out transmitting the element through milk have little basis in fact.

Back-Down in Katanga Seems To Have Carried Some Bonuses

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It appears that the fall-back of right-wing secessionist authority in The Congo's Katanga province meant an unexpected trip in the face for the fed, as well.

Supporters of Katangese President Moise Tshombe have long maintained the United Nations was playing a foolish game by restraining the avowedly anti-Communist leader and thus leaving the country naked to Communist influence.

This reasoning, the UN political policy would shove The Congo into the waiting arms of rival leader Antoine Gizenga, said by himself and others to be the political heir of Patrice Lumumba.

But UN successes against Tshombe don't seem to be working out that way and instead is giving the central government at Leopoldville sensation against Gizenga, if such is needed.

BOMBOKO SAW

Anyone explaining political developments in the equatorial Congo might just as well try to predict the course of tropical storms. But it is a fact that what is happening just now in The Congo was foreseen by its foreign minister, 36 - year - old Justin Bomboko.

Bomboko in speeches before the United Nations—and it is true there is no logical connection between Katanga province and the other parts of The Congo except that imposed by Belgium, which relinquished control over the territory June 30, 1960.

But, said Bomboko, The Congo has a right to maintain its territorial integrity now that the Belgians have gone, and to do so even if its wealthiest component—Katanga—has doubts.

The survey way to allow the entry of Communist control, said Bomboko, was to cut Katanga loose from the other parts of the country and then would feel free to attack Katanga and bring it to heel, leading it chaos even worse than what has existed for 1½ years.

MUST FOLLOW

Bomboko's point was that the Congo country as conceived by the Belgians may have been a mistake but there is no recourse now but to follow through.

Bomboko's words were interesting if for the only reason that the Leopoldville Congolese policy is outlined by a man who, more often, you hear the UN, the Americans, the British, the Belgians, the Russians.

Indications now are that Gizenga's power is crumbling, on the emotional appeal of the dada premier Lumumba, is slipping in the face of the unity movement led by central government Premier Cyrille Adoula in Leopoldville.

But then there are those who think Gizenga has more to his last 1,000 miles from Leopoldville to Stanleyville, capital of the Oriental province, and merely waiting for a new tropical storm to break . . .

Third Generation of Family To Operate One of Oldest Photo Firms in Canada

By KEN SMITH

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard (Buster) Arless is a professional photographer who can hide a killer, crashland a plane or charge a customer $1,000 for a two-day job with equal nonchalance.

He is also the third generation of his family to operate what now is one of the oldest photographic firms in Canada and is the holder of several commercial awards in every field of photography from high fashion to low crime.

"Things always happen to me," he says.

The firm, now called Richard Arless Associates, was started in 1875—a time when photography was regarded as being only one step removed from black magic — by Mr. Arless' grandfather.

It has been under continuous control of the family since. One of Mr. Arless's sons, Allen, also has joined the firm to extend the family chain another link.

BACHELOR'S WORK

Mr. Arless, 54, has been in photography ever since, as he puts it, he was big enough to be drafted into helping his father lug around the massive and heavy glass plates used as negatives in the early days of photography.

That's why I have a bad back today," he said in a broad Cockney accent used to bend me double."

His career since then has included, in addition to the commercial work, the same duties as most enterprising, 13 years as a news photographer and three year stint in the RCAF and the Royal Canadian Navy as a photographer.

It was during his newspaper days that he bid a killer.

Harry Davis gave — time vice and gambling overlord in Montreal, was shot down and the killer walked into surrender to Mr. Arless's paper, the now-de. funct Montreal Herald.

Unfortunately from The Herald's point of view, his immediate surrender would have meant that other papers, publishing earlier, would have had the story first.

EXCLUSIVE PHOTOS

So Mr. Arless spirited the killer off to a private house where he was kept hidden for more than eight hours before surrendering to the police—in a ceremony Mr. Arless shot exclusively from every conceivable angle in one of the biggest photographic scoops in Montreal's newspaper history.

Mr. Arless's grandfather, George Charles, learned his trade by working with the famous Canadian photographer, Mathew Brady during the American Civil War.

When the war ended in 1865, his grandfather worked with a portrait photographer in Boston, then opened a studio in Boring, ton, Vt.

Returning to Canada, he started a studio in Ottawa but left soon after and went back to the U.S. where he worked until moving to Montreal to open another studio in 1875.

His son, George Charles II, took over the business about 1910, after working for several years as a professional musician. He floored the shutter in an old mansion in mid - town Montreal, working in a room a big enough for a company of 125 soldiers to pose for group portraits.

FATALLY INJURED

Buster's mother, Ailsey and brother also worked in the studio, with his mother and sister becoming expert portrait photographers in their own right.

His brother, Charles III, was an outstanding commercial photographer before he died of a broken neck suffered in a collision with Lionel Conacher, the famous Big Train, while playing football for the old Montreal Winged Wheelers against Toronto Argonauts.

Richard Arless became head of the firm in 1950, shortly before his father's death.

Since then Arless Associates has done industrial, fashion and advertising photography almost exclusively, passing by the portrait work that founded the firm.

"That's where the money and the challenge is today," Mr. Arless says.

Part of the firm's operations now include aerial photography, in which Mr. Arless flies his own plane. That has led to jaw crash landings when his plane's motors quit at the wrong moments.

"Like I say, things are al. ways happening to me."

KILLED IN GARAGE

TORONTO (CP)—James Clements, 21, of suburban Leaside, was killed Wednesday when his head was crushed between the steering wheel of a tractor and a wooden shelf in a garage after he drove the tractor into the garage.

Strike Issue Is Adjourned Until Feb. 26

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate Thomas Elmore Wednesday adjourned to Feb. 26 a case involving the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the Royal York Hotel strikers.

He was hearing the case for the second time after his earlier decision was overruled by a higher court.

Magistrate Elmore had acquitted the CPR of charges that it sought to compel certain employees, by threat of dismissal, to cease to exercise their right to strike, and that it refused to continue to employ certain workers because they were exercising that right.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer later found Magistrate Elmore was wrong in acquitting the CPR. He said the CPR erred in fing 700 strikers, meeting of the Hotel and Club Employees Union (CIO) and ordered the case to Magistrate Elmore.

The adjournment came as a result of the fact the trial originated leave Tuesday to appeal Chief Justice McRuer's ruling to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Meanwhile, in Toronto city council, Mayor Phillips Wednesday was unable Wednesday to persuade the council to order a recess, which put the strike-bound hotel out of bounds to council members and civic functions.

Instead, the board asked the mayor to call an immediate meeting with union leaders in an attempt to end the long strike. A meeting was held last week but the hotel officials without success.

The resolution, passed April 26, two days after the strike began, urged council members not to cross the lines and recommend against holding civic functions in the hotel.

Painter Suing His One-Time Best Friend

TORONTO (CP)—A 29-year-old house painter is suing his one-time best friend for alienation of affections and criminal conversation in an action which opened Wednesday before Chief Justice J. C. McRuer and a jury.

Charles Nagy claims that his wife, Eva, 22, received attentions from John Dobrei, 32, whom he had met in April, 1957, in a refugee camp in Austria. Nagy testified he got Dobrei to up for more than a month when Dobrei came to Toronto from Edmonton, and that Dobrei attended Nagy's wedding and had accompanied them on fishing trips to Lake Simcoe, Severn Falls, the Credit River and Holland Marsh.

Nagy said that Dobrei and Eva sometimes stayed at the car to sunbathe or chat while he was fishing, because he often could not park close to the water. Nagy said his wife left him June 17 last, and that Dobrei had confessed he loved her.]

The case is continuing.

Common Market Hottest Issue In Agriculture

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The European Common Market is the hottest current issue before Canadian agriculture, President H. H. Hannam of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said Wednesday.

The spunless - burdened dairy industry is the one segment of the Canadian farm community now facing a crisis, he said.

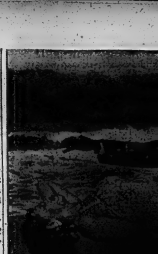
The federation's 26th annual convention at Banff, Alta., Jan. 23-25, probably will bear down on both subjects, Mr. Hannam said in an interview.

The federation is the largest farm body in Canada, with member organizations from across the country including the National Farmers' Union, the next largest and drawing most support from the Prairies and northern Ontario.

RECORD SURPLUS

The Dairy Farmers of Canada held their annual meeting in Montreal starting next Monday. Slipping butter consumption and mounting surpluses of butter-fat have combined to produce a record butter surplus of more than 100,000,000 pounds, most in government stocks.

The federation itself is pondering anew a way to solve or ease the situation and is under pressure from the Canadian manufacturing trade to reduce prices to consumers and dairymen.



Mr. Hannam, himself a dairy farmer, said tremendous interest now exists among farmers about the impact of the Common Market on Canada's exports, particularly if Britain succeeds in gaining entry.

The federation's stand on the Common Market was laid down in November by Mr. Hannam when he said grave dangers exist, particularly in the short run, for some exports. "But the CFA "has always looked upon the agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, economist Arthur J. Smith and Mr. Hannam will deliver main addresses at the federation's convention.

The strike now is in its sixth week.

The new terms boost the increase for all hourly-rated employees, except skilled mechanics, by three cents an hour to a total of 18 cents an hour.

Car-Carrier Operators Will Return to Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Some 800 striking employees of car-carrier operators are expected to return to work Monday under terms of an agreement reached Wednesday between the employers and the International Brotherhood of Tea-msters (Ind.).

The membership had earlier rejected settlement terms negotiated by a union committee and the employers and at the same time the operators accused leaders of the negotiating committee of sabotaging the agreement.

The strike now is in its sixth week.

The new terms boost the increase for all hourly-rated employees, except skilled mechanics, by three cents an hour to a total of 18 cents an hour.

Some Kennedy Advisers Feel Nikita Not Complete Master

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some of President Kennedy's top advisers feel Soviet Premier Khrushchev is not complete master in the Kremlin and that he tends to reach decisions faster than he is able to carry them out.

These advisers suggested this appeared to be the reason why Vyacheslav Molotov is returning to his diplomatic post in Vienna despite Khrushchev's bitter condemnation of "old Bolsheviik" before the Communist party last October.

Khrushchev has embarked on a bold plan to eliminate the Stalin image from Soviet society but U.S. informants said that while they lacked clear information of what is going on in the Kremlin, they feel Khrushchev is meeting resistance.

The informants also said the U.S. administration has adopted a policy of "neither war nor surrender" in the Far East, placing greater emphasis on economic co-operation and less on military pacts as a means of containing Communist expansion.

A new study of how the United States can accelerate economic expansion in the Far East is under way.

Touching on Communist China, the informants said the more gold and currency Peking spends for wheat in Canada, Australia and other countries the less money the Chinese will have for industrial growth. They said there is evidence that the supposed "great leap" in the mainland's industrial expansion has run over - rated and is slowing down.

There also is evidence, they said, that Russia is having difficulties with Mao Tse - tung's regime.

Sat Drinking Beer While Woman Injured

HAMILTON (CP) — Henri Tremblay told a Supreme Court jury Wednesday he and Joseph Leblanc sitting "in his big chair drinking beer" while a woman lay unconscious nearby covered in blood.

He was testifying at the trial of Leblanc, a 57-year-old ironworker, on a charge of manslaughter in the Nov 21 death of Mrs. Rita Caron 37.

Tremblay, 37, told the jury he was a roomer at the house where the prosecution alleged Leblanc and Mrs. Caron had lived for several years.

He went downstairs three times the night of her death to investigate "an awful racket." Once he saw that Mrs. Caron had a black eye she said was from a beating by Leblanc. When Leblanc slapped Mrs. Caron across the face, said Tremblay, he intervened, and Leblanc swung at him.

He hit Leblanc four times and told Mrs. Caron to call the police.

When he awoke next-morning he found Mrs. Caron lying at the foot of the stairs still bleeding.

The trial continues.

Women MPs Will Be Able To Get Hairdo

OTTAWA (CP) — Women MPs will soon be able to get a cut - rate hairdo in the Parliament Buildings.

For three nights a week during the parliamentary session which opens next Thursday "closed to males" signs will be ported on the door of the basement barber shop.

During these evening hours the hairdresser will address his care to the beauty needs of lady parliamentarians. In view of there being no charge, costs nor additional operating expenses, the tariff is expected to be in keeping with the men's haircut price of 35 cents.

Opening of the beauty parlor is seen as a personal triumph for Judy La Marsh, 36-year-old Liberal MP for Niagara Falls, only woman in the opposition. One of her pet beefs has been the lack of facilities for women MPs in the Parliament Buildings, which also has a tailor shop, steam baths and massage service—for men.

"Women parliamentarians want at least a stab and a hair dryer along with an operator, it only for a few hours a day," she once said. "We're as much concerned about our appearance and our figures as the men."

KILLED BY TRAIN

ALMONTE, Ont. (CP)—Area farmer Karl Stanzel, 64, was killed Wednesday night when he was struck by a train at a level crossing near the Ottawa Valley community. Police said Stanzel's car had apparently stalled on the track and he was trying to flag down the CPR freighter when it roared into him.

Tire Makers To Establish New Lists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virtually all U.S. manufacturers of automobile tires agreed Wednesday to establish new price lists.

The agreement ended one of the biggest anti-trust cases in the 47-year history of the Federal Trade Commission.

Fourteen tire and tube manufacturers and two trade associations signed a consent order described by the FTC as "halting a price-fixing conspiracy."

The companies signed the order for purposes of settling the case. They did not admit to any violations of the law.

A key provision requires each manufacturer to abandon existing prices and establish new ones without consulting others in the industry. If any of the new prices are changed within two years after adoption, those responsible would have to document the reasons.

The firms were named by the FTC in a 1959 complaint which charged that members of the rubber industry were fixing uniform prices illegally, exchanging confidential information on prices and selling terms, rigging bids on federal, state and local government contracts.

The consent order prohibits the companies from engaging in any of these practices.

Among companies the order were the industry's big four: Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.; B. F. Goodrich Co.; and United States Rubber Co. Trade associations signing were the Rubber Manufacturers Association, New York City, and the Tire and Rim Association, Inc., Akron.

Mystery Remains Over Letter Sent In Dorion Name

State Secretery Says Not Signed By Him

QUEBEC (CP)—How a 1958 thank-you note sent to Quebec liquor officials in the name of Noel Dorion became public remained a mystery today.

Mr. Dorion—now secretary of state and president of the Privy Council, said his political opponents arranged its publication. Photostatic copies of the letter appeared in Montreal and Toronto newspapers early this week. Mr. Dorion has denied writing the letters.

Sources close to the Quebec government indicated a serious check was being made to determine whether or not there was the case of the Crown had been used for political purposes.

It was learned Saturday night that the original copy of the letter, to Weille Cote, late assistant director of the disbanded Quebec Liquor Police, was among documents seized under warrant from the home of Mrs. Cote.

The documents were seized when the attorney-general's department opened a local storage premises on Lemire, former Quebec district director of the police.

SAYS NOT NEEDED

Crown prosecutor Jean Bienvenue said the warrant was needed in the case and the original copy was kept by him in his personal file until Oct. 30 when he returned it to Mrs. Cote.

The letter, on stationary from Mr. Dorion's law firm, thanked Mr. Cote and some of his subordinates for their assistance in the 1958 federal election campaign in Bellechasse-Dorion's constituency.

Mr. Bienvenue said in his affidavit he was the only persons to see the letter while it was in possession of the police. Prosecutor Jean Lesage, Crown prosecutor Gerard Levesque, court clerk Jean Lapalme and Judge Cecile Bois, Mr. Lapalme said, who had asked Mr. Cote to make photostat of the letter.

TRIED TO 'FRAME'

The letter first came to public attention Dec. 30 when Mr. Dorion said in an interview that an attempt was being made to "frame" him by linking him with the liquor police.

After the photostats were published, Mr. Dorion denied writing the letter. Handwriting experts confirmed it was not signed by him. Mr. Dorion said he was written and signed in his name by his secretary, Elsie Perron. He said he could not say someone whose name she could not recall. Miss Perron said in an interview she could not recall the letter.

Born in Farquhar, Ont., Nov. 30, 1893, Mr. Gardiner was the second son in a family of six. His parents were farmers. He spent most of his life in Saskatchewan and became known to the standards of Liberalism during college years before he became a school teacher.

He swamped opponents with powerful oratory to hold a provincial seat for 22 years. He befriended Charles Dunning, Saskatchewan premier in 1926, was leader of the opposition from 1929 to 1934, and became premier again when the Liberals returned to power in 1934. He moved to the federal post the following year.

IMPROVEMENTS ON WAY FOR BORDEAUX JAIL

Acting Governor Says Staff Bad

MONTREAL (CP) — After years of neglect, Montreal's infamous Bordeaux jail is in line for a few improvements.

Quebec Public Works Minister Rene St. Pierre met Thursday with deputy ministers and an architect to discuss changes to the building's interior, and said his department is "giving it all our attention right now."

The minister and his deputy, H. A. Gauvin, visited the institution on New Year's Day after a riot by 400 prisoners that resulted in $27,000 damages to the interior.

"The buildings are very solid," said Mr. St. Pierre. "The changes will mainly allow classification of the prisoners inside."

The jail's acting governor, Jean Paul Lamothe, said much of the blame for Bordeaux's poor staff and said Attorney - General Georges Lapalme for some months has been improvements.

At a press conference Thursday, Col. Lambert described prison guards as underpaid and overworked, with poor discipline and incentive.

"The staff is very bad," he said. "All jug a few are incompetent."

About one-third of the staff can be trained to do their jobs properly. The rest should be dismissed, Oct. 30.

Guards were hired provisionally at $3,200 a year. Their pay was increased to $3,200 when they became permanent staff.

Col. Lambert said guards "are not to blame," although poorly paid, because "they have gimmicks for making money on the side."

Prisoners often persuaded guards to bring things for them outside, usually starting out with chocolates and working up to alcohol and "football" barbiturate pills. The guards then sold them outside, at addresses given them by the prisoners.

ASKS QUESTIONS

The acting governor said he started "to find out what's going on" by questioning the prisoners.

"I saw that I was being taken for a ride and that I questioned prisoners. I got some extraordinary information."

He cited a recent case in which jail officials decided to handle five inmates who refused to return to their cells.

"You know, they were afraid to use force because of some of the publicity," he continued. We need guards here who are unafraid and who have no fear."

Col. Lambert said pay rates should be increased, and guards brought under the Quebec civil servants' pension plan.

Both the prison staff should be augmented to include a full-time doctor, a dentist, psychologist and dietitian, a welfare manager, a personnel manager, a full-time chaplain for Protestants, and a physical education director.

Postmen Deliver Letter by Hand Offering to End Their Slowdown

LONDON (CP)—The government, pondering a union offer to end its postal "work-to-rule" campaign, now faces similar tactics with its 140,000 clerical workers.

The Union of Post Office Workers (UPOW) told Postmaster-General Reginald Bev, Ins, in a letter delivered by hand, that they would end the postal service back to normal if the government set a deadline and a date to reopen negotiations or arrange for arbitration.

Bevins' reply, discussing the proposition with Prime Minister Macmillan before making a reply. The work-to-rule campaign of the 17,203 postal, telephone and telegraph employees of the General Post Office has disrupted letter deliveries, and suspension of parcel services in and out of London and slowed the telephone and telegraph services.

The clerical workers' work-to-rule campaign is scheduled to start Wednesday and if instructions given by union officials will be serious delays in government business.

Under the rules, only messengers must carry files and messages and all work must not be sent to the typing services. Instructions given to postmen would be followed to the letter.

The Civil Service Clerical Association said they always are avoided because many clerical officers either do their own typing or sometimes dictate items instead of sending work to the understaffed typing service.

Typists are instructed that under the rules their machines must be thoroughly cleaned and put into perfect working order each day. Typing speed of 50 words a minute proficiency standard, 40 words per minute will be accepted.

UN Stands Ready to Assist Peru's Avalanche Survivors

CP from Reuters-AP

LIMA, Peru—The United Nations stood ready today to provide all possible help to Peru in the wake of one of the worst natural disasters in its history.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 persons—the total was still uncertain — were killed Wednesday night when thousands of tons of ice, rock and mud rolled over the Santa Valley, 250 miles northwest of here, in a 40-foot high avalanche.

The acting secretary-general of the United Nations, cabled Saturday President Manuel Prado Thursday night that representatives of the UN Technical Assistance Board and the Children's Fund have been instructed to place themselves at the president's disposal."

Relief workers and supplies were pouring into the disaster area.

The massive avalanche that thundered down from the 22,000-foot peak of Huascaran Peru's highest mountain—wiped out an entire mountain community and buried the Ranrahirca area, with a population of about 3,000, virtually. At least six per cent of the village's 500 inhabitants were killed.

Survivors said an earthshaking roar and clouds of thick dust preceded the "tsunyan," the Andean word for avalanche.

After flying over the area Thursday night, U.S. Ambassador James Loeb reported "it appears as though the disaster is complete."

Only a check of last July's population figures may eventually determine the final death toll.

In 1941, only 300 bodies were found after the Huraz avalanche 25 miles from Ranrahirca, but a total of 6,000 died.

Airborne rescue teams hoped for good weather today to fly missions of mercy to the Andean Valley where the avalanche virtually wiped the villages and 14 settlements off the map in eight minutes.

Only two planes Thursday were able to fly into Caraz, about 20 miles south of the disaster area, before dense fog and generally bad weather forced Peruvian Air Force pilots to set up an air shuttle of doctors, nurses, medicines, food-stuffs and clothing.

But a doctor back from the United States committee on trade and economic affairs, reported the most important since the system of cabinet-level talks between the two countries was begun.

The U.S. delegation was expected later this week to present the government on the new trade program outlined by President Kennedy in his State of the Union address to the U.S. Congress.

Kennedy May Win Approval Of Less Than Half of Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy appears likely to win approval of less than half of the wide-ranging domestic and foreign programs he has launched in an election-conscious Congress.

A salvo of applause by Republicans and a cool, but reserved response by Democrats greeted Kennedy's pledge to submit a balanced budget next week.

But those displays of unity did not dispel signs that many of the president's major proposals are likely to be trampled under amid congressional pulling and hauling.

Not six of the news was bad for Kennedy, however.

He and his leaders can look forward the likely enactment of a program—in a form yet to be determined—to give the president a say in the form negotiated lower tariffs with the European Common Market.

Kennedy's sweeping tax law revisions, closing of some loop-holes and extension of excise levies. He was assured of an increase in the $288,000,000,000 debt limit which he has yet to make, a formal request. He might get a partial increase.

It could believe that when the shouting is over he would get about half of the $4,000,000,000 authority to buy $100,000,000 in mortgages and to meet the ball rolling on a special, three-year $3,000,000 fund for the Alliance for Progress, aimed at Latin America.

The congressional reaction marked for future casualty lists his requests for emergency authority to call up 1-year Standby power to lower taxes and to launch a public works program.

Concerned about unemployment, congressmen might act on the bill to extend unemployment compensation benefits. But, as usual in times of a rising economy, they seemed inclined to give the president some uncertain future date.

It was almost a certainty that no new civil rights legislation would clear the legislative mill this year. Kennedy has not expected turnabout to get approval for a $700,000,000 program to help finance school shelters.

LIBERALS ATTACK VOTE PRACTICES IN BYELECTIONS

Premier Heard At Brantford

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberal party attacked voting practices, the New Democratic Party took issue with the provincial health department and the ruling Progressive Conservative party played it in a low key during Ontario byelection activity Thursday.

Representatives in five ridings—Brant, Kenora, Renfrew South, Rainy River and Beaches—will be decided in byelections Jan. 18.

In Kenora Thursday Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer charged the voting system "is a cockeye in that northern riding."

He said the owner of the Atikokan hotel was mailing 100 to 200 polls north of Red Lake has admitted he is Progressive Conservative supporter.

"It certainly would seem this is not the way to run an election," he added.

DOESN'T THINK FAIR

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald sparked the northern polls issue Monday night in Sioux Lookout when he charged he did not think voting was done fairly in the last two elections. Liberal-Labor candidate Robert Obson echoed his opinions.

In Brant, Progressive Conservative Mr. MacDonald said Thursday night he was "disgusted" with the "pressure-cooker" tactics and below-zero marks that had gripped the area for the last three weeks.

In the South most of the deaths which have been caused due to the storm were reported Saturday again Thursday, but many were still treacherous with patches of ice and hard-packed snow. Police continued to discourage unnecessary driving.

Sleet and freezing rain fell on the coastal plains of South Carolina, Georgia and northern Florida, causing a main New York-to-Florida route to be closed.

In Texas, a county agent said the grapefruit crop in the lower Rio Grande Valley may be lost because of the cold and freezing temperatures. Some grapefruit were frozen as they hung on the trees. Record lows were recorded in three southern cities—eight below at El Paso, two at Roanoke, Va., and five at Raleigh, N.C.

MEXICAN HIT

Heavy snow hit a five-county area in northwest lower Michigan while heavy rains caused floods areas from the Dakotas across Minnesota and northern Iowa into Wisconsin and northwestern Michigan and in upper New York state.

In the Michigan snow belt, 12 inches of snow fell and many schools were closed. The snow measured more than two feet in some places, and drifts of a mile - an - hour winds causing near-blizzard conditions.

Officials said the most severe cold wave of the century hit wide parts of Mexico with at least 14 deaths reported.

Snow stretched along the Mexican plateau from Durango to Matamoros and biting winds whipped the Gulf of Mexico. Temperatures dropped to four degrees below in Ciudad Juarez, across the border from El Paso.

U.S. Cold Spell Blamed For At Least 130 Deaths

Deep South Looking For Warming Trend

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The deep south looked forward to a promised warm-up trend today as the thermometer began to inch back up from the lowest readings in years.

Overnight lows of zero or below were recorded for the second straight night in parts of the South, with the coldest temperatures in Mississippi, Arkansas and western Tennessee.

The weather bureau promised high temperatures in the 30s for Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and parts of Tennessee today—the highest daytime readings since up to eight inches of snow fell Tuesday.

Some, relief from nearly a week of frigid weather came to most of the snow-covered sections of the Middle West. And the warming trend was indicated for broad sections from the Rockies into New England.

The mild spell and temperature moderation in the Middle West began in the eastern and northern plains states into the upper Mississippi Valley and the western Great Lakes region. Readings were some 20 to 30 degrees higher than the zero and below-zero marks that had gripped the area for the last three days.

New U.S. Rocket Will Be Able To Put Two-Boxcar Load in Orbit

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The U.S. space agency, leapfrogging over other concepts of the world has ever known, to put on a super Saturn with far more power than any rocket the U.S. now has or is planning.

The first stage, or lift-off section of the huge rocket now developing a total of 7,500,000 pounds of thrust, 1,500,000 more than the 6,000,000 pounds of thrust built into the Saturn first stage which was launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla., last November.

The whole rocket will be capable of carrying a payload of about 110 tons into a 300-mile equatorial maximum load of an ordinary railroad box car.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Marshall space flight centre here announced Thursday that a decision had been made on the super Saturn during the first and second stages of the advanced Saturn. The third stage will carry a single engine.

Two stages will be used for earth orbit and three stages for earth-escape missions.

Earth orbital trips for three men are to be accomplished with the present Saturn, the C-1.

The advanced Saturn, scheduled to be ready for launching in 1965, will be used first to send a three-man craft into orbit around the moon and back to earth. Later work for it will include a manned landing on the moon and the return trip to earth.

Havelock Bank Robbery Case Set for Jan. 22

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Four Montreal men, charged with the $232,000 armed robbery of a Havelock, bank, will go on trial here Jan. 22.

Crown prosecutor John Bradshaw says that a request by the defence to have the trial moved from Peterborough was turned down by Judge Gerald Kennedy. Original date for the trial was Jan. 15, but a one-week postponement was ordered last month.

Yvon Lalonde, 31, Roger Mesteil, 41, and Roger Poirier, 31, are all in Dorchester county jail at Whitby. Jean-Claude Lalonde, 23-year-old brother of Yvon, was released Dec. 16 on $15,000 cash and $15,000 property bail.

The robbery took place in Lakeside, 36, a third brother, died Oct. 5 in Peterborough county jail while awaiting preliminary hearing. He had been arrested and charged under the alias of George Wilson.

The five were arrested during a 2½-hour police manhunt through dense Hastings county bush a few miles northwest of Peterborough.

Four armed, masked men broke into the Havelock branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank before it opened Aug. 31 and locked the bank manager, a six-member staff before escaping with the $232,000 in cash and securities. Police believe the loot is hidden in the bush.

More Parents May Have to Pay Tuition Fees

TRENTON — An amendment to the Secondary School Act, passed recently by the Ontario government, may result in many parents finding it necessary to pay owning property in town, having to $30 a month for each child to attend Trenton High School.

By a government ruling those owning town property, assessed at $2300 or over are not required to pay the tuition.

The assessment was arrived at by dividing the total municipal assessment (for high school purposes) by the number of owners involved. This method led to some confusion. Were man and wife joint owners to be considered as one or two? If one man owned 23 houses, was he considered as one owner of 23 houses?

By the terms of the amendment the minimum assessment would be arrived at by dividing the total assessment (as applied to high school purposes) by four times the average daily attendance of students in the high school area. The assessment would be calculated on the figures for the previous year, in the case of the total assessment and the students' attendance.

At the present time, two out of every three town residents are affected by the assessment of $2,300. Whether or not more or less town residents will be affected by the amendment for the future, will not be known until final figures have been released by the Ontario Department.

In cases where out-of-town students and children in Trenton public schools, they must own property in town assessed for $6750 or more. Many Trenton area students were affected by this ruling when it was brought down last year. One child was withdrawn from the new memorial school and sent to the club by Ross Preston and after his induction, he was welcomed by President Bob Reid.

The new member joins three other Lions who recently joined the club and they were put through a club initiation. "Victims" besides Demarce, were Bill Hawthorne, Harold Pearce and Norman McKay.

Girl, Father Awarded $3,833 In Supreme Court

Krzyzyna Piwowarski, 10-year-old daughter of Konrad Piwowarski of Belleville, was awarded $3,500 damages, and her father, $1,333.80, by a Supreme Court jury today when John M. Davison was found negligent in operating a motor vehicle on March 30, 1961, when Krzyzyna Piwowarski was injured.

It was said that Davison was proceeding on West Bridge St. on his way from the American Optical plant, when his car and the young girl collided at the intersection of Bridge and Ritchie Avenue.

An independent witness told the jury that he has seen the children running across the road, Krzyzyna and who he presumed was her little brother. He said when he stopped his car the little boy was within about two feet of the front of his car. He said he shook his finger at Krzyzyna.

The witness said he proceeded on and observed the accident taking place as he looked in the rear view mirror.

The girl was said to have run out from behind the witness's car and into the path of the Davison's vehicle.

Krzyzyna suffered severe injury as the result of the accident.

4-H Tractor Club Meets

The B.C.I.&V.S. 4-H Tractor Club held its first meeting for 1962 in Roomvelt on January 10th. The meeting was called to order and the 4-H pledge was recited by the members present. The roll call was then taken, and the minutes of the last meeting read.

It was decided to equip tractors with fire extinguishers for a worthwhile project to be accomplished for Achievement Day. Nominations were held for a press reporter, and Carl Twiddy was elected to the position. Mr. Gibb then showed slides, on Farm Safety which strongly stressed the need of precaution when operating a tractor, and also showing the innumerable accidents which can easily occur.

The meeting was then adjourned to January 24th.

Purchasing Agents Of Eastern Ont. Meet in Kingston

The Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario held their fifth meeting of the season on Wednesday at the Commodore hotel in Kingston. The events of the evening were highlighted by the attendance of members and their executive superiors who were guests for the evening. Mr. J. Hamilton, Vice-President, Executive of Canada, addressed the meeting on the subject of "New Ways to Save".

The speakers remarks covered the element of competition to Canadian industry caused by foreign markets and the European common market. On the Canadian scene the fluctuation of the economy necessitates close study of the manufacturing costs. The ratio of overhead cost to actual productive cost is considerable when one considers that the average industry requires 15 to 20 non-productive workers per 100 productive workers.

In order to meet competition at lower costs the manufacturer must implement cost saving features such as creating consumer interest, simplification in design, lower business expenses and building dependable reliability.

The speaker was introduced by Ted Whitney of Dupont Canada Ltd. and thanked by Dave Willis of Jenkins Machine and Tool. The next month's meeting Bill Templeton of Trenton, will take over the responsibility of "Vice-Presidents" night.

Traffic Along East Bridge St. Has Resumed After Big Fire

Traffic along the East Bridge Street section blocked off for the past two days as result of Wednesday morning's fire has been resumed following speedy clean-up operations carried out on yesterday by the city department of public works.

Demolition equipment owned by the Beaver Construction Company currently installing sanitary sewers in the city was used to demolish the walls and upper floors of the burned out building.

Then last night heavy loading equipment went to work and the debris was carted away by trucks.

"Operation Demolition" was watched by hundreds of downtown shoppers and other spectators as the huge crane wielding a five-ton mass of weight shaped iron went to work on the gutted ruins.

A couple of sweeps with the big weight and the massive walls came tumbling down. Then the big iron weight was dropped repeatedly into wreckage smashing wooden flooring into rubble.

Despite the hundreds of tons of water poured into the wreckage of the East Bridge street block, firemen were again called back to the scene last night as smouldering fires flared to life.

Last minute checking by insurance investigators and final salvage operations on the part of owners will be held demolition work yesterday.

And one of the happiest men on the scene was Belleville lawyer Ormonde Butler whose office was on the second floor of the burned-out structure.

By a quirk of fate a great percentage of office records, wills and other legal documents were found almost intact.

from a file in the court house. Sheriff Bienvenue stressed that the original copy was never in Crown files but only in his personal file.

"... I used to leave it from time to time in a personal file at the court house, not because it was an official document but because it would be safe, under lock and key in the files there," he said.

Mr. Bienvenue said he returned the letter to Mrs. Cole on Premier Lesage's advice.

"I asked the premier's advice as to what I should do," Mr. Lapalme, the attorney-general, was out of town," Mr. Bienvenue said. "His advice was that, since I did not require the letter, I should have it returned back to Mrs. Cole. I followed his advice 100 per cent."

Mrs. M. Wilson, Gilmour, Killed In Car Mishap

A 48-year-old Gilmour woman, Mrs. Mary Wilson was fatally injured in car accident Thursday night on Highway No 2 at the Gilmour-Ballyrogan hill 4 miles north of Millbridge.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said Mrs. Wilson and her northbound accompanied by her three-year-old granddaughter, Kimberley Wilson, 250 Dundas Street, West, Belleville, when the car skidded out of control, smashed into a rock pile on the west side of the road and rolled into the ditch.

Mrs. Wilson was believed to have suffered a broken neck when the passenger side of the car crushed in the roof. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. H. G. Partlin of Marmora. The little girl suffered a bump on the head but was not believed to be seriously injured.

Dr. G. Mullen of Madoc said when he arrived at the accident, Mrs. Wilson was lying moaning around in a state of shock. The girl will be x-rayed later to determine extent of her injuries.

It is understood Mrs. Wilson was on her way home and was taking her granddaughter with her. The accident occurred about 12 miles from her home. She was driving her husband's car at the time.

Stanley Park Area Forms New Association

A meeting of the residents of the Stanley Park Area was held on Wednesday evening in the Bayview Public School. Mr. Lloyd Doran, Recreational Director of the City of Belleville, presented a brief outline of the discussions and planning which had preceded the meeting. He outlined the advantages of a residents' association and how it might assist in organizing and furthering the recreational activities of the community. He then introduced Mr. Wes Ogden, Assistant Recreational Director of the City of Oshawa.

Mr. Ogden outlined the part played by the seventeen (17) Neighborhood Associations in the recreational life of residents of Oshawa.

An informal discussion followed next with panel members Wed. Ogden, Lloyd Doran, Fred Bradley, Don Hickson, and Gordon Locklin discussing problems and suggestions raised by the other residents present. After a good discussion, it was unanimously decided, to form an association to organize and further the recreational activities in the Stanley Park Area. The following officers were elected: president, Gordon Locklin, vice-president, Don Hickson, secretary, Gordon Thompson; treasurer, Stan Scafran.

President, Gordon Locklin then assumed the chair. Topics for further consideration were suggested and listed. To be considered and decided at the next meeting are, a name for the organization, a constitution, a program of activities, ways and means of implementing the program, membership, and boundaries. It was decided to consider these topics at a meeting to be held in Bayview Public school on Wednesday, January 24th, at 8:00 p.m. Each member was asked to discuss these topics with their neighbors and to bring at least two new members to the meeting on January 24.

Deputy Mayor Given Lock For City Dungeon

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke, possibly the one member of city council who has the security of the city dump has come to be a very real thing, was duly presented with a padlock for the gates of that vital piece of public property by the local Y's Men's Club at its annual civic dinner yesterday evening.

The presentation was made by Y's Man Jack Fletcher, who noted that although Deputy Mayor Corke had received a most handsome set of keys from another source, this was obviously a lock which was really required.

Each alderman present was given the opportunity of making a brief address and Mr. Corke tried a new twist in the usual procession of civic dinners and speeches.

Alderman Walter Elliott stated that Belleville had progressed considerably during the past year and that a number of plans involving civic improvements were under consideration for the future.

City Manager James Reynolds said that he felt the city had come of age and "Belleville Wishar', William Lowen, Joe Raycroft and Jack Ireland.

Y's Men's president John Hayman welcomed the visitors and guests and Member John Luscombe expressed the thanks of the club for their visit and remarks.

DELIVERS POLICY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—An insurance underwriting firm delivered part of a $10,000,000 life insurance policy on Elizabeth Taylor Thursday covering her movie portrayal in Cleopatra. A spokesman for Marsh, McLennan-Cosgrove and Company said the policy was farmed out to about 40 different insurance firms. Beneficiary is 20th century-fox, the studio currently shooting the film in Rome.

C of C Wants Service Centre Placed Near This City

The location of one of the proposed highway 401 service centres near Belleville found the firm support of the directorate of the Chamber of Commerce at its regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the Queen's Hotel.

A number of advantages were to be derived by having a service centre built close to the city, the chamber discussed. It was felt. The major one was that traffic would be slowed down for a short stay in the area which would otherwise have travelled right on by. If a local tourist information booth, representative or literature was on hand at this centre, casual motorists and tourists could be directed to this area who had never initially intended to visit here, it was suggested by incoming president Walter Elliott.

It was recommended that representation be made to the provincial government to discuss this matter as well as to find out further information as to the government's intention regarding the location of these service centres.

A letter from the Port Hope-Cobourg area requesting support in a move to have these services stop there was also discussed and rejected.

J. C. Houston of the Delora Stoffle firm, was appointed to the board of directors following the resignation of Hugh Murray.

Charles Lundy was appointed as liaison director to the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Lundy was formerly quite active in the Junior Chamber and is a past president of that organization.

A treasurer's report given by G. H. Trill indicated that a deficit might be expected for 1961. Mr. Trill said that the auditors had assured him that recent revenue would actually put the Chamber in the black for the year's operation.

The executive for the 1962 session is: Walter Elliott, president; J. A. Wishart, past president; G. H. Trill, treasurer; Ben Corke, first vice-president; Donald Barrett, second vice-president.

Appointed to the various committees were; G. A. Wishart (program); J. B. Corke (membership); D. J. Barrett (membership); G. T. Bell (tourist); Ron Cass (projects); A. G. Drysdale (provincial-national affairs); Harold Farmer (traffic); G. A. Freeman (tourist); J. C. Houston (projects); James Marker (Airport); Fred Barton (publicity).

Other appointments included: G. W. Joyce (industrial commission); Jack McArthur (industrial commission); J. A. Ireland (liaison with city council); Lorne McDougall (industrial commission); G. A. Wishart (industrial commission).

The manufacturers' section will include John McGrane, chairman, and H. W. Hapton, vice-chairman.

The retail merchants section will include Irvine Shulman, chairman; William Meagher, vice-chairman, and Ron Fox, treasurer.

What Should Be Taught?

Every so often there is flurry of debate as to just what subjects should or should not be taught in the schools. Most of this debate is on the secondary issue as to what subjects should be on the curricula of our public, secondary or technical schools.

The debate gets more basic when the relationship between a classical and a technological education is considered. There appears to be little discussion, however, as to exactly what will be the end result of our educational system as far as the individual is concerned, rather than society.

This is the most important aspect of any educational system and it appears, on the surface at least, to be given but passing attention in our society. Such is not the case in totalitarian states. In them there exists a candid realization that the educational process can produce as an end result people who will think along certain lines, (or not think at all if so desired), such as may be predetermined by the state or party.

It is, therefore, important that a similar realization of the fundamental power of the educational process predominate in our own society. By and large, taking North America as a whole, it would appear that our educational system is producing a surplus of shallow-thinkers as far as the fundamental concepts of our own way of life is concerned.

Too many in our current harvest of the educational crop have too little a realization of the basic beliefs and responsibilities to which they are beholden for their very existence, excluding any biological terms of reference. This lack of appreciation results in such common ailments in our society as: poor attendance at the polls on election days, slackened or little interest in everything from municipal to national affairs and, even worse, an apparent inability to engage in any interpretive or logical thinking when such interest is aroused.

The basic goal of any Canadian educational system should be to produce in our youth a basic understanding of the democratic way of life, its responsibilities and its differences from other philosophies of life. Its weaknesses and its strengths should be common knowledge to any Canadian and not a matter of indecisive confusion in troubled minds. This aspect of education should be effected at as early a level in the life of Canadian young people as possible, in short as soon as they start to school.

This education could provide a firm foundation for each and every citizen in the years ahead. A subtle attack on minds made dependent upon accidental things like Mr. Eisenhower's prose style, as in the case of Adlai Stevenson in 30 or 20 years?

"People don't realize under governments; the governments change but the people remain the same."

"Lord, the money we do spend on government, and all we get for it is better than the government we got for one-third the money 20 years ago."

"Liberty don't work as good in practice as it does in speeches."

Before anyone ever heard of Senator Joe McCarthy, in 1934 Reuters said of Senate investigating committees:

"Everybody wants to hear accusations and nobody wants to hear denials."

Will Rogers loved to travel, and was criticized by air travel before he was killed. Here is what he reported of it in 1930:

"To get any kind of idea of Russia, everything in the world we do, every single thing we have, every matter of fact looking at anything is entirely different in Russia. I was surprised they didn't walk on their hands instead of their feet, just to be different from capitalistic nations."

It would be wrong to suggest that Will Rogers was always right or always wise. He had his prejudices and blind spots which are most conspicuous in men of conviction. His humor and simplicity was his professional mask. What is remembered about Will Rogers today is only his homely touch but his shrewd intelligence and skepticism.

The year to come would be greatly benefited if it raised up another humorist, another Will Rogers, another James Thurber, perhaps another Max Edwards in Canada, to illumine for us the world's follies, wit or satire all people can enjoy.

No Humorist Since Rogers

Ottawa Journal

A few years ago Herbert Hoover said: "Our country has lost its sense of humor. We need an American humorist. There's been no one since Will Rogers".

No one since Rogers. Those up on the times will rise to suggest that in fact Mr. Robert Newbery or some other fashionable young man who says funny things. And it is quite likely that there may be for have so many tried so hard to be funny so often. But Herbert Hoover's plaint summed up not "comedian". What a difference there is in those words.

It is hard to say what precisely a humorist is. It is easier to say that Mark Twain was a humorist .So was Stephen Leacock. They are a rare breed who are not always with the Canadians, on the other hand, are commonplace, both good ones and bad ones. A humorist has depth where the comedian is shallow. The humorist has wisdom where the comedian is merely clever and smart. The humorist has a set of values and standards, against which he measures the deviations of the passing scene .The modern funny man operates in a moral vacuum.

* * *

One of the differences between Will Rogers and Mr. Sahl, who is perhaps the most serious pretender to the throne in the United States is that Rogers' humor sprang from the tyranny of being only topical. Most of Will Rogers' remarks are of the ephemeral and as shrewd today as they were when he was writing them and more. Rogers stays fresh because he had something to say in a way as well as the ability to say it deftly. Modern stage and screen see all coverage. They stoop to banality and vulgarity so often — and they often seemed to suffer such degradation more than ever — because there is apparently a noisy else to do.

The best way to demonstrate we do not allow deceiving memory to garnish the past is to look at the art of Will Rogers. Many of his most memorable remarks have been assembled for the first time in a new book called "The Will Rogers Book" (Bobbs-Merrill) by Paula McSpadden Love, a niece of Rogers.

Age does not wither the incisiveness of these comments:

"Now, if there is one thing that we can do worse than any other nation, it is try and manage somebody's else affairs."

"A liberal is a man who wants to use his own time on things in preference to generations who he knows know more than he does."

"All Americans are wired for sound and before they go abroad they ought to detach the wirings."

* * *

Rogers talked and wrote of many things but government and political issues attracted him more than anything. Will today's political writer, so much dependent upon accidental things like Mr. Eisenhower's prose style, be as readable and as

Rogers talked and wrote under governments; the governments change but the people remain the same.

"Lord, the money we do spend on government, and all we get for it is better than the government we got for one-third the money 20 years ago."

"Liberty don't work as good in practice as it does in speeches."

The Modern Way

A local department store is advertising artificial flowers—"lifelike—washable."

One is tempted to say that, while a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, anything else by the name of a rose would not. But that would be ignoring the resourcefulness of modern industry. For all we know, these artificial flowers may smell just like the real ones, or it they do not it would be a fairly simple matter to remedy the defect.

Flower lovers who may take offence at this latest development need not look to us for sympathy. Very few of them have picketed stores which sell other imitations of the real thing.

Since haters of the cross refuse to hang together, it is fairly obvious that they are doomed to hang separately.

All that is now required to complete the improvement on nature is bloodless beef, foamless beer, greaseless butter, and an electronic device to take the strain and worry out of such diversions as bridge, chess, checkers and tiddlywinks.

Opposes Any Change In Zwick's Ja. Name

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

It was with shocked incredulity that I read Mayor Haig's suggestion in Tuesday's evening paper that the name of Zwick's Island be changed or tampered with. Surely His Worship has given this matter the most indifferent consideration? Are we to remain unconcerned and unaroused of anything pertaining to the past with no reverence for tradition or sentiment? I suppose one could conjure up fancier and more modern names for Quinte, Marine or Telegraph Narrows, etc. but I am sure you realize that all interest and pride in our local past

The parcel of land under debate has been known as Zwick's Island for many generations, including my own, have played on and enjoyed its old gravel pits and shorelines.

Captain Phillip Zwick was given as his Loyalist grant 400 acres at the mouth of the Moira River, including the Island. He built what was then the most pretentious house in the district most of which still stands, known as the Zwick Homestead West, and now owned and occupied by Mr. Percy Buckley, local high school teacher.

Phillip Zwick Jr. was born in this house in 1787 and was the first who raised and grew the first apple tree and orchards in the district. He was also the first Collection in the war of 1812-14 to the Fire Hastings Militia. Afterward he saw service in the rebellion of 1837. Another Zwick was in evidence during the North West Rebellion of 1885.

The Zwicks were intermarried with the Thompsons, descendents of Lord Monk: also the Huffmans, from one of the Loyalists. Dr. Frank Zwick was born in 1860, educated in Belleville, Cobourg and Ottawa; graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto; practised and died in Stirling.

More local history evolves around the Zwicks but space is short and so would be our appreciation if we continue obliterating all evidence of things we should hold sacred.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH IN THAT SUFFICIENCY

At the time of the crucifixion of Jesus, the veil of the temple was rent in twain. This veil concealed the holy of holies, that room assigned solely for worship for all believing Jews. Behind this veil no one ever went except the high priest, and he only once a year.

Suddenly as Christ expired on the cross the veil of the temple was rent in twain from top to bottom. Christian believers of that day took this to mean—and we believers of a later century would for the most part agree with them — that this rending of the veil meant the opening of God's full and revealed religion to the whole world. For certain special and very definite reasons God had set the Hebrew people aside that through them He might reveal Himself and His nature to all of men in a particular fashion.

Now there was to be no birthright superiority of any kind set aside. The religion of Jesus Christ was now to become a great world force. Its power would go among all nations. There would be no race of people who could be excluded from its benefits. Furthermore, this disclosure of God through Jesus Christ was complete and final. All we could know of God and all we could use of His benefits had come to the race through Jesus Christ.

Let us always think of faith in him as faith in the completeness, the sufficiency, the overwhelming power of God.

'Antis' Have Deep Need To Punish

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What the medical men call a "syndrome" — a group of concurrent symptoms all expressing the same disease — is not limited to the individual body. It is also present in the social organism.

For instance much attention has been paid in the press lately to the "right-wing radicalism" of the John Birchers and others who propose such extreme and fanatical measures for combatting communism.

If the men in these groups are examined closely, however, it will be found that almost all of them have a common "syndrome" that goes far beyond communism and the political field.

There are people with a deep need to believe in the devil, and they find "devils" who are responsible for the ills of society. They cannot exist comfortably blaming some external agent for most of our woes.

This generation the "devil" happens to be communism. In the past, it was the freemasons, or bankers, or the Pope, or any number of things that served as a convenient object for their hates and resentments.

Such people do not see really psychiatric studies, nor political ones — they are content with a banal component in their make up. This is why no argument logic or, indeed, fact can ever touch their basic beliefs.

Like all paranoids, they see "conspiracy" everywhere. The average person knows that things happen because of the cause of indifference and inattention on the part of ordinary human flaws; but the paranoid views all crises as having been caused by the deliberate intention of sinister forces.

In this universe, we find all manner of "anti" movements — because the paranoid is always an "anti," and is never really a "pro." When you ask him what he stands for, he replies "Americanism," and when you ask him what that means — why it means "getrid of" everyone who does not stand for the same kind of Americanism. This is nothing less than lunacy.

Equally the sort of Americanism that the Birchers and their allies represent more closely resembles the "Germanism" of Hitler than anything else. All use a symbolism that is alike, no matter which flag it appears under. It is anti-labor, anti-liberal, anti-minority, anti-intellectual, and anti-democratic to the point where it is out to everybody — who is-at-all-different-from.

This, I submit, is a sickness of the mind, not a political position; just as the fanatical Marxist of the left suffers from a distortion of reality. Such personalities have been twisted and thwarted so that their motivating forces are not love and understanding, but hatred and punishment. They are sick, and the measure of their numbers is a thermometer reading of the world's fever and delirium.

Lumps in Breasts of Women Not Necessarily Malignant

Dear Dr. Molner: What percentage of breast lumps in girls under 21 are malignant?

"Would a malignant lump show any growth in 10 months?

"Is there any positive test except removal when can show what causes a lump?

"What is the function of a lump which swells and becomes sore along with the rest of the breast before each menstrual cycle, and recedes and loses the soreness after menstruation?—F.T.D."

By dint of education, we already have many women watching for signs of that common peril, breast cancer.

Now it's time, obviously, to make clear that a great many lumps are not malignant.

Any lump is worth examining; however, many will be harmless, and some will be of only minor significance. To answer today's questions:

I can't provide a "percentage" of malignant lumps in girls under 21 years. The percentage I am sure is small. It is rare for such a malignancy at that age.

Yes, a malignant lump would show growth in 10 months — but I hope nobody waits that long.

Yes, there are methods, other than removal, which are used to determine what is causing the lump — a technique known as transillumination, for one, and aspiration (that is, drawing out) fluid from a cyst.

For the final question, the breast is made up of what we call "glandular tissue." It responds to glandular activity, which in turn rises and falls to regulate menstruation.

Because of this it is not unusual for this glandular tissue to and fail to cause the breas; to be congested and sore before a period, and return to normal afterward.

If a cystic lump exists, it, too, can swell and perhaps become sensitive as the glandular activity rises, and then recede as glandular activity subsides.

Your this sort of cyclical fluctuation in size of a lump is substantial indication that it is a cyst. However, if your mind still isn't at rest concerning it, removal of the cyst (biopsy) is relatively simple, it is not often be deforming, and will settle yourself. Then a look at it will tell whether it is malignant or benign — it's pretty certain to be the latter, of course.

Dear Dr. Molner: A relative of ours has a daughter of whom we are very fond. We are concerned now because she wants to marry her uncle, her father's brother's son. They met again recently after not seeing each other since childhood. I am afraid something might be wrong with any children result. ing from such a marriage. Am I worried over nothing? They seem to think so. — Mrs. R.T."

I'd be worried, too. An undesirable relationship is even closer than that of first cousins and the risk with them is too great. I can't approve of such a match.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does frequent itching in the rectum mean a fistula, or fissures? Can it be cured without surgery? — Mrs. D."

It might mean either of those; it might mean a hemorrhoid; it might mean some other form of irritation. It does mean, however, that it's about time to see a doctor and decide which. Maybe surgery is the only answer, but many cases can be relieved without it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

According to a young man in spider-leg pants and a car coat, with whom I was sharing a couch in the dentist's waiting room, brainiks are now "corny." The thing to look for in a man is a chest. "Here you a beatnik?" I enquired cautiously.

"No," he said, "But I got a touch of pizmaniac poisoning that took over after the pad jus; about the time this new fashion came in."

The dentist at this juncture called him in, and with a leopard-like spring he floated in the door.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I CAN — I WILL

Few of us ever dare the outskirts of our possibilities.

An average achievement is so much easier, and besides one has to work hard to get ahead with larger achievements; and then come those larger responsibilities, problems, and acute perplexities which one can do very well the loss of all.

Dare the daring deserve have!

And what I mean by "daring" is for a man to take a long look and enter into all of life — that he may use and express every inch of the stuff that he is capable of saying, as he nears the sunset of his life, "I have lived!"

There are those who forge events. There are those who from nothing become something — who are in dreams and do big deeds. Men with two full eyes — one saying "I can," the other saying, "I will."

These are the rare men of all time, the Columbuses, the Rhodeses, the Schweitzers — well, all the builders.

And are the men who receive the report that it cannot be done, but never start a job or shed and do it.

They have never got over the first hurdle in success, which is: "You-can't-do-it-because-you-have-never-done-it-before."

The "I can — I will" man smiles at that hurdle, and with a mighty stride and a jump, soars over it. Why not?

Hitch to these twins: "I CAN — I WILL." You won't need any other partners.

stricken area said rescuers would have little to do but recover the dead—"There are no injured."

Roberto Thorndike, chairman of the Peruvian Red Cross, said initial estimates by representatives in the area put the number of missing at 2,300. Ambassador Loeb reported estimates of 4,000 missing and presumed dead.

The village of Huarascucho, said to have a larger population that Ranrahirca, also was reported to have disappeared under the huge slide.

More than 7,000 persons lived in the ranching and mining valley, 9,000 feet up with the snow-topped peaks of the Cordillera Blanca Range looking down on them.

CURRENTS RAGE

Volunteers struggled through quagmires of mud and melting ice to recover bodies that began to appear as waters of the Santa River began to recede. The avalanche swept hundreds of thousands of tons of debris into the river, swelling its waters and sending a torrent raging downstream. Dozens of bodies were recovered in Chimbote, a port on the Pacific more than 100 miles from Ranrahirca.

Many of the bodies recovered were mutilated beyond identification and were buried in a common grave.

The avalanche was born on Mount Huascaran and peaks below it forming the canyon of Lanzagancon. Enormous blocks of ice, melting in the summer sun, broke away and collected tons upon tons of rocks and snow as they rolled down into the canyon.

The avalanche grew steadily as it roared into the valley below to overwhelm the unsuspecting Indians just sitting down to eat their evening meal.

The avalanche buried the village cathedral and its prized colonial art works, the village hall and the school. A few houses beyond the perimeter of the slide escaped.

six-nation Common Market.

Washington reports said the Canadian government would be asked to adopt a similar policy on reducing Canadian tariffs.

There has been no official Canadian reaction to this idea, but it is expected that the Canadian government will want to see how far the U.S. Congress goes in granting President Kennedy his tariff requests before committing Canada to a policy of slashing its own tariffs.

This is the second major conference on trade held here in two weeks.

Last week Edward Heath, the minister in charge of Britain's negotiations for entry to the Common Market, held two days of discussions with the same team of Canadian ministers involved in the U.S. talks.

The Canadian government's chief concern has been whether Britain can negotiate protections for Commonwealth trade rights in the British market should the United Kingdom join the Common Market.

The U.S. government is understood to approve of British membership in the Common Market. But it has long been critical of the special trade arrangements which Britain grants Commonwealth countries.

Finance Minister Fleming is head of the four-man Canadian cabinet team which includes Trade Minister Hees, External Affairs Minister Green and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

With Mr. Dillon are Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, and Undersecretary of State George Ball.

Mr. Ball is the U.S. state department's chief expert on trade and economic affairs, and is one of the main architects of President Kennedy's new trade proposals.

W. Thomas Simpson Named Chairman of Bay of Quinte District High School Board

Mr. W. Thomas Simpson, manager of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has been named as the 1962 chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Mr. Simpson's appointment as the head of the district board was confirmed at last night's inaugural meeting. He succeeds Mr. Archie Greatrix as the board head. Mr. Greatrix was named vice-chairman.

This year's board membership has two changes from last year, caused by the retirement of Alfred Wickett and J. B. Durrant.

Board members for 1962 are as follows: Belleville — A. O. Drysdale, William Argue, A. C. Campbell, Dr. J. S. Barlow, John A. McArthur and Gerald Wishart; Thurlow — A. L. Greatrix and Grant Kerr; Tyendinaga — Bruce Porti; Ameliasburg — Clifford Barber and David Rowe; Sidney — C. Allyn Pinkle and Basil Brooks; Frankford — C. Raymond Rowe; Hastings county representative — Brooks Allen; Public School Board representative — W. Thomas Simpson; and Separate School Board — J. J. Trudeau.

Standing committee heads are — School Management, Gerald Wishart; Sites and Accommodation, Basil Brooks; Property and Supply, Bruce Porti; Finance, Jack McArthur; Transportation, Clifford Barber.

In his inaugural address, Mr. Simpson asked for the co-operation of board members to deal with the many problems which lie ahead for the board this year.

The board this year is carrying out two large construction projects at both the Moira and Quinte Secondary Schools. Both additions are to be used mainly for technical training.

Construction of the technical school addition at Moira Secondary is already underway with footings for the structure now in place. Central Bridge of Trenton is expected to commence the steel work in the near future. Full cost of the construction, amounting to over a million dollars, is being paid for by the senior government.

Tentative approval for the addition to the Quinte Secondary School has now been granted, by the Ontario Department of Education, board members have been advised.

The proposed addition will consist of five shop rooms, two laboratories and a typing room, an occupational training shop for boys, a gymnasium and cafeteria extension.

Full costs of the Quinte school addition are also expected to be paid by the senior governments.

The board will approach the Ontario Trustees Council with the view to changing the present policy of advertising for teachers only on the weekend. Local board members feel it would be more advantageous to boards outside the metropolitan area if teacher advertisements were placed during the week.

Memberships were renewed in both the Ontario Trustees Council and in the Ontario Urban-Rural School Trustees Association.

Membership in the advisory vocational committee has been increased from eight to 12 members with the additional members being Don Hichens, Dr. J. M. McLean, V.S., T. Oostendorp and R. Walton.

Representatives from each of the three high schools were authorized to attend a guidance conference a. Massena, N.Y., while Robt. Phillips, science and agricultural teacher at Moira, was authorized to be absent from classes on certain weekends to act as consultant with the Ontario Department of Education.

A technical director for Quinte Secondary School will be hired for the new technical school addition.

The Walker Hardware Company has been awarded the contract for the finish hardware at the new addition to Moira School.

Bridge St. Church U.C.W. Inaugurated

The inaugural service for the new organization known as "United Church Women" for Bridge Street United Church was held on January 7th, at 11 a.m.

The specially prepared program was used. Assisting the Rev. H. M. Davis was: Mrs. Gordon Anderson, former president of Women's Association; Mrs. Irwin Sagar, former president of W.M.S.; Mrs. Coleman, former president Evening Auxiliary; Mrs. Shaver, former president of Corporation Group.

This organization wishes us to enroll every woman of the congregation that she may receive information of the work of the church at home and abroad, and have a part in promoting it.

Both laymen and laywomen can exert a tremendous influence in the church by their work or community, but need to be informed of the church's activities.

He further explained the work of the church boards at home and abroad and this change was brought about through their suggestions and advising.

The service was enjoyed by the congregation and gave all of those present an idea of the new organization of "United Church Women."

Add Vitimans Merely as a Sales Gimmick

OTTAWA (CP)—Vitamins are being added to an increasing number of foods sold in Canada merely as a sales gimmick, says a federal health official.

"In only one situation is this people consume these vitamins and there is no harm to their health," says Dr. A. C. Morrell, head of the health division's food and drug directorate.

"Despite the restrictions that are put on the labelling and claims for vitamin products, there is an increasing number of foods appearing on the market with added vitamins in which the vitamins serve no other purpose then as a sales gimmick."

Dr. Morrell's remarks are contained in an article in the official Canada Year Book, published late in 1961, dealing with federal food and drug legislation in Canada.

He says regulations stipulate that products having more than the minimum of vitamin content must be labelled "for therapeutic use only" and may not be sold as foods or drugs.

The directorate was also concerned with the safety of foods as affected by the proper use of chemical additives. Principle on which it based its administrative policy are that use of the additive must contribute something of value to the consumer; the amounts used must be well below the level at which harmful effects can be observed; there must be no deception or fraud as a result of use of the substance.

Question: I'm planning a shower for a close friend. How far in advance of the wedding should it be held? — R.C., St. Joseph, Mo.

Answer: Showers usually are given a month or six weeks before the wedding, to avoid interfering with preparations in the final weeks. . . .

Question: We recently did an about-face, and moved from a house in the suburbs into an apartment house in the city. I don't know anyone here, and I'm not sure if it would be correct to strike up a conversation with neighbors I see in the elevator. If I did, would they get the impression I'm being brash? — Mrs. I. C., Bronx, N.Y.

Answer: City-folk are notoriously slow in becoming neighborly. It would not seem forward to meet people you meet in the elevator every day, in a few months time, if no one has made any overture to you, then you might invite one or two women in for tea and let nature take its course.

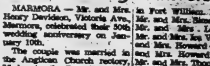
Mr., Mrs. Henry Davidson Mark 60th Wedding Anniversary

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davidson, Victoria Ave., Marmora, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on January 10th.

The couple was married in the Anglican Church rectory, Madoc, by the Rev. Charles E. Young and the bride, the former Miss Ida Holland, was attended by her sister, Miss Grace Holland, who now resides in the west. The groomsman was Mr. Theodore Simms, also a resident.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson were both born in this district and have lived here all their 82-year years, when they resided in Meaford.



Their family consists of five daughters and two sons, who were all present except one son, in Fort William. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Benson Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Vansickle, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dunnes, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dunnes, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davidson of Belleville, who, with 32 grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren, made up the dinner party.

A purse was presented to their parents.

Neighbors, friends and relatives called in the afternoon and evening and many lovely gifts were received.

The granddaughters served anniversary cake and tea to both occasions.

The best wishes of the community are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Davidson.

Mrs. E.C. — She makes his tantrums worse by punishing him.

Mrs. E.C. — My daughter has two little boys, 3 and 5. The older one comes to a quick boil over every little thing. When he can't get a mechanical toy to work, or if his little brother kicks something over, he bursts into tears, hits his toy to bits over, and kicks it across the room. Sometimes he starts pummeling the little one.

What makes things worse is that his mother feels she has a tantrum of her own. She starts yelling, drags him out of the room, swats him a few times, and they keep shouting back and forth for the next half-hour. Why can't she be the calm one, quiet him down, find out what happened, and show him the right way to handle it?

* * *

Phoebe T. — I do have calm moments with Ricky. It just happens that Mother is around evenings when we're all frazzled. And Ricky plays up to her, puts on a full-course show for her benefit, whenever anything goes wrong, or anyone crosses him. All I do is cut the show short.

Besides I have to think of the example he's setting for the baby. When he's angry he says the most terrible things and the little one repeats them — things like "I hate you," "I'll kill you," "I wish I was dead." I must show his temper doesn't get Ricky's not acting right a good most be punished. So I pull Ricky away and we both explode.

* * *

The Council: Here is another of those cases where both sides are right, but not completely. Ricky gets angry. We all do, even the saints among us. Anger is an emotion. Break that into e-motion, add a dash of Latin common sense, and one sees demanding feeling that must move out! Ricky, then, is be- having in a psychologically healthy way. So, perhaps, is his mother. What Mrs. C. is looking for is behavior that's socially acceptable as well.

We like the way Dr. Eleanor Hamilton in Good Health treating anger outbursts in her new book, "Partners in Love." For children as well as adults she claims, "There is nothing intrinsically wrong with expressing anger. It is natural . . . a casualties." And she goes on to recommend harmless physical outlets such as clay pounding, punching pummeling, pillow strangling, hammering and kicking. These relieve the muscular tensions which get in the way of clear thinking and honest feelings.

Thus Ricky is on the road to better physical and mental health, by giving vent to his fears and masking no secret of his agony, rather than repressing his feelings, and burying them deep where they'd have a corrosive effect upon his muscles, nerves and personality. He's not the type who'll get ulcers, heart attacks or worse — unless recoiled — the type who gives others ulcers!

Since the release of anger is therapeutic, Phoebe's best course is: 1) Reduce the number of snafus and beefy traps in Ricky's course so as thus to reduce his frustrations, and 2) Present him with wiser ways of working out his anger to fail about, strike out and roar! Ricky, what's in store for you? Is an adult is a frightful list . . . (starting with year), submitted by the parschoonastic prodders of ailments, handicaps and deformities.

We agree with Mrs. C. that meeting anger with more anger, is not constructive handling. Forbidding any expression is worse. Best is something like how don't laugh! an old piano swing, or a special door to slam.

Success of 'Do It Now' Campaign Dependent Upon Local Response

It seems to be the fate of many important national campaigns that they tend to "die out" at the local level. This is unfortunate but in many ways not surprising. There are so many appeals for help nowadays that it is understandable that people pass most of them by. An appeal to help $5,000 people in some faraway land has not the impact of an appeal to assist just a few persons in one's own community.

It is this fact that makes the local aspect of the "Do It Now" Winter Employment Campaign so important because, although what one does may have some bearing on Canada's economy, even more important still, it is apt to have a direct effect on the livelihood of friends down the street.

Governments at all levels, national organizations and businessmen all contribute to the success of the "Do It Now" campaign, but its ultimate success is in a community dependent on the citizens of that community.

Householders can arrange to have all types of inside work, such as decoration, decoration, repairs, and other maintenance work done in the home, done during the winter months, including time up of lawnmowers and outboard motors, dry cleaning, etc.

A member of a business organization can recommend that his firm arranges for construction and maintenance work to be done in the winter, plan the production and stockpiling of standard products during the winter months, organize special campaigns and discounts to encourage winter work, and encourage the use of annual vacations in the off-season, and the booking of personnel in winter instead of summer.

Members of a service club, church or other community organization can urge groups to schedule any construction, repairs or decorating and any other type of work to the winter months.

These are some of the things that can be done to provide winter employment for men and women in the community. Skilled tradesmen are available and will do a better job. Some firms even offer discounts to increase winter business. And speaking of money, Government backed Home and Farm Improvement loans, handled by local banks, made it possible to "Do It Now" and pay later.

This is one campaign that should not 'die out' at the local level. The benefits affect not someone miles away, but the citizens that make up the community.

This is a local campaign.

Minister of Labor Appeals To All Canadians to Assist 'Do It Now' Work Campaign

Hon. Michael Starr, Federal Minister of Labor, recently said:

"With the onset of winter Canada once again faces the problem of creating more seasonal employment. This year the battle will be fought on many fronts with more intensity than ever before.

"Canadians in all walks of life — industry, business, labor and agriculture, and from the general public — are joining forces in a concerted effort to stimulate winter employment, which will create more jobs to the benefit of everyone.

"Let us examine for a few moments some of the ways and means being used to promote this important winter work campaign. As in the past several winters, the Dominion Department of Labor and the National Employment Service are conducting the well-known Why Wait for Spring — Do It Now campaign at both the local and national levels. Directed at the consumer of goods and services, whether in the home, factory or office, the campaign publicizes the advantages in arranging as much work as possible for the winter season.

"Through the co-operation and endorsation of business organizations, labor, and other interested associations and organizations too lengthy to mention here, the winter work message is carried from coast to coast. This is done by way of truck posters, billboards, television, radio, newspapers, magazines and other media.

CAN DO MUCH

"When you hear the Do It Now slogan or see it prominently displayed in your community, stop for a moment and think what it means to you. There are many things that you can do to help yourself and at the same time to help your community. For example, you may be planning certain improvements in your home or place of business. Perhaps you are going to build a rumpus or recreation room, or maybe you want to renovate your kitchen. Or perhaps you feel that the heating system in your home needs repair. You'll find that winter is the best time to do jobs such as these.

"If all Canadians decided to have work done during the winter instead of putting it off until spring, you would soon feel the beneficial effect it would have in helping to put many seasonally unemployed workers back to work.

"Ask yourself, will gain in many ways by having work done in the winter. With men and materials more readily available during the cold months, you can usually get the job done at your convenience with prompt delivery of materials, in the spring and summer when skilled tradesmen are usually busy, and their services difficult to obtain, you may have to wait until they can fit your job into their crowded schedule.

"We would suggest that you have the job done now when good workmen are looking for the smaller interior building jobs. It will pay you many times over.

CAN SUPPORT DRIVE

"How you can play an important part in another way in the national and local efforts to help alleviate our perennial problem of seasonal unemployment. You can assist your local community campaign by giving it your vocal or active support. You can help push the principles and logic of the program among your friends and acquaintances. All such measures are helpful.

"Businessmen can help to stimulate economic activity by taking imaginative steps in their efforts to sell their goods and service during the winter. More sales mean more employment and more employment means more sales. This principle applies to every type of business. They can help themselves and the national program by tying-in their winter promotion with the Do It Now idea.

"A very significant factor in the creation of winter work has been the initiative taken by the construction and allied industries in Canada. This is a fieldthat is very adversely affected in so far as winter work is concerned.

"There was a time when the building trade would practically close up shop for three or four months. However, with the technological changes and introduction of new techniques, together with careful planning by contractors, more and more building starts, both residential and industrial, have been made during the winter.

"Then too, the public has discovered that houses and other buildings built in the winter compare with those constructed during the summer, with the added advantage of earlier occupancy.

"Thus, everyone benefits, because not only is employment kept at a higher level in the construction industry, but it also reflects in the operations of the sub-trades and others dependent on a healthy winter construction economy."

National Film Board Production Shows Winter Construction Jobs

An enlightening survey of how Canada is overcoming the difficulties and hazards of winter construction is now available in the form of 6 new National Film Board release "Winter Construction — It Can Be Done". The film shows how ingenuity and skill are daring the winter months on a number of large building projects in different parts of Canada. Successful methods of overcoming problems of snow and cold are clearly explained.

But perhaps most significant are two statements which are included in the film.

The first is that, more and more, large businesses that want buildings constructed are specifying that the work is to go ahead as fast as possible, regardless of weather conditions. This specification means that the customer can no longer tolerate delays previously caused by weather conditions. That, I guess it up to the contractors and architects to devise means of continuing construction without regard to the thermometer. A good start is paid, which the film makes clear, is the matter of prefabrication. Today with the growth of population in most centres, one or two schools must be constructed each year. School Boards cannot wait for this accommodation; they must have it as quickly as possible in order to meet the steady increase in enrollment. Thus the idea of building schools only in good weather had to be rejected and construction methods devised to build throughout the entire year.

The second point of major significance is the statement by one job superintendent in the film that "building in winter does not increase costs out of proportion". He states that the additional expense of providing heat and some form of shelter for men and materials is largely offset by other factors. These include the greater availability of material and supplies, the increased efficiency of workers who actually perform better on cold days than in warm days, and they do in the best of summer, the fact that the most qualified workmen are available in winter, and finally the fact that spreading work over a twelve month period tends to reduce overhead and administration costs in large building firms.

The National Research Council Division of Building Research investigated with the National Film Board in the production of this film, and credit is given to the cooperation of the construction industry of Canada.

For those who have to see in order to believe, this film will provide a convincing argument that the Canadian winter need be no obstacle to year - round construction. The answer lie in heating techniques far ground preparation and building materials, and in sheltering devices for construction crews.

Winter work has long been advocated as a means of combating unemployment and levelling out the employment cycle. It does play an important role in this regard but even more important, the ability of builders to master the techniques of cold weather construction will have a great influence on the future development of the country.

Can Finance Winter Work By Home Improvement Loan

Lack of ready cash need no longer prove an insurmountable obstacle to making needed improvements in your home this winter.

All citizens in our community are being urged by the local Winter Employment Committee to carry out deferred repairs, decoration and other projects in their homes in order to provide winter employment for thousands of workers affected by seasonal unemployment.

Many have been afraid to construct game rooms, additional attic bedrooms or to redecorate the entire house; but perhaps can't proceed beyond the planning stage because of financing problems.

If this is the case, a visit to a bank and a discussion with the manager concerning a NHA Home Improvement Loan may be the solution.

Home owners throughout Canada have taken advantage of these loans, which are guaranteed by the Government of Canada, to finance home improvement projects.

Residents may use a NHA loan to complete a variety of work and payments can be spread over any period up to ten years. The interest rate is 6 percent per annum.

Loans as high as $4,000 are available for single family dwellings, plus $1,500 for each additional unit of a multiple family dwelling up to a maximum of $8,000 for a four-unit dwelling.

A wide variety of types of improvements are included for which NHA Home Improvement Loans may be used, and include: (1) Alterations or repairs to an exterior or interior of a home, including the addition of one or more rooms; (2) The repair, alteration or rebuilding of a home damaged or destroyed by fire, flood or storm; (3) The building or altering or adding to a garage or outbuilding excluding the construction of a principal dwelling; (4) The demolition or moving of buildings or parts of buildings; (5) The purchase, installation, repair or improvement of heating, plumbing, air conditioning or electrical systems in a home; (6) Painting, paper hanging and other general decorating, including floor covering; (7) the construction or repair of driveways, sidewalks, etc.; (8) The purchase or storm doors, storm windows, screen and awnings.

NHA Home Improvement loans are secured by a promissory note and if the loan exceeds $1,250, the lender may take such additional security as is considered appropriate, including a mortgage or an assignment of the owner's interest in the home.

If this type of loan will assist in improving one's home, now is an excellent time to discuss the matter with a bank manager. With winter the demands on the construction field are lessened and there is a plentiful supply of materials as well as competent labor available to do the job.

Unemployment During Winter Is Big Problem

"One of the most serious problems that plagues Canada's national economy is winter unemployment," the chairman of the local Winter Employment Campaign Committee said today.

"Each winter thousands of workers are laid off their jobs and have to depend on public assistance to keep their families," he said. "This results in reduced production and the loss of purchasing power amounting to millions of dollars."

He continued, "In the absence of a community all employed persons contribute to the economy by spending, to the economic well-being of our city."

He said that such winter, partly because of cold weather, and partly because of habit, the economic activity in this community slows down and many wage earners become unemployed. The economic balance is upset and more unemployment is created. This situation can be likened to the widening rings when a pebble is thrown into a pool. The waves of unemployment spread wider and wider affecting our entire city, and like the waves created in a pool, unemployment spreads to other communities and affects the entire nation.

"This happens every year," the chairman stated, "and it is our responsibility as citizens of a growing city to prevent it here at home."

In an all-out effort to prevent this annual disruption leading citizens have joined the Winter Employment Committee to conduct a campaign aimed at preventing winter unemployment before it takes its toll.

The Government of Canada, through the Department of Labor and the National Employment Service, is providing all-out support to campaign committees across Canada. This support takes the form of publicity material and National Winter Employment Advertising program, and provides financial assistance to communities conducting winter-time public works.

BATAWA — Tomorrow, Saturday, will be a big day for this sports-minded flourishing shoe community. It is Ski Day for the district-membered club that bears the name of the village.

They're going to officially open the ski season with a colorful sequence of ceremonies, ritual, sports and fun. As my favorite after-dinner orator-raconteur Arthur Duncan puts it, "It's going to be a gala day."

"Old Baldy," Batawa's favorite "mountain," will thrust out his timbered chest in justifiable pride. He is going, to be the centre of attraction since it is upon his slopes the fine ski runs are located.

Batawa Ski Club president Tony Cervinka and secretary-treasurer Milton Edwards have left nothing undone to make "Ski Day" the outstanding event of the village's winter sports calendar. Everything is in readiness. Success lies in the hands of the weathermen.

It is hoped Mr. Thomas Bata, head of the far-flung shoe organization that bears his name; Dr. C. K. Ross and other top Bata officials; ranking officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force, with civic and community leaders of the area, will take part in the opening ceremonies.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony which takes place at 2.30 will officially open the season and the figurative gateway to the ski runs for the hundreds of enthusiasts of the sport expended to attend.

The ceremonies, however, merely add an official touch to the day's sports fun. Actually the ski runs will be opened in the morning with the two tows of the club in operation.

The runs have excellent permanent bases and good top snow, but, as amiable Mr. Duncan says, "a few inches of the white stuff will not come amiss." It seems Batawa and its immediate surroundings areas missed the heavy falls that blanketed the Belleville and Prince Edward county district recently.

There will be other winter's sports attractions, too. While the ski-ers are having their fun, others can enjoy skating and tobogganing. There are ample facilities available for both. Refreshment centres will be open all day.

And Arthur Duncan informs me "Ski Day at Batawa" will be along the lines of an "open house" affair. The fun and facilities of the sports program will be open to the public. Bata, Batawa and the Batawa Ski Club extend a cordial invitation, to all to enjoy the day's activities. All will be warmly welcomed.

The Ski Club was organized some three years ago by a handful of enthusiasts of the sport who realized that excellent natural facilities were practically under their noses.

They cost appreciative eyes at "Old Baldy" who was too big to duck and too heavily timbered to hide. So these ski Mahomets went to the mountain and literally hewed their runs out of the living "forest," so to speak

They went to work with bulldozer, tractor, axe, chain-saw and shovel. They worked Saturdays, Sundays and in weekday spare time. Eventually they were rewarded with a 1,800-foot ski-run that ranks with the best in Ontario. Two ski tows were installed.

"It was one of the finest community efforts taken on and completed I have ever known," said Mr. Duncan. "These people did not get one cent for their efforts and labor. It was magnificent team-work and a distinct credit to them, the club, and the community."

The club has mushroomed from the original handful to a membership of well over 300. They came from Trenton, the RCAF stations, Belleville, Brighton, and some from Cobourg, which itself boasts a fine run.

Ski-ing should come naturally to Czech-born residents of Batawa and in a hereditary sense to their Canadian offspring.

While in France, Czechoslovakia, with the Belleville McFarlands hockey club in March, 1959, I attended an official welcome given the visiting press by Mayor Jan Sebik, and minister of finance and physical culture, Ladislav Menes.

I learned through Mr. Menes that while soccer was the favorite national sport, ski-ing was extremely popular particularly in the mountainous districts. Some 30,000 Czechs were at that time taking part in competitive skiing. Thousands of others, especially the youngsters, enjoyed the sport.

CAHA Meets Today

Terriers Tour on Agenda

BELLEVILLE, Sask. (CP) — Final playoff arrangements for the Memorial Cup and Allan Cup top hockey agenda slated for the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association executive meeting in Winnipeg Saturday.

Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary - manager, said Thursday the chore would be easier this year because the National Hockey League has agreed not to televise its games on three nights of the week. The interlocking days would be used for amateur playoffs.

Also on the agenda are arrangements for sending Galt Terriers to the world hockey championships at Colorado Springs March 4 and final approval of a western tour by the Terriers.

Special reports are to be heard on a proposed national hockey college, for Canada and a national hockey magazine.

The meeting likely will discuss matters pertaining to the 1964 Olympic Games. Juckes said, and consider plans for the observance of the CAHA's golden jubilee meeting the same year.

Plante, Hall Steal Victory Thunder From Habs Tops Bruins Blanked

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a night for great goaling in the National Hockey League Thursday.

In Montreal, Toronto Maple Leafs furiously outshot and outskated Montreal Canadiens in an attempt to hang on to the NHL's first place, but were thwarted 4-2 by masked goalie Jacques Plante, who turned in one of his best games ever.

In Boston, Chicago's almost-invincible Glenn Hall turned in his fifth shutout of the season as the Hawks whipped last-place Boston Bruins 6-0. Hall, who has never missed a game since he moved up to the NHL-six years ago, coolly blocked 24 shots to become the league's shutout-leader this season.

He is one ahead of Detroit's Terry Sawchuk, who has four.

The rapidly-improving Leafs took over first place from Montreal by one point Wednesday night and could have stretched their lead to three with a win Thursday.

CAN'T GET BY

They almost did it out, buzzing around the Montreal net all through the first and second periods, but couldn't get past Plante.

Carl Brewer of the Leafs was in the penalty box when Dickie Moore scored to put Montreal ahead 1-0 in the first period.

In the second period the Leafs outshot Montreal 16-7, but little Bobby Rousseau scored for the Montreal. Knocked down by Toronto defenceman Bobby Baun, Rousseau kept trying and as he was toppling over stretched out and flicked a loose puck into the net past Leafs' goalie Johnny Bower.

In the third period, fairly even in the play, Henri Richard and Don Marshall increased the Canadiens lead to 4-0 before Dave Keon finally cracked Plante's armor at 12:36.

Keon fired a blazing 10-footer and Plante got a piece of it, but the puck had enough momentum left to roll past him into the net. Tommy Earl Olmstead followed up the goal 30 seconds later with his second best play. He took the puck behind his own net and twisted through the whole Montreal team to beat Plante with another quick 10-footer.

In all, Plante made 39 saves and Bower 25.

TOE FOR THIRD

At Boston, Hall had less work to do as he blocked 24 shots and led Chicago to a third-place tie with New York Rangers. Each team now has 28 points, but Rangers have one game in hand.

The scoring was well spread. Bronco Horvath scored two goals and Bobby Hull, Reg Fleming, Bob Turner and replacement Chico Maki once each.

Hull added three assists and defenceman Pierre Pilote also had three assists.

Boston treated the few fans who showed up—2,800—to some good fisticuffs.

Rookie defenceman Ted Green battled with Chicago's Murphy midway through the first period and both drew majors and minors. Halfway through the second period, Green went after Bobby Hull and bloodied Hull's nose before linesmen broke it up.

Green went off with another major and an automatic 10-minute misconduct.

STOP FALSE CLAIMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three New York firms agreed Thursday to a government order which prohibits them from making false claims that Japanese-made baseball gloves are used or endorsed by prominent major league stars. The Federal Trade Commission in 1960 charged that the companies and the Japanese manufacturer imprint the names of baseball stars on gloves which the stars neither used nor approved. Signing the consent order were firms importing firm and two distributors.

Tough Battle For Macs Here Tonight

The Belleville McFarlands will have to come up with a vastly improved performance over their last outing if they hope to stop the red-hot Kingston Frontenacs here tonight.

The Frontenacs, who have climbed the ladder swiftly to join the Macs and Gananoque Islanders in a battle for the OHA Eastern Junior hockey top spot, will be seeking their third win of the year against the Macs in the nine o'clock fixture tonight. They are only two points off the pace.

Kingston is the only club that has held its own against the Macs this year, administering Eastern league leaders' three defeats. The Macs have defeated Kingston twice in the league series, tallying 11-8 and 8-1.

The 6-4 defeat came in Kingston late last Monday night and snapped an eight-game win string for the Macs.

Mac coach Gordie Bell was unhappy with his team's performance Monday and at the same time gave credit to the Frontenacs. "They are the toughest team we will meet in the league and we're going to have to play a lot different game to beat them here. They hustled and skated Monday and we didn't and there's the reason for that," Bell added.

The Macs hope to have "Pug" Kellar back in the lineup for tonight's game. Kellar, the team's top goal scorer with 17, missed Monday's game with a painful charley horse.

Jim Brown Won't Play More Pay?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fullback Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns, the National Football League's leading ground gainer, says he may not play next year.

Brown told a Los Angeles Herald - Examiner sports writer that he was forced to carry the ball too much in 1961 and that he may have business opportunities too good to neglect. He said his contract with the Browns has expired and chances are he'll clear even he will not play in 1962.

"It was my feeling last season," Brown said, "that I was asked to do more than my share. I made more than 300 rushes and caught 46 passes. It was my roughest year in football."

In Cleveland, coach Paul Brown said with a chuckle: "This is the time of the year for our Jim to start laying the groundwork for a new contract."

COACHES WANT CHANGES

CHICAGO (AP)—Ivy League football coaches, at a meeting Thursday, decided to investigate the possibility of using unlimited substitution next season. The coaches also recommend the return of the goal posts to the goal line instead of 10 yards back as at present. Both suggestions would have to be adopted by the league athletic directors to go into effect.

Billed Among Top Stars

Bruce Kidd Ready For Big Meet

BOSTON (CP)—The United States kicks off its first indoor track season Saturday night with the amazing Bruce Kidd of Toronto returning to the scene of one of his greatest triumphs Kidd, Canada's athlete of the year in 1961 in a Canadian Press poll, is among the headliners for the Knights of Columbus meet at Boston Gardens.

Other outstanding competitors will include world sprint king Frank Budd of the University of Villanova and former high jump champion John Thomas of Boston University.

Kidd, 19, vaulted into international rankings last year when, as a high school senior, he appeared unheralded in Boston and won the two-mile event in 8:42.2, 3.2 seconds off what then was the world standard.

The crew-cut youngster had to invite himself to the 1961 event, but he didn't have to report to this year's U.S. meets. Invitations rolled in and Kidd found himself travelling from Boston to New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, Los Angeles and Compton, Calif. He was a sensation and the fans loved him.

IN GREAT SHAPE

Kidd is expected to be in great shape to defend his two-mile crown.

"He's ready," said his coach, Fred Foot. Foot said a foot injury Kidd suffered several months ago was minor and that Bruce will be healthy enough to perhaps lower his 1961 time.

Other Canadians in the meet include Bill Crothers of Toronto, in the 600, and Donald Lyall, George Shepard of Montreal, in the 600, and Donal Smith of Toronto. Smith represented Canada in the 1960 Olympics and specializes in the mile.

Budd captured the 50 - yard dash and Thomas the high jump last year at meet. Three other defending champions will be returning—Charlie (Deacon) Jones in the mile, Villanova sophomore Roland Cruz in the pole vault and Maryland's Dave Johnson in the high hurdles.

STAR ROOKIE SIGNED

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Billy Williams, the National League's rookie of the year, signed his 1962 Chicago Cubs contract Thursday. Williams batted .278 with 25 home runs and 86 RBI in 1961.

Promoter Asks Ban Be Lifted

MONTREAL (CP) — Eddie Quinn made a plea before the Montreal Athletic Commission Thursday for reinstatement as a boxing and wrestling promoter.

The plea was taken under advisement and commission secretary Gerry Gosselin said a decision will be announced next week, probably Tuesday.

Quinn's boxing promotional licence was suspended after he called off the Archie Moore-Bob Cleroux fight scheduled for Dec. 5 here because of a poor advance ticket sale. The commission describes this as insufficient reason.

A few days later Quinn's wrestling licence also was suspended. One member said the action was taken because of irregularities. There was no elaboration.

Cash Cheque Bout off No, Its on

QUEBEC (CP)—Gene Lebourneau, national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, said Thursday the commission expected to be able to sanction soon a Canadian heavyweight title fight between champion Bob Cleroux of Montreal and Cecil Gray of Halifax.

Lebourneau said the federation was trying to verify reports that the Ontario Athletic Commission has cashed a $5,000 cheque Cleroux made out last summer as a guarantee he would give George Chuvalo of Toronto a return bout.

Chuvalo lost the title to Cleroux in Montreal last August.

Lebourneau said that if the commission has cashed the cheque a suspension against Cleroux automatically will be lifted. However, if the cheque hasn't been cashed, he said the Canadian federation will continue the suspension.

The Cleroux-Gray fight has been scheduled for Feb. 22 in Hull, Que.

If You Can't Beat 'Em Feed 'Em!

CHICAGO (CP) — The Canadian Football League threw a huge food extravaganza Thursday night for 600 delegates to the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting here.

The menu, made up of game specialities from the various Canadian provinces, was a hit. Many delegates came back for seconds and thirds.

Five hundred pounds of stewed moose; 675 pounds of pheasant; 325 pounds of wild duck; 200 pounds of salmon; 75 pounds of wild turkey; 275 pounds of venison; 90 pounds of wild rice; and 25 gallons of oysters.

The food, shipped by refrigerated planes and trucks from the various provinces, took eight hours to prepare.

For entertainment, the guests watched movies of Winnipeg Blue Bombers' 21-14 overtime defeat of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Canadian Grey Cup final last December.

Frank Filchock Gets Air

Dallas Fires Former Sasky Coach

DENVER (CP) — Frank Filchock, former quarterback and coach in Canada, was fired Thursday as coach of Denver Broncos of the American Football League.

Broncos president Calvin Kunz said Dean Griffing has been retained as general manager.

Filchock starred in college football, then went on the U.S. National Football League as a quarterback. He played in two world championship games with New York Giants.

His Canadian career began in 1947 when he was signed by Hamilton Tiger-Cats as quarterback. Later he went to Montreal Alouettes.

He went west to play quarterback and coach with Edmonton Eskimos and later became head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

He led Edmonton to Western Interprovincial Football Union title in 1952, his first year as a head coach. He had Roughriders in the western playoffs four times.

He was fired by Saskatchewan in 1957 and went to Sarnia Golden Bears of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Filchock became an AFL coach when the league was formed in 1960.

LOSING YEARS

Last fall, his team won only three games against 11 losses for a total of seven wins, 20 losses and a tie in two seasons.

Kunz told reporters no successor has been selected, but expressed interest in Frank (Pop) Ivy, who quit recently as coach of St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL. Ivy coached Edmonton to three grey cups.

Two other coaches with Canadian backgrounds are also possibilities—Vic Lindskog, who coached British Columbia Lions and Hamp Pool, who was head coach with Toronto Argonauts. Both are assistant coaches with Los Angeles Rams of the NFL, where Pool once was head coach.

The cigar-chomping Filchock was not available for comment. He is the sixth of the original eight coaches in the AFL to get fired.

Scoreless String Now Broken

TIMMINS (CP) — Little Mel McCormick is the hero of the Moncton Hawks of Porcupine Juvenile Hockey League.

He scored both goals Thursday night when his mates edged the South Porcupine Gold Kings, ending Moncton's string of nine minutes, 17 seconds, without scoring.

Neither nobody's celebrating too much. South Porcupine scored eight goals to the Moncton's string to one tie, 14 defeats — and no victories.

Hard Keeps Hopes Alive

SYDNEY (AP) — Darlene Hard of Montreal, Que., Calif., scored in both women's doubles and mixed doubles Thursday and kept alive her hopes for a triple slam in the Australian national tennis championships.

The 26-year - old American champion also is one of the eight survivors in women's singles.

SUSPEND TEAM CAPTAIN

OMAHA (AP) — The Omaha International Hockey League club said Thursday its captain and right winger, Pat Gianelli, had been suspended indefinitely by commissioner Frank Calleger as the result of a fracas involving Gianelli and referee Bill Purcell in a game at Indianapolis.

Honors Memory of Young Athlete, Student

The Tommy McNevin Memorial Award

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A handsome trophy will perpetuate the memory of Tommy McNevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don McNevin of this city, a former pupil of Queen Alexandra Public School, and an outstanding minor hockey player.

The Tommy McNevin Memorial Award has been donated by two prominent residents of the city who wish to remain anonymous.

These men occupy important positions in the community; are public-spirited and thoroughly appreciate the value of athletics and education in the building of future citizens.

Tommy was a fine student and a member of the Squirt Division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

The Memorial Award, a thing of beauty acquired through the courtesy of the Harry O'Connor Jewel Box, shall be awarded annually to a pupil of the Belleville public and separate schools who qualifies under the conditions of the trophy.

He will be a member of the "Squirt Division" B.M.H.A., and judged to be deserving in the fields of "sportsmanship", school work and meaning appreciation.

The winner will be selected from those who have won "sportsmanship" trophies in the twelve teams of the division, donated by a trio of citizens last year.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The trustees of the McNevin Memorial are director of recreation L. G. Doran; superintendent of public schools, L. A. Kells and inspector of separate schools, Mr. E. J. Neville.

Names of the "squirtsmanship" winners will be forwarded to the principals of public and separate schools who will record ratings in the areas marked by school work including music appreciation.

When all ratings forms have been completed and assembled the award trustees will select the winner.

He will receive a handsome replica of the trophy as his permanent possession. His name will be engraved with the year of winning on the base of the award.

He will, in addition, receive a presentation scroll which will set forth the purpose of the award and the qualities upon which the selection is based.

The McNevin Memorial Award at present is on display in the Jerry O'Connor Jewel Box. Later it will be placed in a prominent permanent location in downtown Belleville. An accompanying parchment scroll will outline its purpose.

Tentative plans calls for the inaugural presentation of the award to be made in the city hall council chambers. Mayor A. MacLean Haig will be asked to award the trophy.

Last year the Belleville Minor Hockey Association formed its "Squirt Division" consisting of twelve teams. Some 240 youngsters of squirt age (7 to 10) took part in organized hockey.

This year the division is enjoying another highly successful season under dedicated officials, coaches and managers.

Realizing the importance of this phase of minor hockey three prominent residents of the city, as was mentioned, donated trophies to be awarded to the outstanding member of each team.

They coined and adopted the word "sportsmanship" which, they felt, embodies the qualities most trophies represent.

Tommy McNevin was one of the first winners of these "squirtsmanship" awards. He epitomized the high standards of hockey ability and behavior. He added a fine academic standing and a true appreciation of music.

The presentation of the Tommy McNevin Memorial Award and "Squirtsmanship" trophies will likely be made during the first part of February, or directly following the conclusion of the play-offs and declaration of champions.

The regular playing schedule of the division terminates January 10th.

Team of the Year

Yankees Over Packers

NEW YORK (AP)—It's baseball's New York Yankees over pro football's Green Bay Packers 1961 Team of the Year.

Results of the voting by 156 sportswriters and broadcasters participating in the annual Associated Press year - end poll showed Thursday that the Yankees and Packers crushed all opposition just as they did in winning their championships.

Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League was the only Canadian team mentioned. It was listed as receiving five or more votes. Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL were in the same category.

Ralph Houk's world-series winners collected 253 points and the National Football League titleholders 213. Boston Celtics, champions of the National Basketball Association, finished third with 109, followed by Alabama U.S. college football champions, 66; baseball's Cincinnati Reds, 54; Ohio State's basketball team, 51, and Cincinnati's NCAA basketball victors, 35.

The tally was on the basis of three points for each first-place vote, two for second and one for third. The Yankees picked up 38 votes for first place and Green Bay 35.

Rick Syndicate

Swedes Want Big Fight

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Stockholm afternoon paper Aftonbladet, said Thursday that an international syndicate, with more than $2,000,000 available, started negotiations for a heavyweight title fight between Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson of Sweden this summer.

The paper said a Swedish multi - millionaire, Per Olof Ahl, would promote the fight which would be staged either in Stockholm or Goteborg, adding:

"The plans have advanced so far that the lawyers of Floyd Patterson and the syndicate now have met for a firm negotiation round 'somewhere in Europe'."

Aftonbladet did not reveal the source of the information and Ahl was not available for any comment.

Patterson lost the heavyweight title to Johansson on a knockout in 1959, and regained it, also by knockout, in 1960. He retained it against the Swede last March.

In New York, Patterson's attorney denied he had met with anyone in Europe recently to discuss a fourth Patterson - Johansson fight.

Soprano Nilsson Stars in Siegfried

Siegfried, third music-drama in Richard Wagner's Ring Cycle will be heard on the Metropolitan Opera broadcast, Saturday, at 1.00 p.m., on CJBQ.

Featured in the leading roles are soprano Birgit Nilsson as Brunnhilde, tenor Hans Hopf as Siegfried and baritone George London as the Wanderer. Erich Leinsdorf is conductor.

Wagner began working on Siegfried in 1853 but it was not completed until 1871. During this period Wagner composed such operas as Die Meistersinger and Tristan and Isolde.

The league record of 48 points had been held by George Gerber of the old Winnipeg Rifles.

First Program by Groucho Was All Mad and Funny

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Groucho Marx came back to TV one day night with a new program Tell It to Groucho on CBS.

You can tell its a new program because its on a different network and Groucho sits in a sort of patio instead of on a stool at a desk. And they've reduced the mandatory "games" to a point where it is hardly visible, much less playable.

If the producers can keep on turning up characters like Beth and Betty, the first guests, the show will be great. They were a cat-dancing mother-daughter team in quest of husbands, (that was their problem: all guests must have one). They had their 13 cats along. Mother never stopped talking and it was all mad and funny.

NBC's occasional afternoon specials for women have been exploring so many of the unhappy, problem-scratched facets of women's life they'll soon run out and have to try something else, like The Happy Housewife, or The Teens Can Be Fun. Having run through such subjects as the trapped housewife, the odd woman, the lonely woman, the next subject up for inspection is the Promiscuous Female. If you don't want to make a note to catch it.

Recommended viewing:

Tonight — The Good Years, CBS, 8:30-10:00 p.m.—Schmidt reuse about the years between 1900 and 1918, with Lucille Ball, Henry Fonda and Dean Jagger.

Saturday — The Fourposter, NBC, 8:30-10 — Jackie Cooper, Tammy Grimes and Tom Ewell in still another TV adaptation of the durable stage play.

Sunday—John Brown's Body, CBS, 1:30-2:30 p.m.—Richard Boone recites Stephen Vincent Benet's poem, and Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson comments.

Selznick Replies to Pupil About 'Gone With the Wind'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Not many students can have a famous film producer help them with homework. Here's David O. Selznick to do just that.

Desta J. Burke of Jonesboro, Tenn., sent me a letter asking a number of intelligent questions about the making of Gone With the Wind for a school report. Lacking all the answers, I sought help from the man who made the 1939 classic. These are Selznick's replies to Desta's questions:

Q. What studio made Gone With the Wind?

A. The Selznick Studio. MGM had nothing to do with it. (Though MGM lent Clark Gable and now owns the film.)

Q. Was Margaret Mitchell consulted on production?

A. She absolutely refused to be consulted or to read the script.

She warned me before the Atlanta premiere she would renounce the picture if she didn't like it. She raved about it, and I have a half a dozen letters thanking me for the film.

Q. How long did it take to film the movie?

A. Six months.

Q. Who wrote the screen version?

A. Sidney Howard.

Q. How many Academy Awards did it win and when were they?

A. Eight — best picture, actress Vivien Leigh, supporting actress Hattie McDaniel, director Victor Fleming, writer Howard plus cinematography, art direction and editing.

Q. In the scene where Scarlett was looking for Dr. Meade, were some of the wounded men actually war figures?

A. (Even after all these years (23), Selznick declined to answer.)

Q. Does it still draw large receipts?

A. Indeed it does—48,000,000 to $10,000,000 last year.

AT THE PARK — David Janssen is cast as a detective who specializes in finding missing persons in Allied Artists' "Twenty Plus Two", opening today at the Park Theatre for a two day engagement. Co-starred with Janssen is Joanne Dru, Frank Gruber, who also produced the film, the picture stars Jean Jeanne Crain, Dina Merrill, William Shatner, Jack Kelly and Arthur Hunnicutt. On the same program journey into today's strangest sect of fear, "Snake-washed", starring Curt Jurgens and Claire Bloom. Sneak features are first showings.

Sunday School Lesson

Our Inquiring Minds

By ROY L. SMITH

It is still the custom among the Jews for congregations and individuals to recite the Shema as an exercise in private devotion, and it is held in the worship of a congregation.

The ancient rabbis are said to have found at least 248 different and separate commandments in the Shema. Many of these were, on occasions, lively arguments among them as to which was the greatest — or least — important.

The question was put to Jesus on one occasion and He ruled that it was the command in the Shema which said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all your heart and with all your soul, and with all your — but here instead of using the word "mind" as we would, He injected the word "mind." (See PEAK OF BUSINESS — THINKING

Quite unfortunately, the great world religions have been, for the most part, afraid of the inquiring mind, the inquisitive youth, the exploring individual who persists in asking "Why?"

It is a part of the divine image in which every man is created, that he finds himself forever seeking explanations.

The word "Why" is responsible for every research laboratory in the world, for every better mouse trap ever invented, for every solution to a problem, for the discovery of every scientific principle and for the proof of every spiritual law.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 14: Our Own God." Exodus 20: 1-17; Deuteronomy 6: 4-9; Matthew 6:24; John 14: 1-11.

A young lad of 14 went to his pastor and seized a very serious and deep question. That question was not revealed. "Why" is, that is a question you do not ask your father. It is, in fact, too young to ask it. The Church has faced your problem a long time before ever thought of it, and men who are wiser, perhaps, than you will ever be, have answered it. Therefore do not bother yourself to try to think this matter through. Take what the Church tells you, and you will be forever on safe ground."

With that the youth turned away from the pastor, the Church and from religion. His mind was brilliant and young, might have rendered the cause of good religion a signal service if that pastor had encouraged the mind of an inquiring boy and the real principles of his faith.

TRADITION OF GOD

Santayana, American philosopher, who has spent much of his life in the Orient, has made a distinction between Buddhism and Confucianism in China. Says he, "There is no tradition in Chinese religion or philosophy which makes any room for such a statement as that which is recited: "God is a Spirit."

Confucius, the greatest of all the Chinese philosophers and teachers, once said, "If do not know the truth, I am only waiting for it."

This is to say that there never has been, in China, anything, any final suitability. All convictions have been relative. Therefore, when the Chinese undertake to find their way through to the ultimate, they have nothing but the opinions of such as these. The-ung to guide them. Whatever seems to provide food, clothing and shelter seems best.

In contrast, the Judeo- Christian tradition has put a supernormal authority at the heart of the universe and called it God.

The communists, by contrast, have followed Marx and Lenin in their belief in his "scientific principles of history."

When Khrushchev says, "We will bury you," it is a supreme declaration of abiding faith in the ultimate triumph of those principles.

The surest way to "right conviction" is to implant in the minds of our youth the eternal conviction that there is a creative personality at the heart of the universe, to which all individuals relate, and civilizations are responsible.

Anything that interferes with teaching the supreme truth is a betrayal of the best interests of the youth and the future of the nation.

This is the foundation of our faith and our hope of survival.

Mischief Maker Is a Menace

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—About two years ago in a public place a man said to my husband, "Oh, I know your wife. I had her out the night before you married her." There is not one ounce of truth in this. I never knew the man before he moved here. However, my husband being hot tempered when drinking, he brings this up frequently and really goes mad.

Now they have moved next door and it's terrible. He knows it isn't true, but at times he goes mad and says all sorts of filthy things in the kids' presence.

I feel I am the innocent victim of someone else's big mouth. I hate to have to take so much dirt for no reason the rest of my days.—MRS. J. C.

DEAR MRS. J. C.:—With a husband like that, someone could sow the seeds of suspicion any time. He does not even want to face the truth.

No one is proof against slander, but where there is confidence between husband and wife, such rangirks fall on deaf ears. If your husband is foolishly rude to you, you won't remove the sadness with the sword of your innocence. So leave the people next door out of it.

I am sending you the name of a book which will help you take a new look at your problem. Try to see if you fall down and learn just how full and satisfying life can be. Then you will be better able to help your husband see his side of the bargain.

(Doris invites comment on correspondence. If you read about a problem similar to one you have solved, let's hear about it.)

(See PEAK OF BUSINESS — THINKING

Quite unfortunately, the great world religions have been, for the most part, afraid of the inquiring mind, the inquisitive youth, the exploring individual who persists in asking "Why?"

It is a part of the divine image in which every man is created, that he finds himself forever seeking explanations.

The word "Why" is responsible for every research laboratory in the world, for every better mouse trap ever invented, for every solution to a problem, for the discovery of every scientific principle and for the proof of every spiritual law.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 14: Our Own God." Exodus 20: 1-17; Deuteronomy 6: 4-9; Matthew 6:24; John 14: 1-11.

A young lad of 14 went to his pastor and seized a very serious and deep question. That question was not revealed. "Why" is, that is a question you do not ask your father. It is, in fact, too young to ask it. The Church has faced your problem a long time before ever thought of it, and men who are wiser, perhaps, than you will ever be, have answered it. Therefore do not bother yourself to try to think this matter through. Take what the Church tells you, and you will be forever on safe ground."

With that the youth turned away from the pastor, the Church and from religion. His mind was brilliant and young, might have rendered the cause of good religion a signal service if that pastor had encouraged the mind of an inquiring boy and the real principles of his faith.

TRADITION OF GOD

Santayana, American philosopher, who has spent much of his life in the Orient, has made a distinction between Buddhism and Confucianism in China. Says he, "There is no tradition in Chinese religion or philosophy which makes any room for such a statement as that which is recited: "God is a Spirit."

Confucius, the greatest of all the Chinese philosophers and teachers, once said, "If do not know the truth, I am only waiting for it."

This is to say that there never has been, in China, anything, any final suitability. All convictions have been relative. Therefore, when the Chinese undertake to find their way through to the ultimate, they have nothing but the opinions of such as these. The-ung to guide them. Whatever seems to provide food, clothing and shelter seems best.

In contrast, the Judeo- Christian tradition has put a supernormal authority at the heart of the universe and called it God.

The communists, by contrast, have followed Marx and Lenin in their belief in his "scientific principles of history."

When Khrushchev says, "We will bury you," it is a supreme declaration of abiding faith in the ultimate triumph of those principles.

The surest way to "right conviction" is to implant in the minds of our youth the eternal conviction that there is a creative personality at the heart of the universe, to which all individuals relate, and civilizations are responsible.

Anything that interferes with teaching the supreme truth is a betrayal of the best interests of the youth and the future of the nation.

This is the foundation of our faith and our hope of survival.

Teen-Age Canada

A Plea to You for 1962—No More Rock 'n' Roll

By JACK HUTTON

Not too long ago a Canadian traffic court fined an 18-year-old motorcycle rider $50 for riding his bicycle with his hands in the air —despite his novel explanation to the magistrate.

"I heard a car radio playing real good rock 'n' roll music," he said. "Just forgot myself, I guess, because I just had to keep time to the music."

His case probably wasn't typical. But a lot of adults shook their heads anyway and asked themselves: "Will the music be this bad next year?"

Now that 1962 has launched a brand new hit parade it might be interesting to look at a few of the times that rock 'n' roll got into the news across Canada in 1961.

One Saskatoon radio station announced that it would hereafter keep rock 'n' roll to the minimum in the hope that only a few teen-agers really liked that kind of music. It's still hoping.

Several adult speakers in Vancouver partially blamed the city's juvenile delinquency problem on rock 'n' roll which they claimed was too exciting for young listeners and dancers.

A Toronto teen-age audience became so excited listening to Paul Anka last October that police rode motorcycles through a shrieking crowd outside Maple Leaf Gardens and called for both reinforcements and a paddywagon.

Bill Haley, the original high priest of rock 'n' roll (who still wears a Victorian kiss-curl on one side of his domed forehead) was quoted as defending rock 'n' roll—while Frank Sinatra said it was "sung and played for the most part by credulous goons."

A national survey found that teen-agers are still the most enthusiastic buyers of records in Canada. And close to three-quarters of the records bought by 12 to 19-year-old fans come from the hit parade.

The twist soared up to the top of the hit parade in most parts of Canada while across the Atlantic Ocean several large dancing schools banned the dance and only last week an orthopaedic surgeon warned it could lead to slipped discs.

I admitted quietly one year ago that I hoped we'd see something better replace rock 'n' roll in 1961—and got swamped by many of you who thought I was slandering Mr. Elvis Aaron Presley.

Despite my advice, the twist was publicly endorsed by Band Leader Count Basey. And Perry Como, Jack Paar, the Duchess of Windsor, Wayne King and other notables have all been seen publicly trying out the new dance.

To me this doesn't spell out a very cheerful picture for 1962. But it may for you if you believe that Bo Diddley can really sing or that Ricky Nelson would sound the same without recording gimmicks.

Anyway, here I go with my annual hopeful prediction: that rock 'n' roll will mercifully give way to something else in 1962. I know the $40,000,000 record market in Canada thinks differently—but let's hope.

SWINGING LETTERS

Some months ago several of you suggested the initial game in which letters placed on the back of an envelope spelled out a private code.

We've since heard a few more. Example: SBISLTSTTD which means "Sealed because it seemed like the sensible thing to do."

Also this one: SWAPBIYMGTTLBYDWBIT which means in translation, "Sealed with a prayer because if your mother gets to this letter before you do we're both in trouble!" Or try SWGG—"Sealed with glue, stupid."

WE GET LETTERS

Like our musical friend, Perry Como, we're delighted to get letters, but it isn't often that several adults write all at the same time. Here are a couple of recent ones:

Mrs. Anita Williams, of La Salle, Que., wonders why the Federal Government doesn't keep new issues of stamps in use much longer than they do. (She and her son are collectors.)

Confesses Mrs. Williams: "I find our selection of stamps in Canada rather monotonous. I love the Queen, but I can't understand why, after the Government puts out new stamps, we can only buy them for a short while. Do they destroy the die?"

Mrs. Marion Strugnell of Richmond Hill, Ont., wrote in (bless her heart) to defend teen-agers against charges of being bad drivers.

Says Mrs. Strugnell: "We (my husband and I) know of some good teen-age drivers, but my husband says find a man who is a bad driver and you will often find he is the same.

"There are too many people running down the teen-agers these days. If they took the time to understand and have fun with them they wouldn't have so much trouble, but no they are too busy having fun themselves."

Wood Buffalo Horns Break 36-Year Record

OTTAWA (CP)—A wood buffalo shot in the Slave River area of the Northwest Territories last fall has broken the 36-year-old world buffalo record, it was announced Wednesday.

The northern affairs department said the animal was shot by Samuel Israel of Seattle, one of 100 hunters licensed by the government for the 1961 hunt in a wilderness area northwest of Wood Buffalo National Park which straddles the northern border of Alberta.

Mr. Israel's Buffalo had a head measurement of 37½ inches under North American big game rules established by the Boone and Crockett Club. The measurement includes tip-to-tip horn spread, length of horns on the outside curve and circumference of horns at the base.

It was exactly an inch better than the record held by the chief ranger of Yellowstone National Park in the United States for a buffalo shot in 1925.

A wild herd of wood buffalo roams an extensive range in the Canadian park. Each fall the government allows 100 hunters to hunt the animals which roam beyond the park border. Each hunter is limited to one kill during the two-month season.

Some Measure of Protection Needed Is Canadian View

OTTAWA (CP)—The problem of how to expand transatlantic trade with the U.S. now that European Common Market dominated two days of cabinet level talks between Canada and the United States.

A strong U.S. delegation came to the conference Friday armed with President Kennedy's bold new program for mutual tariff cuts on both sides of the Atlantic.

Canadian ministers headed by Finance Minister Fleming declined any public comment as the joint Canada-U.S. committee on trade and economic affairs held its first day's session behind closed doors.

The conference was expected to end today.

Informed sources Friday indicated the Canadian government is prepared to favor—with some reservations—the U.S. plan for a broad lowering of world tariff barriers. The chief reservation is the government's view that some measure of protection is needed for Canadian manufacturing industries unable to compete with world producers.

Informants also made it clear that the government is unlikely to commit itself until many major questions are answered:

1. How successful will Britain be—is its bid to enter the Common Market—in negotiating for special concessions for the Commonwealth export interests in the British market?

2. How far will the U.S. Congress go in giving President Kennedy his requested powers to cut American tariffs in order to obtain tariff reductions by the Common Market?

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, in a statement Friday said Canada should encourage the American move for a lowering of trade barriers through mutual concessions with the six-nation Common Market. A Liberal government would give "active support and encouragement" to President Kennedy's proposal.

The talks here—the seventh such high-level meeting since it was set up in 1954—began with an atmosphere of apparent goodwill and friendship.

Reporters outside the conference chamber in the Parliament Buildings could hear occasional outbursts of laughter.

U.S. Ambassador Livingston Merchant and Mr. Fleming took turns at being host at a luncheon and dinner Friday.

U.S. Under Secretary Stewart Udall and Justice Minister Lucien Cardin were among the social functions to hold informal talks on power development of the Columbia River—an issue which produced some friction last year between the two countries.

It was understood that at the main work talks the U.S. delegation briefed the Canadian ministers on the effect the President Kennedy's trade proposal and pension benefits were also agreed upon.

George Burt, Canadian UAW director, after the all-night meeting which settled the dispute:

The Ford settlement matches the recent one at General Motors and Chrysler and in the areas goes beyond the GM benefit level."

The all-night strike deadline passed without agreement being reached.

The deadline was relatively meaningless since nearly half the 7,200 Ford workers affected were already off their jobs for the two-week holiday shutdown scheduled to work over the weekend.

The only outside indication that the strike was officially on was the posting of picket lines at midnight at Ford's Windsor plant, where 4,000 are employed.

15 CANDIDATES IN FINAL WEEK OF CAMPAIGNING

Eglinton Promises Hottest Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fifteen hardy candidates, talking their way through five frosty Ontario constituencies, are heading into the final week of campaigning, all exuding confidence.

Voting in the byelections is Thursday, Jan. 18. Elections will be held in Eglinton, Halton-Peel, Brant, Toronto-Eglinton, Toronto Beaches and Renfrew South.

Basically the candidates are giving voters three separate theories. New face from Progressive Conservative candidates is that the present government is competent and deserves continued confidence. The Liberals, in general, is that the government is incompetent and deserves to be defeated. The third, from the New Democratic Party, is that both other parties are incompetent.

BATTLE OVER LIQUOR

One of the hottest campaigns is in Eglinton, a suburban riding of Eglinton where Mrs. Jean Newman, a Liberal and a member of Metro Toronto Council, is opposed by Progressive Conservative Union, Leonard Reilly of the Conservatives of creating "a completely fraudulent issue."

Mr. Reilly said it was unconscious that Mrs. Newman was a candidate by the time demeaning easier liquor laws.

This brought NDP candidate Dennis Marsh into the fray. "I promise not to refer to her Clarke Institute connection," he said.

The late Dr. W. J. Dunlop won the seat for the Conservatives in 1959 with a plurality of 6,550.

DOOR-TO-DOOR

In the nearby riding of Beaches-Woodbine, relatively-young candidates are hitting the door-to-door campaign trails with unusually strenuous zest. The association of one three-year-break, the seat has been held by Conservative camp for 36 years.

Attempting to keep it there is John Harris, 29-year-old investment store sales manager taking his first step at politics.

Liberal Donald MacGregor, like Mrs. Newman, is striking out on his own in the province.

The 33-year-old broker also says the present government is enough to help to train unemployed persons.

The NDP candidate, Stan Bullock, 35-year-old newspaper linotype operator, has campaigned his second visit to every house and he is busy on his third round. He says he has a new health program to take in medical as well as hospital insurance.

But despite the campaigning advance polls, held Saturday, Thursday, in the early stages, have attracted little attention. Voting was described as light in polls for the benefit of real estate deals in the very-well riding say.

FAMILY AFFAIRS

Ugh in Brant the NDP-Liberal portion of the three-way fight is almost a family affair. When the party's former Liberal occupant and one - time premier, Mitchell Hepburn, ran for the United Farmers of Ontario party of years ago his assistant was W. C. Gordon, NDP.

5 Drown As Car Skids Into River; 5 Perish In Fire

Only Driver Escapes In Blind River Mishap

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Five children were burned to death early today when fire swept through a two - storey frame house. Three children and a young woman escaped.

Dead are Sheila, 15, Joan, 8, Donald, 6, Eldridge, 4, and Sandra, 2, months-old Heather, children of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dempsey, who had left for Fredericton to attend a funeral a few hours before the fire broke out.

In hospital is son Gavin, 20, who suffered burns to the hands and face when he assisted Floyd, 9, and Joan's twin brother Eugene to safety. A child, Douglas, 13, made his own way out of the burning house, Hospital officials said Gavin was in satisfactory condition. The other three were uninjured.

The Dempseys have two more children — Fred, with the Canadian Army in Ontario, and Frances, 16, who was in nearby Dieppe for the night.

The fire, believed to have started in the kitchen, spread quickly through the house. Three children were asleep on the second floor.

Gavin threw Floyd and Eugene from a second-storey window into the waiting arms of neighbors who were aroused by cries for help. He and Douglas then made their way out by the window.

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Five persons drowned early today when the car they were riding in skidded off a highway near here and plunged into the Cataract River. One youth escaped.

Nothing to Rebuild, None to Rebuild For, All Peru Rescuers Can Do Is Mourn Dead

RANRAHIRCA, Peru (AP)—Little could be done by Andean village today but mourn the victims of a thunderous avalanche. Ranrahirca already is dead and buried. There is nothing to rebuild. There is no one to rebuild for.

Forty - five feet of rock and mud smothered the farming village, most of its Indian peasant residents, its Roman Catholic church, its tile - roofed hospital, school and stores.

It now is considered futile to try to unearth the debris in search of the dead, although a few poke-around in the morass in search of relatives and friends.

Ranrahirca, once a peaceful village nestled in Huylas Valley under towering snow - capped peaks, is in ruin. Perhaps 4,000 persons are officially listed as residents of these two villages and their surrounding rural areas.

Other villages and settlements in the Inca farming valley also were swallowed up in the mile-long sea of mud and stones now exuding the stench of death.

How many died probably will never be known. Official estimates run from 1,500 to several thousand. Less than 100 bodies have been recovered. Most never will be.

Another avalanche in this same province 21 years ago killed an estimated 5,000 persons. Only 300 bodies were recovered then. Wednesday's avalanche provided its own mass grave. Virtually all those in its path were killed in their trucks.

The deadly wash was born on the slopes of 22,205 - foot Mount Huascaran's north peak, met peak—and was unloosed by summer warmth.

HEARS BIG ROAR

"We had just had supper when we heard a big noise," said Manuel Melgarejo, whose hut on a hill near Ranrahirca was just out of the avalanche's path.

"I called my wife and we grabbed up our two kids and ran."

Later Melgarejo returned. Ranrahirca was no more.

"I could not believe it," he said. "Not until dawn did I see the awful destruction. There was no one injured. All in the path were killed and buried."

Today's Chuckle

Legally, the husband is head of the household and the pedestrian has the right-of-way. Both are safe as long as they don't try to exercise their rights.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Skies will remain cloudy across most of the province during today, with some snowflurries mainly in the northern and central sections. Strengthening southerly winds will spread milder air into the southern and central portions of the province during tonight and Sunday, but colder air accompanied by light snow will move into the northern areas.

Kingston Station Must Appear Before Board

OTTAWA (CP)—Two of 55 stations whose licences expire March 31 have been ordered to appear before the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcast City on Tuesday, Feb. 6. They are radio station CKCO Ottawa and CKWS-TV Kingston.

The board also has called for licensees of seven stations to the hearing for a discussion of programming in both English and French. They include CBL, Toronto; CBC Ottawa; CFCF-TV Fort Arthur.

Two private companies have submitted applications to establish a new TV station at Thompson, Man. One is headed by Dr. Alexander Metcalfe, the other by D. R. Sutherland.

Boost or transfer applications have been made involving the ownership or control of radio stations CFCH Chatham and CKPT Peterborough. Details were not announced.

Power increases have been proposed by radio station CKDY Parry Sound, CJCB Sydney and CJLX Fort William.

More power also is sought for CHEX Peterborough. Five studio sites have been proposed by radio stations CKPR Fort William and CJOB Winnipeg. CKCY Sault Ste. Marie wants authority for a radiating pattern.

CHFI-FM Toronto has applied for authority to form an FM radio network, but the BBG announced Friday it has denied. CHVC Niagara Falls proposes a new station with studios in Dearborn, Mich., to carry games of the Detroit Tigers baseball team from April 9 to Sept. 30.

TIPSTER INSIDE BORDEAUX JAIL NAMES RIOTERS

Says Guards Were Derelict in Duty

MONTREAL (CP)—A tipster inside the walls of strife-ridden Bordeaux Jail has provided authorities with an elaborate memo on the New Year's Day riot—and a list of suggestions.

The informer, thinly shielded from his fellow-prisoners by anonymity, listed the names of convicts who took part in the four-hour outbreak and guards who were derelict in duty.

Lt.-Col. Leon Lambert, interim governor of the north-end jail, made the disclosure Friday at a press conference, the second he called in as many days.

He described the tipster as a man of high intelligence and great moral courage and read portions of the secret memo.

"It was offered to assist me and I accepted," said Lt.-Col. Lambert. "I had to be careful not to do anything that would reveal his identity to the other prisoners. Even when I go to see him I must visit five or six other prisoners so as not to arouse suspicion."

'HE'S KILLED'

Said the jail's Roman Catholic chaplain, Rev. Louis-Marie Cote:

"If a man in a place like this is beaten to a bloody pulp, he's not just injured—he's killed."

Col. Lambert said the informer was incarcerated in connection with the riot, at least the Severe Cold Returns to Citrus Belt After Temperatures Rise Friday

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Severe cold knifed deep into the southern Texas citrus belt early today, dealing hard-hit citrus and vegetable growers in Texas and Florida another economic blow.

Losses from the record-breaking cold, which has held an icy grip on the deep south since Tuesday, total millions of dollars. Citrus crop damage in the Rio Grande Valley alone has been placed at $19,000,000.

The storm, the most severe of the winter and one of the worst in many years, has been blamed for more than 150 deaths across the United States.

Although temperatures moderated Friday in a sea area stretching from Arizona to the mid-Atlantic coast, the weather bureau warned of a new storm brewing in the Rockies.

It posted heavy snow warnings for Nebraska and Kansas and said the storm would sweep across the central plains toward the northern Great Lakes during the weekend.

Citrus trees were reported splitting from the cold in southern Texas where a 1951 freeze destroyed an estimated 13,000,000 trees. Damage since today included 29 at Corpus, Christi and 26 at Houston.

The reading in Florida included 24 at Gainesville, 33 in Tampa and 25 at Jacksonville, which was hit by freezing rain Friday. The ice froze birds to the trees in the usually sunny city.

Snow and sleet made driving hazardous in the coastal area from Virginia to northern Florida Friday, coating trees and wires over a wide area. Snowfall ranged from five inches in Wilson, N.C., to a trace in Tallahassee, Fla.

Drifting snow blocked roads in a section of northwestern lower Michigan where the snow depth was two feet in places.

Temperatures were in the six and 30s in most of California where some frost damage was reported Friday to tomatoes, peppers and squash in the Coachella and Imperial valleys.

French Authorities Trapped Between Two Rebel Fires

ALGIERS (AP)—French authorities were waging a slugging struggle against rebels in Algeria, caught between die-hard European settlers and Moslem rebels.

Savage ambushes by Moslem rebels killed and injured scores holding down Moslem forces on the FLN (National Liberation Front) in the Algerian Sahara territory, and in the cities police battled to combat rising terrorism from the right-wing secret army determined to keep Algeria French.

There was no sign, however, that the French and the Algerian Moslems were ready to negotiate towards agreement. President Charles de Gaulle has said Independent Algeria with close economic and social ties with France.

Near anarchy prevailed in Oran, second city in Algeria where Moslems and Europeans battle daily in the city's streets. The economy of the once-thriving seaport has been seriously damaged. French officials admit they are no longer in control of the situation.

Two persons killed and injured mounted steadily throughout Algeria. In almost endless succession of airlevel shootings, lynching of Moslems by European gangs and sniper and gunfire as the Algerians retaliated.

At least 17 persons were killed and 23 were wounded Friday in the bordering.

Plastic bombs, the trademark of the secret army, destroyed business establishments of owners who refused to pay tribute to the OAS war chest. Algerian terrorists struck down European officials and civilians, including people who declined to help fill rebel coffers.

There is fear that the turmoil and strife is headed for a bloody climax, perhaps second only in the country in full conflict.

Moslem leaders told Moslems of the normal working force of 40,000 in Oran were laid off by

Pennsylvania, N. Y. Central Roads to Merge

NEW YORK (AP)—Directors have approved the merger of the giant Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads into a 20,300-mile system with assets of $3,500,000,000.

Carrying an "economic necessity" label, the plan dramatized Friday would end "ruinous" and threaten major rail, air, highway and water segments of the economy.

$100,000,000,000 - a - year industry.

It promised to stir sharp debate in Congress, local government agencies, federal regulatory agencies and among shippers, as well as within the industry itself.

Within hours of the plan's approval Friday at separate meetings of the two railroads' Central boards, it was assailed by 20 railway labor unions as "catastrophic . . . in its potential effects."

TEARS LOSE OF JOBS

The railway brotherhoods fear especially elimination of jobs, particularly in a city which the merging companies would hope to develop as a headquarters and shore up faltering earnings.

European employers in the last few years have been increasing future into the European quarters to earn their living.

Hunger demonstrations were reported in Moslem areas controlling slogans of faith in continuation of French rule in Algeria, most merchants and industrialists see the future as black.

Kassem Fights for Political Life Against Dedicated Foes in Iraq

LONDON (AP)—The soldier-premier of Iraq, Abdel Karim Kassem, is fighting for his political life against scattered but dedicated opponents.

Diplomatic sources in London consider if the neutralist Iraqi strongman can survive the struggle, but he is under constant gunfire and bullets.

Kassem seized power in 1958 in a gory revolution that destroyed the Iraqi monarchy and set up a republic.

Gen. Kassem has always been a soldier's soldier. His top strength rests on the support of an army well - equipped with Soviet bloc arms. Moscow supplies by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Antagonists ranged against Kassem today seem to have only one thing in common—all would like to see an end of his premiership. This is now the most all-out threat the same sort of successor.

Iraq's 3,850,000 Kurds in the northern frontier region steadily have fought for their own state. 4,000,000 brothers in Turkey and Iran to form an independent Kurdistan. Their centuries - old dream nearly was fulfilled after the First World War but a Turkish - Iraqi - Iranian - British - France and Italy to achieve it by the Treaty of Sevres.

Kassem's trying to crush a Communist party that has infiltrated his army, air force and police.

Kassem has retaliated with periodic air raids since 1958.

Major American, British, French and Dutch oil interests also are struggling against Kassem. The giant Iraq Petroleum Company, with its subsidiary Basrah Petroleum and Mosul Petroleum, helped to boost Iraqi oil production until today it is Iraq's greatest money - spinning asset. There's every - long talks for a new deal with Kassem have broken down, largely, the companies claim, because of his approach which he once summed up: "Whenever I see one of the oil companies I ask for more."

Echoes of several nearby Arab states oppose Kassem.

5 Drown As Car Skids Into River; 5 Perish In Fire

Only Driver Escapes In Blind River Mishap

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Five persons drowned early today when the car they were riding in skidded off a highway near here and plunged into the Cataract River. One youth escaped.

The Dempseys have two more children — Fred, with the Canadian Army in Ontario, and Frances, 16, who was in nearby Dieppe for the night.

The fire, believed to have started in the kitchen, spread quickly through the house. Three children were asleep on the second floor.

Gavin threw Floyd and Eugene from a second-storey window into the waiting arms of neighbors who were aroused by cries for help. He and Douglas then made their way out by the window.

Hope for Compromise Seen On Centre Hastings School After Meeting in Toronto

Hope of a compromise between the two proposals for schools which could still result in the construction of a technical school in the Centre Hastings High School District, was seen yesterday following a meeting of district high school officials and municipal representatives in Toronto.

Officials of the Centre Hastings High School District along with reeves from Tweed and Hungerford and principals of the Tweed high schools in the area were called to Toronto to discuss the request of Tweed village and the township of Hungerford to withdraw from the Centre Hastings High School area and form their own district.

The request for withdrawal by the two municipalities erupted following decision of the district high school board to go ahead with the construction of a new million dollar technical school addition at Madoc, the costs of which would be paid for by the two senior governments.

FEARED COST

Ratepayers in Tweed and Hungerford feared high maintenance costs of the school and asked permission to withdraw from the area. This week ratepayers voted overwhelmingly in favor of withdrawal from the Centre Hastings district.

Yesterday in Toronto; Dr. S. D. Rendall, superintendent of secondary education for Ontario, offered the local delegation a proposal for the technical school addition at absolutely no cost for construction to the local municipalities.

He emphasized the vital need for a composite technical school in the Centre Hastings area and told the delegation that if it did not take advantage of the revised plan offered, it could not meet the March 1963 deadline set by the federal government.

Failure to take advantage of the technical school would put education in the Centre Hastings district back by 15 years, he warned.

Dr. Rendall said he respected the desire of Hungerford and the Tweed "ratepayers for local autonomy and their desire to withdraw from the area but he reminded them that neither portion of a divided area could meet the requirements for even a limited technical school.

NEEDS LIBERAL SUPPORT

He said that unless all ten municipalities in the Centre Hastings area supported the school there never could be a technical school in the area.

He suggested that to make the technical school possible Tweed and Hungerford should give an engagement in writing to support a technical school to the extent of 100 pupils.

This did not necessarily mean that the 100 pupils would come from the two municipalities but Tweed high school, but could include a percentage of students who had taken their basic academic classes.

Dr. Rendall was specific in pointing out that if a decision had not been reached by January 31, 1963 to go ahead with the technical school, either as a unified district or as separate areas with guaranteed support, there was little hope that a technical school would ever be built in the area.

REVISED PLAN

The revised plan for the technical school as offered by the Department of Education is the addition of the cafeteria and a slight reduction in the number of shop rooms.

Cost of the school addition would be borne by the two senior governments.

Dr. Rendall told the department had little interest in where the technical school addition was to be constructed, although Mr. Madoc would be the most central point.

Curlers Enjoy Opening Play In Sportsmen's

The curling was excellent the food delicious and the Sportsmen's Banquet was sent away to a flying start on Friday evening at the Quinte Curling Club, James Young, acting as Master of Ceremonies explained the rules, thanked the curlers by-donating prizes and before he could get finish talking the members of the several rinks were dying to get to the tables to partake of the splendid food that was available.

Those who took part last year thought every preparation had been made but the committee in charge this year, headed by Everett Black and Dr. J. F. McCorquodale and assisted by energetic members thought of every possible thing for the entertainment of the participants. It was a wonderful night, the sunshine on the curlers and more of the same is promised for today. Those who had visitors from distant their game they hiked to the clubrooms to enjoy a game of bridge or penny ante and the enjoyment extended far into the night.

The first curling for the Steve Fitcroft trophy, it was extended to 12 rinks and the 12 rink draw was made. In many cases the rinks were full of food to do heavy sweeping with the result some rocks did not reach the objective.

The prize will be featured today with a full course dinner and in addition to the distribution of prizes, the fun will start again. This is purely a man's affair and they are having the time of their lives. The draw for the draws on Friday were:

Madawaska Tourist Council Receives $5,000 Govt. Grant

To attract the maximum number of visitors to a particular locality there is a necessary to provide them with a variety of things to do. Besides fish scenery, excellent fishing and hunting, and good highways are necessary attributes but are not enough in themselves. Visitors must be given an many interesting places to stay in, and return to, a resort area.

This was the theme of an address given on Tuesday evening, January 15th, by Dr. J. McHattie, Director, Department of Travel and Publicity, at the first annual banquet of the Madawaska Valley Regional Tourist Council held at the Algonquin Lodge, Lake St. Peter, when the president, W. J. Martin, president of the council, with a grant of $5,000 towards promotion of tourism in the area.

EIGHTY ATTEND

Eighty members and guests attended the function and heard Dr. McHattie's remark on the excellent cross-section of business and professional men and women present. Indeed tangible interest in the development of the tourist industry in the Madawaska Valley area. The chief centres represented were Barry's Bay, Whitney, Lake St. Peter, Maynooth and Bancroft.

Tourism is the fourth largest industry in Ontario as a whole, Mr. McHattie told the audience from tourist trade in 1961 will surpass the 1960 total, although not substantially, despite the fact that in many localities considerable revenue may be down." This, he felt, was probably due in large measure to the increased usage of camping facilities in many areas. The main resident traffic into the province was not appreciably increased, but the flow of vacation explosions in large urban areas was known as "the means of transportation over greatly improved highways, especially Canadian ones are doing a great deal more motoring and sight-seeing.

SHOULD PROMOTE PROJECTS

It was suggested by Mr. McHattie that tourist attractions such as lumbering operations, historical museums and Indian Villages be established in the area. He particularly felt that the rock-hunting facilities in the area already known as "one of the most outstanding in Canada, should be developed to the fullest extent.

In his talk Mr. McHattie spoke briefly on the grants the provincial government is currently giving tourist areas. Since 1961 when legislation was passed to permit the granting of aid, the Department of Travel and Publicity has spent close to $100,000 in assistance to the development and promotion of the tourist industry on the regional level.

Also speaking during the evening, Mr. Bestainger, Director of Regional Tourist Councils was full of praise for the time and effort to the promotion of the tourist industry.

MUST GIVE SERVICE

In catering to the tourist, he added, a high standard of service and attention must be provided if repeat service is to be expected. He spoke on the help municipalities can give by encouraging the sale of lots for cottages. This would relieve some of the burden on the permanent residents, he felt.

Mr. Martin spoke of the disadvantage to the Madawaska Valley tourist area caused by the lack of adequate signs on Highway No. 401 at Belleville indicating the turn-off to Madoc and Bancroft. The section of road from Hwy. No. 401 to Hwy. No. 7 is a county road and discourages through traffic. He told the meeting he would do what he could to have the provincial highway No. 62 extended adding that the gradually improving condition of Hwy. 127 from Maynooth to Whitney should begin to show results in the number of tourists visiting the area.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Dr. R. S. MacMillan, D.D.S., vice-president of the Regional Council. Others at the head table were Gordon Lovejoy, treasurer; A. C. Pecoskie, secretary; Mrs. Flora Lyndahl, Victor Demelis, Arthur Nichol, and Roy Barton, directors.

Committees Are Named at Council Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — Rev. Or. D. M. Smith or St. John's United Church, was guest of the town council at their inaugural meeting on Monday morning. He spoke on "The Open Door" urging the elected representatives to maintain an open mind, free of bias and prejudice in making decisions. He urged that they not be satisfied until the job is done to the best of their respective abilities.

Dr. T. K. Hackett who headed the poll as councillor, presented the chain of office to Mayor F. M. Rutherford.

In his inaugural address, Mayor Rutherford congratulated the 1962 council on their election and thanked Dr. Smith for his address. He wished Reeve George Free success in his candidacy for the warden-ship of the counties. Offering all co-operation to council, he said he expected co-operation in return. He said that the standing committees at last year would be named: General Government, Public Works, General Protection and General Services. He named Councillors Hackett, Brown and Hopping and Deputy-reeve M. Manzer, in conjunction with himself to the committee for naming committees, the same to meet at 10 a.m. Monday afternoon.

He asked committees to be more active, lessening the hours in council meetings and asked the clerk to attend all meetings of the said committees.

The mayor said that council should not rule the tax rate and that, however, any increases in taxation for 1962 should be out of council's control. He suggested a reserve of the 5% prepayment of taxes, saying in effect it is closer to 9%.

Council heard the minutes of the governing meeting and adjourned until 7.30 p.m.

Upon resuming the session in the evening, the following committees were named: General government: Hopping, chairman; Dr. Hackett, vice-chairman; G. Free, A. Brown and M. Manzer.

Public works; F. M. Rutherford, chairman; A. Brown, vice-chairman; M. Manzer, G. Free, T. Hackett and R. Outlingdyke.

General protection: Brown, chairman; Mr. Moody, vice-chairman; Free, R. Simpkin, S. Hopping.

General services: Manzer, chairman; Simpkin, vice-chairman; Hackett and Outlingdyke.

Donald D. Bennett was appointed to the H.S. area board by a polled vote.

The appointment of Pat O'Sullivan to the H. S. area board by St. Mary's Parish was recorded.

It was moved by Coun. Hackett and seconded by Coun. Hopping and carried that the council representative on the area board request to council every three months. Mr. Bennett said he would do so.

Temporary taxi licences were granted to Messrs. Jones and Claver pending the review of the insurance requirements for taxis in Campbellford.

Mayor Rutherford named the following to the Court of Revision: Free, Moody, Simpkin, Manzer and Bennett.

Appointments were made as follows to the Arena Board: Manzer, Simpkin and the hospital board: Free; recreation committee: Manzer, Simpkin; library board: Rev. W. Hay.

It was carried that the application for the highway grant be made and that the mayor and clerk be signing officers.

Plaintiff Loses, Driver Found Not Negligent

An unfortunate error occurred in yesterday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer in a report on a Supreme Court damage action, brought by Krystyna Piwowarski, the 7-year-old daughter of Konrad Piwowarski and by her father against John M. Davison. Mr. Davison was found by the jury to have been completely blameless, instead of negligent as erroneously reported in yesterday's paper.

Mr. Davison was driving a car which struck the little girl when she ran across the road. The jury held that Krystyna's negligence was solely responsible for the accident. Damages were set at $2,500 for Krystyna and $1,333.80 for her father but these damages, of course, will not be paid, since Mr. Davison was found not negligent in any degree.

The Ontario Intelligencer regrets any inconvenience which may have been caused Mr. Davison, or anyone else, by yesterday's erroneous report.

Ambulance Operators Will Not See City Without Service

Belleville ambulance operators yesterday re-affirmed their decision to go out of the ambulance business on January 31st, but they will not see the city without service until council is able to make its own arrangements.

This was indicated yesterday following a meeting of the city council finance committee at which local ambulance operators attended.

Local ambulance operators are in December solidified council their intention to discontinue ambulance service in the city on January 31st.

It is understood that the finance committee is going to council to invite applications for operation of an ambulance service in the city while hiring of an ambulance operator will also be considered.

Ambulance operators attending yesterday's meeting of the finance committee were reported to have been non-committal when asked if they would consider extending their January 31st deadline by two months.

A Willowdale man, Mr. Clifford Ireland who late last year planned to take over operation of ambulance service from the three present operators, is said to be no longer interested.

Mr. Ireland asked for an exclusive franchise from the city but council took no action on the request, preferring to wait until the new year after the 1962 council took office.

Boy Convicted Of Manslaughter In Girl's Death

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 13-year-old boy sobbed out his resentment in court Friday as he was sentenced to "not less than three years" for strangling a 10-year-old girl.

The sentence will be served in the Bowmanville Training School where the chunkier he will be a ward of the school until he reaches the age of 21.

He was convicted of manslaughter in the death of Sylvia Plaskett. The judge, under the Juvenile Delinquents Act, was barred from one of murder.

Juvenile court Judge W. H. Fox told the boy the sentence was designed to help him.

"Don't you think you need help?"

"No," the boy replied. He began to weep.

"I disagree," Judge Fox said. "I think you need help in your thinking. You think everyone is against you. No one in this court is against you."

The boy wiped at his tears. "You want to make a bet? You want a bet?"

His parents sat with tears running down their faces.

Judge Fox explained that because the boy was under 14, the charge of murder was only one under which he could be charged. "I think you have been found guilty in a higher court it's likely you would have gone to the reformatory."

Said Judge Fox:

"I find that he killed the girl but that there was no intent, which must be shown."

Anger and resentment were the only emotions the boy showed during his three - day trial.

Sylvia, blonde and blue-eyed, died Nov. 13 in the attic of a vacant grocery store near her home, her shoes placed neatly beside her body.

Six of the seven pennies she had been given to buy a newspaper were strewn on the floor but the boy was arrested 11 days later.

In a statement to police the boy said he helped the girl place the belt from her dress around her neck. He said he did not tie the loose end to a light cord and that she was alive when he left the attic.

Judge Fox said he hoped Sylvia's parents would forgive the boy.

Her mother, Mrs. Ernest Plaskett, buried her face in a handkerchief.

Some prisoners had taken "goofballs," a form of barbiturate authorities have been unable to prevent from being smuggled to the prisoners by visitors and corrupt guards.

However, said the informer, he did not believe this was a substantial factor behind the riot.

But said the man:

"Prompt action by guards would have stopped the riot at the outset."

MAKES MISTAKE

"One guard "made a big mistake when he entered one of the kitchen areas and closed the gate behind him. This merely incited the inmates to riot even more."

Col. Lambert said he agreed the guard acted foolishly.

He said the informer told him a hypodermic needle that could be used for narcotics had been hidden somewhere in the jail.

"But we haven't been able to find it yet," the interim governor said.

TOUR JAIL

Reporters were taken on a tour of the jail. Assistant Governor Georges Beaudoin showed them the kitchen, darkened cells where unruly prisoners are detained. He said none is kept there for more than three days.

From one cell the sound of a transistor radio drifted down the hall.

Such privileges were denied to The Hole and one official whispered to another:

"Something is going to get it for this tomorrow."

of both men are battling for the seat which the late Mr. Mitone won by 1,186 votes in 1959.

Robert Nixon, 32, resigned from his position as leader, landed over the family farm near Brighton and the liberal cause, pelgin is based largely on agriculture issues.

Mr. Good, 36 is also a farmer. He would fight for producer control. He also is advocating the opening of the financial record of all political parties.

The fifth Conservative candidate is Garnet Brown, 56-year - old business man who never tires of talking about the "phenomenal record" of the government.

RETURNS TO BATTLE

In Renfrew South, Liberal Leonard Quilty has returned to the arena to battle for the seat he lost to the late James Mallory, former minister, in 1959 by 2,000 votes. This time he faces Conservative Conin /S. Mulvihill and NDP candidate Leonard Laventure. Mr. Mulvihill is Crown Co. counsel in the government policy "speak for it, self."

Mr. Quilty is demanding sales-tax exemption for all purchases under $25, more action on crime, reduced municipal taxes and greater development of Western Ontario.

Mr. Laventure, 62, a farmer, is campaigning for abolition of the sales tax and more aid to farmer co-operatives.

The spirited campaign, say the organizers, should attract about 80 per cent of the riding's 18,000 eligible voters.

The Kenora seat, held by the late Albert Wren under the Liberal - Labor banner since 1951, has been the scene of some of the heaviest campaigning.

CAMPAIGNS WIDELY

Prime Minister John Roberts started his campaign in Kenora, supporting Peter Robertson, 47-year-old PCR conductor. In one day he made four speeches, visited three mines and shook 500 hands.

Opposing Mr. Robertson is Dryden lawyer Robert Gibson, 42, running under the Liberal-Labor tag, and NDP candidate H. Hart, 33, of Kenora.

On the basis of past elections, this should be the tightest fight. Mr. Wren was elected by 37 votes in 1959.

In the five ridings in the 1959 election, Conservative candidates captured 49.85 per cent of the popular vote, the Liberals had 37.61 per cent and the CCF 12.54 per cent.

The over-all popular vote in Ontario in that general election was 46.34 per cent of the Conservatives, 36.39 per cent, Liberal and 16.81 per cent CCF. Other parties won .40 per cent.

Standings after the 1959 general election were: Conservatives 71, Liberals 22, CCF five. Present standings are: Conservatives 68, Liberals 20, NDP five, vacant five.

Trial Postponed Due to Lack Of Interpreter

TRENTON—A preliminary hearing in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday was postponed for the lack of an interpreter who could speak both Cantonese and English, and who had no previous knowledge of the case.

John Howarth, 37, of Batawa, was remanded on $750 cash bail, until Jan. 29, by which time it is hoped, the Crown will have secured an interpreter, acceptable to both sides. Howarth has been charged with robbing Leo Woo, the proprietor of a cafe in Trenton, of $53 on New Year's Day.

Michael Tom, who speaks Cantonese and English was judged to be unsuitable by Magistrate T. V. Wills and defence attorney Robert Temple when Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson told the court that Tom had translated Woo's version of the robbery to him.

"Do you think it's fair to use this interpreter?" the magistrate asked the defence counsel. "I don't think he has the slightest idea of what he's saying. I'm sure the interpreter admits that he's heard the story before. If you want counsel, I'll sustain your objection."

"I was up against the difficulty of finding an interpreter," said the crown attorney, "but I don't feel like proceeding now."

"I'll appoint an interpreter," said the magistrate.

Followed a ten-minute recess, Magistrate Wills told the court that Howarth would be released on bail and remanded until Jan. 29.

"I'd better have an interpreter who understands that he must give the exact words of the witness and no free interpretations," warned the magistrate.

Robert Temple said that his client had elected to be tried by judge and jury.

Work on Block Is Progressing At Good Speed

TRENTON — Welfare administrator A. Gordon Davis reported that construction work on the senior citizens' apartment block was progressing rapidly and that the men were working at second storey level. Mr. Davis said that the building should be ready for occupancy by May.

A list of names taken down during a town-wide survey two years ago will be checked for the most part. The survey was made to establish the need for low-rental accommodation for Trenton's older residents. Mr. Davis said that the list of names may be outdated by now.

"Anyone who would like to occupy the apartments might have to wait for the better part of five (15 Dundas St. E.) and Mr. Davis said an application had been received from Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis said that the building will contain seven "single" apartments, suitable for one person. These smaller apartments will be comprised of a bed-sitting room, a kitchen, a small dinette and a bathroom. Rents for the single apartments will run between $40 and $45.

Four "double" apartments, suitable for couples, will contain a small room, a bedroom, a kitchen and dinette and a bathroom. Rent will be set for $55 a month.

Both single and double apartments have ample cupboard and clothes-cupboard space.

Each apartment is equipped with a refrigerator and an electric stove and tenants may install a commercial washing room, equipped with an automatic washer and dryer. Hot water is supplied, but tenants may their own electric light bills.

Official Welcome Is Given By Town to New Industry

TRENTON — The town of Trenton welcomed its newest industry, Outboard Marine Corporation of Canada, at a dinner held in the Trenton Country Club last night.

Said C. B. Neal, Outboard Marine president, "We're looking forward to a long and mutually happy association in our new home here in Trenton."

"We've chose the town of Trenton for the location of a branch factory, because of the availability of a factory building (the former Williams and Wilson plant on West Street), with sufficient land for future expansion; the fact that you have a sound civic administration and a favorable tax structure and the co-operation and helpful spirit existing between your civic administration and industry."

Other factors named by Mr. Neal as deciding points in the choice of Trenton as the locale of the "Outboard Marine Corporation Boat Division of the Outboard Marine Corporation of Canada," were "the favorable labor market in the town and the surrounding counties and the close proximity of excellent boating waters, necessary in testing the company products," and the location of the town itself, which is, to quote Mr. Neal, "favorable to the distribution of our products to our principal markets in Ontario and Quebec."

Mr. Neal paid tribute to town clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry for his "excellent public relations job" which, he said, had been "most helpful" in assisting the company to come to a decision as to the location of a boat-building operation in the Peterborough plant.

"We shall do our utmost to live up to our responsibilities and make you Trentonians proud to have Outboard Marine as a member of your industrial community," said Mr. Neal.

FIFTY ATTEND

Last night's "welcome to Outboard Marine" was attended by more than 50 industrial leaders and civic dignitaries from Trenton and the immediate vicinity.

Chairman for the evening was Councillor Lloyd Worrall, who heads Trenton council's industrial and economic development committee.

Mayor D. James MacDonald rendered a civic welcome to the official company representatives and to Dr. C. K. Herr of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada and Hubert Campbell of Miller Brothers of Glen Miller, "Trenton's neighboring industries," as well as to Group Captain C. R. Thompson, commanding officer at No. 6 Repair Depot and Wing Commander F. Y. Craig, administration officer at RCAF Station Trenton.

Company officials present at the banquet were, T. P. McMillan, vice-president; B. L. Payne, secretary-treasurer; L. H. Bearne, Trenton plant manager; F. Sztuke, division engineer; D. Eason, factory superintendent, and C. Chapman, district sales manager. Mr. Bearne, Mr. Sztuke and Mr. Eason will be concerned with the operations of the Trenton company branch and will live in town. Two company officials are present at the dinner were P. McArthur, vice-president and director of marketing and J. Perdue, sales manager of the boat division, who are attending a boat show in New York.

Mr. Neal said that the sales and marketing staff would continue to operate from the Peterborough office of the company.

He said that he expected that the Trenton plant would be in production on a limited basis by early April and that operations would be expanded substantially by late summer or early fall with peak production being reached by the early part of 1963. Mr. Neal said that at peak production the plant should employ 200 to 300 persons and that it might be necessary to double the existing building space.

STUDY AIR SUBSIDIES

OTTAWA (CP)—A policy of subsidizing airlines on uneconomic but essential air routes in Canada is under serious study in the transport department, reliable informants said Friday. Aviation circles are watching for a subsidy due in what the cabinet decides to do about ailing Quebecair, a major secondary carrier that lost about $234,000 in the first six months of 1961 and has urgently requested federal assistance.

But Is Their English Poor?

"Standards in written English are slipping. Educator and employer alike bemoan the illiteracy of high school graduates," says Canada Month, a newly-established magazine published in Montreal.

It then outlines a "simple, bold idea" first adopted three years ago by the Protestant Board of Greater Montreal in an effort "to stem the downward slide." The Board hires outside readers to peruse and mark the essays of students. These readers are men and women who earn their living by writing.

"In my school," says Pat Pearce, TV critic for the Montreal Star, "I've discovered plenty of bright, intelligent children. All they really need is encouragement to write simply and frankly. Every now and then a lively phrase emerges among all the pompous stuff children think proper for a school essay."

Some may interpret this as meaning that teachers approve "pompous stuff" in essays. We don't believe it. Moreover, from what little we have seen of the writing efforts of high school students today, it is at least the equal of that in their parents' time.

The marking of essays by professional writers may, however, have one advantage. The writer is more likely to stress a lively, interesting style than correct grammar. One reason is that many of the professional writers, as they admit in the Canada Month article, find themselves unable to deal with grammatical questions. It would be an error, though, to argue that a knowledge of grammar and possession of a lively style are mutually exclusive. Most of the professional writers who know little grammar will admit that they find this a handicap. School is the place to learn grammar. Perhaps, the essays should be marked twice, by professional writers and by school teachers, and the marks averaged to arrive at the final result. This, though, is going to be extremely hard on all our best English teachers who, under such a system, would be expected to concern themselves only with grammar and to ignore style and content. Does anyone really suppose that many English teachers are interested only in the grammar of the language?

Who Pays?

Tuesday's blizzard in Prince Edward County resulted in several busloads of students being stranded. Unable to reach home, they were billeted in Milford and Wellington homes.

In all probability, the question of who pays the cost will never arise, since those who gave the students shelter will regard it as their good deed for the day.

Legally, we presume, the parents of the children would be responsible.

But it would be interesting to listen to the case which a good debater could make out for charging the cost of maintenance of the students to the school boards. It is not accepted that the cost of education should be borne by taxes? Were not the larger school areas established because they made it possible to do this more efficiently? And not this decision force the establishment of a system of free transportation by buses for students, to and from school? Does this not imply that the school board has a responsibility to return the students to their homes within a reasonable time? If the school boards fail to meet this responsibility, why should the costs of their failure to do so be met by parents?

School boards, of course, might seek recompense for those whose responsibility it is to keep the roads passable.

It could be an interesting hassle.

But, in the end, it would be Papa who pays. Not necessarily, though, the same grumbler of Papas.

"Hero of Alexandria (B.C. 285-222) designed an automatic slot machine to sell Holy Water in the Greek temples. And, I'm told, the mechanism used today is pretty much the same as it was then! First the worshipper put a coin in the slot; the coin, on its way to the money-box, fell on to a lever; the lever released a valve and out came the right amount of Holy Water —no more, no less. The lever then returned to the 'Off' position until a further coin set it in motion again."—William Taylor on the BBC "Woman's Hour" program.

'High Places' Intriguing

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Currently, the Capital is caught up in the intrigue and mystery of political indoor sport or identifying the cold-pack characters in Allan Prior Hailey's new novel "In High Places", with their warm-blood counterparts in the Parliament Hill.

Hailey, immensely successful author of television thrillers and Hollywood scenarios, has produced a book with advantages of fact and fiction in this gripping drama of Canadian politics.

In this "Peyton Place" is to Ottawa's political scene what Allan Drury's best-selling "Advise and Consent" was to Washington's.

His story line - how a Canadian Prime Minister and an American President set about politically to serve the international boundary and pool continental economics and defences in the face of the world Soviet nuclear attack - is breath-taking fiction.

Where the fact comes in is with his setting of the scene and the casting of his characters.

He has got the sight and sound and feel of Parliament Hill as realistically as if he had lived it, his geography of the capital as the sprawling Centre Block, of the Prime Minister's office and the Privy Council Chamber are startlingly "on", and his sense of the drama of the Commons question period, the living of the basic who, what, how and why of life under the Peace Tower is uncanny.

THE STUFF OF LIFE

Many of his fictional characters have been plucked, living and breathing, from the corridors of Parliament and dressed like so many butterflies in his pages.

Then, to give this realism the impact of hard fact, he employs the authentic device of recounting a number of life, often intimate, but always true incidents from real life.

His Prime Minister, the Right Honorable James McCallum Howden, PC, LL.B., QC, MP, ruminating on his personal perplexity and on the small-mindedness" of Canadians in persisting in favoring the political leaders "so meanly," recalls how

". . . Louis St. Laurent had been obliged to live in a two-room apartment (as the husband, ought) so small that Madame St. Laurent had stored the family possessions in the bathtub . . . and of how Mackenzie King had been reproached for living in his declining days, like so many other prime ministers, "in wealth or on the charity of others" . . . by a Rockefeller Foundation "granting him $100,000 on the day of his retirement . . ."

Then again, Hailey's fictional PM, in Washington at the White House, in refalling how, into the Presidential guest book he checked "Arabia" King Ibn Saud to fleep guarded by his own scimitar-wielding soldiers; de Gaulle to hunt, Khrushchev to fabulize," was reminded that the Prime Minister Diefenbaker, too, had been a distinguished visitor.

That was the time (June 3, 1960), that they had "put John Diefenbaker in the White House" reception line with a bunch of Presbyterian elders, and as Eisenhower, in proposing the toasts, had kept talking about the Queen and Prince Philip . . . and of the diary of political history.

Hailey's fictional Minister, "James Howden", is a baffling character — one to delineate or recognize him unmistakably as John Diefenbaker . . . and so with the others of the soldiers, Mackenzie King, Pearson, Harkness, Prime Minister Howden as Mackenzie King follows the steps in the Diefenbaker era's very private, personal way.

Half believing in predestination, he is sometimes influenced by his horoscope - . . . "I am a child born under Capricorn . . . and from time to time has been "startled, even shocked" how events, circumstances, even decisions seem to have borne out the forecast of his stars.

At many of the crucial turning points in his fateful political career, half amusedly, half fearfully, he has consulted his horoscope in an astrology magazine to which he almost secretly subscribes.

There is much more of Mackenzie King in Prime Minister Howden — but not nearly so much as there is of John Diefenbaker.

The fictional, like the real-life Prime Minister, is a crackle-of-action figure.

At 6.15 a.m. he is out of bed and organizing his day with calls to his secretaries to set up this appointment and that interview.

He likes to get away from Ottawa "moving out across the country — speaking engagements, press coverage, television time" — and can do all this, while directing Cabinet, running the East and Centre Blocks and keeping up attendance in the Commons, largely because he was the "remarkable kind of man who can sleep in odd moments, anywhere even on planes."

And he has a fondness, too, for those special Ottawa VIP ceremonials of the airport visival and departure, "letting it be known; early in his regime, that he liked to be seen and met, not merely by one or two of his ministers, but by as many — as possible — of his Cabinet."

This process — of the Cabinet, the press corps, the diplomats and the high brass of the civil and military service deferentially at Ottawa's Uplands International Airport — had become known familiarly as "the Bisley," and was regarded as a demonstration of party loyalty and Government solidarity."

Then, too, Prime Minister Howden in his "Canadian method" — he does a stumping tour of Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City, Fort William, Winnipeg, Edmonton Vancouver, Calgary Regina — "collects" honorary degrees.

Hailey doesn't mention it, but his very listening of the stops on this tour is a page from reality . . . the only point (a key and crucial) "Hometown Ontario" at which the Prime Minister fails is the Lakehead. So there, again the fictional Howden is a true reflection of the factual Diefenbaker in "Hometown" being something of a political blind spot.

MIKE PEARSON

Roney Dale is the Opposition Leader in "High Places," and who else could this be but Mike Pearson?

". . . there seemed an integrity and depth of character about him . . . a kind of consistency to all his actions which he was hard put to explain . . . but many times he failed to take full advantage of the Government's weaknesses on specific issues, and while such action set Dale on a course of reasonable restraint, that was beside the point . . .

". . . a realized role was to be . . . tough and ruthless in taking advantage whenever it offered . . . but he could also so cream puff affair, and inevitably he rose to power was strewn with shattered hopes, and hurks of other men's ambition."

". . . he had intellect and scholarship, perception and foresight, patience and more political charm . . . but it was ruthlessness which Roney Dale lacked . . . he was just too reasonable."

ALISTER GROSSART

Then there is Brian Richardson . . . political columnist and national organizer of the party - whose communiques, spoken and written, have retained a flavor of the clear, crisp advertising copy he used to produce, first as a skilled copywriter, then as a top-flight agency executive.

Isn't this Alister Grossart? Who else?

. . . appointed to his job soon after the Prime Minister's accession to power, Richardson he already had masterminded two victorious election campaigns . . . shrewd, resourceful, with an encyclopedic mind and an unfailing memory . . . was one of the three or four men in the party whose calls were unquestionably passed through the Prime Minister's private switchboard at any hour."

But it is Prime Minister Howden — a strange, powerful and compelling amalgam of King and Diefenbaker — who, of course, dominates "High Places". He's ability, ambition, questioning of his ability and his predestination for responsibility at the summit, his self-doubt, tested, dominbering, driving, ruthless, tough and hardest of shrewd bargainers with a powerful bone-and-blood sense of history.

Ottawa is agape over "In High Places."

Big Interest In Weather

St. Thomas Times Journal

Somewhat like the man who rides facing backward on a train in order to see where he's been, a lot of people seem almost as interested in yesterday's weather as they are in tomorrow's forecast.

So reports the U.S. Weather Bureau's National Weather Records Center at Asheville, N.C., which receives about 20,000 requests each year for information about past weather. The centre compiles by providing more than 325,000 copies of publications, 450,000 miscellaneous copies of weather data and a half-million feet of microfilmed data.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 13th, 1942.

To have lowered the tax rate three mills in 1941 after a seven-cent cut in 1940, and at the end of December to have a tidy surplus after the year's work is a city council achievement. Executive chairman Alderman H. J. Clarke's statement on the finances is a very pleasant document to read. The Mayor and Aldermen and city officials are to be commended on this showing. Alderman Clarke had a good word for the new plan of accounting and tax collection and declared that the four-payment plan is working out satisfactorily in easing the pay month at taxpayers and for the city in reduction of interest charges.

Dean of the Hastings County Council, Reeve James A. Moore of Elzevir Township will observe his thirty-first consecutive year as a member of the county body when it convenes for the regular session on January 20th. Reeve Moore is a capable official and his ability can not be beaten in the Dominion. His record for county service here, and in all probability cannot be beaten in the Dominion, for it is unlikely that any man parking their automobiles on city streets and disregarding the progress of the city snow plow awoke to find police stickers affixed to the windshields of their vehicles over the weekend. In each incident the offender was instructed to report to the police station where waitings were issued. Charges are not being preferred this time if the offenders report here, but in the future our streets must be kept clear for the operation of the snow plow," warned Chief Kidd.

30 YEARS AGO

Icebreaking on the Bay of Quinte is not a sport of by-gone days; Trenton has still a pair of them in its sailing craft, and the Port of Belleville has eight or ten ice boats in the fleet. Each time the ice in the five of the local boats were maintaining their title to adherent to the Government docks.

The barbers in this city have agreed to close each Wednesday afternoon during the months of June, July, August and September.

Mr. Joseph Johnson who has resided here for the past three years and was an active member of the Salvation Army, during a valued member of the instrumental and vocal quartet will leave shortly for England to join his wife and daughter who returned to England six months ago. He was given a farewell send off by the members of the Army at the Citadel.

40 YEARS AGO

January 13th, 1922.

Belleville Tigers defeated Peterboro Kingston by a fast game of hockey on Kingston artificial ice last evening, the score being 7 to 4. Fully 2,500 fans were present in Jock Harty's arena and many Belleville supporters were in the crowd. Queen's was conceded to be the superior team until Belleville met them; now it would seem that the Tigers are deserving of the top place. The following composed the Belleville team: Boland, Green, Holway, Arnott, Whalen, Weir, Cherrier and Hall. The referees were Harry Sproule of Toronto and Cheff better than ever; Whalen was the best man on the ice for the locals. Holway made some grand stops and was called on the fly. Cherrier and Holway each made fine rushes and were in grand form. For Queen's McKelvey and Woodruff were the stars.

Mrs. Ernest Deeprose is spending a few days in Pickering.

Mrs. M. Naylor of Victoria Avenue, Trenton, Deputy Grand President of the Rebekah Order of I.O.O.F., installed the officers-elect at Sterling and Frankford recently.

Today is the eighth day of extreme cold weather which began with a temperature of 30 degrees below zero. This morning the thermometer registered 42 degrees below, and there is 6 inches of snow.

Frozen water pipes in various parts of the city are causing much work for the water works department.

Mr. Kamsack, Sask., on the eighth inst., Professor Denman, formerly of this city, now leader of the Kamsack band, whose music studio and numerous musical instruments were destroyed by fire recently, was presented with a purse of gold by the citizens of the town.

Canker Sores Can Result From Rundown Condition

"Dear Dr. Molner: A month never goes by that I don't have canker sores. What about them?" Mrs. R. T.

Canker sores are also called mouth ulcers or stomatitis, if you prefer a technical term. Little sores, in other words, irritating.

The terms imply that infection is the cause — and very often this is true. Canker sores are frequently seen in people whose resistance is below par, following some severe generalized infection.

In such cases obviously the restoration of general health is of prime importance, not only to get rid of the cankers but to prevent their reoccurrence.

By the same token, trying to treat the canker sores themselves isn't, of very much use. Anyway, some of the stronger medications wouldn't be advisable in the mouth, and the mildest ones aren't very practical because, naturally, you can't very well keep the medication on the sore spots for very long. It will quickly wash away.

So the mowver is in clearing up the remnants of general infection and restoring general health.

But what of the person in Algonac Mich. who says canker sores? It certainly happens! In such cases, the trouble isn't infection. Rather it is likely allergy. Instead of a rash, we occur on the inside from some allergies, in this case the result is a breaking out of the membrane in the mouth — "cankers."

Some authorities believe that allergy to citric or acetic acid is the likeliest cause, for citric can be from citrus fruits — oranges, lemons, limes, grapefruit; or in the case of acetic acid, from vinegar, and pickled products.

With some people, chocolate appears to be the offender. With others, food can be the allergic factor. Of course food allergies don't always cause cankers. But that's one of the possible results.

With repeated canker sores, and no general health problem to explain them, it's well worth the trouble to note whether the sores appear after eating some particular food, with special emphasis on the ones mentioned.

Finally, I hasten both may need smoothing up. And if any gum infection is present, it should be treated.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Two weeks after having my second flu shot, I broke out with shingles. I have never had either flu shots or singles before. Is this coincidence or had I better lay off the flu shots? Taint funny. E.H.C."

Of course it isn't funny. Shingles is a most annoying form of misery. But I'm not familiar with any likelihood of flu shots being followed by shingles, so I strongly think this is simply an unfortunate coincidence. Occasional achy feeling and possibly a little fever some, time, follow a day or two after flu shots, but it's mild and brief.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Game birds and game animals are supposed to be the concern of all of us, collectively. Hunters make it for granted that deer, moose, bear and other wild creatures belong to them in some curious and special way. Year by year, however, the idea that game belongs to everybody has been revealed that game birds and game animals belong to all the community, and that the pot-hunting citizens, by far the majority, have an equal right in the wild animals of our country with those who go hunting in fall time.

Provincial governments, watching wild life management and even conservation the remarkable increase in the number of people hunting in the fall, have begun to realize that hunting is a valuable form of recreation, are beginning to weigh the philosophy as well as the politics of the game problem. Our pioneer generations across Canada came from countries which gave the game jealously protected by the landowners, and the common man had few if any rights in the matter of hunting for sport when they came here. Game was one of the basic necessities of survival, and it was only by public freedom to hunt game was as jealously guarded as were the privileges of the landlords in the old countries. Several generations have since enjoyed this freedom.

But a new type of landlord is beginning to be heard from, that landlord being the non-hunting majority of those who have an equal right in the game and don't want to kill it.

Plan to Make Roads Rough

Milwaukee Journal

In the days of dirt roads, hailing saloop at the wheel was practically impossible. Ruts and rocks kept drivers jostled awake. Now highways are so smooth and monotonous that nodding off or falling victim to "highway hypnosis" is a serious hazard.

The remedy? Rumble strips to keep drivers alert, awake and alive.

That, at least, is the suggestion of the Connecticut highway department. Raised strips would be installed at intervals across the pavement to deliver 34 quick vibrations, then a halt, 34 more vibrations.

DELIGHTS

Life is very precious in its gift of delights. And at some time or other delights come to us all.

I shall briefly enumerate a few of the delights that have been personally mine, so that you may call to mind those that help to enrich your own experience.

I have delighted in books, in works of art, in walks alone or with some delightful companion. In being alone, in companionship that is inspiring and consoling. In society. In my home and flowers. In sitting silently under the stars, especially in the moon. Bits across its surface in play.

Every day is filled with that which is able to bring great delight to you.

Fish and nut oils are high in what are call "unsaturated fatty acids," and there is evidence, to date, that this increasing these, while reducing the "saturated fatty acids" tends to reduce cholesterol. (The "saturated" fats are in animal actual fats, especially those that are solid rather than liquid at room temperatures.)

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Game birds and game animals are supposed to be the concern of all of us, collectively. Hunters make it for granted that deer, moose, bear and other wild creatures belong to them in some curious and special way. Year by year, however, the idea that game belongs to everybody has been revealed that game birds and game animals belong to all the community, and that the non-hunting citizens, by far the majority, have an equal right in the wild animals of our country with those who go hunting in fall time.

Provincial governments, watching wild life management and even conservation the remarkable increase in the number of people hunting in the fall, have begun to realize that hunting is a valuable form of recreation, are beginning to weigh the philosophy as well as the politics of the game problem. Our pioneer generations across Canada came from countries which gave the game jealously protected by the landowners, and the common man had few if any rights in the matter of hunting for sport when they came here. Game was one of the basic necessities of survival, and it was only by public freedom to hunt game was as jealously guarded as were the privileges of the landlords in the old countries. Several generations have since enjoyed this freedom.

But a new type of landlord is beginning to be heard from, that landlord being the non-hunting majority of those who have an equal right in the game and don't want to kill it.

Plan to Make Roads Rough

Milwaukee Journal

In the days of dirt roads, hailing saloop at the wheel was practically impossible. Ruts and rocks kept drivers jostled awake. Now highways are so smooth and monotonous that nodding off or falling victim to "highway hypnosis" is a serious hazard.

The remedy? Rumble strips to keep drivers alert, awake and alive.

That, at least, is the suggestion of the Connecticut highway department. Raised strips would be installed at intervals across the pavement to deliver 34 quick vibrations, then a halt, 34 more vibrations.

Big Interest In Weather

St. Thomas Times Journal

Somewhat like the man who rides facing backward on a train in order to see where he's been, a lot of people seem almost as interested in yesterday's weather as they are in tomorrow's forecast.

So reports the U.S. Weather Bureau's National Weather Records Center at Asheville, N.C., which receives about 20,000 requests each year for information about past weather. The centre compiles by providing more than 325,000 copies of publications, 450,000 miscellaneous copies of weather data and a half-million feet of microfilmed data.

DELIGHTS

Life is very precious in its gift of delights. And at some time or other delights come to us all.

I shall briefly enumerate a few of the delights that have been personally mine, so that you may call to mind those that help to enrich your own experience.

I have delighted in books, in works of art, in walks alone or with some delightful companion. In being alone, in companionship that is inspiring and consoling. In society. In my home and flowers. In sitting silently under the stars, especially in the moon. Bits across its surface in play.

Every day is filled with that which is able to bring great delight to you.

A Lift for Living

Finding Real Joy in Living

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Joy is essential to great living. When we speak of "having a great time," we mean that we are enjoying ourselves. When we say, "This is a great life," we show that we are finding joy in living. If a person is to do a great job, he must enjoy his work. If he dislikes his task, he is like a sculptor carving a statue with a dull chisel.

Now let me ask, do we think of religious activity as a joy or a duty?

Some years ago a woman said to me: "Of course, no one would go to the trouble of keeping the commandments, going to church and doing the things religion requires if it were not for the hope of heavenly reward." That woman was not getting any joy out of her religion or making it very attractive to others.

Those who find no joy in their religion are missing something they are expected to get. Jesus said to His followers, "These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be in you and your joy may be full."

Maybe part of the trouble is that we fail to distinguish between joy and pleasure. There are many experiences which give us temporary pleasure but do not add up to abiding joy.

IMPULSES AND DRIVES

Human nature is an organism of many impulses and drives. We can get some pleasure by indulging almost any one of our instincts and appetites. But our human natures are rare organs to be played on and not played with. We must coordinate and integrate the impulses of our nature if we are to develop pleasures with joy.

And this requires discipline and struggle. A good teacher often puts on an air of cheerfulness in order to keep her and thoughts from casting gloom over children around her. We recall the stoical courage of Sir Walter Scott as he saw his cherished possessions being sold to pay a debt of honor. He forced himself to keep on writing for the sake of his creditors. In his diary is found this entry: "Worked in the morning as usual, sent off the proofs and copy. Something of the black dog still hanging about me, but I will shake him off. I generally affect good spirits in the company of my family, whether I am enjoying them or not. This species of exertion is, like virtue, its own reward; for the good spirits, which are at first simulated, become at length real." Thus Sir Walter found joy by giving joy.

We may seek pleasure for ourselves, but a spirit of service is required to get joy. A doctor sometime ago, in describing why he found romance in his work, gave as one reason that he could see results. What a deep source of joy it must be when a doctor that he can look around at those whom he has healed. To keep zest in any activity we need to see results that are worthwhile.

SHOWS ITS SUPERIORITY

And here is where good and faithful service shows its superiority over selfish indulgence. Suppose we try to find pleasure from alcoholic drink. It takes more and more to get the same satisfaction, and if not controlled, the indulgence leads to our undoing. Or consider our possessions. We discover that while in the accumulating of money grows easier as our capital increases, the satisfaction derived from our holdings operates by the law of diminishing returns. That is, while it is easier to make your second million, it does not give you as much satisfaction as did your first million. (If any one challenges this statement I cannot prove it, for here I am speaking from hearsay and not from actual experience!)

Our own pleasure and profit are not enough to live for. If we would enter into the joy of the Lord, our service must be good and faithful and also fruitful to others.

But there is a point at which duty, if persevered in, does become transformed into joy. Consider the little girl beginning the study of music. Those finger exercises at first seem like drudgery. But to please her parents the little girl keeps faithfully at it, trying to "get the hang of it." After a while the music "gets" her and she enjoys it.

So it is with the act of giving. Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." It does not seem so at first. But if we give until it stops hurting, we discover the joy of generosity.

Little pleasures can be picked up without much effort. But lasting joys are acquired tastes.

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held its first meeting of the year on Tuesday.

Mrs. Fisher, presided over the business section of the meeting.

The program, one in which all parents had an opportunity to share, was a presentation and discussion of the film, "The Shy Child." Mr. John Lawrence was co-ordinator of the four discussion groups, and gave a summary of the film after the different views had been received.

Lunch was served by the social convener, Mrs. Stella Smith.

The February meeting will be "Open House" and will be held the first Tuesday of the month.

St. Columba Ladies Plan 'Open House'

The Iona group of St. Columba Church met at the church building on January 9th for their regular monthly meeting.

With Mrs. J. Braford presiding the meeting got under way with a hymn followed by a Scripture reading by Mrs. John Hayman. Mrs. R. Brain led the group in prayer and Mrs. G. Ward took the devotional.

During the business portion of the meeting plans were discussed for the forthcoming "Open House" which will be held at St. Columba Church on January 20 on the occasion of the opening of the new Imperial Bank of Commerce in the Belleville Shopping Centre.

The program topic of the night was "As a member I must learn" and it was read by Mrs. D. Kokn. Mrs. R. Brain led the group in a most interesting question and answer period about mission work.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

WAS DROWNED

TORONTO (CP)—Coroner Dr Harvey A. Brown said Friday night an autopsy revealed Mario Field, 21, was drowned Thursday night after he collapsed underwater in an East York swimming pool. Earlier, witnesses believed Field, of Brantford, suffered a heart attack as he carried out a bet with a friend that he could swim two lengths of the pool under water. The autopsy showed no sign of heart disease.

School Systems, Past, Present, Reviewed at King George H-S

The regular monthly meeting of King George Home and School Association was held in the school auditorium on January 8th, 1962.

In the absence of Mr. Ron Lee, the president, Mrs. Shirley Culkin, vice-president, took the chair for the evening, and opened the meeting.

After the members had been visiting the teaching staff in their respective rooms, discussion any minor problems which may have come up during the past month, they assembled in the auditorium, where several announcements were made, including the progress report on the Christmas Concert and the taker who was seriously injured last month while doing repairs to some of the school windows which had been broken.

GUEST SPEAKER

The meeting was handed over to Mrs. Ross Scott, program chairman, who introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Wendy Sine, primary supervisor for the City of Belleville Public Schools.

Mrs. Sine opened her talk by describing the schools system some 20 to 25 years ago when children were put in classes, books or forms but not grades. If the circumstance school there was a primer, a first book, a second, a third and a fourth book if you were really smart, as many were, you did each of these books in one year. Or maybe you took two years in each of the third and fourth and so you were said to be in the Junior Fourth and Senior Fourth class. The system was so set up that it took anywhere from five to ten years to complete. Likewise a child of seven may be sitting in the same class as a boy or girl of 16 or 17.

SYSTEM STAGES

Mrs. Sine continued with the various stages the schools' system has gone through, since those days with research proving that a system must be set up to have more flexible school organization to take into account the varying capabilities of individual children so each child will be placed in a classroom and class group best suited to his particular needs, and by means of program timing move through the units of work at a pace that will avoid both frustration and boredom and will encourage by achievement of some measure of success.

The many plans which are needed for an efficient school system were then outlined and the talk culminated in the outline of the system used in Belleville Public Schools.

Mrs. Sine's talk was interesting indeed and all present learned much about how and what the schools in Belleville are.

Mrs. Sine was thanked by Mr. Malcolm Graham.

Refreshments were served under the convenership of Mrs. Barbara Dowbyhuz.

Too Many Women Teach Art Professor Complains

WINNIPEG (CP)—Too many women — many of them frustrated — are teaching at the University of Manitoba art professor complains.

The emphasis on women instructors helps foster the false image held by many schools that art is for "sissies," says George Swinton.

An artist who has exhibited in major art centres in Canada and the United States, he says more men should be encouraged to teach art because "there should be a balance."

Mr. Swinton feels that while educators do not usually condone a frill, they treat it as such.

"Students are made to feel that if they can't do anything else they should take art," says the Vienna - born professor. "As a result, art teachers are often confronted with a class made up of less - gifted pupils, the better ones having been directed to take more important subjects such as mathematics and English."

Many teachers unqualified in the subject were expected to give instructions in art because there just weren't enough trained people available.

ARTICLES CONDEMNED

He described the general calibre of art in Manitoba schools as "deplorable, especially in the junior and senior high divisions."

Teaching was usually adequate in the primary grades, although rural schools suffered from the practice of giving combined evils of a poor art curriculum and incompetent teaching.

The royal commission on education in 1958,—said Mr. Swinton, at first seemed to understand the role of cultural heritage and relegated the arts to an inferior position—to that of "pure liberal subjects called frills which must be rigidly restricted."

Thank God the department of education people in charge of curriculum are not using the commission's recommendations as a guidestone. Instead, they are showing a healthy interest in the arts."

Educators are aware that changes in the curriculum are needed and are working out revisions, the professor said.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

This year the newly formed Company 13 began with the registration of 15 girls and three leaders, Captain M. Sweet, Lieutenant M. Montgomery and Lieutenant V. Sloot. Before now, one of the main projects is raising money for a new flag.

Early in the fall, a hike to Zwicky's Island was planned at which time the Tenderfoot girls had the opportunity to pass tests such as trail and Scout's pace. Later, a first class expedition to the O.S.D. was arranged.

The Hallowe'en party proved to be fun for all. The Guides were asked to invite their mothers to the party and, as well, to participate in the activities for the evening. They enjoyed such things as bobbing for apples, a treasure hunt and various skits put on by the Guides.

The guest for the evening was Master Larry Thompson, who favored with a tap dance solo.

Coffee, treatie, and cookies were served to round off a pleasant evening.

SCAVENGER HUNT

One of the meetings took the course of a scavenger hunt; Each patrol was given sealed orders, the particular street they could travel on, and the time they should return. Points were given for the return of each article and for speed and returning on time.

Christmas Good Turn took the form of collecting articles of clothing and toys and making gifts for them. Each girl, including a turkey for a needy family, who was chosen for the Saturday prior to Christmas.

At this time, they witnessed the enrolment of three of the Tenderfoot girls, Susan Collinger, Cicely Collyer and Nancy Wood. They were entertained by the Guides and were asked to take part in circle singing and games. Coffee and pie were served by the four girls trying for their hostess badge. Mrs. B. Corbin was present for the purpose of testing these girls.

During the Christmas holidays a sleigh ride with Company 2 was enjoyed at the Circle B Ranch, after which cocoa and doughnuts were enjoyed around an outdoor fire.

As the company this year was new there was a big decision to make regarding the name of the group. Voting on and Kelly Green was chosen.

Deep in Scenic Alpine Valley Stands This Skiing Paradise

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland —One white day in 1891, an Englishman named Gerald Fox strapped himself on to a pair of skis in his room at the Bear Hotel here and galumphed down the corridor and out into the winter to go skiing. Naturally, his countrymen assembled in the lobby drinking tea about their heads.

Thus came to Switzerland la dol, l'acres ski and all the other winter sports with which its name is now inextricably associated—ice skating, tobogganing, sleighing mit jingle bells, drinking hot toddies, and the latest craze, curling. This is a kind of slippery shuffleboard imported from Scotland in which skaters with brooms push around objects that look like spittoons with handles.

People like Fox and Sir Arnold Lunn — another Englishman who invented the slalom and today, in his 70's, skis better than we can hope to — brought skiing here from Norway and converted it from an exercise to a sport. The sturdy Norwegians had put skis in the same class as snowshoes and thought the whole point of sport is trudge uphill than fly down. They no longer do, as Olympic records prove.

Grindelwald is one of the last of the unspoiled Alpine villages, deep in the heart of the Bernese Oberland in what has been called the loveliest of Alpine valleys.

Brooks, emerald with icy glacial waters, course beneath covered bridges among the pastured lands. Abrupt from their edges rise the three and four-thousand-meter peaks with the names that ring of Alpine derring-do: the Wetterhorn, the Jungfrau, the Schreckhorn and the Eiger.

MOST BEAUTIFUL SPOT

Mist-filled like wreaths to the edges where yellow aspen and woodland flowers grow, the valley stretches with carpet facades decorate the slopes, and it is easy to believe that here is the most beautiful place in the world.

Whatever it is that make the Alps different from any other mountains—after World War I today it is intriguing for its Mediterranean climate. By some freak, the south, wind—Italy's Sirocco, France's mistral, and Switzerland's bochm—finds its way here and produces pretty much of a year-round balmy climate for the lake. Even the hotels are called albergos, the people are inventive pseudo-Italians, and the, crumbling farmhouses, like northern Italy, are made impressive by a three-way split personality that is Switzerland.

Facilities are superb. Ski tows are too rudimentary for the Swiss, who engage themselves and visitors in cogwheel railways, cable cars and chair lifts all over the mountain sides.

They are all cheap and frequent, with no waiting even in peak season, with the result that even American ski clubs have been hopping TWA's Superjets for the mere eight-hour trip from New York, and not much longer from wherever else in North America you start.

The 85-to-day hotel rooms may not save enough to pay the fare even with 17-day excursions, but you can't stop over in Paris on the way to Stowe or Aspen, can you?

WORTH THE DETOUR

Grindelwald isn't quite as posh as St. Moritz or Davos. Neither is Locarno, whether we came here on one of the Swiss Federal Railways' cut-rate holiday tickets. But both the railroad, a novelty in the mere fact of its existence, and the off-beat Italian-Swiss city, which is surrounded by ski slopes where you can swim among palm trees, were worth the detour from Zurich.

The fully electrified railway system spends its miles alternately clambering through tunnels, raising passengers by their over spectacular gorges, curling around the Alpine foothills and meandering through obligatoried valleys and post card villages.

It is one of the most combined - country systems in the world, encompassing cogwheels, international expresses, Tourerville trolleys, cable cars, and the only line we've ever been on where you can take a street car from one country to another. We boarded an electric car in Locarno and didn't change it as we progressed—best train until Domodossolla, Italy.

Locarno is best known — or notorious—as the city where much of the most unconventional treaties in history was executed, that limiting German armaments after World War I. Today it is intriguing for its Mediterranean climate. By some freak, the south, wind—Italy's Sirocco, France's mistral, and Switzerland's bochm—finds its way here and produces pretty much of a year-round balmy climate for the lake. Even the hotels are called albergos, the people are inventive pseudo-Italians, and the, crumbling farmhouses, like northern Italy, are made impressive by a three-way split personality that is Switzerland.

Avoid mealworms and vermin in your living quarters by cutting things up into smaller pieces, each of which can be used for a particular job and immediately disposed of.

"WINKS THE MOON SO WISE?"

"When the moon shome, we did not see the candle,/ no doth the greater glory dim the less."—from The Merchent of Venice by Shakespeare.

On a motor trip, last fall, "a friend of mine, My other day, we drove through the outskirts of a town, where we passed a kind of restaurant-catalet edifice that bore the name Moonbeam and I'm immediately was filled with amazing delight. "Why?" we asked.

"Just another instance of the power of names. My first plane piece was called "Moonwinks". I can almost remember the tune of it still, and how I used to ponder over the cover's drawing of a large moon face with one eye winkded up in one huge wink. It was a very knowing, wise one.

"This caught my childish fancy to such an extent that for years after my impression of the moon's wisdom; a sort of wise man. And why not? After all if you look in the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations, there are ninety references concerning the moon and only fifty-four on money. There must be some wisdom to be all that impressive.

"Of course, those interested in the fact that the moon is a spent sphere 2,162 miles in diameter, with a mean distance of 238,857 miles from the earth's pock-marked with 32 thousand craters and 'seas' (probably dry as Everest, will pooh-pooh as nonsense, such a non-superstition, that the spots on the moon is a man as the story has it in Genesis 4:1-16. Like Adam, Jack and Jill climbing and then falling down, as is believed in Holland. Or that the moon is really a lover, who came by the spots on his face, because of the ashes his unloving lady friend tossed at him, as told in Hiwai-vas.

TAKE THREE

"It's well known that the scientists can no weight at all with the ancient non scientific Athenians. Socrates, one of the gurus, Socrates' close friend, tried to say that moon was nothing but a lifeless mass. They up and banished him, his followers as is believed, in exile. After all, they considered the moon a mighty handy object to have around, and even computed a formula 'that when a man wantgd beauty in pleasure, he starts when the moon is on the wane, and ceases when which he would have less of, he starts when the moon is on the wane, etc.

"So to this day, in the Austrian Tyrol, it is believed the best time for a hair cut is when the moon wanes, thus prevents the hair from growing back too quickly. The Wabondeh of East Africa insist that the best time to plant beans is when the moon in on the wane, but posts the best time for house to wanes. While the Parsees of ancient Iran (who had strides the moon one pace at a time) intermediate, heavenly body that stood between the invisible and visible world) have always been against paying their bills at the time of the sky, they were otherwise they would be paying out money for the rest of the month. Even Lilo a loaf pie for centuries, refuse to bake anything except on the wane, since it is well-known, that one becomes fatter as the moon waxes and thinner as it wanes.

"In fact", concluded our friend, "practically every old ways declared she could tell about the weather, by the new moon. As I look back, it's no wonder the moon has always been a source of lore on reckon on with. A kind of awe concerning about up there in the wide, wide sky.

But not for us. No matter what the calendar has to say about the moon, it's full moon in each of its quarters. As we begin it in the sky, they, too, are just, some various moods of a

T.V. OR NOT T.V.

Television-watching is now almost a national habit but, like some habits that get the best of hand, it has developed into an addiction for many of us. As a result, a host or hostess who is severely "hooked" may spend more time watching the TV screen than watching out for the wants of guests.

As these are less concerned, watching television, should be a pleasant time for all, preferably practiced alone or in the bosom of the family. With only a few exceptions, it should never be inflicted on visitors.

Recently, I went through the unnerving experience of spending an evening at the home of a TV addict. We gathered in the living-room where the set was going full blast.

Throughout, there was an unwilling and exhaustive study of the side and back of my host's head as he sat there, watched the magic screen unfold the latest chapter in the Flaxby whodunits. Beyond the realization that he needed a haircut and that the evening of wea a total loss to me.

Oh, mine host talked occasionally, but only about the commercials, and if I didn't know the name of the article, I'd cough, his nose was aimed back, ed at the television before I had finished the sentence.

I do agree that TV is here to stay, but since it is a form of entertainment, I think that its users should appreciate the fact that last easter offer, and that one man's thriller may be another man's potion.

Don't you, though, program preferences shouldn't even enter the picture. What matters is that you have invited folks to your home for an evening of relaxation and conversation. In the early days of television, everyone who had a set invited those who didn't to drop in and take a peek. Nowadays, however, a host rarely only people who don't own their own sets are those who like watching it.

The network, occasionally put on noteworthy programs such as the Kennedy memorial, a which give the pictorial background to the assassination of the late JFK. If it so happens that guests and one of these Specials are expected for the evening, let them a host may properly turn off the set and invite the group to join him.

Other exceptions would occur when the World Series is on or the various football bowl games are being televised. Also, when friends often meet to watch the event in a congenial atmosphere, they usually follow it up with dinner afterwards.

Otherwise, though, the set should be turned off when you have company. If you as such a decision, your can't bear missing your favorite give-away show, then you should schedule social events at a more convenient time.

In other words, check your TV listing first before issuing any invitations.

Question: I'm giving a shower for a friend and would like to know the names of the arrangements. It will be late in the afternoon, and only a few guests are invited. Should I also invite my friend's husband? I'm afraid he might feel that I'm deliberately leaving him out of the party. — M.G.

Answer: He may be invited to attend the home shower refreshments, but not while the shower presents are being opened. It's only a personal gathering, your friend would probably feel a little embarrassed to have his fiance around during that part of the party. It would be easier on the young man also, if you arranged to invite a few other males, so he won't feel lost in an all-female group.

Cream the butter well and add the lemon juice. Add to the cream in the sugar gradually then add the beaten yolks. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Add the flour mixture, a little at a time, beating after each addition only enough to blend. Line a loaf pan (9 x 5 x 2¾") with wax paper and grease it. Pour in batter and bake at 325 deg. The Rev. Oliver Raymond officiated at the ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride took her vows in a pearl-grey satin gown, fashioned in the style of 60 years ago.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. E.F. — How can they think of going ahead with the wedding as planned?

Mrs. R.S. — It's too late now to cancel anything. We must think of the living.

Mrs. E.F. — When the bride, groom's best man and usher you'd think that would end all plans for a home wedding. I'm Neil's sister and we just had our dad a week ago. With the wedding of Joe for just two weeks from now, Nell and Adele have talked them over and they seem to be in a mess. Joe's fiancee, Nell, no matter what kind of a mess she's in, is not going to let Nell's dad back. Second, 80 invitations are out — some of Joe's friends in America and California. These people have made reservations at Malcolm Court reservations to attend. How can we, at this late date, call it off? Nell and Adele are upset.

We laid out big sums, and Christmas was never near. Meanwhile I am mailing to you some articles that I recommend and hope the following will start you off on a new knock.

The Council: A line from the Book of Common Prayer, used at funerals, reads as follows: "In the midst of life we are in death." Certainly the converse is true, and there is a guidance for these bereaved and bewildered people "in the midst of death we are in life." For a joyous marriage waits in the wings, and in the midst of the somber devotions have been rendered.

Despite the raw pain of the moment, some view of the longrange life ahead is the next moment up. How sad it would be to add, as she is prone to perspective, the added tragedy of a rift and a feud within the family! Should there be in some sort of case balance between practical and realistic, as described by Mrs. H., and the emotional and spiritual, as represented by Mrs. E.F., they are sympathetic with each problem.

This is a long-looked-forward, to moment in the lives of Adele and Joe. Their wishes are not so close to the count-down, a modified (not necessary would be the best. But at this zero hour, any substantial cancellations would evolve too great an upheaval and undue hardship on too many of the family.

We suggest the following: A modified, simple ceremony with the (necessarily) non) attendants. Clothing and floral decorations can be used unchanged, but photographs should be limited to merely the minimum for the occasion. The husband in on a music might precede and accompany the ceremony thereof and, perhaps, a reception held in the usual wedding music is out. Tripping, rousing selections would be discordant under the circumstances. And certainly no dancing. Drinking, too, should be kept to a minimum. A champagne toast might serve to mark both the solemnity and the gaiety of the occasion.

By proceeding with the main outline of the plans, but exercising restraint and sensitivity to details, Mrs. N. can make the presence as well as the absence of the deceased, felt by all.

Ask Henry

The writer of this weekly advice column is a 12-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. It has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from parents. If you want him to discuss your problem write to ASK HENNY, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Henry—We have frequent disputes at home whether our children should be allowed to watch cartoons. They are not really funny and some completely unlogical. I would rather let my children watch a science film. What is your opinion about it?—A FATHER.

Dear Father—

These cartoons develop a child's sense of humor
And a child's imagination comes to life much sooner
Cartoons are not good, is what I say
But they benefit a little kid in its own way. HENRY.

Dear Henry—My name is Patricia. I am 8 years old. I have a sister named Susan and she is 6 years old. She starts fusses all the time and scratches me and makes sore places on me and hits me. And I don't do that to her as much as she does to me. I don't scratch her but I hit her a little. What should I do to make her stop making fusses and telling daddy and mommy that I started them.—PATRICIA.

Dear Patricia—Your sister fusses all the time because you hit her a little. Even a small, puny little spark is enough to start a fire. So you have to step on the spark and put it out and never hit your sister again, not even a little.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My name is Wojciech Chrzaszczkowsko. I was born in Canada and my parents are Polish. All the boys here tease me on account of my name. When the teacher reads the pronounce list, she can't pronounce my name and everyone laughs. What is there to do?—WOJCIECH.

Dear Wojciech—Ignore the smart aleck kids who tease you and laugh. When the teacher reads the roll call, show her how to pronounce your name. The kids are probably jealous of your name. Everyone here is called Bill, Jack, Johnny, etc., but not everyone gets a smashing name like yours.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I have a son 9 years of age. He is in Grade 5 in the A stream. Recently, at the parents-teacher meeting, I was warned that if he doesn't improve his work and behavior, he will have to go to the B stream. He is not bad from boys in his class that he fools around most of the time and plays the class joker. How could I help to prevent him from going to the B stream.—MRS. J. W. S.

Dear Mrs. J. W. S.—Put your kid to work, keep him busy and be very strict with him. Help him in his school work as much as you can. Find out if he was good in school and if he was, plenty of praise, and if he wasn't, plenty of the opposite.

He will resent this, but these few weeks can make a life. If he goes to the B stream it would discourage him and he will remain a joker thinking that he can't get any worse.

If he stays in A stream, he will thank you and after his work pays off, he will be able to drive himself.—HENRY.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Wives Need Special Strategy For 'Lazy Retired Husbands'

By THOMAS COLLINS

"Please say something kind about the working wife who retires, now that comes home to a retired husband who won't even put out the cat. . . .

This comes from a working wife who is about to retire and come home to a retired husband who, etc., etc.

"In all my married life I was never retired. I held down and still do, a 40-hour job. Sometimes 48 hours. My husband, he never seems to think I have two jobs, one where I am employed and the other at home. My earnings go into the house budget the same as his.

"His major contribution to my work at home is mouthing. Where energy is to be put forth, he saves his.

"We working wives who are nearing retirement can look forward to coming home to retired husbands, who will expect to be waited on hand and foot, while they grunt and groan. We'd like to do that, too, once in a while.

"But there are dishes to do, cooking, washing, ironing, mending, cleaning, going to market, picking up after the dear man...while we listen to him tell us how we should have done said chores yesterday, or put them off until tomorrow!"

"JUST BE AGREEABLE"

"It would make life more pleasant for the old lady if the old man would just be agreeable....."

The working wife, who retires presumably would have a pension in her own name. So she is not exactly helpless in her relationship with a lazy retired husband. It is still necessary for him to support her, so she can take her retirement income and go travelling for a spell, or pay a visit to Cousin Minnie in Manitoba.

The fed-at-home husband will protest. Good and long. For nothing makes a retired man so miserable as losing the woman who has been waiting on him. Big if the wife has the nerve to pull such a "vacation" for herself. She will usually come home to a repentant man — for a couple of weeks anyway.

Then when his good behavior begins to wear off she can always peep at him over the coffee cup and sweetly say, "I'll do it again."

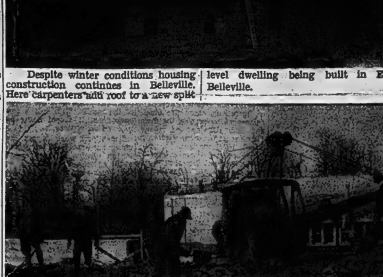
The wife who lets her husband enjoy retirement and is not being considerate of her problems has failed somewhere back down the line....possibly at the time when sex played out the factor in her influence on him. That's no help now of course, unless the wife can see the need of acquiring some new weapon.

COMPANIONSHIP A WEAPON

Companionship is a weapon because a retired man sorely needs it. The wife can take it away. Household toil is a weapon, too. This, too, a wife can take with her.

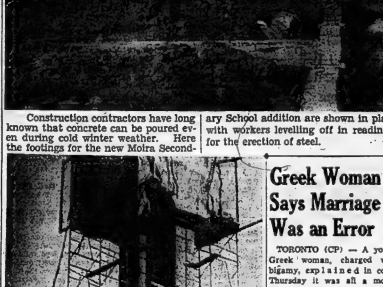
Most wives in the predicament of the one who has stated her case will find a will and zig in a vain effort to make their men more helpful. And as a result they will create more new physical ailments in the men than a doctor ever heard of. Backaches of mysterious origins, insomnium, upset stomachs, headaches, dizzy spells — and the symptoms of those that will grow worse the more the wife nags him to get away from the television and come help her do some work.

In time he'll even be buying medicine for his supposed ailments.



It's not force, or nagging, or bribery that will make a lazy husband help in her retired life. It's the taking away of something he enjoys, like cooked food or clean beds.

APPEAL CONVICTION



NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Two officials of a planned parenthood centre have appealed their conviction of violating Connecticut's birth control law. Mrs. Lee Buxton and Mrs. Richard W. Griswold filed the appeal Friday. They were convicted and fined $100 each Jan. 2.

Despite winter conditions housing construction continues in Belleville. Here carpenters add roof to a new split-level dwelling being built in East Belleville.

Construction contractors have long known that concrete can be poured even during cold winter weather. Here the footings for the new Moira Secondary School addition are shown in place with workers levelling off in readiness for the erection of steel.

New chimney is seen being built here at Moira Secondary School where technical school addition is to be built. Canopy at top protects bricklayers from winter winds.

145 Men Are Provided Jobs By Municipal Winter Works

While possibly outside the realm of the National Employment Service "Do It Now" program the current municipal winter works program is providing jobs for about 145 men who otherwise would have been jobless.

Employment office officials here this week stated that 21 municipal winter works projects have been approved with 11 of them now in progress. Another nine are pending, while one such project has been completed.

Another big provider of jobs in the winter works program locally has been the Ontario Department of Highways which has eight projects underway on the Bancroft area. These projects are providing jobs for 83 men.

The Department of Lands and Forests has put 18 men to work in winter projects, while vocational training is also helping to alleviate unemployment in the area. To date this season a total of 36 persons have been recommended for vocational training.

Employment office officials note there are more active building projects underway in the area this year than was the case last winter, and this has resulted in an correspondingly better employment picture for persons in the construction business.

For instance two school additions, one at the Harry J. Clarke Public School and the other at the Moira Secondary School, are currently underway.

At the Belleville Shopping Plaza workmen are busy putting the finishing touches to a number of stores, and the finishing work at the new Emmanuel Baptist Church on Victoria Ave. is also underway.

All of which proves that construction jobs can be carried on despite winter conditions.

Even house building is continuing through the winter, as is evidenced by the number of new dwellings, especially in the booming east end of the city, which can be seen going up.

Interior renovations and redecorating can of course be carried on regardless of the season and carrying out such work now can further relieve the unemployment situation.

Greek Woman Says Marriage Was an Error

TORONTO (CP) — A young Greek woman, charged with bigamy, explained in court Thursday it was all a monumental error.

When she married her first husband, at city hall here, she says she thought she was merely taking out a licence to marry her sweetheart. The man she married on that occasion was to become best man at the latter wedding.

Her lawyer said Stravroula Tsilivardi, 22, was "under a misapprehension."

"When she married her friend, Dimitri, at city hall she merely thought she was taking out a licence to marry Nick," said George Bagwell.

Miss Tsilivardi married Dimitri Constandeles, 25, last August. And last month she went through a marriage ceremony in a Greek Orthodox church with her sweetheart, Nick Kokoros.

Constandeles said he got her father's permission to marry Stravroula "but we kept it from her mother because she doesn't like me."

The night of the city hall wedding, Constandeles said, the bride went home alone to her parents.

Constandeles said that after his marriage, Stravroula told him she wanted him to be best man when she married Nick.

The case was adjourned to Jan. 19.

Tributes Paid Former Minister Of Agriculture

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tributes were paid Friday to the late Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, former Liberal agriculture minister, by those who associated closely with him during a long career in federal politics.

The 75-year-old Liberal politician, twice premier of Saskatchewan and federal agriculture minister for 23 years, succumbed Friday to cancer in Balcarres, Sask., hospital.

His son, James Wilfrid, Liberal member of the Saskatchewan legislature for Melville, was at his bedside when he died.

The funeral is expected to be held Monday at Lemberg, his farm home 50 miles northeast of Regina, to which he retired after his defeat in the 1958 general election.

WILL BE MISSED

"He will be greatly missed by the country he served so long, so well and so unselfishly . . ." said Liberal Leader L. B. Pearson.

"Canada has lost one of her most distinguished public men, one who served her in political life with devotion and drive and imagination for nearly half a century.

"The Liberal party has lost one of its bravest and most loyal members; one who never failed the party in any test, who was dedicated to its principles and proud of its achievements.

"He was never ashamed to be called a strong party man because he felt he could best serve his country through his party.

"Canadian agriculture has lost one of its great champions, one who knew farm problems from practical experience and who always strove to improve the position of the farmer in our society.

FEARLESS 'FIGHTER'

Said Prime Minister Diefenbaker:

"Few men have had such a long, active and varied political life as James Gardiner. He was a man of strong convictions who left his mark on provincial and federal politics. He was a fighter for the causes he espoused and his experience enabled him to acquire a wide knowledge of the problems of agriculture and politics."

Former CCF leader M. J. Coldwell:

"As one who was in opposition to his party, and often critical of his policies, I nonetheless respected his undoubted ability and appreciated his obvious loyalty to his friends.

"Mr. Gardiner was a first-class debater, a fierce worker and an able administrator. The Liberal party has lost an outstanding figure and Canada a son for more that 50 years occupied important positions in our public life. . . ."

REMINDS OF GIANTS

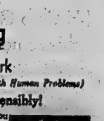
Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton:

"The passing of Mr. Gardiner . . . reminds us of nearly half a century of public service. It reminds us of the giants that pioneer life in Canada produced.

"As minister of agriculture, he probably considered the Prairie Farm Assistance Act as the most significant with which his name was connected. . . . It was good that Mr. Gardiner lived long enough to see the start of the great dam on the South Saskatchewan."

Former prime minister Louis St. Laurent:

"We worked together as members of the Canadian government for almost 16 years and I always held him in high esteem and felt his devotion to the public service of his fellow citizens, and particularly to the farming communities, was of a very high order.



"I am sure all those who knew him personally and they constitute a large portion of the Canadian people will share in mourning his demise and will long remember his faithful and distinguished career."

Successful Living

Take off Pounds Sensibly!

DEAR DORIS:—I want to thank you very sincerely for having made my correct address available to so many overweight persons, through your column. I only wish I could talk with each one who has written to me for information regarding our club, TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly"). I feel so badly when I read of their problems and then hear that they cannot bring themselves to go a step or two further to form a TOPS Club.

The sincere desire to overcome weight problem and to help others with DORIS CLARK there is the foremost factor in a good TOPS leader. If desire to be of normal weight and readiness to admit the need for help is there, then these will take the members far towards their goal.

The group that I belong to now started with four women over five years ago. The membership has varied from 15 to 30. Three times new clubs have been formed from their ranks, and there have been 31 members during those years who have attained and held their normal weight.

If only some of the interesting inquiries that I have had through your column would result in some overweights taking the plunge—it would be wonderful.—Sincerely yours, JEAN FLATT (Supervisor for Canada), 244 York Road, Dundas, Ont.

DEAR MRS. FLATT.—Wonderful—and so worth while! Perhaps this new year will mark the beginning of some good resolutions and some new clubs which will take shape seriously.

DEAR DORIS:—We have been married six years and have three sons. We have been living with my parents for the past year due to my husband's being unemployed for a year. He has been employed for the past two months, but we are still living with my parents.

My problem is my husband's constant going out. Every night he has some excuse to go out and see the boys. We do go out together bowling one night a week, and the odd time another evening on the weekend.

Then practically every weekend he goes fishing, so Sunday afternoons when I'd sure like to get out with the three children, I am sitting home.

When I complain, he says there is nothing for him to do in the house during the evening when the children are sleeping and there is no TV set in the house.—STUMPED.

DEAR STUMPED:—Two can play at that game. You need a night out with the girls. Ask him for it, as a regular time you can depend on. Join a Four-H group or a church club which will provide you with activity.

Then ask him for some free time every other weekend. And find a spare-time interest your husband can enter into with you, at home.

I'm not fooling. If you don't get diversion, you really will ruin your nerves.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am a married woman 46 years old. I have had clerking experience for 25 years.

Lately my employer has been asking me to help with some of the buying for the store. He also has had me do the statements at the end of the month. I feel this is a step upward.

I would like some help on how to express myself and keep up a good conversation; and some ideas on how to do the buying. Could you tell me where I could go for books or pamphlets about this?—MRS. A. K.

DEAR MRS. A. K.:—Besides reading about your specific problems, it helps with the art of conversation if you embark on a regular reading program to familiarize you with the great writers and with current events.

When it comes to buying, your best help will come from contact with stores in large centres which are selling the most up-to-date merchandise of the kind in your store. Buyers and salesladies will be glad to talk with you about what is new and popular.

The boss will doubtless be pleased to pay for the occasional trip when you show such ambition. Your job has become creative and calls for new ideas.

I am sending you the names of some books which can help. Good luck!

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Here's a note to E. D. I know just what it's like with brothers and their friends, as I too have a brother of nineteen with many friends. One of them took an interest in me and I in him, but he did not want my brother to know as he would just get teased for liking my brother's so-called "little sister."

So, E. D., don't feel hurt if your brother's friend doesn't feel too easy in taking you for the ride you desire so much. He's probably just staying clear of a whole lot of ribbing!.—ANOTHER SISTER.

DEAR ANOTHER:—And trying to keep from being "taken for a ride" himself? Thanks, Little Sister!

Despite the severe weather of the past several weeks, the Glenora ferry has continued to run on schedule. The ferry is a Highway 33 connecting link and crosses the mile-wide Bay of Quinte to join Prince Edward County at Glenora with Adolphustown on the mainland.

Captain James Haylock, supervisor, says that the channel across the bay for the ferry crossing is exceptionally wide for this time of year, with an open area of from 600 to 700 feet in width. The ferries are operating on a half-hour service around the clock. The larger Quinte Loyalist crosses the bay on the hour, with the Quinte taking over from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. In the above photo, the Loyalist is shown breaking a thin layer of clear ice which was creeping towards the centre of the channel. Former U.S. Air Force Major Laying Groundwork For Invasion of Klondike

By ATHOL BETALLACK
Canadian Press Correspondent

KLONDIKE CITY, Yukon (CP) — Business as usual is the rule in the 10-by-12 foot shack beside the Palace Grand Theatre, though the 19 inches of snow outside drifts deeper and the temperature falls to 50 below zero.

The sign on the door reads, "General Manager, Dawson City Gold Rush Festival Foundation," and behind it is a man who has driven a dogteam through worse weather.

Alan Innes-Taylor, 51, a former U.S. Air Force major who trained North American troops for a proposed landing in Norway during the Second World War, is laying the groundwork for a peaceful invasion of the Klondike next summer.

It's a big job, and before the short summer tourist season is nipped off by frost, Mr. Innes-Taylor expects the first annual festival to be almost as alluring as the original Klondike gold rush which brought a scenic quarter of 30,000 humans to the boom town's boardwalks.

"A million people made plans to go to the Klondike in 1898," he says. "A hundred thousand started and 40,000 made it, most on foot. So why not 29,000 in 1962 and 40,000 in '63 by car, plane and bus?"

FATHER IN GOLD RUSH

One of the 40,000 who made it in '98 was Mr. Innes-Taylor's father, Alan Innes-Taylor, who later at Berkhamsted, England, but spent his first six years in Belgium, the country that later awarded his mother the Queen Elizabeth Medal and the Medicale Civique for her service and bravery as a nurse during the First World War.

Alan went to school in Bootcaygeon, Ont., at 17 to join the RAF, became an officer and was on active duty until the end of the war.

During five years at Whitehorse, Yukon, with the RCMP he displayed aptitude for handling sled dogs. It still must have brought him a telephone call in Vancouver in 1929.

The New York trailer wanted 40 dogs and a man who could handle them to leave for New Zealand within 24 hours. Mr. Innes-Taylor quickly agreed to join the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

He missed the expedition in New Zealand, signed on a Norwegian whaling ship for seven months, learned to speak Norwegian, boarded a supply ship and joined Admiral Richard Byrd in the Antarctic in August. When another expedition was outfitted in 1935, he signed on for another two years.

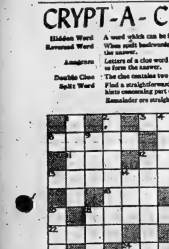
DECORATED BY U.S.

His work with Admiral Byrd won him the U.S. Congressional Medal of Honor on two occasions and he won the Carnegie Hero Medal for saving a woman's life 12 miles off the U.S. Atlantic coast.

After USAF service during the Second World War and the Korean War, he retired as a lieutenant colonel, became a consultant to several airlines using polar flights and wrote a survival pamphlet. This is the Arctic.

Long experience in the Yukon fitted Mr. Innes-Taylor for his post as general manager of the Dawson Festival, brainchild of Tom Patterson, founder of the Stratford Festival.

Mr. Innes-Taylor was purser for a time on the riverboat Keno, now beached here and restored as a museum piece. He has been a miner in the Yukon as well as a prospector and co-owner of the first Yukon air service.



Big and quietly friendly, each day he faces a new series of suggestions and decisions concerning air, bus and boat tours, facilities of accommodation, overages, stage coach rides, art classes, museums, tourist goldpanning and building restoration.

Each mail brings new inquiries which he patiently answers.

Largest problem of them all is preparing a town of 800 and the nearby settlements of Klondike, East Chance and Moosehide, 1,300 miles northwest of Edmonton, for 25 times their population in visitors.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

You don't have to join the navy to see the world. You can get much better than a person-view if you become a pro wrestler with a gimmick, and sport something freakish about your physical make-up.

Remember Ski-Hi Lee, who reportedly hailed from from Texas, and other various headquarters, and had the shortest legs and the longest body on a seven-foot frame this side of an alligator.

Ski-Hi had a gravelly basso-baritone voice that rumbled up somewhere from four inches south of the umbilicus. When incensed, he emitted roars like a frustrated bear in mating time.

When he became real angry, you just cleared the decks, removed everything that wasn't nailed, and departed for faraway places.

Well, Ski-Hi has turned up in Paris. On his first appearance in the Palace of Sport, he emptied the place of bowlerdom, wriggled-minded made-moiselle and the powerful bat-pelted quicker than a fire alarm or a free champagne announcement from the Ritz-Carlton.

It appears a promoter named Goldstein had worn out two of his main attractions named "The Masked Marvel" and the "White Angel." And they created the crowd. The Angel tailed the minutes and Goldstein the money.

The biggest crowd of last year went wild. It overflowed the Palace before the Angel and Marvel were scheduled to appear. And they came well provided with post-athletic ammunition.

It ended after a fiery battle that finished in a double knockout. Both pachydermas lay stretched out on the canvas nearly buried under the welter of ripe, over-ripe and enhanced fruit and vegetables.

Eventually, the story goes, M. Goldstein found time foraging heavily on his hands. The fracas became scarcer. He almost forgot how to count.

So he decided to do the right thing by his public. He declared masks, capes and false blood were phoney. He would import from a province in "the champion of the world" and another who was seven feet tall.

He made his "champion" selection from the ranks and came up with one, "Lucky Simunovich."

"Lucky" forgot to bring his horseshoes, rabbits' feet and other smugly good luck charms. He managed to wriggle himself in the ropes, was carousted out and could not answer the bell for the second waltz.

But Ski-Hi? Ah, that was different. Part of his 334-pound chassis was covered by the coiest curls Texas ever saw. The rest of his tank-like torso looked like the annual exhibition of the Amalgamated Associations of Tattoo Artists. When he wriggled a dark, smoky brunette almost impaled herself on the bow-sprit of the flagship of the Texas Navy.

Ski-Hi's opponent didn't believe in rassling cricket. He liked his Texan, no end. The Parisien referee believed "Frenchie, Oui-Yankee, Non." Ski-Hi's adam's apple came up for the third time and the big Texan took over.

He wound up with both arms and clobbered the Parisien pachyderm to the mat. The referee intervened but he ended up alongside a blonde in the third row back.

Enter seven wrestlers, the preliminary boys who attempted to step up on the infuriated Ski-Hi. The tall Texan picked them up one by one. They flew out of the ring with the greatest of ease head first, and settled for seats in the balcony.

Mr. Goldstein? He was back at the old familiar job, franc-counting in the back room.

Sherman, Van Brocklin

Rookie Coaches on Spot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four rookies in the Pro Bowl? It sounds about normal — except that two of them are first-year men in the coaching business.

They're Alfie Sherman of New York and Norm Van Brocklin of Minnesota, who'll be guiding the East and West squads Sunday in the National Football League's 12th annual all-star shoounter.

The playing rookies are Pitts-burgh linebacker Myron Pottios and Chicago end Mike Ditka.

Sherman was no surprise to coach the easterners. His upset showing came in the regular season when he blended five castoffs with a perennially strong but weak team to win the division championship.

Sherman would rather forget the playoff with Green Bay—the Packers won 37-0. He's also aware that the Western Division Detroit Lions walloped Philadelphia in the Playoff Bowl and that the West is favored here by 4½ points.

Leafs, Habs May Race for NHL Race

Right Now All Even

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs, the deciding factor of a torrid National Hockey League race may be the six games the Maple Leafs still have to play against Montreal Canadiens.

"Right now, we're all even after eight games," says Imlach. "But if one team wins something like four of the next six, it could be enough for the title."

Canadiens lead the Leafs by one point, 52 to 51. Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers are tied for third 13 points behind Toronto.

The Habs play home - and - home games against lowly Boston Bruins during the weekend. Toronto plays host to Detroit Red Wings tonight and meets the Black Hawks at Chicago Sunday night.

The Rangers are at Chicago tonight and visit Detroit Red Wings Sunday night.

CONTD ER TIGHT

If Imlach is right, the race could go down the the wire because six games of the remaining six games will be played during the last week of the season. They meet in Toronto March 22 and in Montreal the following night.

In between, they'll play at Toronto March 24 and at Montreal Feb. and March 8.

So far, Leafs have won three and tied one in the games played at Toronto. Canadiens hold a similar record on home ice.

Leafs go into their weekend games minus forwards Dick Duff, Red Kelly and Eddie Shack.

Duff hurt his left foot Wednesday against Boston and is in hospital under special x-ray examination. His return is indefinite.

CALLS UP KOZAK

Kelly, who injured a knee two weeks ago, is not expected to be ready for action until the middle of next week. Shack will be out for two more weeks with torn knee ligaments.

Imlach watched the Leafs' American Hockey League farm club, Rochester Americans down Providence 4-2 Friday night and called up Les Kozak, who got two of the Americans' goals. Kozak, who plays for Toronto tonight, is a six-foot, 185-pound product of Toronto's St. Michael's College who spent last year in a seminary before changing his mind and returning to professional hockey.

The Rangers will have new forwards Dave Balon and Mc-Donald, their games against Chicago and Detroit.

Balon and Pearson, along with young Bryan Hextall Jr., were called up from Kitchener of the Eastern Profes to a mid-League several days ago. They worked out with Rangers, idle since last Sunday.

But Hextall was returned to Kitchener and player - coach Doug Davidson, who plans to use Balon and Pearson on a line th centre Earl Ingarfield,

Indians Scalp Maroons

Athletics Nip Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toby Black's second goal of the night won him a standing ovation from Woodstock's biggest crowd of the season Friday night and gave the ambitious Athletics a 4-3 overtime victory over the league - leading Galt Terriers.

Black, who had opened the scoring, smacked home a bouncing puck at 71:42 of the extra session and 1,900 fans screamed. The win moved the Athletics to within eight points of the Terriers, who lead the Ontario Hockey Association senior series, and left them only three points back of second-place Windsor Bulldogs.

Stratford Indians were 5-2 victors over Chatham Maroons in the night's other game. They now are five points back of the fourth - place Maroons, the team they have to beat out for a playoff spot.

The Terriers got financial support — $172 donated by the Woodstock fans for their forthcoming trip to the world league tournament in Colorado Springs — but their reception from the fans was less charitable.

Gerry Striegle and Tommy Wilson scored between them the goals while Lloyd Mercer got two for Galt, his 19th and 20th of the season and Barry Hinkle one.

Ted Sloan, Galt's reinstated National Hockey veteran, didn't score but got involved in a rousing fist fight with Wilson a second before the end of regular time.

The Indians, who won only their third game on home ice, got two - goal performances from Ron Ellis and Marc Shantz while outplaying the Maroons. Part of the way Winger Jack McIlwain added a single while George Aitken and Joe Maki tallied for Chatham.

Kidd's Hopes Look Dim

BOSTON (CP)—Bruce Kidd's hopes of defending the two-mile title he won as a schoolboy at the Knights of Columbus track meet a year ago looked dim as the athletes returned for the meet's 30th annual renewal tonight.

Kidd's coach, Fred Foote, said in Toronto Friday night that the 18 - year - old University of Toronto freshman is suffering from an infected foot. He was due to see a doctor this morning but Foote said chances are slim that he'll be able to run.

"If the swelling is even close to what it was today, he won't be running," Foote said.

Before these complications arose, Foote had confidently predicted that Kidd, winner of the Canadian Press poll as Canada's outstanding athlete of 1961, would reduce his last year's time of eight minutes, 26 seconds, to 8:45 in tonight's race.

American headliners also will be on hand as Villanova's Dave Duncan, Seattle Boston University high - jumper John Thomas, a former world record - holder, Villanova's Frank Budd, holder of the 9.2 world record mark for the 100 yard dash, and Roland Cruz, a fine pole vault man from Villanova.

Floyd Lists JFK In On Secret

WASHINGTON (CP)—Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson said Friday President Kennedy in on a secret Friday.

Patterson, told reporters he let the president know who his next opponent will be.

"I told him, but it's not for the press," Patterson said.

"Sonny Liston has been promised as Patterson's most probable next opponent, but the champion refused to be pinned down to him. He mentioned several other possibilities.

For the press, he had only the information that he would defend his title in June in some large city. If he wins his next bout, Patterson said, he plans to go to Sweden for a series of exhibitions for charities.

Patterson visited the White House in connection with Big Brother Week.

Patterson told Kennedy how he is financing Patterson House for boys, to help boys who have been released from correctional institutions.

"As you all know, I was down myself," Patterson said.

BOXING SUMMARY

Meanwhile, in Stockholm, Per Olof Ahl, a middleHoussine Swedish businessman, describing Trabor as "slightly exaggerated" reports he planned to promote a heavyweight title fight between Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson.

Ahl said he has been negotiating to join a Swedish promotional syndicate with International Sports — which is trying to arrange a title bout between Europeans Henry Cooper and Brian Erich Schloppner of Germany and Sweden's Amateur Risberg.

"If I join International Sports, I would of course be highly interested in a title fight between Patterson and Johansson," said Ahl. "But the report that my attorneys have met representatives from Sonny Liston has been taken right off the wall."

Mayor May Buy Hockey Team

VANCOUVER (CP)—Former Vancouver mayor Fred Hume said Friday he is "interested" in purchasing Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Mr. Hume said in a telephone interview from Hawaii he is considering the move "although I have not yet made a firm offer."

The Pacific National Exhibition, owners of the club, rejected earlier purchase offers from city businessmen Harry Ornest and from former National Hockey League player Babe Pratt and Clint Smith.

Dave Dauphinee, general manager of the Canucks, said he would support Mr. Hume's offer.

"The club couldn't be in better hands," he said.

Mr. Hume, also a former mayor of nearby New Westminster, was owner of New Westminster Royals, the club's WHL franchise was transferred to Victoria and then to Portland. He sold the franchise to Portland for $85,000 in 1958.

The Pats put it at $150,000 price tag on the club.

'Shocking' State Of Affairs

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Star Hasbrouck Joe Schmidt of Detroit Lions will be wired equipped and shock-in Sunday's Pro Bowl game of the National Football League at Los Angeles.

Schmidt's helmet will be rigged with a tiny radio transmitter and accelerometer (the measuring shock).

The theory that Schmidt takes on the head will be tested by Northwestern University experts conducting the experiment, Dre. Stephen Reid, team physician, and James S. Asgaard, assistant professor of electrical engineering.

A guard said this first exercise will test out the electronic setup which will telemeter data to the sidelines on the shock Schmidt absorbs.

Later, tiny EEG (electroencephalograph) apparatus is expected to be added, to send in-wave data to the sidelines as well.

Reid said purpose of the research is to establish optimum standards of performance for headgear.

Macs Lose Brawl Ball

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

The Macs took it on the chin from the league leading Kingston Frontenacs 10-2 here last night but the McFarlands are likely to suffer an even more lop-sided defeat before the OHA gets through with them.

Ten of the Belleville players picked up miscondcuts during a wild third-period free-for-all. According to the OHA rule book, each misconduct penalty calls for a $10 fine or a one-game suspension.

With the largest crowd of the season looking on, 700 paid, the Macs met-a fired-up Kingston squad that skated, checked and passed for their best performance of the season.

They climbed into a three-way tie for first place in the OHA Eastern Junior League with the Macs and the Gananoque Islanders, all with 11 wins. Kingston has lost five games, the Macs and Islanders four.

The Frontenacs, coached by Harry Linden in Danny McLeod's absence, took a 5-1 lead in the first period, made it 9-1 after two goals in a split a pair with the losers in the third period.

Despite the score, the game provided good hockey most of the way, at least until the brawl at 13.23 of the final period. Kingston's Gary Lavalle and Belleville's Ron McGee, who had earned fighting majors back at 15.30 of the middle frame, bumped and threw off their gloves to ignite the later explosion.

This just never did come to blows but the Macs' Larry Mavety and Lavalle clashed hard and wrestled to the ice. Referee Vern Goyer got them parted and was about to dish out the penalties when a big fight broke out in the stands behind the penalty box when Lavalle jumped Mac goalie Ron Dulmage and the battle was in full swing.

Joining the battle from the Belleville bench were Reid, Moore, Scott, Rowland, Hunter, Kellar and Ethier. They all ended up with misconducts, as did Lavalle at the box. The penalty box to get into it, and Mavety, for starting it in the earlier fight between Lavalle and McGuire. Lavalle got a game misconduct for the fight and had to be escorted to the dressing room by coach Sinden and a police officer.

The only Belleville players left to complete the game were Dulmage, Ross Boyle and Gary Smith. Mac coach Gordie Bell, who suspended the two-game suspension resulting from the game in Kingston on Monday, more down from the press box and helped herd some of the Mac players off the ice. Bell later suspended the Kingston players left their bench during the fight and should also have been given misconducts.

In the hockey part of the game the Frontenacs broke up a 1-0 game with three goals in the second period, Goals came at 12.08 and 12.37 of the first period. That made it 4-0. Mavety got back for the Macs, from Ethier and McGuire, at 15.46, but Convery's long shot made it 5-1 seconds later. Lavalle and Bob Rawson each had two of the Kingston goals, one with a man advantage.

The clubs were five aside when Bryant made it 6-1 early in the second and seconds later Convery made it 7-1. Bryant and Rawson scored later in the period, the latter's goal coming with two Macs and one Frontenac in the sin-bin.

Belleville's Graydon Scott scored early in the third, with Gary Duvall assisting, but then the parade to the penalty box started and after that hockey was forgotten. Pete Robertson scored the game's final goal right at the game-ending whistle. Shots on goal were 39-27 in favor of Kingston.

The Macs' next game is next Friday here against Peterboro. Kingston: Demmler, Long, R. Reid, Curran, McMillan, Brown, Lavalle, Convery, Robertson, Rawson, Bryant, Cashman, Brewer, Ryan.

Belleville: Dulmage, Mavety, Boyle, Weston, Smith, Hunter, Scott, Duvall, McGee, McGuire, Ethier Zakos, Reid, Rowland.

Referee: Vern Goyer a nd Barney Beirnes.

The power of the press.

An overflow crowd gave an enthusiastic welcome to the city's newest five-pin establishment.

Manager-Ben Lowe said today the response to the brand-the Kingston all-star squad of bowlers defeated the Belleville counterparts. A "power of the press" match pitted Kingston youngsters to make the inter-city 'robots' bowl.

Joe D'Orazio, member of the Brunswick advisory staff, and Mabel McDowall, Canada's "Bowling Sweetheart" and chief instructress of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of Canada, put on a fine display of the popular game. They received a fine ovation.

Moira Trojans won three close ones last night as they played host to Napanee District High School. Moira Seniors pulled the string in the third quarter and went on to win 74-66. Moira Juniors came up on top of a see-saw battle by a score of 47-46. Napanee Bantams came on strong in the final quarter but couldn't catch their Moira counterparts, Moira winning 22-19.

SENIOR GAME:

Napanee Seniors, led by B. Hall, 21 points, early had but was short-lived. Moira Senior Trojans closed the gap slowly and at the end of the first quarter, Napanee led 14-12. Moira narrowed the margin to one point at the end of the first half and it looked as though the crowd was in for a thriller.

Moira put forth it's best effort in the third quarter, holding Napanee to four points while they added eighteen. Napanee fought hard but the game was out of reach as Moira ran out the clock for the win.

JUNIOR GAME

Moira Juniors proved they were a little faster and a little rougher than the Napanee squad. Napanee led at the end of the first quarter 13-11 and 26-23 at the end of the first half. The lead traded hands several times but neither team could pull ahead.

Moira hit for fifteen points in the third quarter while holding the Napanee team to eleven points to open up a five point lead, the largest in the game. Moira Juniors guarded their lead cautiously in the fourth quarter, aided by good ball handling by F. Smith and good rebounding by Lang and Skinner as they ran out the clock on the last closing Napanee Juniors.

BANTAM GAME

Moira Bantams opened up an early lead and it looked as though they would walk off with the victory. Moira led at the end of the first quarter 8-2 and at the end of the half 14-3.

Each team hit for six points in the third quarter, Moira moving into the lead 20-9. Napanee led by Webster put the pressure on in the fourth quarter. Napanee held Moira to two points while they slit for ten. It wasn't enough. The buzzer went with Moira still in front.

Blades Going In Hole

VANCOUVER. (CP)—The Sun says Los Angeles Blades, new entry in the Western Hockey League, are going in the hole financially.

Sports columnist Dick Beddoes, back from a California visit, writes that "some estimates claim the Blades have lost $60,000 to this juncture. The deficit could bounce to $120,000 before the season's end; unless there is a transfusion of paying customers."

Beddoes quotes one Los Angeles editor as saying there is agitation for Los Angeles to name a National Hockey League franchise—"there is greater appeal in playing Chicago or New York than there is in tangling with Edmonton or Calgary."

But there has been no guarantees of expansion by the NHL to the west coast.

Los Angeles is third in the WHL Southern Division.

Hull Habs Whip Wolves

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Sudbury Wolves could win their share of games with Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, they might be a notch higher in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

The Habs place Canadiens, who lead Sudbury by five points, continued their mastery Friday night as they downed the Wolves 6-3. Sudbury has won only one of eight games it has played in Canadiens so far this season.

Rookie centre Bill Masterson's four goals from the Habs. Fred Hills, Bob Eliett and playing - coach Leo Gravelle, Rodrigues, Gerry Foley and Ed Stankiewicz replied for the Wolves.

Cleroux In Wrong All Round

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Athletic Commission's suspension of Paul Cleroux has been recognized by the National Boxing Association, commissioner Merv McKenzie said Friday night.

The Montreal fighter has been suspended for failing to honor a contract to defend his welterweight title against George Chuvalo of Toronto, McKenzie said.

Cleroux is scheduled to meet Chuvalo in Maple Leaf Gardens, Jan. 22 and says his title will be on the line. McKenzie said he can't accept the title as long as he is under suspension.

The NBA is first to contact and to honor the suspensions because it opposes return - bout clauses in boxing contracts, McKenzie said.

It seems the NBA was misinformed regarding the suspension. It has nothing to do with return - bout clauses. The suspension came about when Cleroux didn't honor a new contract."

He said the matter was taken up at Klein of Philadelphia, who heads the NBA's grievance committee, and Klein sent a telegram from Friday that the suspension would be upheld.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Brookshier, defensive star of the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League, said today he had turned down offers to become an assistant coach or a player with Denver Broncos of the American Football League.

Pepsi's Beat Lindsay

The Belleville Pepsi's consolidated their grip on the Lakeshore Hockey League's top spot in Lindsay last night when they took a four-point 8-4 victory over the Lindsay Lumbermen.

The victory was the People's 9th in 13 starts and gives them 38 points, including two four-point wins.

Belleville took a 4-3 lead in the first frame last night and never looked back. They scored the only goal of the middle heat and outscored the homesters by a 3-1 margin in the third.

Lindsay jumped into an early 2-0 lead on goals by Jewell at 12 seconds of the first and by Horton at 2.18. The Pepsi's roared back with two goals by Ron Hull and one by "Shaker" Baker to go ahead 3-2 by the two-minute mark of the period. Kelly tied it for Lindsay at 18.43 but Chuck Rowbotham put Belleville in front to stay at 17.28. Gary Goyer scored the lone goal in the second period to make it 5-3.

Duke Dorna, Dave Jones and Rowbotham opened up an 8-4 lead in the third before Jewell scored his final Lindsay goal in the game's dying seconds.

The winners picked up seven of the seven minor penalties.

Ronnie Hull and Chuck Rowbotham were two-goal men for the league-leaders while "Shaker" Baker, Gary Friday, Dave Jones and Duke Dorna added a goal each.

Bob Taylor, playing his first game with the city crew, earned three assists, three minors.

Lamirande praised Taylor's play and said the manager that he expects the big forward to

Flyers Bomb Baby Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens wound up a frustrating western tour Friday night and set the stage for what could be a crucial game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season with home ice Sunday.

The Habs, seeking to take over sole possession of first place from Hamilton Red Wings, bombed 9-2 by Quebec Aces Falls Flyers for their second loss in as many nights to second-division clubs.

They now are tied at 43 points with the Wings, who have played two fewer games and who visit Montreal Sunday.

Guelph Royals defeated St. Catharines 7-3 in Friday night's other game, handing the Mutchmen their second straight loss.

SUFFER WORST DEFEAT

The Canadiens, in front of the tallest Peterborough Petes Thursday, scored the first goal Friday night but Magnus Evans but were snowed under the rest of the way by the first-place Flyers who handed them their worst defeat of the season.

Four Flyers collected two goals each—Billy Knibbs, Ron Brown, Dennis Dietrich and Jack Nairn. Wayne Maxner got the other. For Montreal it was Norm Dennis, Rejean Richer and Germain Gagnon.

The Royals were down 3-1 at Guelph before they caught fire

The signing this week of Charlie Dressen as manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League is, as much as anything, a reflection of the current plight of minor league baseball.

Aside from the fact that Dressen, fired last fall by Milwaukee Braves, was the best available pilot in baseball, the choice appears to be a desperate bid by Leafs owner Jack Kent Cooke to stimulate interest in baseball in Toronto.

But for a league that once drew a flock of customers with the play of such star material as Red Schoendienst, Alley Donald and Flash Gordon, it's a bid sad to find that much of the interest must centre on a scrappy, colorful manager.

Dressen, reported to have signed for $35,000 compared with the $40,000 he got at Milwaukee last year and certainly the highest paid manager ever in the minors, can be expected to make the best use of the material he will have at Toronto.

MOSTLY UNKNOWNS

The fact is, however, that with the exception of Rocky Nelson, lately of Pittsburgh Pirates, and perhaps Steve Ridzik, formerly with Philadelphia Phils, Toronto will be going with a roster of players relatively little known outside their hometowns.

At one time, Montreal Royals, particularly when they had organized baseball's first Negro in the great Jackie Robinson, were the most consistent draw at the gate in the International League.

Support began to fall off until several years ago baseball folded in Montreal. In recent years Toronto has had the smallest fan support year in, year out. But last season there were often games attended by little more than 1,000 customers.

A heavy selection of weekend television showings of major league games hurt and this was the case in most other minor league cities. It's much easier to stay home and watch Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris on TV than to get out to the ball park to pay money for the privilege of looking at players of rather less talent.

TOUGH ON UMPIRES

When Cooke was asked about the signing of Dressen, he said Charlie would be the most controversial manager Leafs ever had. He was probably right although stubble-chinned Burleigh Grimes of the 1930s would run him a close second.

The point is that, while Cooke wants a winner, he's also hoping some folks will turn out just to see how the fiery manager is getting on, particularly when he takes off after an umpire.

Dressen, 62, managed Brooklyn Dodgers in 1951 - 52 - 53 and won two pennants before departing after asking for a two-year contract, something unheard of in dealings with owner Walter O'Malley.

He has also managed Cincinnati Reds and Washington Senators as well as the Braves and, between stealing opponents' signs, baiting umpires and putting his mastery of strategy to excellent use, he earned a reputation as one of the best managers in the game.

"He'll say the right thing at the wrong time, the wrong at the right, and, quite frequently, the right at the right," Cooke said the other day. "But whatever he says he'll be consistently unpredictable. If anyone can, he'll revive interest in baseball in Toronto."

Sarnia Brothers Die in Accident

SARNIA (CP)—Two brothers died early today when their car crashed into the side of a train being shunted across a highway.

Police identified them as Robert McGibbon, 30, father of three, and Norman, 21.

The men were believed returning from Port Huron, Mich., eastbound on Highway 402 about a half a mile east of the approach to the Blue Water Bridge linking Sarnia and Port Huron.

Their car rammed into the fifth boxcar of a 35-car string. The train was being shunted into Sarnia Elevators to be loaded with grain.

WILL ADDRESS DINNER

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker will address the 37th anniversary meeting of the Toronto Progressive Conservative Association in Toronto tonight, his office announced Friday.

Canada Outdoors

By ED SMITH

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotia hunters may have to be satisfied with an average kill of 20,000 deer a season from now on. That's equal to the peanut year in the last two decades and less than half the take in such prolific years as 1948, 1951, 1953, 1954 and 1955.

The idea is likely to bring skeptical retort from delegates to the Nova Scotia Fish and Game Association's annual meeting here. But the statistical and scientific approach will be hard to argue against. The annual kill has been declining steadily in recent years and some county conservation organizations already feel the alarm bell is loud enough.

Three eastern mainland communities want a one-deer limit instituted at once for the entire province. The single-deer and either - sex limit governed the province's western counties last year but hunters stalking anywhere east of Halifax and Truro could bag two deer.

The Kings County fish and game association feels the one-deer limit isn't strong enough medicine. It wants shortening the six-week hunting season by two weeks.

SMALL '58 KILL

Individual hunters are divided between optimism that this is the low point of the cycle and pessimists who suggest a closed season before the white-tail goes the way of the moose.

The 1961 kill is believed to have run to over 22,000, about 10,000 less than in 1960.

Dr. Donald G. Dodds, a provincial government biologist and visiting professor of wildlife management at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., has probably the most formidable theory why venison will no longer come easy for the residents who pops down his $4 for the right to hunt or the non-resident who pays $40.

"There is evidence that the deer population has reached a peak and is declining to the level which can be maintained by the land," he says. In most true forest - indigenous animals, those not native to the area.

Dr. Dodds adds that in some cases the decline goes even below the carrying capacity of the range. The range may improve and the deer increase but their numbers never approach original peak densities.

DOWN SINCE 1954

There is record of white-tailed deer in Nova Scotia before the 19th century but it is believed today's peak is descended from animals that came by the isthmus of Chignecto from New Brunswick in the late 19th century and from animals released in Digby and Yarmouth counties early this century.

Dr. Dodds says he believes the annual kill will stabilize around 20,000.

The highest reported kill was in 1954 when 26,390 deer were taken. That was about 2.3 deer per square mile and 1 deer killed per House.

A decline set in until 1946 when there was a slight upswing but the success ratio as measured by kills per licence has been downward since 1954.

Dr. Dodds and William S. Dickie of Halifax, president of the Nova Scotia Fish and Game Association, agree with the general concensus that heavy snows last winter, particularly in eastern Nova Scotia, starved hundreds of deer.

Sprawling suburbia and shrinking forest, noisy express highways and a minimum of sanctuaries on vegetable and blueberry patches have also been blamed.

Last night the BCI hoopsters edged by the Quinte Saints to a 53-45 victory. In the first quarter the action saw a complete defensive game by both teams. Quinte led this quarter by only one basket. In the second BCI rebounders were outstanding Quinte at both ends but Quinte equalized this advantage with her multi-combination shifting zone. Once more Quinte led the quarter with one field goal. The second half saw BCI giant Larry Campbell moving into shooting position and tilting in the counters. The Saints pressed hard and checked close but time was not with them and BCI accepted the win. Star of the game was Larry Campbell of BCI with eight field goals and four foul shots for a total of 20 points.

BANTAM GAME

Quinte Senators out-hooped the BCI Blacks last night for a 51-38 upset. In the first quarter the Quinte Very Little Saints pulled away from the BCI Blacks to pick up a five point lead for security. BCI didn't slacken to this lead but pulled themselves together and crept up on Quinte. Their defence kept the Quinte backs to a minimum but their offence pulled them up to a tie at the end of the second. Quinte continued the second battle in the third with another seven points. Once again the fourth saw Quinte keeping possession of the ball. Although BCI scored outstanding comeback Quinte added to their collection of victories. Star of the game was John Beech of Quinte with a high 19 points.

JUNIOR GAME

Last night the BCI "Sticks" swept over Quinte with a surprise victory of 19-27. Quinte whooped up the lead on a number of fast breaks in the first quarter to gain their points while BCI depended on jumpshot artists to equalize the scoring. The Saints took the quarter by two points. In the second BCI evened the figures on the scoreboard with a quick number of field goals to tie it up. Quinte got more cleaned up in the third with a strong defensive play and BCI came through with their usual last minute surprises, two to be exact, to take a victory from the Saints. The star of the game was Swan of BCI with hard driving, foul shots and field goals.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: The speed of cheetahs and mice, the dark world of the night monkey and strange hallucinations for chickens.

LONG STRIDE

The cheetah may well be the fastest surface transportation without wheels.

Now, with the help of slow-motion movies, scientists have a better idea of how the cheetah and other animals walk, run and jump.

The cheetah, for instance, travelling 60 miles an hour, takes as many as 180 strides a second — and each stride covers 22 to 26 feet. At moderate speeds mice take up to 12 strides a second—but when they pour on the speed they take fewer, but longer strides. The adult elephant takes only one stride a second.

Dr. Milton Hildebrand, University of California zoologist from Davis, Calif., found that walking and running habits vary with body weight, shape, speed and agility. The variations are wide and many.

A human runner has one foot on the ground about half of the time, But an animal called the bopping springhaas, an African rodent, can keep its body in the air 85 per cent of the time.

NIGHT PEOPLE

For those insomniacs who like to think of themselves as "night people," there is a counterpart in the animal world in Santa Catarina Island in the Panama Canal Zone. There a "night monkey" called aotus trivirgatus, but rarely seen during the day. He spends the sunlit hours asleep in tree holes, sometimes huddled together with fellow monkeys. But after twilight he joins a troop of night monkeys and feeds on fruits, insects and leaves.

INSIDE CHICKENS

What makes chickens tick? Or more specifically what makes chickens in a flock turn cannibalistic? It's a serious problem for poultry farmers who lose large numbers of birds together.

Dr. Martin W. Schein of Pennsylvania State University is using tiny electric shocks to prod the brains of chickens —and 'and what part of the brain is behind which kind of behavior.

In some experiments, he's apparently produced hallucinations in chickens by the shock technique—at least the birds seem to be reacting to something in the thin air. Dr. Schein is searching for the eating control,

The all American Award winners have been picked and here we find four new annuals. Two of them are zinnias, Zinnia 'Old Mexico and 3 Red Man. Deep mahogany red is the color of Old Mexico with gold tipped and edged petals. The blooms are two and a half inches across, bigger than the Persian Carpet strain. They are 15 inches tall and mildew resistant. Red Man is a giant type with six inch blooms on two foot plants. They are busy plants have a long blooming season and the flowers have long stems for cutting. Ruffled blooms are rich scarlet.

Big two inch blooms with the clove fragrance and scarlet color makes Bravo Dianthus a valuable new addition for bedding, or border. The 'foliage is neat tufted grass like with a grey-green sheen. Remains attractive all summer.

The fourth award went to Basil Dark Opal. This is unusual. Herbs do not get into the lime light very often. The metallic sheen of the purple bloom and purple tinged foliage make it useful for edging and bedding and also a flavorsome addition to salads and savory dishes.

WELL WORTH GROWING ....

Many other new annuals are tried which are well worth growing. Use them to replace mediocre performers. If you are old fashioned you may discard them but grow some of them. Some new annuals are very disappointing. Other gardeners, in the same locality may find them excellent. That difference could be in the exposure, soil or moisture or the lack of it. Don't condemn a new strain until you have given it a fair trial.

Look for these new annuals, as well as the others mentioned in the new catalogues as well as seed racks in the stores.

Aster Giralda, a Radiance and A September Ruby Begonia Glamour Angel, Candytuft Candy Pink, Canna Seven Dwarfs. These are the new dwarf cannas that can be grown from seed. Save the tubers in the fall. Celosia Forest Red and L. Flamingo. Five new Marigolds are offered Marigold Yellow Sunset, Lemon Queen, State, M. Orange Gold, M. Sun Shades and M. Superjack.

NEW PETUNIAS

As usual there are several new petunias, five to be exact. Petunia Misses Blue and Cascan, P. Pink Bountiful, P.Dawn Satin and P. Plum Dandy.

New Salvia is called Pink Rouge. .

There are three new snapdragons or antirrhinums They are A. Venetian Land, A. Super Tetra, A. Frontier and A. Dwarf Hyacinth.

The three new sweet peas are named Blue Swan, Scarlet Glow and Lone Song.

There is another outstanding new zinnia named Red Buttons. This All-American selections has named these three gladiolus for 1962. Jane is a pale lavender, shade of rose pink. This was the result of crossing Burns Pink and Lavender Pinnacle is Lavender with a rosy tinge and has a ruffled flower. Intermediate is a deep rich purple red with ruffled petals.

The Christmas Rose Selections for 1962 were Christian Dior, A. Armstrong, Queen Alexandra Slippers and King's Randsom. These were described in the Dec. issue. Bulbs them for sale in Canada this spring.

WONDERS of NATURE

There is a species of spider which hunts for moths and insects over water.

In order to have silk repaired, the spider builds a little raft by fashioning a sort of cone with the silk. Then it lays the rafted insect aboard, the whole weaves itself into a ball which cling to its long hair.

This process is repeated until the web is finished and rests on the surface of the water.

The bubbles are scraped from the water where it is under its "storehouse" and are stored.

Once the oxygen that the spider breathes is exhausted in the dome and replaced by hydrogen, oxygen from the bubbles in two hits the dome until the hydrogen is driven out and it is re-established.

Oran No Longer Controlled By Officials Sheltered In Government Buildings

By ANDREW SOLOWSKI

ORAN (AP)—Virtually powerless against the spreading spirit of right wing terrorists, the French administration has no place for help and prays for a miracle in Algeria's second city.

Oran, a city of 400,000, is no longer controlled by the officials sheltered in government buildings guarded by tommy guns or riot troops.

The Secret Army Organization of right - wing French extremists reigns in European quarters. The Algerian rebels' National Liberation Front—the FLN!—dominates the Moslem areas surrounded by cordons of French troops.

Death by terrorism strikes an average of five times a day in Oran. The Moslems fight with daggers, pistols and grenades, the Europeans with plastic bombs and machine-guns.

OFTEN SPARKS RIOT

Frequently, a Moslem attack sparks a European riot and lynching of any Moslem found in the path of the surging crowd.

French authorities believe the only hope for a trend for increase their terrorism in Oran, a European stronghold that could resist Algeria's independence. Other rebel government officials announced that a meeting in Morocco this week that is they were "new measures" to combat the secret army.

The authorities ask for more troops to halt the disaster. They are fearing the creation of a European stronghold that would resist Algeria's independence. The Gizenga's Army Quickly Beaten By Congo Govt.

UN Troops Assist But Do Not Fire Shot

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Antoine Gizenga was a virtual prisoner of United Nations and Congolese forces encircling his residence in Stanleyville today.

The government announced the pro-Communist deputy premier had agreed to end his self-imposed exile and return to Leopoldville after his personal emissary surrendered Sunday to Congolese troops.

Nearly 400 of Gizenga's gendarmes—his military army in Stanleyville — have been disarmed and taken prisoner by Central government troops under Gen. Victor Lundula, the UN reported.

One platoon of about 25 Gizenga troops was still loose, the UN added, but they were being rounded up in the bush around Stanleyville.

A tight cordon of UN Ethiopian soldiers and Lundula's men surrounded Gizenga's mansion Monday, 14 Congolese troops on it.

A UN spokesman said the Ethiopians gave Lundula the full support during fighting Sunday that broke the resistance to the Central government forces. But the UN troops did not have to fire a shot.

The UN also said Gizenga's capitulation was reported. Up to the end of fighting Sunday, 14 Congolese troops were reported killed.

Gizenga's fate seemed to rest with pacification of the richest of Premier Cyrille Adoula, both hostile to his coalition. Patrice Lumumba's political heir and important at his continued detention on the central Congo government.

The Central Congolese chamber of deputies, the lower house, voted overwhelmingly to confirm Adoula's parliament Sunday by his removal as deputy premier.

In a roll-call vote, deputies voted 67 to one with four abstentions to back the premier. Only 46 votes were needed to form a majority.

The government announced that Gizenga had promised to back Adoula's government Monday, but this seemed not enough to placate the angry parliament.

Five Charged With Robbery

BRIDLEY, Ont. (CP)—Five men have been charged and remanded in custody to next Tuesday in connection with a $1,000 robbery of the home of two elderly bachelor brothers.

Charged are Robert Winn, 20, Mervyn Belanger, 21, Joseph Belanger, 19, Gilbert Belanger, 18, and Jean-Guy Mattie, 19.

Police said Belanger and his brother Eustache, 70, have been robbed several times in the last 18 months. Most of the money they were relieved of $115, four shotguns and a rifle. Robbery has relieved the home the previous Friday night.

Huge '13-Storey' Space Balloon Breaks Apart Over the Atlantic

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. A huge U.S. space balloon broke apart hundreds of miles above the Atlantic Ocean today as it was inflating to the size of a 13-storey building.

The breakup of the big ball—dubbed "Big Shot"—showered several pieces of aluminum-coated plastic into the ocean 1,000 miles east of this missile base. The pieces, illuminated brilliantly by the rays of the rising sun, provided a spectacular show for observers.

The 500-pound bundle of plastic sheeting was folded in a canister in the nose of a Thor rocket which blasted off at 6:06 a.m. EST in an experiment aimed at testing techniques for launching an advanced Echo communications satellite.

But 15 minutes after the launch, it announced that the balloon had separated from the Thor and started to inflate. But then it was announced that the balloon had split apart during the inflation process.

The reason for the failure was not immediately known. Technicians planned to study television film relayed from a camera in the Thor rocket's nosecone. The film, of crude quality, recorded the action flight.

An attempt also was under way to recover a 25-million-candlepower flashing which ejected from the Thor and parachuted into the sea. The package carrying the movie camera was sighted floating in the ocean but was lost in the darkness of San Salvador.

"Big Shot" was to have inflated to a diameter of 135 feet, which would have made it the largest object ever put into space. The space vehicle, even at that size, would be the largest ever launched by the United States.

COMMON MART REACHES ACCORD ON AGRICULTURE

U.S. and 6 Nations Agree on Tariff Cut

BRUSSELS (CP-AP) — The booming European Common Market hurdled a big obstacle Monday and moved into the second stage of its planned 12-year program for eliminating trade barriers among its members.

It hailed on the heels of the joint agricultural agreement reached by the Market members—after many hours of debate — came a report that a sweeping half-cutting proposal has been agreed on by the six-nation Market and the United States, Britain and Canada.

However, one spokesman for the U.S. mission to the Common Market, while confirming that the proposal was scheduled for Tuesday, said "so far as we know, the meeting is not for the purpose of signing any agreement."

He said he doubted a formal agreement could be signed because "this has to go back to GATT" — which stands for tariff negotiations.

Members of the Market's members' wrangle over agricultural policy opened the way for Britain to bid for membership in the group now embodying the French, West German, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Britain has started negotiations to enter the European Trade Community and establishment of a common farm policy was at the crux of Britain's big bid for membership.

AGREEMENT REACHED

The agreement reached by the Common Market ministers after a marathon session after a Christmas recess that began June 27.

Asian and European diplomats said U.S. delegation leader Dean Rusk and the 104-nation assembly would adopt a moderate, middle-of-the-road resolution that would push the Portuguese toward self-determination for Angola.

But Portugal contended that the issue is strictly one of ruling, not to discuss its big West African territory. It maintained that all Portuguese overseas territories are provinces, not colonies, and their control is a domestic matter outside the assembly's jurisdiction.

See UN Debate on Angola Putting New Strain on NATO

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Reopened United Nations debate today on Angola, Portugal's African colony, brings new strains between Portugal and its other allies in the NATO alliance.

The debate was the first meeting Monday for the General Assembly's resumption of its 16th annual session after a Christmas recess that began June 21.

Asian and European diplomats said U.S. delegation leader Dean Rusk and the 104-nation assembly would adopt a moderate, middle-of-the-road resolution that would push the Portuguese toward self-determination for Angola.

But Portugal contended that the issue is strictly one of ruling, not to discuss its big West African territory. It maintained that all Portuguese overseas territories are provinces, not colonies, and their control is a domestic matter outside the assembly's jurisdiction.

There was speculation that the Portuguese delegation would quit the U.N. session in protest. It did on a similar occasion last April. Sources in Lisbon have predicted that Portugal would quit the UN if the assembly censured Portugal's rule over Angola.

Portuguese Premier Antonio Salazar, in a speech to the Portuguese parliament Jan. 3, attacking the UN Security Council's failure to act against Indonesia's seizure of Portugal's Indian territories, said:

"I do not yet know whether we shall be the first country to withdraw from the United Nations, but we shall surely be among the first. Meanwhile we shall maintain every collaboration in everything that is not in our direct interest."

Diplomatic sources said the United States probably would cast a vote in a resolution that but would try to see that any introduced from Africa, Asia or Latin America would contribute toward self-determination for Angola and a satisfactory settlement of the 21-month-old rebellion there.

The U.S.—nation Afro - Asian group was expected to produce the first resolution on Angola and push it through the session by with little or no change or opposition.

U.S., Canada Won't Follow Same Path to Free Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States and Canadian governments have no intention of following the path of free world trade, won't use tariffs to bargain for special trade deals with each other, Canadian delegates to the Geneva tariff negotiations were told Saturday by Finance Minister Fleming.

A conference communique declared: "Canada's readiness to play a Constructive role in the promotion of freer world trade."

But Finance Minister Fleming, at a press conference, declined to say whether Canada would go fully following the more ambitious policy aimed at ma. for cuts in tariffs and trade.

"That was not a matter for discussion," Mr. Fleming told reporters.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon and Canadian declaration favoring freer trade as "a very impor. tant statement."

"I think that means that we have in our own way will be working toward the same objective," Mr. Dillon said. "I think the objectives are the same."

The communique indicated the Canadian government is planning much of its trade hopes on Britain's joining the European Commonwealth trade interests.

In Britain during its negotiations for entry to the European Common Market.

It said that in the talks the Canadian ministers stressed the importance the Canadian government attached" to ensuring that Commonwealth interests shall be safeguarded in the change of preferences and the historic right of free entry into the United Kingdom markets were an essential cohesive element in the Commonwealth association."

Mr. Dillon declined to comment on the views expressed in the past by some Canadian officials — that the U.S. would welcome the disappearance of Commonwealth interests, like Kingdom markets, were an essential cohesive element in the Commonwealth association."

Mr. Fleming also refused to comment directly on President Kennedy's proposal, which is expected to be presented for mutual tariff cuts by the U.S. and European Common Market.

He said it would be "highly premature and . . . highly improper" for him to make any comment to commons on the proposal which hasn't yet been formally submitted to the U.S. Congress.

Last Two Weeks Were Bloodiest Of Algerian War

ALGIERS (Reuters)—The director of mail and telecommunications in the western Algerian town of Orleansville was shot dead today as a new year wave of violence in strife-torn Algeria continued unabated.

The official, Victor Demare, was the fifth victim of the city soon after military officials in Algiers said the two weeks before Christmas were the bloodiest since the Algerian nationalist insurrection began more than seven years ago.

Demare's assailants escaped. Earlier, a gendarme in Oran wounded a European policeman.

And at Sidde, south of Algiers, a government official

Action to Protect Canadian Mags Expected in House

OTTAWA (CP)—Action to create some kind of buffer between Canadian magazines and those of the United States—whose American competition will be prepared by the government for the forthcoming session of Parliament, opening Thursday.

The great hope here is that somehow far the government will go. Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh already has said that there will be legislation to implement some recommendations of last year's royal commission on publications.

But which of the recommendations will become law? The government is keeping that secret not to say, and the throne speech likely will not reveal. It may or may not tell. Throne speeches always lack details.

The commission's key recommendations:

Deny to a Canadian advertiser using a foreign periodical printed in Canada—such as the Reader's Digest — the privilege of deducting his advertising costs as a business expense for tax purposes. That would make such advertising twice as costly.

Set up a Canadian Newspaper customs tariff regulations—to protect magazines printed in Canadian domestic advertising aimed at the Canadian market. Now, Time and Reader's Digest have advantages in publishing in Canada.

"Big Shot" was to have inflated to a diameter of 135 feet, which would have made it the largest object ever put into space. The space vehicle, even at that size, would be the largest ever launched by the United States.

THIRD GUNFIGHT IN ELEVEN DAYS FOR MONTREAL

Officer, Suspect Wounded in Battle

MONTREAL (CP) — Battle-scarred police still sought one suspect today in connection with the daylight holdup of a suburban restaurant by three armed men that sparked the third gun battle in 11 days between police and the underworld of Canada's largest city.

The morning gun - battle and 40-mile chase through several Montreal north suburbs ended after a policeman and suspect were wounded, not critically.

Constable Lucien Quinez of Ville d'Anjou suburban police force was shot in the shoulder when a bullet smashed through his police car windshield.

One of the arrested suspects, Jean Guilbault, 24, died in hospital with leg wounds. Police said he and his brother Pierre, 26, a labourer, will be charged today in connection with the shop.

Police were seeking a third man, who they identified as Jean Guilbault, 28 of suburban Verdun.

TWO ARE KILLED

Only a week ago on Jan. 8—then young Quebec Provincial Police Constable Gerard Robidoux was slain in an exchange of gunfire with two suspected car - thieves, Raymond Rouleau and critically wounded another policeman, Const. 6. a Montreal policeman, firing from the hip in Wild West fashion, gunned down escaped convict Campbell Ashton who suddenly pulled a gun on Const. Ashton during a traffic stop.

But Sunday's episode was packed with drama.

It began when three men burst into the Lantier Restaurant in St. Hilaire, 20 miles east of Montreal, startling breakfast patrons. After firing two shots, they rifled the cash till of $75, and fled in a car, hitting 90 miles an hour by the time they reached the Montreal suburb of Boucherville.

Quebec Provincial Police patrols spotted the speeding car and gave chase. Shots were exchanged, one hitting the police car bumper. Patrol cars ahead of the fleeing bandits were warned. By the time the fugitives reached the Montreal suburb of Anjou, Constables Ouimet and Yvon Pigeon were waiting.

When Const. Ouimet, who was driving, was hit, the bandits got out of their car. English-speaking Pigeon managed to grab the steering wheel and brake the car to a stop.

GUNFIGHT RESUMES

The policeman released the car to Brandsville, 18 miles from St. Hilaire, but stole another car and took the city of Boucherville police again picked up the trail. Another gunfight ensued between bandits and the getaway car turned back towards Brossard.

Torpedo Boats Are Attacked Off New Guinea

Dutch Decline to Say Whether It Means War

THE HAGUE (Reuters) Dutch warships patrolling the southern coast of Netherlands West New Guinea today opened fire on Indonesian motor-torpedo boats asserted to be in Dutch waters and set one ablaze, it was announced here.

A Netherlands Navy spokesman confirmed a Dutch news agency report from Hollandia, capital of the Dutch-ruled Far East territory, which said that the firing broke out about 9:30 p.m. local time when Indonesian vessels were sighted making for the south coast of West New Guinea.

A spokesman for the Dutch Defence Ministry said he could confirm the encounter—the first between warships of any kind between the Dutch and Indonesian armed forces since Indonesia's current drive for West and "liberate" the territory un. less, Holland handed over its administration to Indonesia by the end of this year.

REFUSES TO ANSWER

The defence ministry spokesman declined to answer, when asked by a reporter whether today's event in fact meant a state of war between The Netherlands and Indonesia.

The defence ministry spokesman said details of the incident were lacking including the strength of the Indonesian vessels.

The spokesman added that the Dutch naval staff here received the news of the clash from their commander-in-West New Guinea, Rear - Admiral L. E. H. Reeser.

Reeser was reported to have said the Indonesian vessels were within West New Guinea territorial waters south of Fak Fak Buru Moutaines.

The news report said the firing began when the Dutch warships discovered "a number" of the Indonesian motor-torpedo boats in that area.

The Dutch news agency's correspondent in Hollandia telephoned The Hague that one Indonesian vessel was ablaze. He added that the Indonesian ships were sailing a course toward the south coast when the Dutch naval gunners opened fire.

- BIAK (AP)—An official in this Dutch New Guinea centre said today that small bands of Indonesians have attempted to infiltrate West New Guinea and that some had been killed in skirmishes with Dutch patrols.

Hendrik Assirit, district official in Biak, said there was a total number of invaders at 'perhaps 100' but he gave no figure. Their purpose, he said, is to try to stir up unrest among the Papuan people.

The Indonesian bands "have been a total loss as they have not been supported with ammunition and the people tell us right away."

Biak Island, off the north west coast of New Guinea, is the base of important Dutch military installations. Patrol planes take off regularly to watch the coast and Dutch troops are ever overhead in readiness. Assirik said a full-scale invasion is not expected yet and very few families—none of government officials—have been evacuated.

PARTY LEADERS CONCENTRATE IN RENFREW RIDING

Douglas Favors Medical Plan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It is a disgrace that any person in Canada should have to remain a cripple because he lacks money for an operation, T. C. Douglas, former premier of Saskatchewan, said Saturday.

Mr. Douglas, now national leader of the New Democratic Party, was speaking at a campaign meeting in Renfrew.

Party leaders were also campaigning the weekend as the byelections in five Ontario ridings drew closer. Jan. 18 new members of the legislature will be chosen for Renfrew South, Kenora, Toronto Eglinton, Toronto Beaches and Brant.

Most of the activity during the weekend was concentrated in Renfrew South, where appearances were made by Mr. Douglas, Premier John Roberts and Liberal Leader John Whitemeyer.

Mr. Douglas, speaking in support of Edward Lavergne, told 200 persons the people of Ontario will have to fight for a medical care plan "the same way they fought 100 years ago to get a free education."

'CAN BE RUINED'

He said a health plan was the most important issue facing voters at this time and said it was a shame that farmers and small businessmen could be ruined financially by illness.

"Surely the aims has come for us to overcome this, It's in-

Skindiver Foretold Shark Attack, Severely Wounded During Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A brawny, six-foot skindiver told today he probably would be back . . . I figure a shark will get me."

Boyd Pair Jr., 29, of Sacramento, California, said it was a joke. Before leaving one shark had foretold his fate.

Pair came to San Francisco for a day's diving near the Farallon Islands, 25 miles west of the Golden Gate. He was one of a party of some 100 divers who chartered four boats for the purpose.

At about 11 a.m. Pair went over the side of the boat.

"I went down to about feet", Pair recounted. "I checked my gear and then . . . decided to surface."

"Then it hit me, just as I surfaced . . . at first I thought it was a seal . . . but a seal doesn't have a mouth like big ugly dog. I was suddenly grappling two wounds and a deep bite into my left leg.

Experts said the shark must have weighed 1,000 pounds.

"I saw that it was a shark. I remember thinking first that it didn't hurt. Then I had remembered something I had been told by a German deep sea expert, Hans Hass.

"Hass said to make a lot of noise and hit the attacking shark in the face.

"I spit out my breathing mouthpiece . . . began yelling 'Shark! Shark!' and at the same time I began hitting at the shark's snout with my spear.

"He let loose of me and took off."

Two other divers helped Pair back to the boat. A helicopter was called and took Pair to hospital.

On the boat they twisted to cut off by suit and look at the wounds. Pair said:

"But I felt I needed that tight suit to keep whatever blood I still had in me."

Doctors described Pair's wounds as serious but not crippling. He suffered gaping leg wounds and a deep bite into his left leg.

SOCIAL SECURITY PLAN KEY TOPIC OF HOUSE TALK

Old Age Pension May Be Raised

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—A lively topic of conversation among government MPs gathering for the parliamentary session which opens Thursday is what the government plans in the field of social security.

There is special emphasis on this subject because the session is expect an election this year and because both the Liberals and the New Democrats have been making public statements about their own social security programs.

Speculation among Progressive Conservative back benchers centres on the old age pension and family allowances. Some consider it likely that family allowances will be extended to cover children beyond age 16 who still are en school.

At present, the 26-a-month "baby bonus" for children between 10 and 16 stops on a child's 16th birthday, it is suggested that, as a measure to encourage parents to keep their children in school beyond age 16, the family allowance deadline until 19 or even longer.

GOOD VOTE CATCHER

Family allowances are regarded as popular vote - getters. Continuing them past age 16 would have another political advantage, in that it might keep quite a few young people off the labor market at a time when unemployment is a serious problem.

Such a step would not involve a major outlay from the federal treasury. An 26-a-month payment up to age 19 for children in school would cost about $2,500,000, calculated on the basis of 300,000 children age 16, 17 and 18 in school during the 1959-60 school year.

Talk of old age pension program—now at $65 a month to all over age 70—suggests that special help might be established from which a supplementary pension could be added through the unemployment insurance machinery for specified periods. Total payments might be financed in the same fashion as unemployment

Compulsory Inoculations Ordered

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Compulsory mass inoculations were in progress in the Lima suburb of Hauaylas today to avert a typhoid epidemic in the wake of last week's devastating avalanche.

With most of the water supply polluted, the health ministry announced typhoid was reported to have broken out in the area where a landslide of ice, rocks and mud covered an area 10 by miles long and a mile wide last Wednesday.

Health Minister Eduardo Wats-son Cisneros estimated 3,500 to 3,800 persons died.

THIRD GUNFIGHT

Boulevard, the bandits lost control of their car, smashed into a parked police cruiser, and fled on foot.

Herman Wade, a 31-year-old Negro ex-convict, was associating his family, with Martha, their three small children, and Mrs. Wade's mother, to leave by mass, when he saw two men in his car.

"I thought they were hunters at first," he said.

"Then I had to cops shoo us, call a cab," Wade quoted the men as saying as they charged into the car. Wade said he thought the man somehow had vanished at the airport.

Mrs. Wade called a Broxard-ville policeman who operates a taxi, Thomas Speed in all, offering to drive the men him, "but I had to get them out of the house," he said.

Meanwhile, police had closed in on the garage where Wade's car was found, cordoned off on the back floor of his car, was stalling. Police had been directed to the garage by Mrs. Wade.

A policeman poised a revolver to Wade's back. "Hey, I'm not one of those guys," he confided. The two suspects surrendered without a fight.

Wade, who had not planned on going to mass, a few minutes more "and I would have been alone in the house when they arrived."

Weather Put Crimp in Winter Sports

Tobogganers and skiing enthusiasts didn't mind, but the weather over the weekend put mildest weather over the weekend put a slight crimp in plans for local skating enthusiasts who Sunday were forced to be content with the soft ice conditions.

The expectations were for a large turnout at the Belleville harbor, but skaters reported soft ice and the same was true at other outdoor rinks in the city.

In fact the day was practically ruined for those who had worked hard Saturday flooding backyard outdoor rinks only to find Sunday morning that the Man - Weather had done them a dirty trick overnight.

But sledding slopes in the city weren't hurt by the mild-ey weather and the kids turned out in force with their toboggans and sleds.

And to the north the skiers had a field day at Oak Hills and at Batawa.

Municipal Inoculations Ordered

Municipal tax collections in Belleville last year were about par with those of the year previous with 97.6 per cent of the current role having been collected.

Tax collections in 1960 totalled $3.5 per cent.

City tax collector C. J. Bender said today that the local per centage for tax collections was "only par" and that there was room for some improvement. He said tax arrears in the province varied considerably with the municipality in question.

The total current tax role in Belleville last year was $2,-910,615.22 as compared with $2,608,352.55 in 1960. Of the 1961 role approximately $2,840,000 was actually uncollected at the year end.

The collection of tax arrears in the city last year showed a ten per cent improvement over the same year previous according to Mr. Bender. In 1960 58.26 per cent of tax arrears were collected while last year the percentage collected rose to 68.64.

"We hope to improve the percentage this year," Mr. Bender said.

The arrears include everything on the role prior to the current year and owners are given three years to pay the arrears before properties are sold for taxes. A fee of ½ per cent per month is charged on all tax arrears.

The year end list of 102 properties to be posted on the list was held.

Last year the Mayor's warrant totalled 156 properties. This list was smaller by 28 properties at the time of the tax sale with the arrangements of owners at the last moment came in to settle up.

43 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A fire in New Brunswick and a traffic crash in Ontario each claimed five lives and swelled the weekend accidental death toll across Canada to 43.

There were 29 traffic deaths from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday, a Canadian Press survey showed. Thirteen persons died in fires, two by drowning and one in hunting accidents and seven from other causes.

Ontario's 15 traffic deaths led the rest of the country, followed by Quebec with five. The remainder of Canada, with the exception of British Columbia, with two, had no traffic fatalities.

In New Brunswick, five children died in a flaming home in Moncton and two persons from miscellaneous causes in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Newfoundland were entirely fatalities.

Nova Scotia's five fatalities included three in hunting accidents.

Curling Trophy Won by Riley's Rink

Curling is a wonderful recreation and when it is mixed with the sociability and good fellowship that prevails at the Sportsmen's Hospital for Sheep Herders' Trophy held on the Quinte Curling Club over the weekend it becomes an excellent antidote to fill in the weary winter months. This is the first bonspiel to be held there since last season and it will most likely become with the exception of the open spiel, one of the most popular events on the curling calendar. This spiel was conceived by the donor of the trophy and a most enthusiastic member.

The spiel opened on Friday night due to the number of entries and continued through Saturday with the distribution of prizes as a final phase but that did not deter the members from staying over after, to enjoy the fellowship that was everywhere apparent. In addition to the curling there was a number of bridge games in progress and the "Hill Billies" on hand to tell how each hand should be laid and played, while at other tables the boys had games going which required shoulder pads and a great deal of elbow room to come out alive.

At the farthest end of the clubrooms was the food and drink department which catered under the weight. It could be said that the members of the house will not have to do much cooking for their spouses for a few days after the spiel has run the clouds. The turkey was there in all its glory, the sweet lent, the burgers were tasty and the dessert all that could be desired. Nobody went away hungry. Besides on an ample supply of sandwiches and white cheese, crackers and chips and this table took a real beating during the two days of the spiel. It was all food at its best and the ladies in charge are able should feel very proud of their efforts.

COMMITTEE PRAISED

To the committee of Everett Black, John Black, Dr. McGeorge, Bill Gault, Bill Riley and many others with Jim Young as master of ceremonies goes all the honors that a club can bestow and this was suitably expressed by the genial president, Bob Langabeer, in the distribution of the prizes. The scene tonight was expressed by the winner of the Sportsmen's Trophy and close second was the rink of Jim Young, Bill Gault, Lloyd Sheppard with Archdeacon J. B. Richmond as the skip. This was a very popular win with the membership as Mr. Creeggan is one of the most enthusiastic curlers in the club. In third place was another veteran of the curling rinks, Jack Fuller with Fuke with a rink of Ernie Fuller, Bill Browning and Stan Easton was in third spot.

A rink of Al McDonald, Harry Rowe, Ken Hamilton and Dave Duffy at the helm won the fourth prize and the last game which found Bill Riley and Dave Duffy at the helm won the fourth prize and the last game which found Bill Riley and Dave over direction was one of the closest of the whole spiel.

A number of skips behind the glass tried to direct the traffic on the ice but sometimes to the skip how each shot should be played. It was a screamf find audience of the spiel. Bob Alexander, Pete McGuire, Kenn Jones with Al McCullam in charge wound up in fifth spot, while a rink of Jack Osmond, Fred Rawson, Stan Easton and Claude Tice won the last playoff spot although the skip was not on a game or come even close. The results of Saturday's games were as follows.

M. J. Coldwell Honored by Friends, Foes

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifty-two years ago, a young man came to Canada from Scotland. A staunch conservative family background in England's Lancashire.

And he became a radical—a man with a mission.

That man, M. J. Coldwell, now 73—old a group of friends drawn from all political parties that is the first of its kind because of wet feet.

At a testimonial luncheon in his honor Saturday, Mr. Coldwell, former CCF leader, said his political career started when the day in Regina many years ago when a group of parents came to see him.

He was principal of a school, and the parents wanted a high school to ensure that their children got to and from school without getting their feet soaked.

"I went on from there," said Mr. Coldwell as he recalled 22 years from 1935 to 1958 in the House of Commons.

FRIENDS FRAME HIM

About 200 friends and admirers, drawn from all parties, attended the luncheon and heard Mr. J. praised by spokesmen for all shades of political opinion ranging from C. D. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, to Liberal and ardent, Mr. Macdonnell, elder statesman of the Conservatives.

Also speaking was Dr. Frank Underhill, Canadian historian and curator of Laurier House.

Mr. Macdonnell presented Mr. Coldwell with $6,000 in Government of Canada savings bonds and Dr. Underhill said another $3,000 was coming in as a result of a private solicitation from some Mr. Coldwell's admirers from coast to coast.

Mr. Drew Stacy O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal and a staunch Conservative, rated him as one of the most really distinguished parliamentarians he had observed in 30 years as an Ottawa journalist.

"I hope he doesn't depart from political activity for a long time," Mr. O'Leary said. "When the drums and trumpets roll, he will be like an old fire horse, and I hope he will be out on the streets protecting the old heroines."

"I will smell the smell of battle," Mr. Coldwell replied. "And I shall probably again be preaching—the truth."

Find Cache Of Goofballs In Prison

MONTREAL (CP)—An alert guard uncovered a cache of goofballs in St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary during the week-end.

RCMP are questioning a number of prisoners about the drugs.

Goofballs are barbiturates, commonly used as sleeping pills but which in small doses have an effect similar to alcohol.

Warden Gregoire Surprenant said the actions of one of the prisoners and the large bulge in his pocket made a guard suspicious.

"We searched the man and found about 600 capsules in two envelopes," he said.

"We are definite that these goofballs were not smuggled here recently," he said. "They must have been overstock from last year.

"We don't believe that any were distributed among inmates because as soon as the discovery was made, all inmates were questioned and searched."

City Hall Staffs Moving Into New Surroundings

With the $17,000 alteration job commenced last September now nearing completion personnel of various city hall administration offices are beginning to settle into new surroundings.

City hall officials said that the monthly long alterational project is now nearing completion and the contractor is expected to be thoroughly late this week or nearly next week.

The two-phase renovational job saw the old firemen's quarters converted into office space to provide more room for city hall administration staffs.

In the old market room of-fices for the city clerk, and the city purchasing agent and personnel officer, was provided, while the quarters for the city welfare officer were enlarged.

The welfare officer and purchasing agent have been using their new quarters for some weeks, but the change in location of the city clerk's office from its former quarters in the stairs was made only last week.

At the same time the city planning department moved into the former clerk's office.

On the second floor at city hall the renovational contract called for re-arranging available space to provide enlarged quarters for the assessment department and also for the city public works department.

The finish work on the enlarged city public works department is now being carried out.

The public works drafting department gained the most space upstairs with partitions of several smaller rooms being ripped out to provide more un-interrupted floor space. New pavement lighting has been installed and refrigerators are being made for tiling of the floor.

The city hall renovations are now two of the three entrances to the old firemen' market room closed up, while a new doorway to the entrance was provided at the south to replace the outdated doorway which was long since served out its usefulness.

At the front entrance in city hall the new planexpeye was provided at the side of the staircase to provide from entrance to the city clerk's office; the office of the purchasing agent and the welfare department.

Huge Robbery Trial Scene Set in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—An austere federal courtroom was the setting today for a new chapter in an intriguing international bank burglary.

Four men were called to trial on charges arising from what U.S. investigators have termed the biggest of all bank burglaries.

The bank is the Brockville Ont., Trust and Savings Company. Thieves took an estimated $12,000,000 worth of bonds, jewelry and cash from it May 3, 1960. The loot dwarfs the $2,775,355 haul in the Brink's Incorporated robbery Jan. 17, 1950, in Boston.

The defendants in the Chicago case are charged with transporting, and conspiracy to transport, some of the bonds taken in Brockville. They are: William Rabin, 54, a former Chicago financier; Sam Mazzarino, 64, of New Kensington, Pa.; George E. Reuben, 54, of Sumner, Md.; a Washington lawyer; and Norman Rothman, 46, of Miami Beach, Fla., who began serving a term in 1960 in Atlanta for plotting to smuggle arms in Cuba.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY

The case reaches from Canada to Chicago to Europe and much of it still is shrouded in mystery.

Two others were indicted in Chicago, Giuseppe Cotroni and Rene Robert, both of Montreal. They are serving terms in Canada on other charges and won't be tried in Chicago in the current proceedings.

Federal investigators have said Cotroni acquired some of the bank loot and called on Mazzarino to help convert into cash $3,500,000 worth of Canadian bonds. Mazzarino, they said, contacted Rabin, and Rabin was traced to a Miami Beach hotel managed by Rothman.

SWISS MAY TESTIFY

The indictment alleged that Rabin pledged $258,000 worth of stolen bonds as collateral with banks in Chicago and Switzerland as part of plan to buy a European bank 1fit was to be used as a front for converting stolen bonds into cash.

It also alleged that two Swiss bankers—Credit Suisse in Biel and Leu and Company in Zurich—were offered stolen bonds as collateral for loans.

Mazzino said Swiss officials and bankers have been invited to testify but he did not say how many or name them.

Police have not yet rounded up the burglary gang.

TAKE US TO YOUR LEADER—Larry Burden, Frank Lukashal and Tom Minacola, looking as if they have just landed from Mars, prepare to explore the underwater world. The three members of the Trenton Seahorses spent almost an hour under the ice on Sunday and told spectators that they were "warm" when they emerged from the icy waters.

3 Seahorses Frolic an Hour Beneath Ice

TRENTON—The more than 60 spectators who walked a quarter of a mile offshore to view a demonstration of underice diving by three members of the Trenton Seahorses on Sunday had one word to say: "Brrrrrr!"

Club members spent the early morning hours chopping a large hole through the river ice (the ice, by the way, is about a foot thick at the centre of the river), and shortly after 11 a.m., the three volunteer divers made their way across the ice from shore, clad in their rubber diving suits and trailing their air tanks. The divers donned their web footgear, adjusted their face masks, gave last minute instructions about their "buddy" lines and dived into the water.

For almost an hour, Tom Minacola, Larry Burden and Frank Lukashal explored the bottom of the river in a 60-foot circle. An anchor, tied to a bright yellow cord was dropped dead centre of the chopped out hole and to this cord were attached the three lines, referred to as "buddy" lines, which permit the divers to "keep in touch."

Later, Mr. Minacola told a reporter that the river is 12 feet deep at the point where the demonstration took place.

"The suits keep you warm enough"—he said, "but our lips get cold." Mr. Minacola said that the river is fairly clear of weeds at this point, but that there is an abundance of silt.

Many of the spectators had brought along still and movie cameras to record the chilling event.

The Trenton Seahorses, formed last June, boast 20 members and the club is looking for more diving enthusiasts. Meetings are held every 3rd Monday in the Orange Hall, Ontario St. and the club has the use of the RCAF pool every Saturday night. In the summer, the divers descend into lake waters off False Duck Island near Picton to explore the lakebed for wrecks of old ships.

Baby Smothers As Mother Walks a Mile

TRENTON — Saturday afternoon, Mrs. John Robbins, of 13 O'Clock Point, set out to walk to her mother-in-law's home, about a mile away, carrying her infant son, Thomas, born on Christmas Day, in her arms. When Mrs. Robbins arrived at her destination she found that the baby had smothered to death in the blanket which had been placed around him for protection.

Sewer Work Should Start On Feb. 5

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Aldcroy said on Friday that he had received word from the Ontario Water Resources Commission that work on the installation of trunk sewers, on Front and Sidney Streets could commence about February 5.

The project must be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board before one or two of the eight contractors tendering for the job will be awarded the contract or contracts.

Since the work involves the laying of sewers on two different streets in two separate areas of the town, two contractors might be chosen to handle the job.

Bids for the overall installation run from $159,000 to $175,000. Recently, the federal government approved a loan of $156,667 to the town to be applied to this project. Remaining costs will be taken up by OWRC and paid back by the town over a period of years.

LAST TWO WEEKS

was killed when an unknown attacker shot him three times.

A total of 31 died and 70 injured Sunday brought the total since Jan. 1 to 228 killed and 480 wounded.

Fears of more killing spread through this North African territory. The toll for the whole weekend was 30 persons killed and 157 injured.

Some 7,000 French troops and police were reported to have moved into the Algiers area during the weekend to reinforce a 10,000-man security force already on duty here.

This followed the insurgent Algerian provisional government's call last week for action to meet the attacks of the outlawed European extremist Secret Army Organization.

SHOOT UP CAFE

In one attack here Sunday five men in a car—believed to be a secret army vehicle—machine-gunned and bombed the Arab cafe, killing seven Moslems, including an old man and a child, and wounding 18 more.

Shortly after a car-load of Moslems machine-gunned a car occupied by a European family, killing the mother, the father and two children and seriously wounding the remaining child, a 14-year-old girl.

Officials said Sunday night they were considering banning all new machine-gunnings in the Algiers area almost every 10 minutes.

The secret army, fiercely dedicated to keeping Algeria a French in the face of the independence-seeking Moslem rebellion, has launched a campaign of terrorism to back up its views.

A Brave Decision

The decision of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity to divide Ontario into 22 tourist regions was a brave one.

For this action to have any meaning, it was essential that the regional borders should conform to geographical, rather than municipal, facts. The borders have been so drawn. The regions, at least so far as this district is concerned, make eminent good sense.

When we speak of geographical facts we are not excluding the changes which man has made in the landscape, by the construction of highways, the digging of canals and the draining of swamps. Indeed, in many cases these man-made geographical features mean just as much as natural phenomena, such as lakes, rivers and forests. In great measure they determine the direction in which tourist traffic flows, and the size of its flow.

Here in Belleville, and more particularly in Trenton, there may be objections that Highway 401 is an unrealistic line to draw between the Quinte and Land O' Lakes regions. This line, though, had to be drawn some place and as most of the tourist traffic will flow into this area on 401 it was natural to consider it as the line from which the visiting tourist will turn either south or north.

Those Belleville and district residents who are sentimentally attached to the north country may object to being isolated from the Bancroft area by the width of a whole tourist region, so that Hastings County's Quinte shore and the Highlands of Hastings are not even neighbors under the new divisions.

This, though, is to overlook the fact that the regions are being created for tourists, not for residents of the area. The type of vacation offered by the Bay of Quinte region is quite different from that which awaits the visitor in the Highlands.

One cautionary note is in order. The new tourist region-divisions make eminent good sense, but we should not consider this as providing us a corollary that the old county boundaries did not make sense as they when laid out, or that they do not make sense today. Laying these counties out fronting on Lake Ontario, and stretching back into the hinterland, was just as sensible as the long narrow habitant farms of Quebec. It was the best way of putting somebody in charge of the development of the "back fifty". Even today, there are certain obvious advantages to the municipal layout, more than sufficient to make any change inadvisable. But that does not mean that all projects have to follow county boundaries. It may take a little time, though, to convert all those interested in the tourist industry to the new set-up.

Naval Contract Squabble

What's sauce for the goose can sound like applesauce to the gander.

Few Canadians will see anything wrong with Canadian firms being awarded contracts for U.S. naval projects, since Canada places more naval contracts in the U.S. than the U.S. places in Canada.

Nevertheless, the reasonable man will sympathize with those Congressmen who represent districts whose shipbuilding industry pays higher wages than those in Canada find themselves unable to compete with the lower prices quoted by Canadian sub-contractors.

This seems to be a case where two rights make a wrong—and where altering this wrong would only produce another wrong of equal stature.

Kenneth Belieu, U.S. assistant naval secretary, warned a congressional subcommittee that if the U.S. restricts the flow of orders to Canada, Canada might restrict orders to the U.S. We have a hunch, though, that he was talking through his hat, and that he knew it. We very much doubt whether Canada places any orders with U.S. firms if there are Canadian firms capable of doing the work. If it does, something short and sharp ought to be said to those responsible in Ottawa, for there are so many defence needs which must be met by placing orders in the U.S. that there is no excuse for bypassing Canadian firms capable of doing the job—particularly firms in our shipbuilding industry, which is perpetually skating on the thinnest of ice.

The situation is not a happy one for Canadians. Perhaps a miracle will come to pass and the indignant congressmen will not be as suspicious of the assistant naval secretary's facts as we are. Then, in a few short months, we may be able to look back at this storm as one which fortunately Belieu over.

Those Slow Britons

Whapleys Tribune

Before the Roman came to Rye
or to Severn strode,
The rolling English drunkard made the rolling English road . . . .

Until very recently that rolling English drunkard road has remained the sole master of vehicular movement on this island, with the addition of blackleg for the fast motor-car and hedges to hop up the visibility hazard.

The change has come with construction of Britain's first motorways, or what we call "freeways". M1, completed two years ago, links London and Birmingham. A Ministry of Transport highway engineer has taken me for a spin along M1, and I refer to the notes I made during the ride.

"Help!" it says here.

• • •

This refers, I believe to the circumstance that there is no speed limit on the M1. There is also no speed limit on the country lanes, but the roads' being only two lanes for one car has tended to keep speeds down to 30 or 40 mph.

On the M1 the British motorist has for the first time had a chance to go for broke, speedwise. And he is taking it, as these trembling fingers will testify. The traffic on one carriageway was ticking 83, which got me past the heavy goods vehicles doing the slow lane at 60, but in the third lane to our right three more powered rocketps as cars passed us at speeds over 100 mph.

Shortly beyond a club on the M1, at nearby Coventry I watched the Jaguar plant pushing out its new Mark 2. A family saloon that cruises comfortably at 120, and the Royce racing car that has flirted with better than 150.

Now, will happen when more of these very fast cars hit the new motorways?" I asked the Highway engineer.

"She's built for high speeds", he assured me coolly, Roomph, • • •

An AA man who patrols the M1 and who helps the overzeaper hit the big end that has fallen out of their 1934 dropheed, was equally unconcerned by my wistful lisping the catechism of the British American highway safety council: "Speed kills".

"We've had 12 killed on the M1 in the first year of operation", said the AA man. "That's half as many as on the old highway."

How come? As a guess I'd say that the M1 does have a limited confidence in their skill as drivers. The undoctored assumption is never fodder than behind the steering wheel. Even the lorry drivers seem to take their courtesy to the smaller car, languidly waving "pass now". Understated pride in each other. Roomph. When there's time, that is.

• • •

Mind you, the M1 does have its rules of the road. Overtaking is prohibited on the inside lane, motorcycles under 50 cc. mopeds, pedal-cycles, invalid-carriages, pedestrians and animals". Drivers are also warned of lowing a bath-cheir on the same track with the hundreds of Stirling Moss' careering by, cheer.

Also the British are concerned about the number of serious accidents on the road. Only the other day, Hugh Gaitskell, Labor Mp port Ernest Marples cited "the men who throw his car around a blind corner at night without lights and someone runs into the rear of the car".

It's the motionless vehicle that has 'em worried, you see. Roomph, coomph.

Still Irate About 1066

Montreal Star

Two years ago we had our troubles with the anniversary of the Battle of the Plans of Abraham. The St. Jean Baptiste Society of Quebec City declined to take part in celebrating a defeat for French-Canadians. Many of its officers thought this was a silly attitude, and they quit. For a while there was quite a footcrew. The upshot was a modest ceremony to mark that 1759 battle, and there seems to be nice things and tiptoed around "conqueror". Next year Normans claim must have rolled over in their graves

But look what's happening over in England. In five years the British will be celebrating the anniversary of 1066, when King Harold got in the way of a Norman arrow at the Battle of Hastings. The fur is still flying about that one. A county England activist has charged that King William was a Norman "conqueror", a term which was named O'Connor (the Irish always get mixed up in these things) claims that Harold was a pig-good bigamist.

If the English are still work up a sweat about an old attacker whom they eventually absorbed, it's no wonder the French here still feel prickly about an old attacker whom they haven't absorbed yet.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ON THE ALERT

One of the words most often on the lips of Jesus was the word "Watch". He encouraged His disciples to live in a state of continued expectancy. They were both to hope for better things and to watch confidently for the fulfillment that their hopes would be fulfilled.

Above all, they were to await his Second Coming. There is a great deal of mystery surrounding the New Testament teaching that Christ will return again precisely as He left the earth on the day of His ascension. In an hour when we know not, He will return to bring the kingdoms of the world completely under His rule.

The proper attitude of mind for Christians should be the attitude of expectancy. We are to hope, and to hope with such intensity that our very hopefulness increases immensely the possibility of fulfillment. We are to hope better things for ourselves and live in the confidence that God will fulfill these hopes. We are to hope for better world conditions and live in spite of discouragement in the field of international relations. We are to hope that the time will come when everywhere will live at peace with God and with a concern for the welfare of their brothers.

Long-faced Christianity is a perverted and diseased thing which in Christian only in name. The Christian is an optimist because he believes that an allpowerful and loving God will bring the issues of human life to satisfactory consummation.

World Lacks Lovers of Truth And Goodness

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A young man at a college where I recently lectured was trying to bet me during the question period. He seemed somewhat disbelieving when he didn't fool me for a moment. He knew I was a lover, and this is how lovers behave when they are young. He was a lover of truth and goodness, and the one thing he hated above all else was "phoniness".

And he was engaged in a typical lover's quest with me. He had a very high sense of this desire to believe what I said, to believe that I was sincere and honest. But at the same time, he felt compelled to attack me, to find for soft spots in my nature, to expose me if he could as a pompous fraud and a charlatan.

It is easy to dislike or deride rude expressions of this sort, until you realize that they are lovers. Somewhere along the line they have been hurt and disillusioned; they feel betrayed by the world's falsity and they will not rest until they prove that everything in the world is false, or until they find a truth they can cling to.

Hence the so-called "rebellion" in bright young people — I am not here speaking of the unwonted disturbed youngsters — is really a search for faith. They scorn and deride unwillingness to compromise with the shoddy standards of the world. They have, weakly and sadly, come to terms with the Devil.

And these rebels, if understood and treated intelligently, can become the most creative and effective citizens. I much prefer them to the sheep who are docile because they are dumb, who accept what they are told because they have no other question, who are tractable because they have no opinion and who never do anything but because they have no passion for anything.

There are not enough lovers in the world. There are too few people who are deeply enough about such sublime abstractions as truth. The itself is corrupting — as we see in the second fiddle in the mind and the spirit as well as in the body.

These boys see it happening to us, and they resent it. Their cynicism is just the reverse side of their idealism, and we can't heal their hurt. It should be our task to heal them, and to guide them not to become like us, but to become what we once wanted to be.

Hamiltons Minister Howe has announced that the temporary ban on the sale of tires has been replaced by a new order restricting the sale of tires, casings and tubes. The new order decrees that except for use by doctors, nurses, ambulances, police and fire departments, mail trucks, buses and essential business and public services, no new tires, casings or tubes, other than those used on bicycles may now be sold. Taxicab owners, department stores, milk, bread and coal companies and all others delivering direct to the home, will have to get along with used tires.

Angina Pectoris Affects The Muscles of the Heart

"Dear Dr. Molner: The doctor says I have angina pectoris. I'm in a state of fear. He didn't say anything to scare me, but the shock is getting the best of me. I am 53 years old and strong as an ox. — Mrs. H.H.

Yes, it's disconcerting to learn that one's heart is misbehaving, but not all of you this — you have a great deal of company. I might add that many of these persons got the news a long time ago, too.

Heart trouble isn't necessarily a heart attack. Of course a heart attack (or coronary) is trouble, although we know that about 75 percent of such suffer, fers recover as satisfactorily that they return to their jobs.

The heart is such a vital organ that any wearing of an ailment should be taken seriously. But don't get panicky about it. Rather, take whatever steps are required and then go on enjoying life.

Angina pectoris is a pain which originates in the heart. Generally this means that the circulation of blood to the heart muscle (not into and out of the heart itself) isn't up to par.

Too much exertion causes the pain, a signal to slow down. This pain may be from climbing stairs, walking against the wind, carrying some burden, or engaging in more strenuous work.

You may be "strong as an ox" but that applies simply to general physical strength. The pain — and Nature doesn't hurt us without reason — is telling you that one particular part of the body muscle, isn't getting the circulation it should have.

There are various causes of angina, and there are a few cases in which we can find no sign that the heart is impaired.

The characteristic pain is one that "grips" rather than "aches". It can be decidedly severe. It may spread to the left arm, back. So I said the warning.

Rest is the best treatment — if the heart is being overtaxed, stop and relax until it has had a chance to catch up. Easing of the pain indicates that the heart again is able to perform such demands as are being made on it.

Prompt medication stand, point, nitroglycerin tablets or similar compounds, placed under the tongue give immediate relief by allowing an easier flow of blood to the heart muscle.

Take care of a troubled heart, and it will keep on serving for years and years. But if you don't heed the warning you because you are "strong as an ox" you're asking for real trouble.

THE PACKSACK

One of my oldest friends is always able to pinpoint dates and places. He keeps a diary. He has kept it for fifty years; and when there is any question about who was with us, what happened at the Christmas party game in 1914, or whether it was 1920 or 1931 that we went on the Newfoundland trip, he produces the diary and caught — and released over a thousand speckled trout — he turns round and over, he refers to a shelf of canvas-bound books of notes and says, each entitled with the word "Record."

"I keep, he tells me, "a desultory diary. Nothing is more depressing than a diary with a space for every day. That becomes, in fact, a record of the vacuity of life. No, I keep, at the stationery shop, a canvas covered blank book so-called 'Record, and from time to time, whenever the spirit moves me, I write a little piece in it. Maybe once a month, maybe oftener, maybe only once every six months, in which I recollect the outstanding events since last I made an entry.

"What I keep, he says, "is not a diary, but a letter to myself, thirty years hence. And there is something wonderful under it in receiving a letter from yourself, written thirty years ago!

Ford Workers Sign Contract, Same as GM

By DAVE SCOTT

TORONTO (CP) — A 10-hour strike against the Ford Motor Company of Canada ended Saturday when the United Auto Workers Union (CLC) signed a contract giving 7,200 hourly-paid union members the same wage increase won by General Motors workers five weeks ago.

The three-year contract calls for annual raises of six cents an hour or 3½ per cent, and substantial improvements in company-paid insurance plans and pension benefits.

The agreement followed all-night bargaining in a Toronto hotel and must be ratified before plant operations can resume.

George Burt, Canadian UAW director, expressed satisfaction with the new contract and said picketing would continue at three of Ford's four Canadian plants until the agreement is ratified.

"Meetings will be held just as fast as we can arrange them," he said.

STRUCK EARLIER

Some of 3,300 members of Local 707 in Oakville staged a premature strike 48 hours before the union - approved deadline of midnight Friday night and crippled the assembly plant.

The Ford settlement matches the recent one at General Motors of Canada and is a few areas goes beyond the GM benefit level," Mr. Burt said.

A feature of the settlement was the inclusion in the province - wide contract of Ford's new glass-fabricated plant near Niagara Falls, Ont. Workers at the plant had not been on strike but were negotiating simultaneously with the master negotiators.

Benefits under the new contract would allow a typical Ford worker with 30 years' service at age 65 to draw a pension of $138 a month. At the age of 70, the company contribution would be cut by $45, but the worker would pick up the $95 government pension. His total monthly payment would be as high as $143.

SCUFFLE WITH POLICE

Union members who started their premature picketing at the Oakville assembly plant Wednesday clashed with police. During a scuffle one man suffered a scalp wound and required hospital treatment.

Andy Paulick, vice - president of Local 707, said Saturday legal action may be taken against Oakville police, blamed by union men for injury to the striker.

Ford's negotiator Kenneth Neal-worth, said "it is gratifying that a settlement has been reached without a more serious disruption of motor manufacturing operations than has already occurred."

PLAYS COWBOYS, DIES

MONTREAL (CP) — Five-year - old Kristack Kostelidi, was found hanged in the bedroom of his home, apparently as a result of an accident while playing cowboys. The boy apparently tied a window curtain around his neck and fell off the chair on which he was standing.

The thunderous blast of a twelve inch blockbuster rocket and the release of dozens of colorful balloons marked the official opening of the Batawa "Ski Day" on Saturday. Skiing, skating, sledging and a children's hayride provided fun for people of all ages.

The ski slopes and their mechanical tows were crowded with skiers from all parts of the district. An oversized outdoor skating rink was crowded with skaters through the afternoon and evening.

The newer hiking tractor hauled hay wagon delighted the little people as Bozo the Clown piloted it through the ski club grounds, and issued free tickets for refreshments and tow service to the many visitors.

OFFICIAL SEASON OPENING

At promptly 2.30 in the afternoon the sound of the blockbuster rocket broke from the hidden crafting ceremony included Dr. C. K. Hers, Vice President and managing director of Batawa Shoe Company of Canada Limited, who paid tribute to the ski club property committee as to the fine effort and welcome the many visitors. He also paid tribute to the Batawa Fire Brigade. bers who were responsible for the establishment of the giant open air rink. Both the rink and the ski hill are the results of fine community effort.

Wing Commander F. Craig of RCAF presented greetings on behalf of commanding officer Williams, Group Captain, Wm. Lupton of RCAF spoke briefly and all 3 along with Milton Edwards, Sec. of the club then shared in the ribbon cutting ceremony and the motors of the mechanical tows began hauling skiers upward

The entire project is another portrayal of the community spirit that prevails in the industrial community of Batawa. The community-minded teams who did the volunteer work started early in the summer. Bulldozers, tractors, chainsaws and shovels began clearing the area for the big skating rink. Members of the Batawa fire brigade gave freely of their time and when flooding time came all was in readiness and the Batawa rink is one of the best to be found. It will be lighted for night skaters.

Meanwhile, members of the Batawa Ski Club and a host of young people diligently and quietly worked on the two ski hills, clearing, leveling, trail blazing, until they had the two fine ski hills from the timbered valley. "Old Ski Hill, the highest in Trent Valley.

The property was given over to the club and the first project by Bata Shoe Company for this use and were encouraged and assisted in many ways by the company. A canteen building was established at the foot of the ski hill. A parking area has been cleared and levelled at the foot of the hill and a new road built through the woods from the school area to the ski area.

The day was bright and the entire project's most successful one providing healthy outdoor sports for an unlimited number, of people of all ages.

Established about three years ago, Batawa ski club members have grown beyond, 300 and are drawn from all parts of Central and Eastern Ontario.

possible to budget against sickness."

He predicted opposition to a health scheme would soon fade, as it did in England, where "84 per cent" of the doctors opposed it when it was introduced but where "a survey in 1959 showed that 96 per cent were now satisfied with it."

Premier Robarts, who will tour the bush country of the riding next, said in Arnprior the province is trying to work out a sales tax collection formula to make book-keeping easier for Ontario retailers.

He said the new system would put an end to the one-penny two-penny record keeping by merchants, one of the main irritations in the tax's first five months of existence.

Premier Robarts' trip into the timber country follows closely charges made by provincial NDP leader Donald C. MacDonald that the government is using timber rights and cutting licences as political patronage.

He said Mr. MacDonald has been invited to give some "names, figures and dates."

Mr. MacDonald raised the issue again when he appeared on the platform with Mr. Douglas.

"I didn't raise this as an idle gesture or just as an election issue. I haven't been in my office more than three hours since the elections began, but after Jan. 18 I intend to research the records and at the next sitting of the legislature I will prove that political patronage is a fundamental principle of politics in Renfrew South," he said.

"The Liberals are silent on this issue of timber limits because they don't basically disagree with it. Their only objection is that most of the kickbacks are going to the Tories."

Mr. Wintermeyer, however, told a meeting in Renfrew he was quiet at this time because his party had not made a thorough investigation of the issue.

"We are going to do a thorough and not an irresponsible investigation and when we have all the information we will appropriate action such as we did on the issue of organized crime."

He said it was because of irresponsible charges that there were doubts in the NDP about the quality of Mr. MacDonald's leadership.

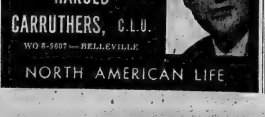
"There is talk that he should be replaced, for the simple reason that he talks before he investigates," Mr. Wintermeyer said.

Teachers' Body Presents CJBQ With Award

Two television stations and one radio station were Saturday presented with awards, by the official organization of the province's 55,000 school teachers, in recognition of outstanding contributions in the field of educational broadcasting. The awards were presented at the luncheon of the Ontario Teachers' Federation Board of Governors winter meeting, held Saturday at the Westbury Hotel, Toronto.

To radio station CJBQ, Belleville went the annual OTF Radio Award. It was the first time that CJBQ had won the award.

Special awards of merit were presented to television stations CHCH-TV, Hamilton and CJIC-TV, Sault Ste. Marie. OTF TV awards have not previously been won by either station.



A selection and awards committee chose the winning entrants from contesting stations throughout the province.

In making the presentations, OTF President Rev. J. H. Conway said the radio award was instituted in 1958 in order to recognize and encourage the efforts being made by Canadian radio stations to stimulate public interest in education. The television awards, he said, were instituted the following year for the same reason.

CJBQ was cited by the selection committee for a very broad range of programming covering education and school activities throughout the Bay of Quinte area. The station keeps the public informed of the activities of five local school boards and arranges special broadcasts about education generally. These include home and school activities interviews with teachers, panel discussions, coverage of student parliaments, high school assembly and other local matters. Coverage of special projects such as Commonwealth Technical Training Week have been consistently broadcast.

U.S., CANADA

Mr. Dillon said any substantial tariff cuts by the U.S. and the Common Market, resulting from the American policy, would "redound substantially to the benefit of Canada."

APPLIES TO GATT

This was a reference to the fact that any tariff changes would have to apply to all member countries of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Mr. Dillon said the conference had not discussed any specific tariff cuts between Canada and the U.S.

He declined to forecast how successful President Kennedy will be in getting his new trade proposals adopted by Congress, but said he expects that a "a trade bill", will be passed by mid- or late-summer.

The inconclusive nature of the communique and of press conference statements by the two ministers bore out previous indications that the Canadian government is not prepared at this time to commit itself on any major new initiative in trade policy.

Informed sources say the government first wants to see what kind of arrangement Britain can work out with the Common Market to protect Canada's interests, trade-wise, in Britain.

There is also a wait-and-see attitude on President Kennedy's bold trade initiative. It is realized that the program could be watered down by the U.S. Congress, where protectionist sentiment is strong.

Christ Church ABWA Hears Reports, Elects 1962 Executives

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Women's Auxiliary, Afternoon Branch, of Christ Church, was held on January 11th, with the president Mrs. H. Pitt, presiding.

Reports were heard from the various secretaries and signified remarkable progress in all departments for a successful and worthwhile year.

The Rev. M. Caswell, chairman for the election of officers for 1962, conducted a dignified and reverent installation of the new executive.

The nominating committee, Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. W. Ashton, presented the following slate of officers:

Honorary presidents, Mrs. J. B. Creegan and Mrs. G. G. Wright; president, Mrs. H. Pitt; vice-president, Mrs. W. Ashton; secretary, Mrs D. Stewart; treasurer, Mrs. R. Woodcock; Dorcas, Miss F. Ayling; extra-cent-a-day, Mrs. J. Chapman; "Living Message" secretary and thankoffering, Mrs. W. Kemp; prayer partner, Mrs. J. Reyes; social service, Mrs. J. Miles; educational secretary, Mrs. G. G. Wright; remembrance, Miss B. Thomas; refreshments, Mrs. G. Plumley; vestry council rep., Mrs. W Ashton; quilt dept., Mrs. H. Wright, and pres., Mrs. W. D. McLaughlin.

Mr. Carvell in his remarks, stressed the high privilege and sacred responsibility of the W.A.—to pray, to study, to give and to work for the extension of His Kingdom. The members, in unison, pledged loyalty to those chosen for the new year.

President Mrs. H. Pitt re-elected for a fourth term, voiced her gratitude to the members for their confidence in re-electing her and appreciation of the support given her in the past.

Mrs. D. Stewart, on behalf of the members, assured the president sincere co-operation of the group in the year ahead, and appreciation of the president's capable leadership.

The benediction followed with prayers and blessings for the year ahead, "May He give you light to guide you, courage to support you, and love to unite you".

Business followed and discussion of former projects will be undertaken for the future year, namely: gifts will be contributed to be sent to Miss Elsa Peter and her brother, (missionaries in Pakistan); "Fireworks" to the County Home for the Aged; financial support towards education of Indian boy in Palampur; "Travelling Basket".

The treasurer read in letter received from the Diocesan treasurer to be prepared to accept an increase this year in the Pledge Fund in order to augment salaries of the W. A. missionaries.

On January 22nd, at 3.00 p.m. in St. Lukes Parish Hall, Kingston, there will be a meeting and reception for introduction and dedication by the Lord Bishop of "The W.A. History of Ontario Diocese".

After the meeting closed, tea and refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

St. Michael's CWL Enjoys Dessert Party

Diets were put out of mind and "sweet tooths" indulged when the C.W.L. opened its first meeting of the new year with a dessert party. Decisions, such as: will it be apple pie or butter pecan, were easily solved by taking a portion of both and many second trips were made for a strawberry delight cake that was indeed a delight to eat and taste.

Adding to the fun was a gift exchange among the members. Items such as coasters, tea towels, toaster covers, were among the useful gifts received.

The business portion of the meeting began at 8.30 when more members arrived who were unable to attend earlier.

Mrs. Moran gave an account of the Christmas shopping done by her for the league, which was for the residents of the County Home for the Aged. Many useful and attractive gifts were given to these most appreciative members of the community.

The "Spring Tea" Sale has been set for a Saturday in March. The change from Wednesday to Saturday was made for the purpose of accommodating the many who are now free on this week day, such as office workers and mothers who cannot get a baby-sitter—usually a high school student.

The "Valentine Ball" will again be a smorgasbord since the one last year was so successful. Mrs. J. Giel is over-all convener for the supper.

The members were reminded once again of the approval and disapproval cards which the C.W.L. is urged to fill out and send in with its opinions of TV programs. This is not a responsibility to be taken lightly. Many programs are shocking with their violence which is not a healthy means of recreation for impressionable youth. Leader of RCAF Division In 2nd World War Has Great Respect for Women

By DAVE FIKE

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—Wilfa Walker, who commanded the RCAF Women's Division during the Second World War, has never lost her "great admiration for women."

In the quiet of her cheerful living room at Strathcona, the Walkers' estate on the outskirts of this new-slumbering summer resort town, Mrs. Walker recalled the tireless energy and resourcefulness she displayed by women in wartime.

"They stood up wonderfully," she said, and have been showing concern for the world in increasing numbers since then.

As the wife of international bent-selling novelist David Walker, she now leads a more conventional, but far from uneventful life, dividing her attention among her husband and four sons and community activities.

She finds being married to a successful author "doesn't pose any special problems; at least he keeps regular hours."

PIONEER RECRUIT

Born in Montreal, the former Wilfa Bigelow hasn't been one to shirk duty, or for that matter, pleasure, in her 46 years. Her age she frankly admits with a casual wave of the hand.

What was to be, during a first hand knowledge of foreign countries, a brief stopover in Europe began in 1937 when she joined the secretarial staff of the Canadian legation in Washington for two years.

She says the reason why men should monopolize the defence of her country so, in 1941, she became one of the first 50 recruits, it was no surprise when she was named commanding officer of the Women's Division training depot at Rockcliffe outside Ottawa. Attaining the rank of Wing Officer, she became the top woman in the air force.

She married David Walker in Ottawa in 1939 while he was aide de camp to then governor - general, Lord Tweedsmuir, a captain then. Mr. Walker still chuckles about the days when "she outranked me."

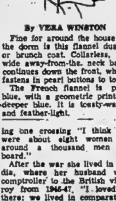
He wasn't the only man she outranked. "I had a male adjutant at the depot. In fact, there were a number of men under us (women)."

LIVED IN INDIA

During the war she made three voyages across the submarine - infested Atlantic. During a one crossing "I think we were aboard eight ships in around a thousand men on board."

After the war she lived in India, where her husband was correspondent for the British viceroy from 1946-47. "I loved it there; we lived in comparative luxury on the viceroy's staff."

A permanent resident of St. Andrews, where she once summered for more than 12 years, Mrs. Walker says she and cultivates a cosmopolitan outlook stimulated by travel. Last year she and her family spent three months visiting Scotland Mr. Walker's birthplace, and Switzerland. A "charming Swiss girl" now helps her manage Strathcona's household.



A woman of candid charm and poise, Mrs. Walker finds managing four sons aged 10 to 19 relatively just as important as directing a branch of the armed services.

Fine for around the house or the dorm is this flannel duster in brown plaid. Collarless, the wide sway-from-the neck band continues down the front, which fastens in pearl buttons to tone.

The French flannel is pale pink with a geometric print in deeper blue. It is tooth-warm and feather-light.

To people like these, temper is not only a shield but a crutch. Given a person with a liveish outlook feels that everyone else on earth was put there to take advantage of him and an active temper is his first line of defence.

Actually, though, the terrible-tempered type is basically a victim of his own loneliness. All it requires is a calm assessment of himself and his fellow men to realize that he's actually making a spectacle of himself over nothing.

Most of us like to be liked, but the bad-tempered outburst obliges people to analyze the situation, will find that the only person who really loses him is himself.

And if he really wants to cure the situation, all he has to do is take some primary counting lessons from any little two-year-old.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

KEEP A GRIP ON YOUR TEMPER

My two-year-old daughter can count up to ten and she's not mad at anybody.

Too many of her mental outbursts with angry tempers could profit from her example.

It's often been said that "letting off steam" helps keep the blood pressure down. That may be so, but why does it have to be directed at people around you when it's just as easy to run around the block twice, chop wood, kick the furniture or claw the wall with your bare hands?

Or, better yet, why not learn to control your temper?

I'm no medical authority, but I'm certain that the theory of "letting off steam" is more about as much therapeutic validity as dabbing yourself with chicken fat to ward off a cold.

People who vent their feelings at the drop of a hat imagined wrong are basically impolite and they'd give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt if he wouldn't have to blow their tops in the first place.

Now I'm sure you have you heard a terrible-tempered employer say, "I didn't give some of the staff a piece of my mind today for coming in late. I'm telling you I've got a temper and that I don't mind showing it."

Or, a variation: "I really blew a fuse, but now I see I really don't need pressure type.)

To people like these, temper is not only a shield but a crutch. Given a person with a liveish outlook feels that everyone else on earth was put there to take advantage of him and an active temper is his first line of defence.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Fay T. — She's making impossible demands in the name of friendship.

Fay T. — Can friendship be one-sided? Marcelene, I don't have the right to discontinue the little keeping-in-touch gestures herself, while we, her old child, need friends, are supposed to telephone her faithfully, write to her, invite her to our home and beg her for lunch dates.

She considers herself a privileged character because now, in late 50's, she is attempting a job she tried to get in her 30's and couldn't land. It's no job for a woman her age with a husband well able to support her. She's spoiled, selfish, and her friends like us — all of whom deserve some attention.

If she wants to "keep up" with us, she must do her part. Otherwise her friendship is not likely to go by default.

Margaret, C. — As a young woman I worked for a greeting card manufacturing firm. Many I submitted a few ideas, verses and sketches I was transferred to the advertising department. My ambition was to work my way up to becoming one of the editors.

But I quit to marry and raise a family. Nevertheless, from time to time I kept on composing greeting cards as a pastime. Some of them were accepted. And a few years ago I received a check for publication on the old stuff. Suddenly, a few months ago, they made me an editor.

It's a terrific chance and a challenge. It is a real all my energy. But the appointment thrilled me, as well as my husband and family.

Obviously it doesn't thrill her and envy. But would thrill me if one hit them were trying a career hard for at this stage of life. I'd try to make her life easy, not reproach her.

The Council: We don't know how Fay can afford gifts of the old crowd, which included Margaret, are spending Fay $10 or two these days. In the period, now defined by actuaries as 60 years long, in which women are supposed to find something to do following the departure of their youngest child for school. But whatever her chances are it's traditional middle-age work, and not the type of eager-beaver assignment that attracts employers — or, politors eager to take over!

Bayview H-S Hears Talk on Arts, Crafts

"Need for more Canadian artists" was one of many opinions expressed by Thor Hansen, well known Canadian Artist, at the meeting of parents of Bayview children, on Tuesday last.

Mr. Hansen spoke well and held the attention of everyone in a most natural manner, and was asked to be quite a humorist.

Between his captivating little stories though, he has a genuine concern for the gradual decline of art in the world today. Mr. Hansen would especially like to see more Canadian arts and crafts in evidence, in all the provinces.

Adults should set an example to their children, by their own interest in the arts, music, literature, and painting which are all expressions of creativeness, and afford great relaxation.

Thor Hansen advocated the use of the hands as a means to relaxation, and release from nervous tension. He felt that the basement workshop is a boon for men, in its escape from the procedures, and pattern of the business world. Everyone should attempt to turn their spare time into creativeness.

Children should be encouraged to give reading, a fifty-fifty chance with television, he stated, and there could be more adult-child arts and craft groups formed.

The opportunity for designers in Canadian arts and craft today, is unlimited, and in the opinion of Thor Hansen, there is room also for more manufacturers in this field.

In closing, this celebrated Canadian artist, asked that the parents do their utmost to encourage Arts and Crafts.

'Individuals' Basic Principles' Topic at Albert College W.G.

The Albert College Guild met Thursday, in the manor, for the first meeting of the year with the retiring president, Mrs. Earl Hickey, in the chair.

The annual reports, recording growth in membership, attendance and finances, were received. Mrs. Hickey expressed her thanks to the executive, committees and the manor staff for their generous co-operation throughout her term of office. She read a New Year's greeting from Mrs. Jessie Gillis, the former Dean of Women, who wrote in warmest terms of the pleasure she had experienced during her association with Albert College and the Guild. Mrs. Hickey's last word was of satisfaction in representing her denomination in this non-denominational organization.

After a few words in appreciation the newly elected president, Mrs. Fred Wilson, called on Mrs. Charles Hyde, who voiced in a flight of her own composing, the thanks of the guest to Mrs. Hickey. Then Mrs. Newton Mactie made the presentation.

In the devotional period, Miss Helen Sulman gave as a guide for the New Year, the verse quoted by His Majesty, the late King George, in one of his Empire broadcasts, "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God."

The recently appointed president of Albert College, the Rev. J. Alistair Haig, spoke enthusiastically of his work in the college, paying tribute to both staff and Guild for co-operation and support. One of the members of the staff, Miss Barbara Anderson, delighted the group with her singing of "Scotch Bull Weaver."

GUEST SPEAKER

The Rev. M. G. McFarlane introduced the guest speaker, the well known Dr. E. Crossley Hunter, whose address emphasized the basic principle of good interdependence, as individuals, and as nations. The mental health of both, depending on interest in others. "He that saveth his life, shall lose it."

Miss Madeline Young thanked Dr. Hunter and after the meeting closed tea was served by the members of the execu. tive.

Dinner Menu

Omelette with Shrimp Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Buttered Zucchini; Grated Raw Carrot and Raisin Salad; Pears in Jelly with Chopped Ginger in Whipped Cream; Coffee.

In the midst of Saturday afternoon preparations when I was making a 24-hour dessert (below) a knock came on the door. Before I could open it a delivery boy did, calling "Flowers by wire for Mrs. Mary Moore". He handed me a cello capped tablearrangement of red carnations and white mums in a silver corsage that captivated me. It is beautiful. There were little red satin hearts dotted through it and "snow" on the leaves so I suppose it is an early Valentine or a late Christmas gift. Anyway I lifted the cellophane to find a card from a press club friend in Ottawa. It could not have been better timed or more appropriate.

My dinner party was a reciprocal one for all the hospitality my brother and wife have extended to me and my lad brood over the holidays.

NEW 24-HOUR FRUIT MEDLEY WITH CREAMY DRESSING (no marshmallows);

Make this first: 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon butter, shake of salt, 1 cup dairy sour cream.

Mix together well in a saucepan the eggs and sugar. Add the fruit juices and salt and stir over medium heat until thickened and mixture coats silver spoon. Turn off heat and stir 1 minute longer. Remove from heat and stir in butter, sour cream and chill. Fold in cream.

Fruit: 1 cup seedless green grapes or 1 cup seeded Emperor grapes (about ½ lb.), 1 large sliced unripe banana cut in ½" dice, 1 cup well-drained canned pineapple chunks, 1 cup canned pitted Bing cherries (nearly or all the cherries from one 15-oz. can), 1 large orange sectioned, 1 grapefruit sectioned.

Combine all prepared fruits and pour off any excess juice which collects underneath. Fold in cold Creamy Dressing and turn into serving bowl (preferably cut glass) to chill, covered, for 24 hours. At serving time garnish top with more pieces of fruit such as a border or alternating sections of orange and pineapple chunks and green maraschino cherries. Excellent for busy hostesses.

Serves 6 generously or 8 adequately.

NOTE:

I am in the sour cream cooking business. Watch next week for a chicken dish called Chicken Esquisalt that we had at our meal course for the above-mentioned dinner and that my brother says is "a cock-eyed knockout".

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARRICK, Sports Editor

If some one had called members of the Quinte Curling Club, males that is, a bunch of "stuffed shirts" on Saturday—they perhaps would have been right, literally speaking.

It was the final day of the Sportsmen's Bonspiel and the boys "ate it up."

There was not a "gal" within sunshot of the club. In fact one of the boys in lighter mood said the telephone receiver was off the hook. This was not the case.

It was, I believe, the second quest for the trophy donated by Steve Flintoft. Last year's inaugural was such a success both from curling and curtsey points of view that members decided to fast for a week and go at it w' brame and stane again.

The curling and the food choices of the bonspiel. Both were excellent. There was not a dull moment. When not curling, the boys set at card tables at bridge or some game they called penny ante, I believe it was.

Jim Young, master of ceremonies, Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, who with Everett Hawkins headed the committee and club president Bob Lenning left nothing to chance. All rinks started from scratch and there wasn't a "packed" foursome in the bonspiel, from a player point of view.

A fine spirit of camaraderie and sportsmanship was apparent. One of the requisites of a good curler, like any other sportsman, is being a good loser. There were no high jinks or horseplay on the ice. Everyone was decidly serious and out to win. Smiles were contagious.

The winners received their pots on the back and handshakes but from the smiles and good feelings existing one could hardly tell victor from vanquished.

And the food!

It was no place for the diet-conscious. Stronger with fibre than mine went by the board. My 1,500 calory per day job had a holiday. There were saddles of beef, fraitured at the full-course dinners, hams, turkey, hamburger and side dishes too numerable to mention. Some thirty-five pigs disappeared. There was delicious cheese, pastries, jellies, pickles, sauce, in fact it was practically an all afternoon-evening smorgasbord that lacked no patronage.

The highlight, of course, was the golf-spiel presentation of prizes. Master-of-ceremonies Jim Young was in rare form, assisting President Lenning with the distribution of awards.

Bill Riley's rink of Bob Farquharson; Dr. William Beattie and Fred Maund are the 1961-62 Sportsmen's Bonspiel champions and proud possessors of the Flintoft trophy until next year; They won it the hard way, meeting stiff competition all down the line.

The rink skipped by the Rev. J. B. Creighton finished in the runner-up position. In third place came the rink of Harry Fuch. Then followed theots of Don Duffy and Al McCallum. Claude Tice skipped the consolation winners.

As was mentioned the rinks started from scratch. There was no pre-spiel favorites. A feature of the bonspiel is the fact the rinks are picked by the committee and each quartet was on, its own. It made for splendid curling with not a few matches going tightly to the wire before a winner was decided.

It was a great weekend of food, fun and frolic with a fine spirit of competition and sportsmanship predominating. It is such events as these that help to make curling the fine sport it is.

Tigers Move Up

Rams Upset Bulldogs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some strong stirrings of life are showing from deep in the basement of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Series.

Sarnia Rams turned on second-place Windsor Bulldogs Saturday and spoil a 6-3 decision. Fired three goals, including the ultimate winner, Waterloo Tigers moved into fourth place by edging Stratford Indians 5-4 at Stratford Saturday and the Rockets were 7-5 overtime victims of Woodstock Athletic Shamrock 200 Strathroy fans Saturday night.

The Rams, who had lost 10 in a row before their current winning streak, drew 1,000 fans at Sarnia. Bruce Jones and Willie Menard were the other Sarnia scorers. Ed Switzer scored twice and Jack Costello once for the Bulldogs, who held the lead three times.

MAKE STRONG FINISH

Windsor scored a three-goal third period to defeat the Rockets. Costello and Irwin Gross contributed goals to Bender's fine effort. Paul Oliver, with two, and Bill Pring tallied for the Rockets who dressed only 12 men.

Art McCarthy and Nick Rinaldo each scored twice for the Tigers and Bob Brown got a single as goalie Chuck Arrigo turned aside some dangerous Stratford shots. The Indians' goal - getters were Ken Dolg, Billy Flick, Jack McIlwain and Jim Gamble.

A goal by Woodstock's Gerry Theberge with less than 1½ minutes left forced the extra session at Strathroy, Gerry Theberge got the winner after only 10 seconds and Ed Harrison added the insurance.

Jean-Marc Asselin, Don Myers, Byrle Rinkel and Jim Dent, brought up from the Chatham Warriors, were the other Athletics scorers. Pring fired a pair and Olive, Willie Hsau and Art Sullivan added singles for Strathroy.

Plante Hero Of Habs Twin Victories

Lead Loop By Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens still lead the National Hockey League race, mostly because of the heroics of their masked, wandering goalie Jacques Plante.

Plante raced 46 shots the most by an NHL goalie in one game this season, Saturday night at Montreal when his mates made the most of their scoring opportunities for a 5-3 triumph over Boston Bruins.

He had fewer shots to handle at Boston Sunday night, but among his 30 were key saves that provided the spark Canadiens needed to pull out a 4-1 win.

The double victory boosted Canadiens' lead atop the standings to two points as second-place Toronto Maple Leafs won and tied.

TORONTO EDGES DETROIT

The Leafs edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3 Saturday night on centre Billy Harris' second goal with less than two minutes to go.

Sunday night at Chicago, the Leafs barged into an early 3-0 lead and the Black Hawks fought back and forced a 2-2 tie on power play goals by Stan Mikita and Ab McDonald and Pilote in the third period.

New York Rangers, on the backside after a fine season start, were losers in the weekend's two games.

They lost 4-2 at Chicago Saturday night on 2-1 Detroit win Sunday night when the Wings' Norm Ullman scored with only 46 seconds left.

The defeats dropped the Blueshirts into fourth place, three points back of the third-place Black Hawks and only one point ahead of fifth-place Detroit.

On Saturday Claude Provost scored his 22rd and 24th goals of the season and helped set up two more. Centreman Henri Richard, Gilles Tremblay got Montreal's other goal. Boston Leafers scorers were Don McKenney, the Murray Oliver and Dick Meissner.

On Boston ice Sunday, Ralph Backstrom scored twice for Montreal.

COUNTS TWICE

Harris scored his first goal in the second period and then banged in the winner at 18:18 of the third period for the Toronto win.

The Red Wings piled up a 3-0 lead on goals by Bruce MacGregor, Alex Delvecchio and Len Lunde within 73 seconds of the first period but couldn't get another one after that, Delvecchio's goal was the 200th of his 10-year NHL career.

Ley Kozak, brought up from Rochester of the American Hockey League to replace the injured Dick Duff, and Bob Pulford got the Leafs other goals.

Chicago, the Leafs next ahead on goals by defenceman Bobby Baun and scoleyer centre Dave Keon before the 10-minute mark of the opening period.

The Hawks got a break at 5:48 of the first period when Toronto's Eddie Litzenberger was penalized and before the Leafs returned to full strength Pilote in the third period.

New York Rangers, on the backside after a fine season start, were losers in the weekend's two games.

AHA Sets Playoffs Dates

WINNIPEG (CP) — Playoff dates for both junior and senior amateur hockey were set Saturday by the Canada Amateur Hockey Association.

At their semi - annual meeting, presidents of CAHA branches from across Canada decided that the Memorial Cup junior final will be held at the home of the eastern champions starting April 4, and the Allan Cup senior final will be played in Trail, B.C., starting April 2. All games in the first of the Eastern Canada Allan Cup playoffs will be held in Quebec between the Quebec branch winner and a team from the Maritimes. If Maritimes representatives win, they will meet the Ontario playoff champions in the Maritimes March 28, 30, 31 and April 2 and 4.

Should the OAHA take win, games will alternate between the Ontario district and the OAHA centres March 25 or 26, 28, 30, April 1 or 2, and 4.

Providing the Maritimes team wins, the eastern final will be held in the Maritimes April 6, 7, 9, 11, 13, 14 and 16.

A win by the Ottawa district team would mean the first two games being played in Ottawa April 6 and 7 or 8, shifting to the Quebec centre April 9 and 11 and back to Ottawa April 13, 15 or 16 and 17 or 18.

The opening games in the senior playoffs in the West will be played April 6 and 7 in the home of the Manitoba champions with the Lakehead March 23 and 25.

The best - of - seven Eastern Canada junior series will be between the Ontario Hockey Association champion and the winner resulted for April 15, 17, 19, 22, 24, 26 and 27. A Maritimes sweep of the Ontario - Quebec series would again take all final eastern games back to the Maritimes. A win by either the Quebec or the Ottawa district teams would have the first two eastern finals in games in their home rink, the next two at the opponent's home rink and the remainder back in the Ottawa or Quebec area centre.

The Thunder Bay - Manitoba senior series will be started at the Lakehead March 20 and April 1, shifting to Manitoba April 4, 6 and 8 and back to the Lakehead April 9 and 11.

The Manitoba - Lakehead final opens in the home of the most western champions April 14 or 15 and 16, moves west April 18, 20 and 21 and back east April 23 and 25.

The Frontenacs had little trouble whipping the Trappers 5-1 at Kingston Saturday night and was-over the Wolves 7-1 at Sudbury Sunday.

Dramatic Finish Wins For West

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A last - minute fumble by the game's most valuable player produced the climax of the 1962 Pro Bowl Sunday as the West overcame the East 31-30.

Millions of television fans, looking over the shoulders of a crowd of 57,409 at the Coliseum, saw Cleveland's Jimmy Brown, hero of an earlier 70 - yard touchdown gallop, fumble on a routine running play on his own 42 - yard line with the East in front 30-24.

Baltimore's Johnny Unitas went to work quickly. As the clock ticked off the last 50 seconds, he tossed a 15-yard pass to rookie Mike Ditka of Chicago, a 14-yarder to teammate Lenny Moore and another that Moore couldn't hold. On the last play he found Los Angeles halfback John Arnet in the end zone. Detroit's Jim Martin won the game by kicking the extra point, his fourth of the day.

Brown, a unanimous pick several times in the 9-game Western Conference attempts, Jordan was named most valuable lineman, and the play eventually by kicking the extra

JUST BAD BREAK

East coach Allie Sherman, who had picked Unitas as the pilot, refused to pin goat horns on Brown. "Everybody fumbles. It was just terrible bad break for Jim that it had to happen to him at such a time."

But it was small consolation for Brown — even though he was the overall game leader by gaining 120 yards in 13 carries for a 9.23 average and shook off four tacklers in his 70-yard touchdown effort with five minutes remaining.

Unitas completed 13 of 23 passes for 162 yards and two touchdowns.

Each West player got $800. The easterners pocketed $600 apiece.

Amerks Regain AHL Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Americans, who yielded a share of Western Division leadership to Cleveland Barons Saturday night, have it all to themselves again today after a weekend of changing fortunes in the American Hockey League.

The unbeaten Amerks dropped a 4-3 decision to Springfield Indians, the Eastern Division leaders, while the Barons were knocking off Buffalo Bisons 4-0 Saturday in the tight three - team race. That left a Rochester-Cleveland tie at the top of the standings with the Bisons a single point back.

But by the time the Americans had belted Pittsburgh Hornets 6-3 and the Bisons disposed of Springfield 5-2 on Sunday action, the idle Barons found themselves back where they began the weekend—in third place.

Hershey Bears, in second place in the Eastern Division, were jolted 9-5 by Pittsburgh Saturday and Quebec Aces downed Providence Reds 4-1 Sunday.

Won't Honor Kingston Hall of Fame

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association withdrew its recognition Saturday from a hockey hall of fame being constructed in Kingston.

The executive decided to throw its full weight behind the Hall of Fame now open at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto as which a $5,000 CAHA display already has been established.

The association is holdings its semi - annual meeting here.

President Jack Roxburg of Simcoe said the association would make no move to have $10,000 donated by the CAHA to the Kingston hall withdrawn, adding: "We just can't recognize two halls of fame."

He said Jack Adams, Hockey Association and the National Hockey League boss, had also donated money to the Kingston Hall of Fame.

Booths TV Defeats Joyces 6-4

Booth TV's climbed into a tie for first place in the Belleville Industrial Hockey league last night when they stopped Joyce Real Estate 6-4 in the first game of a double header.

Booth's victory now ties them for the top spot with nine points apiece and Rubba Construction moved to within one point of the leaders in the other game last night with a come-from-behind 6-4 victory over Vagden Hills.

In the Joyce-Booth tilt, Joyces scored the first goal before the game was back for the 1-1 lead by half time. The losers tied it 3-3 early in the second half, Booth's went ahead 4-3 and again Joyces tied it 4-4.

Jackie Gill scored the game-winning goal with less than three minutes left to play on a clean breakaway. A minute and a half later Howard Sleckly moved into the empty Joyce net with a rink-long shot.

goalie Bob Green on the bench in favour of a sixth attacker. That wrapped it up 6-4.

Gill paced the Booth club, which had only nine players for the game, with two goals and two assists. Junior Dorland, Moss, Fox and Huck Reeves.

The losers drew seven of the game's 11 penalties, including a misconduct to Bert Faulkner.

In the other game, Vagden Mills appeared to be headed for their first win when they took an early lead. Rollins Hyde scored back to tie it 2-2 at the half-way point. Wood stood at 3-3 late in the third before Vagden's completed the scoring.

Rollins were divided among Kennedy, Huntly, Gary Little, Ron Atkins, Wayne Wurtz and Carl Boomhower. Jackie Hughes had four assists, Bruce Hyde two. Joyces two each, Atkins, Boomhower and Doug Lucas one apiece.

Ron Howard, Pete Emerson, Jerry St. Denis and Jim Buttonwood played for Vagden goals. Jack O'Brien, Emerson and Rutherford had assists.

Rollins had three minor penalties, Vagden's one, plus a misconduct to Jim Woodcock.

Paul, Wagner May Break Partnership

TORONTO (CP)—Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul, who shared Canada's outstanding athletic award in 1960, said on Saturday they may break up their figure skating partnership this year.

They were here to perform on the finale of the Metropolitan Ontario-Niagara Peninsula skating championships.

Miss Wagner said she feels they have "three or four years left in competitive skating" and she would like to perform for a year with Maurice Cazadus, but Paul would not.

Miss Wagner and Paul collected professional skating after they each won Olympic gold medal for Pairs in 1960. They have won the world championship four times.

The skaters said they are interested in theatrical work.

"We're taking up acting and acting in case something does skong," Paul said.

Amerks Get Two Marlies

TORONTO (CP)—Two stars with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Metro Junior A Series, Duncan MacDonald and Brian Conacher, have been assigned by Toronto Maple Leafs to Rochester Americans of the American League.

Conacher, six-foot two, 185-pound son of the late Lionel Conacher, has been a standby forward for the National League team in recent games but saw little action.

MacDonald, a left winger from Nerepis, Que., was a member of last year's Memorial Cup champions, Toronto St. Michael's College Majors. He had scored 14 goals in 13 games this season with the Marlboros.

In Bed Several Hours

'Blistered' Kidd Held To 3rd Place

BOSTON (CP)—Toronto runner Bruce Kidd, hampered by a painful blister on his right foot, was held to a third-place finish Saturday in the two-mile event of the Knights of Columbus track meet—the event he won last year.

Kidd, 19-year-old freshman at the University of Toronto, labored through a gruelling double-header—a shorter race but was beaten out by Jerry Nourse of Duke University and Fred Norris of Providence College.

Another University of Toronto runner, Bill Crothers, also was a surprise winner—and a controversial one—in the 1,000-yard run. He drew hoos from the crowd of nearly 13,000 for pushing Charles Durant of the Boston Athletic Association but a foul claim against him was dismissed.

Kidd, who set a meet record with his brilliant win the year before, arrived in town Saturday afternoon and spent several hours in bed under medical treatment before heading for the track.

Boston trainer Jock Semple who worked on Kidd's foot before the race, said the runner was "loaded with penicillin to fight off the infection in the blister." Kidd himself admitted after the race that the foot was "pretty sore."

MADE GAME TRY

With two laps to go Kidd moved into fourth place and battled Nourse and Traynor for second. Nourse pulled away from Traynor's elbows in the close quarters, but he couldn't shake Kidd's last-minute drive in the final turn and was forced to swing wide.

Nourse beat Traynor by two yards with a time of 8:39.4 well off Kidd's record of 8:49.2.

The Toronto runner, named Canada's athlete of the month in 1961 in a poll by The Canadian Press, declined to blame the injured foot for his defeat.

"I have plenty of alibis but the fact is I just wasn't up to them," he said. "I just ran poorly."

Crothers, Canadian 440 and 880 champion and one of the world's fastest milers in 1960 but last year, had a time of 2:12.1 in the 1,000-yard run.

TWO TIE OFFICIALS

Meet officials held a consultation on the elbowing incident with Durant but decided the Canadian, who led almost from the the start, had been a victim of Durant's eagerness.

Crothers said that on the last lap Durant moved out and started pushing and crowding me...with his left arm — pushed him out of the way."

Ted Nicholl Toronto runner, George Gaudette, 25, was second in the 600-yard event behind Tom Kerr of Jamaica.

In the mile event U.S. marine Lieut. Gary Wiesiger led from the beginning to win the race. Don Smith, a bearded New Zealander who is known in English circles as "Bomber" because of his bushy beard, finished last in the field of 10.

Frank Budd, the Villanova runner who owns the world 100-yard dash mark of 9.2 seconds, took the 50-yard dash in 5.5.

Budd's record of 9.2 was equalled by Ray Norton of San Jose State College in the 100-yard dash at the University of Toronto, finished last in the field of 10.

World Soccer

Say Reds Hard to Beat

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia and other Iron Curtain countries are expected to provide the biggest challenge to Brazilian supremacy in the World Soccer Cup finals this year.

The finals will be played in Chile in May and June. The defending champion Brazilians will be more dangerous than ever in a country where they are familiar with the climate and food, but the Eastern European countries are optimistic.

After ten years of preliminary play, 16 teams have qualified for the final stages of the seventh world cup.

Russia, Czechoslovakia and Hungary are rated as having the best chance to dethrone the Brazilians.

The other qualifying teams are Bulgaria, England, Chile, Colombia, West Germany, Italy, Argentina, Uruguay, Mexico Colombia, Spain and Switzerland.

SOVIETS IMPRESSIVE

During a recent tour of South American countries Russia beat Argentina, Chile and Uruguay, which are rated just behind Brazil.

Czechoslovakia, which just missed being one of the finalists in playoff against Scotland, has a well-drilled team and to the tough program in Chile.

The chances of a West European team reaching the finals are not so bright. England has turned in some disappointing displays since its string of wins last year but hopes to find its best form between January 15th when the men who can supply the missing punch.

GETTING UP THERE — W. E. Thornton-Trump, small-town businessman whose company, Trump Limited of Oliver, B.C., sells machinery to 43 countries, stands on a fire-fighting hydraulic aerial platform manufactured by the company. Starting from a one-man repair shop after the war, his company now produces more than $1,000,000 worth of such specialized equipment annually. (CP Photo).

Hydraulic Aerial Platform Inventor Started Business In Small B.C. Community

OLIVER, B.C. (CP)—W. E. Thornton - Trump offers proof that a small-town businessman can compete in big-time business.

The 43-year-old inventor is president of Trump Ltd., of Oliver, a community of 1,750 at the southern end of the Okanagan Valley.

An army buddy convinced him he should try life in Oliver so he came here from Vancouver at the end of the Second World War and set up a one-man machinery repair shop.

Today Ted Trump heads an organization that employs 100 persons, including army buddy Colin McDonald, sales manager.

Annual sales total more than $1,000,000 and machinery of Mr. Trump's invention is being manufactured under licence in the United States, Britain, France, Argentina and Australia and is being sold in 43 countries.

BUILD NEAR TORONTO

His own plant here has just completed a new addition and a branch plant is going up on a two - acre site near Toronto.

Trump Ltd., has gained a world-wide reputation as an authority on hydraulic aerial platforms, a rapidly growing field requiring various mechanical means of raising a man to any given height for safe and easy access to such tasks as cleaning city street lights, pruning trees painting buildings and maintaining them, de-icing aircraft and fighting fires.

One of Mr. Trump's devices, which he calls a Snorkel, is widely sold to municipal fire departments. A firemen standing safely inside a basket-like aerial platform can be raised as high as an eight-storey building to rescue trapped persons or direct a stream of more than 1,000 gallons a minute of water into the heart of a fire.

INVENTED, FRUIT PICKER

Mr. Trump says the fact he started business in Oliver, in B.C.'s fruit tree belt, led to his hydraulic lift inventions. He began thinking about easy, fast ways to gain access to fruit on trees—something better than a ladder.

In 1951 he build an aerial platform he called a Giraffe. A man can stand on the platform at the end of a boom on this machine and control the movement of the platform to a height of 24 feet.

Today he manufactures 26 different models of hydraulic aerial lifts and the Oliver plant has designed and built a new one that will rise as high as a 12-storey building. It's a mobile unit mounted on a truck chassis that can be driven through crowded streets with ease than many fire department ladder trucks.

Mr. Trump, who has travelled more than 300,000 miles by air to study industrial needs and demonstrate uses of his machinery, has orders for equipment that he hasn't yet designed.

Jumping to Conclusions, How Many Do You Agree With?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions (and how many do you agree with?):

Every sleepy victim ought to get an increase in pay. He probably got the ulcer from worrying about his job—or from listening to a nagging wife's demanding she get what he doesn't make more money. In either case, he needs compensation.

Red - haired girls have the most faithful husbands I have never known a man married to a red-haired girl who deserted her and ran off with a brunette.

The loyalty of many dogs is over-rated. The average dog, if he were given $1,000,000 and knew what it was worth, wouldn't take out a trust fund for his owner. He would buy himself $1,000,000 worth of juicy bones as a hedge against inflation.

The average wife can usually tell when her husband is lying to her; her big trouble is that she is never absolutely sure when he is telling her the truth.

If bigamy were legal, it wouldn't appeal to more than one man in five. Monogamy is so widespread because it fits the true nature of the average man. He is always too lazy to try to defend himself to more than one woman at a time.

One of the big differences between the sexes is that a woman likes to talk about her favorite doctor—a man about his favorite bartender.

A rugged individualist is a fellow who repeatedly interrupts his boss's jokes with, "I already heard it." And sometimes it's just a short step from being rugged to being ragged.

Every married man, no matter how mouse-like, is secretly certain he knows at least one hat-check girl he could make time with—if he really chose to.

Any man over 50 who brags he never has stomach trouble is either a liar—or else he isn't doing his share of worrying about the future of civilization.

Jimmy Gardiner Could Dance or Play Politics

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — "C'm'on, Jimmy, dance."

Almost invariably, this cry went up in the railway committee room of the Parliament Buildings when there was a party and Jimmy G. Gardiner was present.

Even when he was in his 70s, Jimmy Gardiner would put down his glass of apple juice, take off his coat, roll up collar with a fast Irish jig or sailor's hornpipe.

Nobody on Parliament Hill ever stepped livelier than the former Prairie premier and cabinet minister, whether it was a jig or in politics.

In the Commons, glass of water in hand, he rolled over the Conservatives like the Saskatchewan River in flood.

His voice carried like a bugle. He generally didn't shout him down, he merely made his voice a series of notches to overcome the interference.

He knew the prairies like the back of his hand. He had been there in 1901 as a farmhand.

USED NO NOTES

He disdained speeches written in advance or notes of any kind.

He carried all farm facts and figures in his head and could recall, for instance, accurate details in connection with a transfer of a section of land years before.

One of his most famous political performances outside the Commons was in Manitoba a decade ago at an annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Farmers had been saving up more a wagonload of embarrassing questions for the minister.

Jimmy started out by saying that his speech would be short because he wanted to allow plenty of time for a question period before he caught a plane.

He then told the farmers how well off they were, how farm income had increased and the like. He sprinkled statistics like water from a hose.

THEY TOOK THE BAIT

Angry delegates had their question period all right. Where did the minister get those statistics? How could he justify them?

All the planned questions were forgotten in the argument over statistics. Mr. Gardiner excused himself to catch his plane.

All turned quiet for a second. Then one delegate said, half ruefully, half admiringly: "He slipped through our fingers again."

Like a good destroyer captain, Jimmy Gardiner knew when to stand and fight, when to put out a smokescreen.

He stood and fought on one, he was probably the only fight he was ordained to lose.

Hank Fonda Divides Chores Between Stage and Movies

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hank Fonda gives a surprising answer when he divides his acting chores between Hollywood and the stage.

"I make as much money on the stage as I do in movies," says blue-eyed Hank, "and about him down, by merely making a few cuts and notches to overcome the interference.

I know the prairies like the back of his hand. He had been there in 1901 as a farmhand.

Columnists have tried to draw him into a feud with his daughter, actress Jane Fonda, an opponent of the method.

"I've told Jane and Pye told my son, Peter, that an actor can fail his arms or stand on his head, if that's the way that will get the job done."

Fonda considers himself an instinctive actor who practices no method.

"I just walk out on the stage and do it."

How does he earn as much on Broadway as in Hollywood?

TAKES TWO ROLES

"When I like a part in a play, I not only sign for it but I invest in it. Then, as a part owner, I stay with the play as long as it pays me. I don't happen to."

Fonda, putting the profits in trust for his children, was a partner-director in Mike Roberts, one of the all time profit-makers both in movies and on the stage. He also invested in South Pacific.

Fonda, now playing in Advise and Consent, is heading east for a TV show and Pittsburgh for a stage role about a man dying of cancer.

Called Gift of Time, Fonda believes that it is the greatest acting challenge of her career. Naturally, he's betting big own money that it will be a hit.

The Farmer's Daughter Was Bright, Engagingly Acted

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Theatre 62, NBC's monthly series of television dramas adapted from motion pictures, has been a great disappointment. The first three of the shows were not noteworthy.

But Sunday night's adaption of The Farmer's Daughter was bright, engagingly acted and amusing.

The story is about the Swedish maid in a political household who by a trick of fate runs for Congress and winds up in the arms of her employer's congressman son.

Lee Remick played the pretty amateur politician with a dandy Swedish accent. Cornelia Otis Skinner was the family matriarch. But it was the presence of Peter Lawford as the aristocratic, languorous young congressman that gave the comedy just the right spark.

The weekend also brought two other special entertainments. Most prominent was the all-star CBS' The Good Years. Friday night, a theatrical portrayal of the Lambert Institute for Fabers' Institute Friday. She succeeds John C. W. Iowth, president of the Book Society of Canada.

members moved about a third of the way toward the goal of tariff-free trade among themselves and creation of a common set of tariffs on imports from outside.

Governments of the members nations must ratify the agricultural agreement but this was regarded as a formality.

Reports on the Market - U.S. agreement said the pact involved reduction of up to 50 per cent on many industrial products. Exactly which products would be covered was not known.

The tariff cuts would be made under authority already held by President Kennedy.

Hamilton Fruit Dealer Robbed By Bandits

HAMILTON (CP) — Police early today are looking for two men and a woman and charged them with armed robbery a few hours after Hamilton fruit wholesaler Samuel Nehlin was robbed of several thousand dollars.

In the third of three similar incidents in the last eight days, Mr. Nehlin told police he answered a knock at the door and was met by a man who entered with a rifle and the other with a revolver. They were followed by a woman wearing a stocking mask. The men were unmasked.

One of the men demanded money and Mr. Nehlin gave him the contents of a wall safe. He said a shot was fired at his feet in an attempt to persuade him to go downtown and open his office safe. The three then ripped telephone from the wall and drove away.

On Friday two men, masked by wool toques, held Mrs. Hy Richter at gunpoint in her Hamilton home until her husband, a used car dealer, returned from work. They robbed Mr. and Mrs. Richter of about $300 and pulled two telephones from the wall before leaving.

A week before there was a robbery in Burlington in which two men were wool hoques and masks.

Cross-Canada Survey

In Christmas Bird Count Victoria Watchers Sighted 121 Species, Tops in Nation

By AL MARKLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Even birds "follow the birds to Victoria."

The slogan started as a tourist-catcher, based on the chance of gulls wheeling over steamships as they came and went. But it could be used now by Victoria's bird watchers who have taken the message to heart.

A Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed that in the annual Christmas bird count throughout the country, Victoria reported more species than any other place.

Squeezed at the southern end of Vancouver Island, Victoria 'is a haven for bird-watchers who saw 121 separate species of birds, six more than in 1960.

About 30 members of the Victoria Natural History Society took part in the dawn-to-dusk count. Best find was a yellow-billed loon, an Arctic bird rarely seen in Alaska and spotted only three times before in British Columbia.

COUNT IS UP

Christmas count takes place before, during and after Christmas Day as hundreds of devoted bird - watchers bundle up, clutch field glasses and notebooks and set about identifying and counting birds in their areas.

The information is collected and tabulated by the Audubon Society of Canada.

Victorians may have counted more species than elsewhere but for sheer volume Vancouverites ruled the roost. Peering through the drizzle, they identified 120 species and seen 124,932 birds.

The previous year they counted the same number of varieties and 99,443 birds. Euro-pean starlings led the list in 1961 with 87,367, an increase of 30,000 birds. Gulls were next counted, including one rhgfdli and three California gulls, both of Vancouver's first in winter. Other unusual sightings included eight whistling swans, three western sandpipers, a savannah sparrow and a gos-hawk spotted lurking around a turkey farm.

FIRST SIGHTINGS

Reports from across Canada indicate the bird population is on the increase, perhaps shifting around slightly. Most areas reported first sightings of some species.

The picture in others areas:

Alberta: Twenty-eight species and 4,783 birds were spotted in the Calgary Bird Club's count. One white - breasted nuthatch was seen, the first ever reported south of Red Deer. The Edmonton club spotted 1,735 birds of 28 species, including a single eagle, a northern shrike, a red-breasted nuthatch and a pileated woodpecker. Bo-hemian waxwings, usually plentiful, were scarce.

Saskatchewan: Members of the Moose Jaw Natural History Society counted 400 birds of 15 species in the 24-hour weather Boxing Day. Included were one robin, an evening grosbeak, a snow owl, a downy woodpecker and 16 ring-necked pheasants.

Manitoba: Winnipeg's 40 bird watchers reported seeing a new high for chickadees — 1,239. Six birds were seen before in 19 years of census-taking in the Toronto area turned up—blue goose Bonaparte's gull, two razorbill murre, tufted titmouse, yellow-bellied sapsucker and brown-winged hawk.

Quebec: A record 30 species were sighted in Montreal, totalling 4,000 birds. Outstanding find was an Oregon-junco, first ever in the area. Other rarities included two field sparrows, one Brant goose, one snow and seven great ploegroves beaks. Quebec City spotters reported a record 30 species and 3,000 birds. Only unusual sightings were 540 Bohemian waxwings, birds that usually nest in the west in summer and go south in winter.

New Brunswick: Snow kept the count down but widespread in the Saint John area consisted 4,000 herring gulls. Surprisingly few cowbirds were seen but an increasing number of pine grosbeaks was indicated by a count of 96 at Fredericton. Cape Tormentine reported 117 iceland gulls.

Nova Scotia: Spotters at Eastern Halifax identified 38 species, four more than any record, including more than 1,000 Canada geese. A new western sector 45 species were counted about average. Two mocking birds were seen within city limits. Land birds were less numerous than in previous years.

Newfoundland: Watchers recorded 22 species, lower than most years, led by elder ducks and herring gulls. Other sightings included 16 starlings, 178 English sparrows, 198 white-winged crossbills and four redpoll. Eight murres were spotted — two of them with wings heavily coated with oil believed discharged from ships.

There was no count taken in Prince Edward Island.

SOCIAL SECURITY

insurance payments—equal contributions from employees and employer plus one-fifth of this total from the government.

OPPOSITION FROM CONSERVATIVES

Opponents of this plan argue that it has the advantage of being relatively less expensive from the government's standpoint than a similar increase in the old age pension. Each $1 increase in the present pension costs the federal government $10,000,000 a year, and becomes an additional permanent burden on the treasury.

However, others aren't ruling out the possibility of a $10 increase in the old age pension to $65 a month.

A further advantage of the supplementary pension idea is that it could serve as a sort of portable pension which an employee could carry with him to any province or any job without loss of pension rights.

A variation of this plan being discussed links it to unemployment insurance payments—if an unemployed person drew unemployment insurance beyond a certain minimum period, his stake in his supplementary, portable retirement pension would be reduced.

This would discourage people not actually in need of unemployment insurance from drawing it.

Battle-Axe Wants The Answers

DEAR DORIS:—I am in great need of advice concerning my teen-age daughters. The one is 16, the other 19 years old. They are both away going to high school, but get home about every two weeks. I usually only have a good time with the boy friends.

Could you please answer these questions:

(1) Should not a couple of girls be expected to help with the housework and cooking when home on vacation, and should boy friends are coming for supper?

DORIS CLARK

(2) What is the meaning of the phrase "Going Steady" and what duties or privileges are expected of the girl? Is not 14 years too young for them to begin?

(3) Is it reasonable to ask them to come right home from a show or dance, and not to park somewhere for several hours?

(4) How would you explain to a young couple (girl 14, boy 18 years) that it is improper to be "just sleeping" in a closed bedroom, in the evening?

(5) Should a girl be allowed to spend several days visiting in her own home town?

(6) Do you think these girls are worth fighting for, or should they be released from parents' rules to do as they please?

These arguments leave me sleepless for several days. I am only an old-fashioned battle-axe and cannot think of the right answers.— M. E. C.

DEAR M. E. C.:—(1) Yes. All family members should share the work. And it should be part of their ammunition for boy friends, who, when you are kind enough to have them for dinner.

(2) It has many meanings. Usually means no dates with anybody else. Should not mean any privileges. Yes, 14 is too young.

(3) Not only reasonable, but proper. Parking is asking for trouble.

(4) I wouldn't explain. Just forbid it. She knows why. 14 is far too old for 14.

(5) Depends on many things. Are parents there? Do you know them? Have they talked with you about the invitation? Such a visit indicates close friendship.

(6) Of course they are worth fighting for. Until young people know how to handle themselves, they must abide by rules you lay down. Past a certain point you don't temporize.

Over and over again, teen-agers have shown themselves capable of responsible discipline when they insist at the time. I am sending you the name of a little paperback which will help you think of some of the answers.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I believe you do much good and have helped many a poor soul out of difficulty. Sometimes you do get a little opposition from people, like from the mother who did not agree with you on a teenage girl's dress.

It is difficult to please everyone, this is for sure. I find there are two standards in this present age on hemline. One is the popular modern standard and the other the old Bible Christian standard.

This old standard also claims to be modern and up to date because its modern morals and standards do not become obsolete with age. Many people, of course, do realize (I believe) that you must keep to the popular side of the road and with the crowd to ensure your position.

There are times when people cannot accept your advice on certain matters, in which case they will have to use their judgment according to their own consciences.—B. READER.

DEAR B. READER:—How true! In the area of human relations there is no absolute of right and wrong. It is up to each of us to be true to the best we know.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) occurred.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among those sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. And for individually sealed convenient Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with the unique applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Former Big Shot of Nazis To Lead Party

GOETTINGEN, Ger m a n y (AP) — Members of the right-wing All German Party picked a former Nazi big shot Sunday to lead them in 1962 and called for a more flexible nationalist policy to achieve unification of this divided country.

Delegates attending a rally here named Hermann Ahrens, deputy head of the state government in Lower Saxony, to head the two - pronged ticket. Ahrens is a protege of Fritz Hellmut Sebode, Reichsminister of Food and Agriculture under Adolf Hitler.

In his acceptance speech, Ahrens emphasized the need for what he called German national unity from the federal government and freshen "toward all sides" for unification of the two Germanys.

Similar sentiments were expressed Saturday by Dr. Wolfgang Hallan town of Hagen at the formation of the right - wing German Freedom Party. The group is composed of former members of the outlawed pre-Nazi Socialist Reich Party and dissidents from the German Party, which, in coalition with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats, is the ruling party.

Ahrens, a leading functionary under the Nazis in the former Saxony industrial centre of Salzgitter until the end of the war, was the recipient of one of Hitler's highest awards, the Golden Party Badge. Many of the Germans who had joined the Nazi party rose to set up the Third Reich in 1933.

The All German Party, a coalition of the Free Democrats and All German Bloc and the Gerstan Party, failed to elect a single delegate to the current West German Parliament. It has, however, delegates in various state governments.

Prime Minister And Fleming Turn Up Friends

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Finance Minister Fleming, reported to be cool and free of the roughest, inside cabinet battles in Canadian history, turned up friends Saturday night.

At the time of last month's cabinet shuffle, there were reports that Mr. Fleming had been told by the prime minister to take a lesser portfolio and that he had refused at a stormy meeting with Mr. Diefenbaker.

The reports were denied by the prime minister and Mr. Fleming.

Introducing Mr. Diefenbaker Saturday night at the annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association of Toronto, Mr. Fleming said he thought he had been selected to be the one to "take the blame" if anything went wrong.

"If only I could transmit the message to one or two pinkish, ears I might be permitted to do so."

Mr. Fleming described Mr. Diefenbaker as one whose service to the Canadian people "will loom big in the history of this country as one of the great men of our time."

Mr. Diefenbaker in turn said Mr. Fleming: "No one throughout the years has been more devoted, more loyal, has given greater service to the country."

VOTING OFF

That devotion was now paying dividends in the acceleration of Conservative expansion, the prime minister said.

Mr. Fleming deplored "base and scurrilous attacks" against the prime minister in a deliberate campaign by "our political adversaries."

Some Liberals, he said, are trying to make out that the government is anti - British at heart, are resorting to "the big lie tactic," in a manner worthy only of Hitler and a gentleman who sits on the Liberal front benches of the House of Commons, said Mr. Fleming.

18 Missionaries Massacred By Congolese Troops

Many Kongolo Negroes Also Killed Says Radio

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)

Hildegard, Roman Catholic missionaries were killed by Congolese soldiers at Kongolo in North Katanga Jan. 1, church authorities reported today.

A dispatch from an "Associated Press" correspondent at Bukavu, in the Congo's far east, 225 miles northeast of Kongolo, said missionaries who escaped the massacre brought the violence to the Bishop of Bukavu.

The bodies of the 18 were recovered, the dispatch said. Another missionary was taken hostage and has not been heard from since.

The report to the bishop said troops of the Congo central government attacked missionaries living near Kongolo, beat them and then killed them with automatic weapons.

Among those Monsignor Mbike Tshombe of Katanga reported Jan. 1 that his forces had abandoned Kongolo and that the invaders were killing hundreds of civilians and missionaries wherever they advanced on the town.

Tshombe claimed that the invaders were acting under the orders of the Central Congo government in Leopoldville, but reports since have indicated that they were loyal to pro-Communist deputy Premier Gizenga of Stanleyville, who was put under virtual house arrest by Leopoldville on Sunday by Central government troops.

Gizenga has been accused of dispatching troops into North Katanga in defiance of the United Nations in his own place in the Northeast Congo.

NEW SESSION MAY ENACT SENATE REFORM

Age May Be Basis in Move

OTTAWA (CP)—As the body of the senator was lowered into the grave, one of the mourners sidled up to Sir John A. Macdonald and said: "I'd like to take his place."

"I wish you could but I'm afraid it's too late," retorted Canada's first prime minister, casting a meaningful glance at the grave.

This is one of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's favorite anecdotes about Sir John A. and of, floor sections, possibly those dealing with lifetime appointments to the Senate.

The leader of the Conservatives has said several times publicly that the forthcoming parliamentary session will be asked to consider Senate reform.

Mr. Diefenbaker has been that this will involve an age limit for senators, who now hold lifetime appointments for life at $10,000 a year.

MAY BE 75

The retirement age most frequently mentioned in early discussion on such a move is 75, in the 102-seat Senate, where the party standings are: Liberals 61, Conservatives 25, Independents 15, Independent-Liberals 1, vacancies 4.

If an age limit of 75 took effect now, it would mean the retirement of 31 senators—26 of them Liberals. If only Conservatives were appointed to fill the present six vacancies and the 31 caused by mandatory retirement, the new senate house would give the Conservatives 38 members to the Liberals' 61.

COULD BE 80

Perhaps because such a step might be viewed as too bald an attempt to get a quick majority in the Senate, high speculation has centred on the limit of 80.

But but one of the 19 senators now 80 or older are Liberals. Assuming again that only Conservatives would be appointed to replace those 19 and to fill the remaining six vacancies, the Liberals still would be in majority. But the margin would be cut to 42 Liberals to 38 Conservatives.

SEARCH FOR BOYS

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP)— Volunteer firemen, miners and state police continued the search today for two boys who failed to return from a hike in this western Pennsylvania area Sunday. About 75 men carried flashlights through the night in the vicinity of an abandoned coal mine. They built fires to keep warm. Larry Rustad, 10, and Wesley Lowe, 13, might see them.

Five Arrested On Fraud Counts

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today they have arrested five men on fraud charges in connection with an insurance swindle that netted $100,000 in 1960. They said the loss could run to $200,000.

The arrests were made in the last 11 days after the American insurance company fled to the Metropolitan police when an investigation of discrepancies in claim settlement, Company officials said claims were paid for accidents that never happened.

Carl Dieck, 40, of Thornhill, an employee of the company and owner of several race horses, including Cyprian Cat, was the first person arrested. He faces multiple charges of fraud, theft.

Also held on fraud charges are Alexander Stoyanoff, 28, a waiter of Toronto; Floyd Lloyd J. Pratt, 43, real estate salesman of nearby Richmond Hill; William Miller, 44, a salesman of Toronto, and Daniel MacDonald, 34, Preston Lake.

Do Not Let Shovelling Snow Send You to an Early Grave

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today, this winter, you may strain your life away.

Or, to put it precisely, shovel out, push yourself into the grave.

It probably won't be easy to do: You'll have to put your heart into it—literally.

But you won't be expecting it, or you wouldn't be doing what you're doing — shoveling snow; pushing a stalled car out; or a snowbank; climbing up a snow-mantled hill, or doing one of a dozen other strenuous activities in the snow.

Snow is a treacherous death to many persons—death by heart attack, and at times, by stroke.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the American Heart Association big for the prevention of heart disease, if you're over the age of 40.

Surprisingly, the advice is needed by people in traditional, silly heavy snow belts, as well as by people in areas deluged by heavy snowstorms only one winter in five or 10 years. During last winter's big U.S. storm more than 50 deaths were attributed by authorities to overexertion.

Any exertion in shovelling snow, are pushing and similar activities.

A physiologist has calculated the energy cost of shovelling snow with the usual five-pound shovel.

A shovelful of snow usually weighs about four pounds. Shovelling it up and fling it away is equivalent to walking up three flights of stairs in the same period. Even if the Common Market decides to reduce external rates by 50 per cent on industrial goods moving within the Market and moving internally, it will have to be decided tariff advantage over foreign goods.

At 18 months of negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the Common Market offered the broad 20 - per - cent cut on industrial goods but the United States—main negotiator — was authorized by Congress only to offer concessions on hundreds of individual items—not the entire industrial spectrum.

Informants said the Common Market, led by France and West Germany, decided to propose the broad 50per-cent reduction anyway, accepting loss than it gave.

During the weekend, the six countries reached an important decision on merging their short-term differences, agreeing to launch the so-called "variable import levy" system. This would have some serious restrictive side-effects on Canadian agricultural markets in the U.K. The new variable "import" duty plan, high price - support programs inside the Common Market would be equalized among the six countries. Instead of "foodstuffs from outside the market would bear a special tax—the difference between the lower-priced foods and the domestic price for that product.

Kennedy Thinks Congress Will Slash Tariffs

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says he believes that by the time he completes his trade negotiations Congress will approve his proposals to slash American tariffs, and promote an expansion of world trade.

His administration now is preparing a detailed analysis of his proposals to eliminate duties on some categories of goods and reduce them by as much as 50 per cent on other categories.

Dairy Council Head Blames Govt. Pricing for Surplus

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Cote, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, today blamed "unrealistic pricing policies by the federal government" for Canada's butter surplus of nearly 300,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Cote said most of Canada's surplus milk production finds its way into butter—and domestic sales of that dairy product have declined 1,000,000 pounds a month during the last four years.

"We must ask why consumers should be expected to purchase fat in one form at about 70 cents a pound when other fats and oils can be substituted at prices of 25 cents or less a pound," he said.

The spokesman for Canadian dairy processors told the council the "responsibility of the federal government . . . to adjust government prices to the point necessary to eliminate the surplus and restore the domestic market."

Yet producers themselves should boost domestic sales with better advertising and sales campaigns, Mr. Cote said.

He told the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada that price sales of ice cream, fancy cheese and milk powder have jumped during the last 10 years because they had been made attractive.

Mr. Cote warned some 250 delegates against recommending any changes in the present system of marketing milk.

The establishment of a milk marketing board, he said, could bring processing and manufacturing facilities "into direct and unfair competition with existing facilities."

Frank E. Lutes of Berry Mills, N.B., president of the 350,000 - member Dairy Farmers of Canada, took exception.

Mr. Lutes said the act under which marketing boards are set up—the National Products Marketing Act — provides for consumer control, and thus should "lend confidence to the producer group."

To stimulate milk sales, producers should take action to establish school milk plans and "furnish educational material to schools . . . to emphasize the importance of milk in the diet."

Consumers now demand a diet of lower fat content than in former years, Mr. Lutes said, and producers should be encouraged by price supports to manufacture low-fat milk.

Common Mart Will Reduce Tariff on Industrial Goods

WASHINGTON (CP) — Qualified United States sources say the six-country European Common Market has agreed to reduce its external tariff by 20 per cent on broad categories of industrial goods.

These informants said the Common Market decision, likely to be announced this week or two, would be in return for a variety of concessions on a smaller number of items offered by the United States, Canada and other countries.

The Common Market countries now enter the second stage of a 12-year program aimed to eliminate tariffs inside the Market and shape common external rates. The plan also includes development of common policies in agriculture, significant segment of which was completed in Brussels last weekend.

In the second stage, tariffs within the Market will be 40 per cent of the level they were when the Market came into effect. By the end of the stage, tariffs among the six will have been reduced by 60 per cent.

MUST PROMOTE GOODS PROPERLY SAYS MINISTER

No Need to Join Trading Blocs

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Canada is alert to opportunities and maintains a variety of trade ground in order that would it may not be necessary to join trading blocs, Trade Minister Hees said today at night.

"Proposals which would have Canada join one' or another particular trading bloc seem to fail to take into account the damage which such an association could pose for our relations with other trading partners," he said in a speech during at the opening of the international business management course at Waterloo University College.

"Canada produces for export a variety of goods which are in demand all over the world," he said. Mr Hees said in an. Canada benefits from maintaining the maximum flexibility to take advantage of new opportunities as and where they arise."

For this it was necessary to achieve a balance between the most possible access to all markets of the world.

OPENS MARKETS

Mr. Hees said that over the last 10 years Canadian producers opened markets for more varied and complex products. Sales ranged through uranium, petroleum, natural gas, aircraft and electrical apparatus, which together accounted for annual sales of $865,000,000.

One problem, however, exists that this widening base of exports had been outpaced by imports. This produced a trading deficit of $713,000,000 in 1958 but which had gradually been reduced until a surplus of exports over imports now was in sight.

Three steps are completed for the past year, "I have every hope that 1962 will be the first year since 1952 to show a trade surplus," he said.

MAY BE FRANTIC

Canadians tended to feel over-awed and fearful of their activities in export competition with the more advanced economies of Britain and the United States.

"They may forget there is always a place in the world market for attractive, new, well-designed products. One basic need is export to be met. Products that are different. If these can be characteristically Canadian, so much the better."

It was necessary for Canadians to develop a "go-ahead" if it wished to maintain its place in the world. Increased sales would increase production runs and lower unit costs' and the pressure on prior sales and production possible.

Two Municipalities Still Want to Withdraw From Area After Joint Meeting

Despite the offer of it revised plan for the construction of the proposed new technical school addition at the Madoc High School, the two municipalities of Tweed village and Hungerford township still want to withdraw from the Centre Hastings High School Area.

Accordingly there will be representation from the two municipalities at this week's biannual session of council to renew their request for withdrawal from the area.

The December meeting of county council saw the first request from the two municipalities for withdrawal but following considerable bold for and against the move, council decided to lay the matter over until the January session.

In the meantime a referendum was held with a majority in the municipality voting overwhelmingly to withdraw.

LETTER TO RATEPAYERS

The campaign of Tweed and Hungerford ratepayers to withdraw from the area commenced following the decision made at the Centre Hastings High School Board that a new technical school addition costing more than a million dollars had been approved for the Madoc high school. Practically 100 per cent of the money would have been constructed without cost to the area, but Tweed and Hungerford high schools maintenance and operational costs would tend to withdraw from the the area.

Last week members of the school board and municipal representatives from Tweed and Hungerford were called to Toronto to meet with Ontario Department of Education officials.

At that time a revised plan calling for a reduced number of classrooms was offered at no cost to the area.

Last night at Tweed a joint meeting of Tweed and Hungerford councils was held at which time Tweed Reeve Dougias Spencer outlined the revised plan offered by the Department.

The meeting, however, showed little interest and decided to renew their request for Hastings County Council to allow withdrawal from the high school area.

If the dogs are picked up running at large, or without licence, the owners are charged with impounding and they have to acquire the current year's dog licence before they can get their pet back.

Will Likely Be April Before Board Set Up

Due to the involvement of the matter and the necessity of getting all municipalities in particular setting up of the Emergency Measures Organization for the Belleville-Trenton district is not likely to take place before April, it was noted today by Mayor A. M. Haig.

The hope is that the three counties of Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington, along with Trenton and Belleville would include the cost of a full time co-ordinator.

If the organization takes shape as planned the cost to Belleville has been estimated at $700.

IN MEMORIAM

RAY. — In loving memory of a dear wife, and mother, passed away January 14th, 1961.

The lovely flowers I placed upon the grave,
Will wither and decay;
But love for her that sleeps below,
Will never pass away.

What would I give to grasp her hand.
To hear a smile once more;
To talk hope we shall meet again,
In that bright happy shore.

Sadly missed by her husband, William Ray, daughter-in-law Ann

RAY. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Mary, who passed away January 14th, 1961.

Sweet memory shades are falling,
And we sit alone and weep,
Thinking there comes a longing
If she could only speak.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
Where sorrow we can't see;
But God has her in His keeping,
And we in memory.
Sadly missed by son Floyd and daughter-in-law Vivian.

Rotarians Taken On Lecture Tour of Jamaica

Local Rotarians were taken on a lecture and film tour of Jamaica yesterday at their regular weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte. Their host was Mr. John Cowan, C.A. engineer in the local Northern Electric plant, who visited the Caribbean island recently whilst on vacation.

Mr. Grant's tour covered mostly the city of Montego Bay and the south end of Jamaica. Numerous interesting facts about the people, their life and habits, as well as the physical characteristics of the island were related by the speaker.

The talk was illustrated with some excellent color slides made or obtained by Mr. Grant during his visit.

A. O. Pinkston introduced the speaker and Len Gilchrist expressed the thanks of the club.

A former local Rotarian, Steve Tripp of Toronto, was present to give his former club members some of the details of the forthcoming Rotary District Conference. This is to be held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto on March 1 to 3.

President Virgil James announced that Rotarian Enos David was in Toronto General Hospital recovering from a suspected disc on a recent visit to the Ontario capital.

Bruce Gibson, president of the BCIVS Camera Club, was in full guard of the club. There were 73 present at the meeting.

Do Something Even if Wrong Thing With Land-Fill Area Trenton Councillor Urges

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of Trenton Council Councillor Worrall urged his fellow-councillors to "do something, even if it were the wrong thing" about the development of the sanitary land fill area south of the community garbage dump.

A firm of consulting engineers had written to the town but to say that their employees were versed in the development of recreational facilities, tree planting and related subjects, Mr. Larry suggested that members of the firm might be called in for consultation.

"Why run after consultants?" queried Councillor Worrall: "We have a parks board, a recreation committee and an economic development committee. It's the people of the town we pay first in this development. They'd have more interest in it. I'm all for talking to these consultants, but not for hiring them."

"I'd like to see a ball diamond, medical herb, and a golf course," said Councillor Graham. "There's a traffic problem created by the dump and fire hazard."

"I hope to get a tree-planting program started in this area this spring," said the mayor.

Councillor Worrall and the members of his economic development committee will confer with members of the parks board and the recreation committee and report back to council by February 19th.

STAY OUT OF DISPUTE

Council by-passed an argument between members of the Community Services Commission and a local plumbing firm concerning the tender for installation contract. The commission claims that the entire installation was covered by the terms of the contract. The plumbing firm, on the other hand, claims that extra payment is indicated by the terms of a verbal agreement.

"I don't think it's our policy to be against a decision of a board we've appointed," said Councillor Rose Burt.

The plumber will be advised to take the matter up with the commission. The dispute has been hanging fire for three years.

The request from the Trenton Parks' Board for clarification on the boundary limits at Victoria Park brought out some interesting facts about the past life of the conflagration. In dispute is a road allowance, at the east end of the park, which has been said to be owned by a private citizen.

"I recall that when I played in the band 50 years ago, the bandshell was within ten feet of a barn in this area," stated Councillor Graham.

"What did you play?" asked the mayor.

"The oboe!" suggested Councillor Elliott.

"The cornet," answered Councillor Graham.

"We might set up a band here in council," continued the mayor.

"Is this the time to read this letter on public health?" asked the town clerk.

Town solicitor Roderick Campbell said that there was no less than four registered plans of the park property, running back to 1840, and that two showed the road allowance running through Frost and Sidney Streets, before the contract is awarded.

The town engineer told the council members last night that Gore and Storrey, consulting engineers hired by the town had recommended to OWRC that the Telham tender, (the lowest of eight) be accepted. The engineer will investigate the possibility of laying a storm sewer on Sidney St. simultaneously with the sanitary sewer installation.

"If we have to do without something else in order to finish this street, let's do it," suggested Councillor Burtt. "Nobody in Bell Telephone, Ontario Hydro that if they want to put in underground installation, to pay for the privilege of digging it. It seems that every time we put down a good piece of pavement, somebody comes along and tears it up."

"The road will be a mess after the sewer installation, warned Councillor Graham. "Contractors are guilty of replacing the road in the contract."

"The contractor is supposed to return the road to its original state." he was told by the engineer.

"Watch that open end contract," warned Councillor Worrall. "Remember Division Street!"

SEEK WALK COSTS

The engineer was asked to get prices for the cost of replacing of the footwalk on the CNR bridge. The railway insists it replace wornout tiles with creosoted ties on the bridge and in the process the footbridge will be partially removed. The engineer said that the replacement job might cost between $1,500 and $2,000.

"There's a difference," Councillor Worrall pointed out. "Five hundred is like 25 per cent."

"Another loop hole in contract," smiled the engineer, "is that they've got comparative labor costs.

Mayor MacDonald asked the engineer to reply to a letter, published in a local newspaper, criticizing the removal of snow from West Street.

"It was an efficient and necessary operation," asserted the engineer. "The street presented a traffic hazard. Two cars could not pass. Removing the snow left room for the next lot to be cleared of drifts."

"The letter was addressed to the newspaper," Councillor Worrall pointed out. "Let the newspaper solve the matter."

"We're going to concern ourselves with paper talk, we'll be here all night," Councillor Todd said, during the discussion.

Councillor Burtt reported that the town dog catcher had received 23 calls in December and that "numerous" dogs have been destroyed.

Mayor MacDonald said that two ladies had complained of the cold on the Trenton Market on Saturday and that upon investi-

Chamber of Commerce Asks Council for Financial Aid

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of town council, George Kempf, spokesman for a delegation from the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, outlined the chamber's accomplishments during the past year and asked for "something more than the excellent moral support" tendered to the chamber by council since its re-establishment in early 1960.

Mr. Kempf said that the chamber has acted as a "better business interest" for the town's businessmen, and had worked in every way to promote a commercial enterprise. Chamber secretary Norman Sprague will be operating from a room in the town fire hall until suitable quarters can be found.

However, Mr. Kempf stressed the point that the chamber's main purpose in sending a delegation to council was to arrange closer co-operation between the two bodies and to look for a certain amount of financial aid for the coming year.

"I leave the figure to your discretion," he said, "Base it on what you and the Chamber is worth."

Mr. Kempf added that some type of office space must be found until arrangements could be made to house the chamber's office in basement of Eric Resistor).

Mr. Kempf said that the chamber had 97 members last year and that he hoped a membership drive, soon to be launched, would up this figure by 50 to 100.

The economic and industrial development committee of council, (chairman, Councillor Worrall; members Councillors McDonald and Burtt) will consider the size of a possible 1962 grant and report to council.

Chamber delegates at the meeting included Nostrand, Sprague, Harold Pearce (1961 president), Ian Darling and Jack Goldberg.

Later in the meeting Councillor Worrall suggested that the board room at the Trenton Community Gardens could be used for a Chamber office and this suggestion will be explored.

PRESIDENT LEAVING

Harold Pearce, president of the Chamber since last April, has been moved by his company (Woodworth's) to the downtown Kingston store and will be leaving town on Thursday. He will be replaced by H. A. Orr as manager of the Trenton store. It will be necessary to appoint a Chamber president to fill out Mr. Pearce's term of office.

Last night, Mayor James MacDonald commended Mr. Pearce as being "new to town" and yet having "taken such an active interest in community welfare."

"It puts some people who have lived here all their lives to shame," said the Mayor. "Mr. Pearce has seen the potentials of Trenton and has tried to sell them."

Trenton Fights Belleville For Highway Service Centre

TRENTON — Trenton council, apprehensive that Belleville might "beat Trenton to the draw," empowered clerk-controller O. W. Larry last night to send off a resolution to the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario minister of highways, asking that a highway service centre be built up on Highway 401, at the junction of this highway with Highway 33, or "in the vicinity."

"If we don't get it here, Belleville will," warned Councillor Worrall.

"Let's get it," suggested Councillor Ed. Todd.

"We've got a river and all sorts of parks for tourist facilities," Councillor C. V. Graham asserted.

"We could only go so far in trying to stop them," Councillor Worrall continued his argument. "We can't be narrow in our outlook. I'll go for gas station and rest rooms and an information booth. But I won't go for motels."

The letter to the minister will be despatched speedily.

Two Sides to This

The directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce have given firm support to a proposal that every effort be made to have one of the proposed highway 401 service centres erected near one of the two entrances to Belleville.

We congratulate the directors on their rejection of a proposal from the Port Hope and Cobourg area that the Ontario Government be requested to limit these service centres to the provision of washrooms and telephone facilities.

In this decision we are sure the directors are right. No such certainty surrounds the decision to seek to have one service centre located near Belleville. There are certain disadvantages to such a policy. Service station operators and restaurants here are losing the transient custom which they formerly enjoyed when Highway 2 carried the traffic now using Highway 401. It was in an effort to remedy this that the Port Hope and Cobourg areas sponsored the ill-advised proposal that service station and restaurant facilities should not be provided on 401. In one thing we reject such a restrictive policy, and quite another to advocate that such a service centre should be erected near Belleville, where it will provide additional competition for local custom to existing restaurants and service stations.

The restaurant at such a centre is certain to be a good one. In one sense, it will be a monopoly, since no other will be allowed on the highway for many miles. This monopoly should assure it of financial success and the trade from transient traffic should enable it to provide a high standard of service. Inevitably, this will draw local customers. As for a service station near the intersection, it will almost certainly be heavily patronized by Belleville residents starting on Highway 401 trips or returning from such trips with near-empty gas tanks. Is it fair that local businesses should face this additional competition?

The Chamber, for its part, has a powerful argument in its contention that tourists, stopping for a meal or service, could be presented with information on attractions in this district. That this would result in a considerable number who would otherwise have by-passed the city being diverted into it, we do not doubt. But the question appears to be whether this increase in local trade will more than offset the loss of local business to the service centre. The Chamber evidently believes it will. We hope it is right. Of course, we ought not to overlook the fact that, no matter how existing restaurants and service stations fare, the service centre will provide additional employment opportunities for Belleville and district residents, which might not have been true if the service centres were established as far as possible from, rather than as near as possible to, large centres of population.

Twenty Years After

Unflappable Mac has scored another triumph in his talks with the Old Man.

Or, put politely, Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain, in talks with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, has been able to negotiate an agreement on arms which is highly agreeable to the British.

The problem was the drain on Britain's foreign currency reserves resulting from the maintenance of a British Army in West Germany.

The solution was simplicity itself. West Germany has agreed to buy more arms from Britain. This will provide Britain with the funds it needs to keep its army in Germany. The continued presence of the British troops on German soil will be most pleasing to the Germans.*

Anybody who regards existing international problems as insoluble, or sees no possibility of any agreement between East and West on Berlin, no hope of the Dutch and the Indonesians reaching an accord on the future of West New Guinea, no possibility of travel between Cuba and the U.S. once again consisting of pleasure seekers instead of refugees, please consider this: What would have happened to anybody who, twenty years ago, had suggested that Germany would urgently desire British troops on her soil, and that Britain would welcome the opportunity to sell more arms to Germany?

There's a Scottish death-bed story of a man being asked by his tearful wife if there was anything he wanted. He asked her if she would be serving the mourners with boiled ham after the funeral. When she sobbed out "Yes," he said, "Give me mine now. I won't be coming back!"

Ottawa Offender

Saying 'No' Was Easy

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — This is where they all come to think the treasure is buried.

And, in a sense, it is.

For here is the National Treasury.

Just about everybody wants to get at it, and in this day of divided responsibility, numerous handouts, and other forms of special Federal financial assistance, a person can.

This all goes to make one of the Prime Minister's more difficult jobs — for he is the final responsibility at ultimate decision, the painful business of saying "no."

Most times it's not easy to say it, because, for one of a variety of reasons, other people are supposed to be influenced by the way a Government shares the wealth.

(The Opposition parties don't share it because they haven't got it — but they try to influence the vote by promising to be generous if and when they are in a position to spread it around.)

There being a few of the basic truths of political life, it must come as a relief, perhaps even a pleasure, to the Prime Minister to find himself in the happy position where he can say "no" with easy conscience.

HARDLY HARD TIMES

Such experiences don't come often, but one now did, to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, not long before this new Session of Parliament.

The steelworkers from Sydney, Nova Scotia, were after him.

He already had done plenty for them and their industry, directly, personally soliciting on the journeys he made to Sydney City, a $60,000,000 order for steel rails from the Mexican National Railways.

The order, all $50,000,000 of it, went to Sydney.

Then, too, there has been massive special assistance for the Maritimes, all kinds of subsidies and Federal pump priming for Maritime industry from the Atlantic seaboard.

But the steelworkers wanted more.

Among the demands:

- Further transport subsidies.
- Special subsidy/assistance for new capital investment.
- The compelling of the steel industry to diversify, to create more jobs and more and different products.

And all, or most of this, financed by the Federal Treasury.

And then it came out, all of a sudden, and something of a surprise, that a strapping coal worker at Sydney was making $103 weekly.

That's $105 in take-home pay, $105 weekly clear after deductions.

It just happened to be $27 higher than the national average.

OFF THE HOOK

This, the steelworkers frankly admitted, was not fair.

And this got the Prime Minister out from under.

If he had felt obligated, in the public interest, to intervene and further exploit the Federal Treasury for the Sydney steelmen, the fact that they were getting a very handsome average weekly $105, rather removed any sense feeling of responsibility.

The Prime Minister was able to tell the steelmen that their business should be with the industry rather than the government.

So this time, the "no" came rather more easily than it usually the case.

There was another such set of circumstances not long ago.

The Prairie farmers were crying the Treasury dry, as of late has been their custom, carrying on a campaign of some additional form of subsidy.

A representative of the Government went to see them, and at the same time, takes part in the semi-annual conquest of the $25,000,000 South Saskatchewan dam.

And strange to see, he found not an inconsiderable number of these hungry farmers had been crying hard times, had come to the sod-turning in their private planes.

Perhaps, it was that some of these had especially undercapitalized that they could only afford a little odd hedge-hopping executive job instead of those big plush executive-type aircraft.

"Well, that's enough about my troubles, old man — how are you getting along?"

Strictly Personal

Paradox In Religious Differences

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The ironic and saddening thing about doctrinal differences between people of different faiths is that the most deep-seated differences exist on the lowest level, where the people least understand what they "believe" in.

What I mean by that complicated sentence is that a Catholic philosopher such as Jacques Maritain, a Protestant philosopher such as Reinhold Niebuhr, and a Jewish philosopher such as Martin Buber have a great deal more in common with each other than most of them do with the rank-and-file members of their faith.

All doctrines become flattened, coarsened, vulgarized and distorted when they get down to minds that are acute and sensitive enough to be emotionally receptive and unreflecting. In this passage, the emphasis shifts from the intellectual core of belief to the differences; and people will die for what they don't know what they "believe" relatively as by knowing what they do not believe.

That is what John Dewing meant by his test of Collectual University: "Most people have some sort of religion — at least they know which church they're staying away from."

Long ago, Jonathan Swift put it with his usual bitter precision when he observed that it is the height of stupidity, not to hate one another, but not enough to love one another.

On the highest level, as we read more deeply and widely in the field of religion, we find that a Maritain, a Niebuhr, and a Buber have a profound respect and affection for one another's thought; they know that their differences rest upon a common tradition is far more substantial than what divides them philosophically.

But, somehow, the churches themselves, as the social institutions for the transmission of beliefs and practices, have stressed the separateness rather than the oneness of the unity. I don't mean feelings were originally good and in a warm puddle of sentimentality, ignoring genuine differences. It's that differences have become the "handle" by which most persons grasp their religion; for the positive concepts of a creed are too difficult and demanding for us to live with in our daily lives.

We live by the slogans, the symbols, the uniforms, the school colors; as it were of our own particular "gang," with the tangible objects that mark us off from the others, and give us a feeling of solidarity within our own religious ranks. Stripped of them, we would scarcely know what we believe, in the most intimate and ultimate sense of believing.

THE SCROLLS OF HEAVEN

"How much are you worth?"

"None of your business," you reply angrily. "I'll take up matters of that sort with my banker and with the income tax man when he comes to check my returns."

No brother, you'll take it up with me, and with the people who live on either side of you, and with the people who live in your own house, in dead earnestness we ask, "How much are you worth?"

You may keep your lips sealed and glare back in anger, but in doing so you have at least half answered the question we ask.

You may declare to whom you consider the proper persons that you are worth ten thousand dollars, or one hundred thousand, or a million. But to whom are you worth that? You have a house, a life insurance policy, and two cars—so what? The question of importance is, How faithful are you in carrying your share of the load? Of pulling your oar? How much do you add to the happiness of your home, to the richness of life, along your street? You are worth just as much as you serve and love. You are worth just as much as the happiness you produce. That mechanism of life we call government has to be concerned about your ledger and will continue to be concerned about it until your estate is settled. But you—how much are you really worth?

You know partly. I know partly. The full truth is on the scrolls of heaven.

Kingston Rinks Win Tankard Playdowns

Two Kingston rinks skipped by Jake Edwards and Al Cromarty easily won the Tankard playdowns curled at the Quinte Curling Club on Monday. These two rinks will journey to Cobourg on January 25th for the zone finals and if successful they will move into Toronto next day to compete with three other double rinks for the prized trophy, a cup that has been won on several occasions by the Kingston Curling Club.

There were four rinks in the competition on Monday, Kingston, Gananoque, Napanee and Belleville. In the draw conducted by Bill Gault the official umpire, Napanee and Belleville hooked up while Kingston took on Gananoque and in each case it was an easy win for the Napanee and Kingston Clubs. In the Belleville-Napanee match the Kirkwood local rink had a six-point victory but the Corke rink was down 10 points to give the Napanee players a four-point victory on combined scores.

In the other match Gananoque proved no match for the Kingston club. Jake Edwards scored a 15-4 win while Al Cromarty, who will curl in the Consol playdowns next week, 11-3 over his opponent. In the afternoon match between Kingston and Napanee it was a contest after the first couple of ends and the Kingston club went on to post a 32-10 win, the match being concluded at the eleventh. The Kingston rinks are beloved they will be tough to beat for the silverware as all the players can play the ice whether or any game the opposition wants to play. Architects' Plans for New Presbyterian Ch. Approved

The members of the congregation of St. Columbs Presbyterian Church recently approved the architects' plans for a new church to be located on a two-acre lot on the north-east corner of Farley Avenue and East Bridge Street. The architectural firm of Craig and Zieder, Peterborough, have drawn up plans which call for the construction of a church sanctuary.

Currently there is a manse, which was built in 1956 for use as a church school, on the north portion of the property. The present building was constructed by the members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who also bought the property with a view towards the eventual need for a new church with the population expansion which Belleville was beginning to experience at that time.

It was in October of 1960 that a separate Presbyterian congregation was formed with the Reverend R. D. MacLean officiating. The new congregation found its nucleus in many of Mr. MacLean's own parishioners from the area to be serviced by the new congregation.

The Reverend Norman W. Hutchinson of Belfast, Ireland, was appointed minister by the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The new congregation chose the name "St. Columbs."

Incorporation as a township in both the church school and the congregation has prompted the building of a new church and a building and planning committee under Mr. Ralph Blatchford got the project underway and the architects were engaged in June 1961.

The main entrance to the church will be via several steps surrounded on three sides by a frontal concrete court and protected by a ten-foot roof overhang. Double doors will open into a vestibule from which both the clock room and a basement access stairway may be reached. Another set of double doors will give access to the sanctuary.

This is designed to accommodate 325 persons initially and will have a centre and two side aisles. A chancel choir loft, grouped about a centre Communion table and pulpit will highlight the design of the after portion of the nave. Eventually, after all plans have been completed, the church will accommodate 390 persons.

The side windows will be glazed with cathedral glass to offset any sun glare problem. There will also be two large cathedral glass windows at the ends of the two extended gables of the cathedral peak of the building.

Also on the main floor there will be a minister's study, a hallway and a rear stairway to the basement.

The basement floorplan includes a congregational hall, washrooms, four multi-purpose rooms and a kitchen. A solid bank of windows will run along both the east and west sides of the building.

There are also plans for future expansion. There will include a frontal extension towards East Bridge Street, consisting of a skylighted open or glassed in court with colonades and terminating in a 50-foot bell tower; two lateral extensions to the east to accommodate offices and Sunday School rooms at the front and rear respectively of the primary structure, and a Christian education building running parallel with the sanctuary to complete the central open court.

There will be parking accommodation for 50 cars provided also.

NEW CHURCH — Above is the architect's sketch of the St. Columbs Presbyterian Church which is to be constructed on the northeast corner of East Bridge Street and Farley Avenue. The sketch shows the primary building, which will seat 325, and does not include proposed future additions. The St. Columbs congregation was founded about 15 months ago.

500 Marching Mothers Needed For Hour Blitz

Belleville is in need of 500 Marching Mothers to take part in the "Mothers' March" on January 30th when the city will be canvassed in a one night blitz to raise money for the rehabilitation of handicapped persons.

Chief Marching Mother for the one-hour "Blitz" will be Mrs. James Sisler, and a committee to organize the March consists of Mrs. Newt Wilbur, Mrs. H. Meyers, Mrs. Grant Badgley, Mrs. J. Dixon, Mrs. J. Clarke, Miss Anne Ivan, Mrs. J. Matthews, and Mr. J. Mathews who has been responsible for the placing of the March of Dimes cards seen in most local stores.

This group have been interested in this work and have organized the Mothers' March for the past several years. The Belleville-Mothers' March will be one of more than 100 held throughout the Province. As the hour of seven o'clock approaches it is estimated that over 100,000 mothers will be pinning on their lapel badges, picking up their receipt books and starting out to call on from 12 to 15 of their neighbors.

Everything is being done to make the canvass as easy as possible and to keep the captains' districts as small as possible. Each Marching Mother is being asked to call on from 10 to 15 homes, so that she may complete her calls and be back home in an hour or less.

Volunteers are asked to get in touch with Mrs. J. Sisler WO 8-9765.

Tenant Moves Out, Leaves Dog, Four Pups to Starve

Callous dog owners who abandon their canine friends when they move away, or when the dogs have served their usefulness, rate away down in the respect of local pet lovers and humane society officers.

The latest of a long list of such offences occurred in the city last week when a Gordon Street tenant moved out leaving a canine mother and her four young pups to starve in a converted barn.

Local dog catcher Charles Thorn said the part Spitz and Pomeranian mother with her four five-week-old pups have been starving for at least four or five days when neighbors reported the incident.

"I don't know where the man moved to but I am looking for him and when I find him there will be charges laid," said Mr. Thorn.

Mr. Thorn said that every fall and winter there are numbers of dogs dropped or abandoned in the city.

"It starts every year following the hunting season," he said. "Hunters acquire a dog or a hound to take to the woods to hunt deer and then when the season is over they simply abandon the dogs."

This winter there have been more than the usual number of dogs running loose in the city.

At the moment there are 21 dogs in the pound, all picked up by the dog catcher either for running at large or because they lacked a dog tag.

The stray dogs are kept in the city pound for up to a week and if owners are not located the dogs are disposed of.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Donald Spring, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie with a full overskirt finished with a bow at the waist. A circlet of matching material held her bouffant elbow-length veil. Her flowers were a cascade of gardenias and holly.

Mrs. Brian Todkill was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Frances Prang and Miss Marilyn Bremner, sister of the bridegroom, all of Toronto. Cub Leaders' Training Course Held

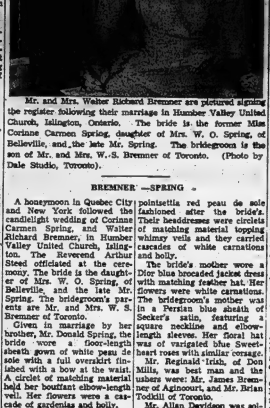
Did you have an enjoyable weekend? Some 120 new leaders and assistants of the Cub packs in Belleville took answer this with an unqualified "yes!"



From 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday they were engaged in the first of a number of training courses proposed for 1962 under the direction of the Assistant District Commissioner for Training, Mrs. L. G. Ashley.

Playing the role of new Cubs they were instructed, directed and guided by a team of experts including: Mr. M. Maw, District Commissioner; Mr. G. A. Russell, A.D.C., outdoor cubbing; Mr. L. Wilcox, Field Commissioner; Mr. F. Pickering, president of District Council; Mr. D. Hickson, A.D.C.—Hovers; Mrs. P. C. Gethbarge, chairman of Ladies' Auxiliaries, District Council; Mrs. G. A. Russell, Cubmaster, 15th Belleville, and Mrs. G. Locklin, Cubmaster "B" pack, 17th Belleville.

Enthusiasm was the keynote of the whole course, with each candidate eager both to learn and to share knowledge with the others. One of the brightest events of the session was that, deer to the hearts of cubs, scouts, brownies, guides and all connected with scouting, namely a hike and we the new leaders scramble for their coats, hats and boots when the D.C. announced they were going on a hike so closely resembled the actions of all boys that your reporter wished he were a boy again.

As the course drew to a close Saturday afternoon all present might have been heard to remark, "It was work, but it was fun".

The next session will be conducted by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Russell in Napanee assisted by Mr. L. Wilcox on February 2nd and 3rd.

Helen R. — He has a fit if I go dancing without him.

Daniel R. — I don't like the idea of strange guys touching her.

• • •

Helen R. — Dan and I are in our early 40's and have raised three children. The girls had a college education and the boy finished high school and college freshman. I was a conscientious mother, never a neglected them. But I looked forward to getting out, mixing more, having a little social pleasure when the days of being tied down were over.

The trouble is that Dan works out of town, gets home very late or not at all, and when he is back, rarely feels like taking me anywhere. But he raises the roof if I go alone. All I do is join my busy friends (their husbands are busy, too) for a visit, a show and her husband, and we go to a local club where Dan and I are both known. I enjoy the dancing. He thinks this is terrible, even though for years he used to go off alone with the fellows and I never objected.

His selfishness is destroying my love and respect for him.

• • •

Daniel R. — I know that club and I know how the men there treat an unescorted woman, married or single. They go after them all fair game, and make passes. I just don't like the idea of my wife being pawed over and passed around from one guy to another. Most of them get pretty gassed up and things can easily get out of hand.

There's a bar on the premises. Maybe so far Helen has been able to stick to soft drinks or even a beer or two with her sandwich. But she likes hard liquor, too, and some day she'll join in with the serious drinkers there. One thing leads to another. That's why I want her to stay home and wait to go there with me. She'd have a good looking, attractive woman and she feels running out alone.

She never used to mind staying home. She'd even refuse coming along when I invited her.

• • •

The Council: Dan should find reassurance in the fact that if his wife is up to any hanky-panky, she doesn't seek it in an open social centre where the couple are well known. The answer to Who was that lady I saw you with? may well be, "Dan's wife and she sure is a doll!" So long as the fantastic Helen trips it light — and in the open — fine.

The solution here hinges on a fundamental concept of the marriage. Does it, though for years which imprison, and for which there is only one key, held by the husband? Or are they bonds of mutual affection and solicitude, loosened by wands of trust at the request of either?

Dan seems to subscribe to the former interpretation. Helen to the latter. But since there's obviously a whipping of real love between them, we believe to be able to bring Dan's position closer to the ideal. This may be merely a matter of heightening his trust in Helen's taste, discretion and loyalty.

All during the courting, child-rearing years, the trusted you, Dan. Certainly you went off to the club without her, or out for some recreation after hours on business. Why not, then, the joy of sociability — it's Helen's turn, at least, to have parties waiting. Instead of forbidding, devote your energy to figuring out a way to join her.

One angle for you, Helen, to work on occurs to us: Do you prefer going to the club without Dan? Does he cramp your style? Is he a wet blanket? If so, you'll have to speak up. If he has your happiness at heart, he'll listen. He won't keep you away in the middle of your favorite dance, for example, if you make you stop whistling!

Further improvements in this marriage might come if Helen entertained her lady friends at home occasionally. If Dan took her to the jolly clubroom more often, and if he, changed his job.

Weddings

MULLEN — NEWMAN

Holy Communion was celebrated by the Right Reverend K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario, following a lovely Christmas season wedding, when Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, rector of Christ Church, united in marriage Elinor Anne Newman, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Arthur R. Newman, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Newman, and Lester Royce Mullen, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Mullen. Red and white chrysanthemums and beautiful Yuletide decorations of trees, silver bells and deep red poinsettias formed the background for the ceremony.

Mr. John Croyden Withers, organist of the church, provided the wedding music and accompanied the choir of six boys who sang for the processional, "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty", and "O Perfect Love," for the anthem.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. A. S. Newman, the bride was attended by Carolyn in her floor-length bridal gown of white velvet, with seed pearl encrusted headband and elbow length tulle veil. She carried a cascade of red Sweetheart roses and trailing ivy.

Her maid of honor was Miss Beverley Shantz, of Cobourg, Ontario, and her senior bridesmaid, Miss Sandra Newman, of Belleville, her sister, and Miss Gail Mullen, of Digby, Nova Scotia, sister of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid. Both were gowned alike in red velvet, in floor length, bell-like headdresses, and bouquets of white chrysanthemums with ivy trailing.

Captain W. Alfred Joslin, of Halifax, Saskatchewan, attended the bridegroom, and John Skinner, of Foxboro, and Mr. Grant Jones, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the parish hall of Christ Church, Belleville, where the guests were received by the bride and bridegroom's parents, the former in green brocaded taffeta with matching accessories, and corsage of white flowers; and the latter in magenta silk jersey with matching accessories and similar corsage of white flowers.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with the traditional red damask and centred by the wedding cake flanked by tall white candles; the bridal bouquets adding a further nuptial accent.

Attending were guests from Nova Scotia, Perth; Kingston; Trenton, and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Royce Mullen are shown signing the register in Christ Church, Belleville, with the officiating minister, Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, looking on. The bride is the former Miss Elinor Anne Newman, daughter of Mrs. Arthur R. Newman, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Newman. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Mullen of Digby, Nova Scotia. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

Showers honoring the bride, prior to her marriage, were held at the home of Mrs. Murry Arthur, Belleville by the class of '57 Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing; by the Newman, of Toronto, as co-hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullen will reside in Kingston, Ontario.

Film Council Meets at Corby Library

Last Tuesday evening at 4:30 the executive of the Belleville and District Film Council held a meeting in the Corby Public Library.

It was decided a monthly meeting of the executive would be held in the auditorium of the Library at 4:30 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month except during June, July and August.

The members were informed re the successful projectionists training course which had been given before Christmas to those interested. However, the idea of a "Skillshop" had to be abandoned for the time due to the difficulty in procuring the desired lecturers. Mr. Mark Slade, the education officer for the National Film Board and Professor Laird, Queen's University.

The past president, Miss Olive Delaney, commented favorably on the increased use of the film library. In December there had been 185 requests for films and 97 requests for projectors. The committee was chosen to set the date for the annual "Film Festival" and to make preparations for the same.

Women Plan United Drive On Exemptions

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of seven Ontario women's organizations are planning a united drive to have the provincial succession duties exemption raised to a true $50,000.

The meeting was arranged by Mrs. Michael Sabia of St. Catharines, vice - president of the Canadian Federation of University Women.

Mrs. Sabia said the federal government allows a full $50,000 exemption before succession duties must be paid on an estate. While Ontario has the same nominal exemption, a survivor would have to pay duty on the full amount of an estate of say—$50,000 while the federal exemption makes it payable only on $5,000.

It was decided to correlate the efforts of the women's organizations and prepare a joint brief for presentation to the government by spring.

Also represented were the business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario, the provincial Council of Women, the Ontario Federation of Women Teachers' Associations, the Ontario Federation of Women's Institutes, the Jewish Council of Women and the Canadian Committee on the Status of Women.

Eskimos, Indian Children Quick to Learn and Eager Students Says Teacher

By KEN SMITH

GREAT WHALE RIVER, Que. (CP)—It isn't often a teacher has a pupil so eager to attend classes that he breaks into school.

But that is one of the experiences of Mrs. Anne Goldring, a teacher at the department of northern affairs school in this isolated community on Hudson Bay, 700 miles north of Montreal.

The pupil was Jimmy Kumarlook, a nine-year-old Eskimo boy. Taken sick, he was flown outside for treatment. The day after his return, he appeared at the school several hours before anyone else.

"He was so anxious to get back that he broke a window and climbed in," Mrs. Goldring said "when the caretaker arrived, there was Jimmy, sitting at his desk."

EAGER TO LEARN

Mrs. Goldring, wife of Sqdn. Ldr. Tom Goldring, commander of an RCAF radar station here, says Jimmy's attitude, though a bit extreme, typifies the approach of the 140 Eskimo and Indian children in the school to getting an education.

"They are quick to learn and extremely anxious to learn. I've taught in other schools but I've never found such desire before.

"I doubt if you could find such eager students anywhere as the Eskimo and Indian children."

The school, started three years ago, has pupils ranging in age from 4 to 16. Before the school was opened, native children received formal education only from missionaries in the area.

Mrs. Goldring, one of seven teachers here, says one problem is that textbooks are written for children in civilized areas and many references mean nothing to Eskimos or Indians.

CITES FOREIGN

"If a primary reader, for instance, mentions a merry-go-round we have to change it in such a way as to make sense to these children.

"Most references to things in cities have to be changed or explained."

An important part of the teaching program is the use of audio-visual aids.

Mrs. Goldring, who taught near Vulcan, Alta., and at Duncan, B.C., before coming here two years ago, has to continue her teaching duties after she gets home from school. The Goldrings have three daughters: Linda Ann, 14, Cynthia Maureen, 12 and Merridee Diane, 8.

Since their education has progressed beyond that taught in the school, they are taking correspondence courses

Mrs. Goldring feels that despite the isolation of the post her children are gaining more than they have lost.

"The girls have gained an insight into human relations that they couldn't get outside."

MAIL CALL

Question: The reason for this letter is that a fellow I work with has just paid back five dollars he borrowed from me two weeks ago. This was exactly a week later than he had promised to repay the loan.

From time to time I have loaned friends small amounts but when they were caught short before payday, I don't keep records because I expect to be repaid when they get their paychecks. Usually they remember the debt, but not always on the day they promised to return the money.

I have the idea of asking people to pay up. What do you suppose I should want to be known as the office Scrooge, but I don't want to be known as an easy mark, either. — W.C.B., Allentown, Pa.

Answer: Well, what do you want to be. Obviously, you're an accommodating person in the finance department. But you may be sure there are others around the office, their pockets bulging with cash, who will turn a deaf ear to any appeal for a short term loan. They're not being inconsiderate, either. Just practical.

If your loans are getting beyond your income, maybe you should take the same realistic approach. In the case of any loan, the burden is on the borrower. If he can't pay you back at the specified time, then he should offer an explanation and set a new due date. If he fails to do so, then it's correct to remind him in a nice way that you'd like to be reimbursed. Of course, if a borrower turns out to be a deadbeat, there's little you can do but chalk the loss up to experience and blacklist any future requests.

Being a borrower or a lender is always bad practice, but especially in an office, since it puts a strain on personal relationships, no matter how hard both parties try to set money matters above business camaraderie. It would be well if you let current debts catch up, then keep a tighter grip on your purse strings in the future.

Question: On a recent train trip, I was amazed at how chatty some of the other passengers became the minute I sat down to dinner or in my seat. The person sitting next to me talked practically from start to finish, and each time I went to the diner, anyone with whom I shared a table immediately struck up a conversation that strung out through the meal. Must one respond out of courtesy, or may one politely ignore say invitations to enter a conversation? — Miss C.A., West Hartford, Conn.

Answer: On a train or any other public conveyance it's not discourteous to discourage conversation. In the diner if it's gracious to greet table companions with a smile and a nod. If anyone tries to strike up a conversation, it can be discouraged with short, but polite, answers. A talkative seat companion can just as easily be squelched if you indicate you'd rather read, nap or just stare at the scenery rather than listen to the story of his life.

How to Treat an ACHING BACK

Potatoes Are Versatile

By Mary Moore

The thermometer is hovering at zero and I am reminded of a winter long ago when this family was pinching pennies. We were trying to make a substantial payment on our new house.

I had bought a 100-lb. bag of potatoes for 75c. We had a coal-fueled furnace. I would select big even potatoes and scrub them and lay them on the ledges inside the furnace door to bake. The temperature must have been high for they would be baked and nearly burned on the firepot side in less than half an hour. But inside they were mealy and so sweet and so delicious the children hoped for them every night for dinner.

I tell you this because I want you to bake your potatoes in their jackets in your oven at a higher temperature. Have the courage to turn your oven to 450 deg. to bake big potatoes. The high temperature turns the potato starch to sugar and gives them the lovely sweet and mealy mixture that is so desirable.

Because potatoes are such a dependable, inexpensive, nourishing and popular style, Canadian cooks tend to serve them every day. But they seldom strike themselves loose from their mashed potato habit. If you really wanted to you could serve potatoes every day a different way for months and never repeat yourselves.

Two things I am asked for regularly are casseroles and ways to use leftovers.

So potatoes being my main theme I will combine them with those common requests.

POTATO PORK SCALLOP

2 tablespoons flour; 1½ teaspoon salt; few grains pepper; ½ teaspoon savory or sage or thyme; 5 cups thinly sliced potatoes (3 medium); ½ cup finely chopped onion; 1 tablespoon butter; 1 cup milk; 6 lean pork chops, ½ to ¾" thick.

Mix flour, salt, pepper and savory. Arrange a third of the potatoes in a greased 2-cup casserole, sprinkle with half the flour mixture and dot with half the butter. Add half the onion. Cover with another third of the potatoes and add the remaining flour mixture, butter and onion. Top with remaining potatoes. Pour milk over the top. Brown pork chops in frying pan, allowing about 4 minutes for each side. Remove chops from pan, drain, then arrange over potatoes. Cover and bake at 350 deg. F. until potatoes and chops are tender, about 70 minutes.

POTATO AND BEEF CASSEROLE

1 tablespoon fat; ½ cup diced onion; 3 cups ground cooked beef; ½ cup consommé; ½ cup tomato juice or meat drippings; 1 teaspoon salt; few grains pepper; ½ teaspoon marjoram; 1 bay leaf, broken into pieces; ¾ cup chopped sweet pickle; 2 cups mashed potatoes (soft).

Saute onion in fat until transparent. Add remaining ingredients, except potatoes, and mix. Cover and cook over low heat about 10 minutes. Turn into a 6-cup casserole and top with mashed potatoes. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until lightly browned, about 30 minutes. 4 to 5 servings.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

In the senior "B" days Kingston and Belleville hockey clubs were, perhaps, two of the keenest, most bitter rivals as far as the hockey lanes are concerned.

They hassled, they pushed and shoved, argued and on not a few occasions got into a fight. They tossed gloves and punches but nothing compared to the brawling that has characterized the last three games between the current Junior "B" clubs representing the cities.

These three alleged games have been nothing short or miniature wars with nothing more than a sly elbow or knee necessary to touch off a full scale brawl. Some of the incidents have been little short of disgraceful.

The teams fit these outings have amassed eighty assorted penalties. These include 48 to the Belleville McFarlands and 33 to the Kingston Frontenacs. This may be some sort of a record—but it is nothing to be proud of.

In the December 29th game won by the Macs in Belleville 4-3 the winners picked up 17 minors and two majors; Kingston nineteen penalties and a Misconduct.

On January 8 in a Kingston 6-1 victory, the Kingston team picked up seven minors, the McFarlands nine.

Last Friday night in the worst Donnybrook of them all the McFarlands were charged with 20 sentences, including ten misconducts and Klaiprian nine.

The team misconducts were given the McFarlands when they left the bench en masse during a brawl on the ice. Their coach, Gordie Bell, was tossed out of the second game and drew a two-game suspension in the bargain.

According to the official records one of the main offenders in these useless donnybrooks has been a Kingston player named Gary Lavelle. The archives state he drew five minors, two majors and a misconduct in the first game; three minors of seven in the second; and two minors, two majors and a misconduct in the third battle.

I understand that Referee Vern Geyer, one of the best officials in these parts, has sent a lengthy report on the Belleville-Kingston game when he assessed the Belleville team with the ten misconducts. These misconducts will cost the club $10 each or game suspension.

I am no judge and jury. I do not want to be a blame-placer. But there are one or two hotheads on each club who appear to want to fight at the drop of a dirty look—and do so. When two clubs draw between 20 and 30 penalties per game, including majors and misconducts, something is wrong.

If the coaches have been condoning the rough play and allowing it to proceed game after game without doing something about it then the OHA should step in with disciplinary action. If players are deliberately going out there to brawl and forget hockey, they should be taken out and given stiff suspension sentences, if the blame lies somewhere else, dig it out and remedy it.

Both those clubs can play good hockey if they want to. They do among, if not the best clubs, in the league. But they are not doing themselves, the game and the league any good with their "you-hit-me, and-I'll-hit-you" childish attitudes.

In full-scale brawls, with hotheads taking on all and sundry and rocking little what they do, some youngster is going to get seriously injured if not permanently so. The time to act is now before something of this nature happens.

Common sense should over-rule win-at-any-cost and revenge tactics. There is not a trophy or league title existing that can replace the loss of an eye or another permanent injury. It is time the officials, coaches, etc., got together and put a stop to the senseless brawling. The public is getting a bit fed up too.

Head to Portland

Bruins Recall Gamble

BOSTON (AP) — Boston to the Niagara Falls, Ont., Bruins, wallowing in the Ya training camp 15 pounds overcast National Hockey League cellar, weight.

have recalled goalie Bruce Boston has surrendered the Gamble from Portland Buckaroos of the Western League and two forwards from the minors.

The expected shakeup came Monday night, delayed by the necessity of getting Sawyers on Bob Beckett and Terry Gray who are being demoted

Left winger Larry each was called up from Providence Reds of the American league in exchange for Beckett and former U.S. Olympic team star Tommy Williams has been summoned from Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional League, for Gray.

Gamble, 24, who had a 2.25 goals-against record for Boston last season, has a 2.21 average for first-place Portland.

HEAD DEPARTS

Under heavy pressure for some time, rookie Don Head, 1960 Canadian Olympic team star, is being returned to Portland, where he was promoted when Gamble reported staggering total of 183 goals in 43 games while limping along with 25 points behind fifth-place Detroit Red Wings.

Leach missed the first 14 games this year with the concence because of a broken ankle. Since then he has had eight goals and 18 points.

Williams, a centre, has been converted to right wing where the Bruins are especially in need of help.

Williams has excellent speed. We'd like to use it," Williams has been promised he will take a regular turn. I'm not sure now about my lines."

BOXER'S SON BURIED

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Funeral services were held Monday for James Damian Velzer, three-year - old son of former middleweight boxer Chico Velzer, who died Saturday of complications arising from cerebral palsy. He had the disease since birth.

Piersall May Ask Big Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Piersall, as fast with a quip as he is on his feet, begins bargaining sessions today that are expected to make him the highest priced baseball player in Washington history.

Last season was Piersall's first. He hit .322 for Cleveland Indians before being traded to the Senators in the fall.

In addition to his batting and defensive brilliance, Piersall was involved in a much-publicized fight with fans who invaded the playing field and a number of other incidents. He probably will be the biggest drawing card on a team which last year tied for last place.

All this is expected to prompt General Manager Joe Cronin to increase over the estimated $40,- 000 he received at Cleveland last season, the highest paid Senator to date was Roy Sievers, slugging first baseman-outfielder now with Philadelphia Phillies. He got an estimated $28,000.

Boss Rams Wants to Ram Boss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The majority owners of Los Angeles Rams have made a new move to oust Dan Reeves as boss — but they says it won't work.

The majority stockholders elected oilman Ed Pauley chairman and said that gives him the right to possibly will receive $1,000 from the NHL; second, a bonus of another $500 each.

If a third team had been selected it would be composed of the following: Glenn Hall (30), Chicago, goal; Allan Stanley (30), Toronto, and Doug Mohns (20), Boston, defence; Stan Mikita (26), Chicago, centre; Claude Provost (20), Montreal, right wing; and Bobby Hull (30), Chicago, left wing.

Harvey and Mahovlich are the only repeaters from last season's All-Star team which also included Bower, defenceman Marcel Pronovost of Detroit, centre Jean Beliveau and right winger Bernie Geoffrion, both of Canadiens.

INJURY SPOILS CHANCES

Pronovost got only 10 points this time, Geoffrion nine, and Beliveau, who missed most of the first half with a knee injury, none.

With the exception of rookie Don Head of Boston, all regular goalies were considered and 18 defencemen drew at least one point.

Only eight points separate the top five centres, Bobby Hull, Richard and Mikita are Dave Keon of Toronto with 24 points and Ralph Backstrom of Montreal with 22.

The average age of the first team is a shade under 30. Harvey is the oldest at 37, Kelly is 34, Bathgate 29, Mahovich 24 and Brewer 23.

Soys Ringed Helmet Was Success

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—The electronically rigged football helmet worn by Detroit linebacker Joe Schmidt in Sunday's Pro Bowl game in Miami in Los Angeles was a success, says Dr. Stephen Reid, the designer.

Inside the helmet was a transceiver with a microphone to a receiver on the sidelines by Coach Red Wilson.

The stress was recorded on tape.

Dr. Reid, Northwestern University team physician, said a more powerful transmitter is needed because Schmidt at times was out of range. Also, the transmitter would send only blows administered to one side.

Dr. Reid now plans to design an encephalograph to record all blows received on the head during a game. His object is to learn whether headgear used today is adequate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said Monday night they expect Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Congo to visit New York and Washington, next week.

Cash Says He Has Lots To Learn

BALTIMORE (AP) — Norm Cash of Detroit Tigers, whose .361 batting average led both major leagues last season, says he has much to learn before he can be classified a good hitter in baseball.

"I'm not a good one yet—that takes time," he said Monday night at the annual Topps Sports banquet sponsored by the Maryland Professional Baseball Players' Association.

"I was lucky last year, I got a lot of hits that just won't fall in next season. Things may not be as easy in 1963."

Last season was only the second time in his professional career, batting back in 1955, that Cash hit .300.

On the speaker's platform, Jim Piersall of Washington Senators delighted a crowd of more than 1,000.

"The home run king (Roger Maris) is here," he quipped at 3B is the best pitcher (Whitey Ford) and the batting champ (Cash).

"I've been sitting here trying to figure out how I rate, and probably the king of the diaper league."

Piersall is the father of eight children. He was honored as the most colorful player in the majors.

Deny Will Move World Tourney

LONDON (AP) — A decision whether the world ice hockey championships will be held March 7-18 in Colorado Springs, Colo., as scheduled apparently is in the hands of the United States government.

H. J. (Harry) Abearne, president of the European Ice Hockey Federation, and Bob LeBel of Montreal, president of the International and North American Federation, Monday denied published reports that the championships will be moved from Colorado Springs because U.S. visas have been denied the East German team.

In Washington, the state department said the applications for allied travel documents and U.S. visas still are being processed, but that no official has said the applications were refused. Action is not complete and there has been no decision on whether to grant them.

The visa regulations, any country refusing entry to a world's ice competitor loses the right to hold the championships.

In Montreal, LeBel said if the East Germans had been denied visas they would have appealed to the federation and appeals been made.

FROM NORWAY

The statement from a Norwegian sports magazine which said the U.S. would have to give the East Germans visas, if they had been refused.

Abearne said LeBel termed "common procedure" a decision to have all competing countries, including the East German Communist Eastern Germans play in Colorado. They said the meeting is for the purpose of helping settle any difficulties that may arise in the tournament's preparations and has nothing to do, at this time, with visa problems.

Tribe Has Four in Top Ten

NEW YORK (AP)—With four players among the top 10 scorers, it isn't hard to figure why Cleveland Indians head all offensive departments in the National League this season.

Bill Sweeney, Brian Kilrea, Floyd Smith and Jimmy Anderson are members of the Eastern Division leaders who rank first in four offensive departments.

Sweeney is tied for top place with Hershey Bears' Willie Marshall with 24 goals each. Kilrea is next with 51 and leads in assists with 37.

Smith is fifth and shares goal-scoring honors with Buffalo Bisons' Barry Cullen, each with 21. Anderson is deadlocked in sixth with Rochester Americans' stars, Alex Faulkner and Gerry Ehman. Each has 20 goals.

Bobby Perreault of Hershey leads penalties, having allowed 84 goals in 33 games for a 2.55 average.

Baby Hab Tops Junior Score Race

TORONTO (CP)— Andre Boudrias of Montreal Canadiens relieved his brother Richard as leader in the Ontario Hockey Association scoring race last week but his margin dwindled to nine points.

He managed two assists in three games and has 63 points on 24 goals and 39 assists.

Second - place Walter (Pit) Martin of Hamilton Red Wings scored two goals and an assist in two games. He has 54 goals and 27 assists for 62 points.

Official league statistics released Monday include games played Dec. 30.

Lowell MacDonald of the Wings is tied with 54 points on 26 goals and 30 assists.

Rejean Ricker of Montreal Junior Canadiens has 55 points and teammate Norm Dennis has the top five with 53 Ray Cullen of St. Catharines Tee-Pees, 4th last week, slipped to sixth spot with 52 with teammate Phil Esposito. Each has 46 points.

In the OHA Metro Junior A Series, Toronto Marlboros and St. Michael's College Majors held his scoring lead with 14 goals and 20 assists for 34 points.

GALT (CP) — Galt Terriers, Canada's representatives in the world amateur hockey tournament, Monday announced a tentative 17-man roster for the competition.

Nine members of the present Terriers team were named to the club announced by team president Dr. Ken Berkeley. Eight reinforcements, including four previously named, and Floyd (Buzzy) Martin of last year's Allan Cup-winning Terriers are also on the list.

The latest acquisitions by the March 8-18 tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo., include goaltender Bobby Brown and defencemen Bill Mitchell of Windsor Bill Speer, Galt and winger Joe Malo of Chatham Maroons of the Ontario Hockey Association senior division.

Goalie Gord Dibley of Windsor, Mo Roos, defencemen Harry Smith of Trail Smoke Eaters and Bobby Robertson of Toronto Flight winger Jack McLeod of Moose Jaw Pla-Mors are other additions. Martin, Galt's captain, is the only player playing with Johnstown Jets of the United States Eastern League this year.

"It's a tentative roster," said manager Leo Gaudette, "We don't have to submit our official list until March 1 and by then up to these players to continue to show their usefulness to maintain harmony. We'll send anyone home who creates unnecessary friction, be he on or off the ice."

Galt right wing Pete Kowalchuk will play in exhibitions and serve as assistant manager.

Lloyd Mercer, Ron Brain, Alex Kinnaig, Jim Turnbull and Rick Hay, regular reserves who failed to make the tournament club, will be offered the opportunity to attend the championships at the expense of the club.

Western Hockey

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Edmonton Flyers slipped past San Francisco Seals 3-2 in a Pacific Western Hockey League game Monday night to maintain their 3-1 lead in the first period. The game ended in a fracas which drew a major penalty for John Misuik of Edmonton.

The Seals broke off the ban- dle after referee Joe Johns called an offside against them seconds before the final buzzer and after the whistle Misuik came up behind Cashman and knocked him to the ice.

Seal goalie Bev Bentley, back in the net after a three-game vacation, was surprised 14 seconds after the game began on a 15-footer by Don Rolfe. Jerry Holmes and Warren Hynes added tallies.

Seal captain Harry Pidhirny scored for San Francisco on a passing play from team-mates Buddy Boone and Nicholson in the first period.

Nicholson opened the scoring for the Seals in the second period, and Nick Mickoski tied it 2-2 with a 20-footer in the third. Kennedy poked in a short one for the winning Edmonton tally.

REFEREES CHOSEN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Monday announced the referees that will represent Canada in the Olympic championships in Colorado Springs, Colo., March 8-18. Sports Snapshots

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec government will probably be asked sometime this year to form a provincial sports council.

That's the keynote recommendation in a report compiled by a 27-man commission set up by the city of Montreal under Jean LaRoche, chairperson, city councillor and vice-president of the Montreal Athletic Commission.

Although the report has not yet been delivered to the city council, it was learned that reaction among the councillors will likely be favorable.

From city hall the recommendation would go on to Quebec.

Twenty years ago a similar move was launched and a bill actually introduced in the legislature. But it never became law because of what one observer described as "political hanky - panky."

The LaRoche commission was established as a study group in May by the regime of Mayor Jean Drapeau. Most of the members are officials of sports associations or sports writers.

"It was planned that way to stand completely free of politics," said one source.

BRIEFS

The commission held 11 meeting and three public hearings. Virtually every sports body in the city, pro and amateur, was invited to submit a brief.

Forty - eight were received. They ranged from a pencil-scribbled single sheet to a volume of 450 typewritten pages.

A point raised by almost all:

A need for a provincial sports authority.

Some groups saw such a body as a possible source of funds for sports and recreation; others more as an administrative or co-ordination force.

But again politics were mentioned prominently as something to steer away from.

"Maximum care should be taken to make sure no appointee has any connection—whatsoever with politics," said one submission bluntly.

The briefs were condensed to 10-page memorandum, with supplements and index, by newspaper man Gerard Gosselin, a onetime lawyer and pro baseball official who served as secretary of both the LaRoche and Montreal Athletic Commissions.

It was a 60-hour job, but a labor of love for Gosselin.

He said personally he would like to see the provincial government set up a five-man council "to have some kind of wholesome for sports in the province."

One More Or Less Won't Hurt

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton would pass a bylaw banning all betting the 1964 Grey Cup game if it offered to help establish a Canadian football hall of fame, board of control was told today.

Controller Jack Macdonald made the statement to the board's special Grey Cup committee.

The 1962 Grey Cup will be played in Toronto and the 1963 game in Vancouver.

Macdonald suggested that the city propose the establishment of a bureau to arrange accommodation in Hamilton homes for football fans from other parts of Canada.

Thomas Newlands, chairman of the parks board, said the seating capacity of Civic Stadium, could be increased to 33,000.

Ups Lead to 11 Points

Blues' Andy Tough Man To Catch

MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Bathgate, the right winger who's been playing centre for New York Rangers, apparently is going to be a tough man to catch in the National Hockey League's scoring race.

Official league statistics released today show that Bathgate increased his lead by 11 points since Sunday.

Bathgate has two goals and three assists and moved up two notches to third place. He has 27 goals and 11 assists for a total reading 24 goals.

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks each picked up three points and each has 43 points.

ENJOYS BEST WEEK

Bobby Hull of the Hawks had his best week of the season and pulled into a three-way tie for sixth place with Don McKenney of Boston and Johnny Bucyk, both of Boston Bruins. Hull ran his points total to 36 with three goals and three assists. McKenney got three points and Bucyk four.

Dean Prentice of the Rangers scored one goal and assisted on another and tied Alex Delvecchio of Detroit for ninth spot at 27 points. Delvecchio scored a goal, one assist, the 200th of his 10-year NHL career.

Jacques Plante of the Canadiens allowed six goals in three games and improved his lead over Toronto's Johnny Bower in the race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the least scored upon team. Plante has a 2.36 goals - against average, Bower 2.56.

Chicago continues as the most penalized team with 506 minutes while defencemen Lou Fontinato of the Rangers are still the most penalized player with 109 minutes.

Look Like Tag Wrestlers

Prexy Warns Players

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — International Hockey League players, who had begun to look like tag team wrestlers, had a stern meeting from league president Frank Calder today to respect officials and ignore needling fans.

Gallagher emphasized the order with a series of penalties. St. Paul Saints, league champions the last two years, were the big losers in the suspension of goaltender Jacques Marcotte for the rest of the season. He had the league's best goals-against average, 2.41, and the most shutouts at four.

Marcotte laughed with officials Jan. 4 when St. Paul defeated the IHL all - stars 6-5 and drew a personal warning from the referee. He selected referee George Kaye in a game at Minneapolis Jan. 7 and the commissioner banned him from the IHL the rest of the season. The club was fined $50 and four other Saints drew fines and suspensions for two or three games.

Gallagher also slapped down Pat Ginnell of Omaha, who was leading the league with 27 goals. He was suspended for 10 games for a fracas with official Bill Purcell at Indianapolis Jan. 10.

Smith Says He'll Stay Will Trail

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Defenceman Harry Smith of Trail Smoke Eaters says he will not join Oak Harbor in the world amateur hockey championship at Colorado Springs, Colo., March 7-18.

"I couldn't see my way clear to go and Trail Smoke could quite possibly be in the finals of the Western International League and the Allan Cup," he said Monday night. "I feel I would be letting my own club down if I left them."

Smith also said he is under no pressure. He added that he will consider joining the Warriors later if circumstances permit.

The Warriors, in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series, named Smith Monday as a resergnand for their club, to represent Canada in the tournament. The Smoke Eaters won the tournament last year.

Smith said that when he was asked by the Warriors to join them he agreed to a move if everything worked out favorably. He said he later informed the Warriors he could not live up with them.

Livingston To Withdraw Sponsorship

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Tillsonburg businessman Gerry Livingston intends to withdraw his sponsorship from the Livingstone senior basketball team which formed the nucleus of the Canadian Olympic teams in 1952 and 1960.

It was learned that Livingston's main reasons are poor attendance at home games in the London Arena and the recent announcement by the Canadian Olympic Association that basketball will be dropped from Canada's entry in 1964.

"The players plan to have a meeting Tuesday night and talk over whether they want to carry on themselves," Bill Cuthbard, an official of the team, said Monday.

The Livingstons moved to London from Tillsonburg at the beginning of the season.

SCENIC ATTRACTIONS — Colorful fishing villages and rugged coastline are the island's chief assets which are expected to stimulate the tourist trade on Grand Manan, a scenic island off the coast of New Brunswick. Scientists also plan to make more use of the island to study its unique geological formation and variety of bird life. (CP Photo).

In Never-Ending Stream Birds Visit Grand Manan Island in Bay of Fundy

By DAVE PIKE

GRAND MANAN, N.B. (CP) — An American biology professor has described Grand Manan as a "veritable funnel through which flows a never - ending stream of birds."

The head of the geology department at the University of New Brunswick says the island in the mouth of the Bay of Fundy is unique in the Maritimes for its geological formation.

With such claims being made on its behalf, the next step is obvious. Efforts are being made to establish a study centre for marine ornithologists and geological students.

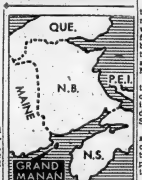
The movement was started in 1960 by a band of islanders and supported by a growing group of mainlanders.

Wildlife officials are also interested because the island offers a natural game preserve. Opportunities abound for wildlife management research in cooperation with the study centre.

HELP TOURIST TRADE

Another supporter is the New Brunswick Travel Bureau which sees this project and others as means of helping rejuvenate the declining tourist trade on the 21-mile-long island which can be reached by ferry from Saint John or St. Andrews, N.B., and Robbinston, Me.

One of the other projects is a plan to exhibit paintings by islanders and visitors attracted by the rugged coves and scenic fishing villages.



There is also a good possibility for a series of exhibits from the New Brunswick Museum in Saint John depicting life in the province in the 18th and 19th centuries.

The movement gained impetus last October with the formation of the Gerrish House Society, named after Moses Gerrish who settled the island in 1784. Besides stimulating interest in the movement's ideals, the society is trying to raise money for the museum centre which would co-ordinate the projects.

PLAN TO BUILD

New York architect Ferdinand Eisenman, who has a summer home on the island, is advising the society on a preliminary design for a one-storey museum, expected to cost about $20,000.

The professor who commented on the variety of bird life was Dr. Charles E. Huntington of Dowdell's College, Fredericton, Me. He has made numerous field trips to Grand Manan.

The ornithological collection, at present housed in cramped quarters in Grand Manan High School, has 531 marine birds of more than 300 species. They were presented to the island by a native, internationally renowned ornithologist Allen L. Moses who died in 1953. Dr. Huntington is currently engaged in cataloguing the collection.

Dr. W. C. Hale of the University of New Brunswick geology department has said he would like to conduct UNB post-graduate study in thesis material in co - operation with the museum, eventually accepting students from other Maritime universities.

VOLCANIC ORIGIN

His interest in the island is stimulated by the fact that it contains two widely varied geological formations. The western portion of volcanic origin and the eastern section of sedimentary rock connect near Seal Cove on the southern end to make what Dr. Hale describes as a "complete outdoor field laboratory."

Other backers of the plans for developing the island include Bruce Wright of Fredericton, director of the Northeast Wildlife Station for the Wildlife Management Institute in Washington; Charles Bartlett of Sackville, N.B., Maritime area biologist for the Canadian Wildlife Service, and Dr. George MacBeath, natural history curator of the New Brunswick Museum.

"The history and potentials of this island are without parallel in the Maritimes," says L. Keith Ingersoll, provincial president of the Gerrish House Society and also high school principal and a noted writer and historian. "We've got a lot of people working with us now and I think we might accomplish, if we do, Grand Manan is going to be the spot to visit in the Maritimes."

25 Homeless In Toronto Fire, 6 Houses Burn

TORONTO (CP) — A fire swept through six houses in east-end Toronto Monday night leaving about 25 persons homeless.

No one was injured.

Residents, some of them in nightdresses, left their homes in small groups as the flames spread, fanned by gusting winds. Sevens carried pets or possessions. The blaze, on Logan Avenue south of Danforth Avenue, was brought under control by firemen operating 15 fire trucks in about two hours.

Fire Chief Leonard Leigh estimated damage to the houses at $18,000, but could not estimate damage to the contents. He said the fire was started by faulty wiring.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sotiriou, who live next door to the house where the fire started, said they were preparing for bed when their house filled with dense smoke. With their two children, Thomas 7, and Christopher 5, they rushed into the street, stopping only to put on heavy clothing. Mrs. Sotiriou's sister and her six-month - old baby fled from the same house. The family stayed with relatives during the night.

Wants Board To Share Responsibility

OTTAWA (CP) — Psychiatrists should not alone bear the responsibility of determining whether a person suffering from mental disorders should be confined to prisons or hospitals for indefinite periods, says a committee of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

It makes this recommendation in a report on the question of mental illness to crime which is being studied at the Canadian Institute on Mental Health Services.

The report, prepared after a six-year study, states that all criminals require some psychiatric care but that there is a psychiatric component or aspect in criminal behaviour.

The report said:

"There is some question about placing the responsibility of termination of the indefinite sentence on psychiatric personnel. It is recommended that a review board be set up to share responsibility for this. Membership should cover the psychiatric services, the administrative agency - general's department and perhaps additional representation."

President Kennedy Playing The Nuclear Game Cagily

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Kennedy is playing the nuclear game cagily, threatening to resume atmospheric tests but delaying a final decision while slow-motion preparations are made in case he decides such explosions are needed.

His actions seem to indicate that he is in no hurry to resume atmospheric detonations, paying closer heed to the Western Allies than to the right-wing political elements in the United States that has accused him of "nuclear negotiation."

Repeatedly, when asked to name a date when tests will be resumed, he has offered a direct reply by emphasizing that the United States is conducting small underground explosions and that atmospheric preparations are under way.

PRUDENT PLANNING

The issue was raised at the Anglo - American strategy conference at Bermuda last December when Kennedy and Macmillan emphasized there would have to be a "final decision" before such tests are actually conducted.

This Bermuda conference was interpreted in some quarters as indicating Macmillan would support Kennedy in the resumption of atmospheric tests and that Christmas Island, under British administration in the South Pacific, might be made available to the U.S. for that purpose.

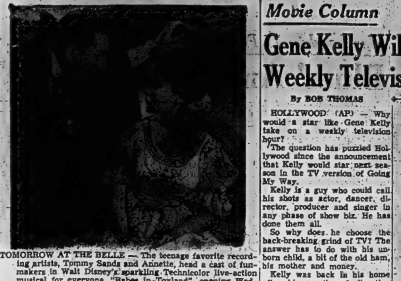
American nuclear officials were strongly in favor of testing at Christmas Island because opposition in the United Nations trusteeship council prevented resumption of explosions at Eniwetok and Bikini Islands, where the U.S. tested before a moratorium was declared in 1958.

But well - informed U.S. sources now indicate Macmillan showed no enthusiasm for the Christmas Island scheme and made no firm commitment on the use of Christmas Island.

Canada and other countries also have spelled out their opposition to atmospheric testing.

Consequently let it be known that the tiny U.S. Air Force base on Johnston Island in the South Pacific — some southwest of Honolulu — has been put forward for underground purposes. The work would take several months. This would be in addition to the two projects which already have elapsed Vitalox and Fishbowl ordered preparations last Nov. 2.

Johnston is only about one mile long and is not militarily wide and nuclear authorities stress that it would be used only as a base of operations. The explosions, if ordered, would take place under the sea floor at depths over water.



Meanwhile the president places increasing emphasis on the East - West disarmament talks to be resumed in March.

It appears likely that if Russia rejects wide - open, on - the - record negotiations, Kennedy will find reason for further delay on resumption of atmospheric tests.

Viewers of Daytime Serial In for Shock on Monday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Constant viewers of CBS' long - playing daytime serial, Secret Storm, are in for a mild shock next Monday. The face and figure of the principal character will be different — although the name will be the same and the plot will go on and on.

After eight years of playing problem - dogged Peter Ames, department store owner and widower with three children, actor Peter Hobbs has decided to quit the show after next Friday's episode.

He's giving such short notice —his departure is not entirely amicable—that there'd no time to wind up the current story line and, as is the usual practice, send the character to India or some remote place to cool off before bringing on the new player to play the old role.

"I'm sorry to lose Hobbs," said Fay Wickwire, producer of the show, "but his leaving isn't a real problem. There's just one answer: Recast the part. In a daytime serial, it's the character, not the actor, that counts. And if viewers are disturbed about seeing a new face and write in, we'll explain what happened — without going into the contractual situation, of course. It's happened before and will again."

Hobbs says he's leaving — "after all, eight years is enough" — largely because he has some television ideas of his own he wants to pursue.

In daytime serials, he remarked, "the actor doesn't really matter. In the show I have three children — and over the past eight years they have been played by five different boys and eight different girls."

Recommended tonight: Premiere Theatre, ABC, 10-11 EST—The Hour of the Bath, a story about a member of the Peace Corps, with Robert (Lamine) Fuller and Barbara Luna.

Support Theory Spaceship Crashed in 1908

OTTAWA (CP)—A magazine published by the Soviet embassy says hundreds of young scientists and engineers in Russia support a theory that a spaceship crashed in Siberia in 1908, touching off a nuclear explosion.

The theory is advanced as the explanation for a gigantic blast which occurred in central Siberia June 30, 1908, and which has never been explained. The shock was recorded on earthquake instruments around the world.

An article in the current issue of Soviet Union Today says the blast was generally blamed on a meteorite but that six expeditions to the site failed to turn up any of the usual evidence of a meteorite's fall.

Gene Kelly Will Take on Weekly Television Hour

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Why would a star like Gene Kelly take on a weekly television hour?

The question has puzzled Hollywood since the announcement that Kelly would star next season in the TV version of Going My Way.

Kelly is a guy who could call his shots as actor, dancer, director, producer and singer in any phase of show biz. He has done them all.

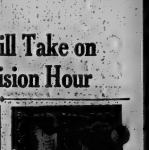
So why does he choose the back-breaking grind of TV? The answer has to do with his unborn child, a bit of the old ham, his mother and money.

Kelly was back in his home after his months of directing the moments at Jackie Gleason in Gigot in Paris. His pregnant wife Jeanie fetched Gene a glass of sherry.

"The proposal for the series came just after I had learned that we were going to have a baby in March," he explained.

HAM COMES OUT

"I wanted to do some acting this year—and Jeanie has had to come out now and then. And with the baby coming, I wanted to settle down in one place for a little while.



"The idea of doing Father O'Malley appealed to me, having loved the picture. And my mother likes it. This is the first time she has really approved of anything I've done in the movies. The last time she liked anything of mine was when I did Pal Joey on Broadway oodly enough. Even though I played the worst kind of heel she was sort of impressed that I was up there on the stage."

"Yeah, I know," Kelly said. "The announcement was made as a $3,500,000 deal. So every body said 'uh-huh, he's going for the buck.' Honestly, I'm not. I'm doing this series because I want to do it, not that I mind money."

Something new will be added for TV—a former high school buddy of Father O'Malley who is a Protestant minister.

BRITISH FILMS

LONDON (CP)—The British moving picture industry is on the way up, imported films earned more than £6,000,000 last year and overseas showings more. More British films now are being shown in the United States especially low-budget comedies.

AT THE PARK — William Lundigan and Julie Adams play the romantic couple in the thriller "Underwater City", in Color-Scope starting Wednesday at the Park site. On the same program along with the Malden's movie "Twas Around the Clock", starring Chubby Checker, Dion, Vicki Spencer, The Marcels and Clay Cole. Both attractions are from Belleville and district showings.

Wants Plebiscite On the Issue Of Fluoridation

OTTAWA (CP) — A member of the Northview - Terrific Council says the ingredient that goes into the fluoridation of water was invented in Roman Empire days as "devil's breath" and was a "very powerful poison."

A. P. (Patsy) Carey, a bush pilot from Fort Smith, sought permission from the council for his northern community to hold a plebiscite on the issue of fluoridation. He was speaking at the council's week-long winter session.

Fluoridated water, said Mr. Carey, contains sodium fluoride, a poisonous byproduct of aluminum production, and calcium fluoride, "which God put in vegetables for us."

Mr. Carey said Fort Smith's water supply had been fluoridated by the council without approval of the voters.

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 17

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)—Good news concerning friend indicated; also, verification of your own talents, abilities. This could be time to show what you can do . . . and what can be done. No turning back now. Go ahead.

(ADVT.)

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds them tighter firmer in place. Does not stain, sour or smell. No gummy, pasty taste or feeling. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Do not be offended if everyone does not immediately swoon with delight over announcement, plans. If you take time to be considerate . . . that consideration will be returned two-fold.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Air idea can grow wings and fly very far. Today let that Mercurial mind roam free. Jot down note, suggestions, thoughts. Do not confine or limit yourself. Good night for friendship.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Marital or business partner could be under pressure. Not a good time to insist on definite financial agreements. Best to attend to details, get "little" things out of the way first.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Certainly there is pressure . . . but you should welcome challenge and the opportunities that abound with challenge. Permit friends to help you. Prime need is for encouragement . . . and love.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Like Gemini, you gain much, personally, as well as professionally by permitting intuitive intellect to come through. Put ideas forward where they can be tested. Push for a change.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Moon in Third House, friend Mercury, Jupiter in Solar Fifth, today: this means that romance cannot be far away. Perhaps around the corner! The distance not important. Keep heart open.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Like Cancer, you must see that the foundations are ready and strong before beginning to build toward the sky. Check investments. See to it that you know where you stand. Be very frank.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Recurring over-shied with out reason could be as detrimental as heedless brooding. Strike balance between two extremes. Don't confuse issue. Not a good day to trust to luck. Think a while.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): There is every reason to believe that certain solutions, decisions are near at hand . . . are your favor. You have Mars over your Sun toward sprint extremes. Good day . . . enjoy it!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Moon trines your sign: Jupiter and Mercury offset Saturn pressure. This means today can be heart-warming one. If married, show mate you care. If single, open door to love.

Pisces (Feb 20 to Mar. 20): One is prudently could sizzle you by asking for ideas, aid, suggestions . . . or just plain help. Take it in stride. Permit natural Piscean sympathy to show. Be patient . . . and understanding.

* * *

If born today . . . you have qualities of universal appeal . . . loving the underdog is one of them. Often, however, you permit so-called underdog to take advantage of you. Wonderful indications for interest in art, medicine, music, teaching, writing, engineering.

* * *

General Tendencies: Good for finishing old projects. Many lateminute changes may come about. A day requiring self-expression. State position clearly. Results follow.

Liberals Asked To Explain Gamblers' Lists

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario Liberals say Attorney-General Kelso Roberts apparently is referring to one of their top officials when he asks explanations concerning a gamblers' list.

They also suggest the attorney-general is off base in his reference to Donald Marshall, Royce Frith, president of the Ontario Liberal Association, was active in an investigative capacity when his name appeared on the list.

Both Mr. Frith and Liberal leader Lloyd Whitesell were said Monday night Mr. Frith was on a list of gamblers mentioned by Attorney-General Roberts in a speech on organized crime in the legislature. Nov. 30.

The royal commission set up to investigate the problem after the speech has not yet held hearings.

Mr. Roberts Monday night invited Mr. Whitesell to appear in Toronto office to give some explanations concerning a directory made by the attorney-general.

WON'T DISCUSS IT

Mr. Whitesell, campaigning in eastern Ontario for one of 17 provincial seats to be by elections, was asked by reporters Monday night to comment on the invitation. He replied that as the matter was in the hands of the attorney-general "I am not going to discuss this with Mr. Roberts now, unless he can give me sufficient reason why we should interfere with the investigation."

Mr. Roberts said Monday night in an address to the Toronto Junior Board of Trade Conservative Association:

"The royal commission has drawn my attention to this list of gamblers, as he calls them, for possible prosecution.

"It is therefore of some importance that I should know that I have now looked at it and what I have found. I invite him to give me an explanation about what appears to be a matter of what I think would be of very considerable concern to him and his organization."

Mr. Roberts did not elaborate.

GOES TO CLUB

Mr. Frith said Monday night he probably was one of the persons Mr. Roberts was talking about. He said he obtained an invitation to the Centre Road Vets Club and that he could see what was going on at the club as part of the Liberal party's investigation of the organized crime.

Mr. Whitemeyer said the attorney-general apparently was referring to Mr. Frith, whose name appeared on a list of 1,466 names taken in a raid last year on the Centre Road Club.

"I knew at the time I was making my speech that Mr. Frith had visited the club. I am sure Mr. Frith will be quite willing and able to testify before the royal commission."

Mr. Whitemeyer said that Mr. Frith, like many others, worked to assemble information on the crime issue.

"I repeat that I have no knowledge and have received no communication from Mr. Roberts concerning what he is talking about.

'I KNOW THAT'

"I have been told that Mr. Frith had visited the Vets Club on one occasion. I know that. That is itself proves nothing. What I am interested in is finding out those responsible for operating gambling houses and those who allowed it to operate."

"I feel that if this is what the attorney-general was talking about it is merely a diversionary issue invented for the by-election. The attorney-general appears to be playing politics with a royal commission at this time."

The Liberal leader said earlier he was aware that circumstances surrounding the award of timber rights in Renfrew South "are improper and very serious."

He said he and his party have had the matter under study for some time. The question was brought up earlier by Donald MacDonald, provincial leader of the New Democratic Party, who said there was a link between the awards and Conservative party funds.

ACCUSES GOVERNMENT

The NDP leader spoke Monday night in Brantford. He accused the Liberal government of "incredible neglect" in failing to prevent sale of tainted meat for human use.

Mr. MacDonald said that a Belleville meat firm bought two years ago protested to Health Minister Dymond and former Agriculture Minister Goodfellow that dead animal carcasses were being sold for human consumption.

"Now we find that hundreds of tons of rotten meat were sold for human consumption due to incredible neglect on the part of the government."

He spoke at a rally for Robert Good, NDP candidate for Thursday's by-election in Brant riding.

Why Is Congo Important?

First of Series

This is the first of five articles in which three Associated Press reporters — Lynn Heinzerling, winner of the Pulitzer Prize for his reporting from Africa, Max Harrison, chief correspondent in the United Nations, and William L. Ryan, AP specialist on Central African affairs — take stock of how the complex Congo situation developed.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here are some questions and answers on the importance of the Congo - Katanga situation:

Q. Why is The Congo so important?

A. The Congo is a rich, big strategically important land, independent for 80 years, built European-style cities and an urban economy which made the Congo's city workers the highest paid in Africa. Mass welfare and health programs followed a benevolent policy, but education lagged far behind. When The Congo became independent June 30, 1960, only about 30 among the 13,500,000 Negro inhabitants were college graduates. The Congo under Belgium produced half the West's uranium, 72 per cent of its cobalt, 7 per cent of its industrial diamonds, eight per cent of its copper and 10 per cent of its cadmium. Its location in Africa's heart and its growing ground for cold war forces.

Q. What was the political situation at independence?

A. Tribal loyalties made it difficult to form a stable Congo. Tribesmen in the six provinces had little to say. Against this dependence, the national Congo movement claimed a majority of seats in the lower house. Its leader, Patrice Lumumba, then 35, formed a government with chief rival, Joseph Kasavubu, 62, accepted the largely ceremonial presidency. The wealthy source of a huge share of the Congo's gross, Moise Tshombe, racial Premier Moise Tshombe proclaimed secession, accusing Lumumba of being pro-Soviet. Albert Kalonji, Senate president, demanded provincial autonomy.

CHAOS CAME

Q. How did the United Nations become involved?

A. With independence came chaos and violence. Before the nation was two weeks old, its bewildered central government was appealing to the UN for military help, claiming Belgium had sent troops in violation of a Belgian-Congolese treaty. The Security Council authorized military assistance. In July it ordered out 11,000 UN troops were deployed in Leopoldville and Katanga. Belgian troops withdrew from all areas where UN troops arrived.

Q. What did the UN consider its mission?

A. A Security Council resolution July 22, 1960, in effect unanimously, declared that the UN

Outer Symptoms Of Heart Disease Given by Doctor

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors may be able to detect the possibility of impending coronary heart disease in patients simply by noting certain outward symptoms which have been listed by a Montreal doctor after a study of the subject.

The report by Dr. Harold Z. Pomerantz of Reddy Memorial Hospital, Montreal, is reported in the latest issue of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. Pomerantz warns that, while the symptoms listed may be taken as proof of coronary heart disease; they serve only as a guide for doctors and physicians to detect the disease.

He compared a group of 1,000 patients suffering from the disease with a healthy group to study conditions suspected for years as the commonest physical characteristics of coronary vic. tims.

The signs are greying of the hair, large wrists and whitening of the corners of the eye, usually seen as a white ring around the cornea.

British Labor Troubles Date Back to June

BY ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—Many of the current British labor troubles in Britain — involving millions of workers—date back to the day in June, 1957, when Chancellor Chief Selwyn Lloyd unveiled his "pay pause" program.

In the seven months since then many workers have been torn between the desire to fulfill their duty to country and the nagging feeling they are carrying more than their share of the economic burden.

Most of the one-day or one-week strikes on the books for the next month or so are designed simply to demonstrate union strength and dissatisfaction with government policy.

The basic thesis behind Lloyd's plan was that production and export values run out of line with wages and that therefore unless restraint was necessary to get things back in balance and avoid devaluation of the pound sterling.

The unions balked on grounds that they had little or nothing to restrict company profits, or tax excess profits, but many workers agreed to go along with the scheme — for a time, at least.

POLICY CRACKS

The first major crack in the policy came when employees of the state-owned, nationalized industry — were told Lloyd's guidelines.

Since then strikes and threatened strikes have hit a wide range of British industry.

The 173,000 postal workers will be joined in their "work-to-rule" campaign next Wednesday by 150,000 government clerical workers. Also on strike are 76,000 post office engineers, the men who operate phones and telephone installations.

CALLS ONE-DAY STRIKE

The powerful Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions, with 3,000,000 members, has called a one-day "token-of-strength" strike for Feb. 5.

In the face of this mounting discontent, Lloyd has indicated he may relax the pay pause early in April. Hints of a restraint policy enters its "intermediate phase."

But by then, it is believed, the production increase figure to which wage increases would be related would be 2½ per cent.

Catches Increase On All Lakes Except Superior

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Commercial fishermen substantially increased their catches on all the Great Lakes except Superior in the first nine months of 1961.

The Ontario department of lands and forests said in a report Monday that almost 7,000,000 more pounds of fish were caught. The value of production rose by 40 per cent, hitting a total of $3,945,000 by the end of September.

Lake Erie production jumped 56.8 per cent to 3,133,000 pounds, Lake Huron catches 2,294,000 and Lake Ontario 11.7 per cent to 1,237,000.

Lake St. Clair fisheries reported an increase of 50 per cent to 770,000 pounds. Inland channel landings were 157,000 up 41.5 per cent. Value of catches were 180,000, up 43.9 per cent.

Lake Superior catches fell 17.6 per cent to 512,000 pounds. The report said the decline in catch "there declined 65 per cent to 33,000 pounds and catches of whitefish, lake herring and pickerel dub sauger were down."

Only sturgeon and early lake herring showed higher comparative landings for the period in Lake Superior.

UNITE FOR CULTURE

CALGARY (CP) — Canada's first united fund - raising campaign for cultural organizations will get under way here Monday. Campaign, with a target of $100,000, will be administered by the Calgary Allied Arts Foundation. Proceeds will go the 44 affiliates of the Calgary Allied Arts Centre and the Calgary Philharmonic Society.

UNEMPLOYMENT

decline for this time of year. Layoffs in construction were mainly in manufacturing and agriculture, with temporary layoffs in the trade and service industries for the holiday season offsetting them.

"The recovery in manufacturing activity was an important factor in the relatively strong employment demand," said the statement. It was issued jointly by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the federal labor department.

The report is based on a survey of 36,000 households across Canada during the week ending Dec. 9.

The increase in unemployment between November and December was the smallest in five years, the report said.

The improvement was largely in the male work force. Some 300,000 men were jobless in December, 110,000 fewer than in the corresponding month a year earlier.

SLIGHTLY LOWER

The number of unemployed women, estimated at 98,000 was slightly lower than a year earlier.

Of the 418,000 jobless workers in December, 74 per cent had been out of work for three months or less, 12 per cent for four to six months, and 14 per cent for more than six months.

Employment dropped less than seasonally from a year ago, showing a 56,000 gain over the year, with manufacturing and construction leading the way.

The mid-December jobless total in Ontario was 113,000, compared with 99,000 a month earlier and 153,000 a year earlier. The jobless rate was 4.7 per cent, compared with 8.4 per cent a year earlier.

The decline in employment, seasonally adjusted, took place chiefly in agriculture. But there was a drop in jobs in manufacturing, construction and transportation.

Non-farm employment was 3.3 per cent higher than a month earlier, while farm employment was down slightly.

Saw Husband Being Kicked About Head

HAMILTON (CP) — A 36-year - old mother of two told an all - male jury in the Supreme Court of Ontario Monday she awoke from a drunken haze for a few seconds and saw her husband being "kicked about the head and shoulders by a Negro."

Mrs. Joan Edwards said it was the only thing she remembered between drinking an inch of neat gin and waking up in hospital.

She was testifying in the trial of Walter Dumas, 34, charged with manslaughter following the slaying March 21, 1961, of unemployed caretaker Charles Edwards.

His badly beaten body was found in a room of a downtown hotel with Mrs. Edwards lying, partly dressed, under a nearby bed.

Dumas, a barber and part-time bongo drummer, pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Lincoln Alexander.

Mrs. Edwards said she and her husband left their apartment-in the afternoon March 20 and after she had consumed her $12 family allowance cheque they drank in four downtown hotels.

JOINED BY ACCUSED

At one hotel they sat down at a table next to the one where Dumas was sitting. They did not know him but he asked whether he could join them.

The two men left later to buy a bottle of gin and the three later went to Dumas' room at a hotel.

Mrs. Edwards said she had a drink of gin.

She said her husband asked where the washroom was and after seeing him leave the room she remembered nothing until "I woke up on the floor."

"I was trying to get up but something was stopping me. My husband was on the floor."

Questioned by Alexander, Mrs. Edwards said she could not swear it was the accused who kicked her husband but "I know it was a Negro as I saw the kicks and his feet."

The case continues.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Two Boy Friends-Two Problems!

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am a girl of seventeen with two boy friends. They are my problem. One boy I met this summer; we were together every day and I liked him very much. Now he is about 300 miles from where I live.

When we saw each other last he told me that he would not write to me because he did not like to write letters, but that he would come and see me whenever possible. Do you think not liking to write letters was just an excuse?

He has not come to see me, and I cannot help but wonder if something is going on in his mind which he is not telling me.

Instead of staying home and waiting for him to come down, I began to go to dances. That is where I met this other boy of whom I am very fond. The trouble is he will never come to the house to ask me out, but will always take me home from a dance.

How can I explain to him that I would like him to come to the house so my parents can meet him and talk to him?—IN TROUBLE.

* * *

DEAR IN TROUBLE:—What is going on is that boy friend number one wants to be free as air. I would hate to think he is illiterate! Many young men are allergic to letter writing, of course, but any serious interest would suggest at least the occasional note to keep in touch.

Two hundred miles is also a deterrent to any important romancing.

As for boy friend number two, he may not be dating you because he is short of cash. Since he has shown interest in escorting you home, you, might try inviting him to your home for dinner.

Get your mother to discuss your problem with you. Boys needs help sometimes and appreciate hospitality.

* * *

TO DESPERATE MOTHER—Your husband has no grounds for divorce. He forgave you and has lived with you since your one offence. And you have not been shown to be morally unfit for the custody of a child—who in tender years should be left with his mother.

Don't keep feeling remorseful. Your husband is unsporting and childish to keep throwing this up to you. His attitude of suspicion over the years might have caused much worse retribution on your part.

His most intelligent move was to seek out a psychiatrist. If he wants any peace, he should go back to him until he can learn to control himself.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—So many social workers seem to be in the dark re Al-Anon and Alcoholics Anonymous. The meetings are open to the public.

In Belleville the A.A. meets every Thursday night in St. Thomas Parish House at 85 Bridge Street East.

The Al-Anon girls meet on the second and fourth Tuesday at 8.30 p.m., in Tabernacle United Church.

You may contact any members by writing Box 45.—RALPH R., Belleville.

DEAR RALPH R.—Thank you. Belleville readers, take note!

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. B.—Obviously the Misfit does not understand your objections. He wants friends and hopes to win them with his show-off behavior. This is something for a trained group worker to handle.

To discuss this and seek help, I would suggest that two or three from your group seek a personal interview with the director of the Belleville YMCA, 30 Campbell St.

Eight Workmen Killed In Alberta Gas Explosion

Were Testing Pipeline At the Time of Blast

EDSON, Alta. (CP) — Experts today were to begin investigating a natural gas pipeline explosion and fire which killed eight workmen and injured four others Tuesday.

W. E. Bolt and Tulsa, Okla., general superintendent of Pigott Pipeline Company of Calgary, arrived Tuesday night to take part in the investigation. The men were employed by the company and were testing the pipeline at the time of the blast.

One witness said the blast was—15 miles northwest of this town, 120 miles west of Edmonton—looked like a bottle field, with sections of the 30-inch pipeline shredded around like paper.

Another witness said there seemed to be two explosions. Fire which followed destroyed two tractors.

Survivors told police they were working on the line when the blast and had no idea what happened.

Heavy trucks and four-wheel-drive vehicles travelled over a 25-mile road to the site in bush and muskeg country to bring supervisors and relatives of the dead.

BODIES FROZEN

The explosion was believed to have happened about 10 a.m., when temperatures were 30 degrees below zero. Temperatur fell to 35 below and there was flurries Tuesday night as funeral vehicles carried the charred bodies to Edmonton.

An ambulance driver who reached the scene in a heavy truck said he didn't know how the bodies could be identified.

"It was one of the most fantastically grotesque sights you could imagine. . . .

"I saw three bodies — piles of clothing which had obviously parts of a human body inside it. Their heads were lying beside in the most grotesque positions."

Another witness said bodies were strewn "over an area 400 to 500 feet in diameter."

The 13-mile bridge crew was working on two sections of 30-inch feeder line connected to the main 36-inch line. The one trunk line when the blast occurred, about 250 feet of pipe which ran through a trench between seven feet deep and seven feet wide.

BUTTER SURPLUS BIG HEADACHE FOR DAIRYMEN

Many Suggestions Made to Council

MONTREAL (CP) — Delegates to the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada today searched for solutions to the surplus problems.

Strong opinions about butter, described as the biggest single problem in the dairy industry because Canada's estimated 200,000,000-pound surplus, were held by Romeo Martin of Montreal, general manager of Quebec's Co-operative Federee.

Mr. Martin told some delegates Holland and Denmark have succeeded in cutting surpluses by giving their butter lower than fresh butter.

In Austria, Norway and Switzerland, producers themselves were forced to buy back a small quantity of butter each time they delivered a certain quota of milk to the factory.

SOLVE PROBLEM

France, Belgium and Finland had solved the surplus butterfat problem by raising the butterfat content of fluid milk. France and Belgium had also raised the fat content of certain types of cheese.

In Britain, the Milk Marketing Board made efforts to promote the sales of fluid cream.

Mr. Martin suggested the butter surplus could also be cut by greater use of milk in fluid or other form.

"But without immediate assistance from federal government, our dairy industry will very seriously hurt."

GIVE IT UP?

A University professor Tuesday recommended a surprise long-term solution to overproduction problems: Persuade more farmers to give up farming.

Dr. J. M. Nesbitt, head of the department of dairy science at the university of Manitoba, urged as a second long - term goal the development of a quota and penalty system for marketing milk products.

He said there is room for only about 86,000 farmers in Canada to make a good living producing milk. Canada, among 300,000 farmers gave up farming every year.

"Unfortunately," Dr. Nesbitt said, "our present programs are aimed at halting this flow from the farm when they should be aimed at speeding it up."

Kekkonen Wins Presidency in Finnish Vote

HELSINKI (Reuters) — President Urho Kekkonen, 61, has clinched another six-year term of office in final returns today from the nine Finnish presidential elections that ended Tuesday.

Kekkonen won 145 seats in the 300-seat electoral college in a poll that brought a turnout of 78 per cent of the 2,750,000 electorate.

But he also has the support of a large number of individual election-college votes from the Liberal Finnish Popular party, the Conservative and the Swedish Popular party, which among them won 53 electoral votes.

LIBERAL LEADER ACCUSES PC OF McCARTHYISM

Campaign Lively As Elections Near

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gambling and timbering remain the main centres of controversy as campaigns for five seats at stakes in Thursday's Ontario byelections drew to a close.

Liberal Leader John Winter, mayor Tuesday night accused Attorney-General Kelso Roberts of "McCarthyite tactics" in an effort to get a list of members now in provincial police hands might be embarrassing to the Liberals.

Declaring that Mr. Roberts finds himself stuck with a royal commission on gambling he never wanted, Mr. Whitemeyer said the attorney-general "now is trying to hamper its investigation by these political charges." A Roorback is defined as a slanderous story spread to damage the reputation of a political opponent.

Mr. Whitemeyer in a speech in Toronto Monday in which Mr. Roberts cited a Set seized by provincial police of 1,400 members of two Toronto - area lumberjack clubs.

MENTIONS LIST

The attorney - general invited the opposition leader to get in touch with him if any connection with the list and "perhaps give us some information about what appeared to be a matter of what I would think would be of interest to the administration of him (Mr. Winterbottom) and his colleagues."

Premier Roberts and Donald R. MacDonald leader of the New Democratic Party, had an exchange over alleged irregularities in administration of timber licensing.

The premier said supporters of the Progressive Conservative party are as much entitled to timber limits as are members of the other parties.

He was commenting on a statement by Mr. MacDonald that six of seven timber limits in the district in Renfrew South riding during the past four years, without public tender, have been "well known Tories."

Mr. Roberts said four as yet unnamed Gullick, reeve of Regina Township, John Conway, president of the Renfrew PC Association, and "Dan Hokum" of the Palmer Rapids area and A. E. Quaile, "the leading Tory in the Quadeville area."

BITES DOG AGO

Mr. Gullick was at a rally in Barrys Bay addressed by Mr. Roberts. He and reporters he bought his timber licence 20 years ago from a lumber company that was abandoning the area.

He said the licence covered a nine-square-mile area but that three years ago the lands and forests department reclaimed six square miles as crown land, cancelling his lease with a 1½-acre plot.

"The government sure hasn't given me any interest at all," he said.

Mr. Hokum" was found to be Benjamin Okum Jr. of Killaloe Mr. Okum said the timber limits are actually only "only a little wee corner"—about 200 acres. He said he paid about $600 for the licence, adding that the plot wasn't large enough to be of much value.

The Barrys Bay rally was in

Boy, 13, Says He Set School Fire Which Killed 95 in Chicago in '58

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois state attorney's office took action Tuesday on investigation a statement attributed to a 13-year-boy saying he started the fire which killed 95 persons and injured more than 400 in a packed School fire that killed 95 persons in 1958.

State's attorney Daniel Ward said Tuesday that investigation points to the boy's guilt, prosecution will be difficult because of his age.

The boy, whose name was withheld, is in the Chicago school at the time of the fire, Dec. 1, 1958. He has not been charged with any crime.

Cicero where he is an eighth-grader.

He was questioned by Cicero police about several small fires in apartment building hallways in the suburb but was not under arrest or police guard.

Ward and John E. Reid, who gave the boy a lie detector test, declined to give details of the statement. Reid, who said he gave the test at the request of the boy's parents, turned over all his files in the case to the state attorney's office.

The Chicago Tribune said that Reid, who runs a lie detection service for clients in the private clients, obtained a confession after he interviewed the boy last Friday.

Capt. Chris T. Rooney said Cicero police have no explanation the boy might be responsible for the Chicago school fire when their investigation showed he was a former pupil in the Roosevelt School there.

The Tribune said in a copyrighted story that the boy told in his statement that he tossed lighted matches into a cardboard barrel near a stairwell in the basement of the school.

The flames shot up quickly to the second floor of the two-storey structure, Ninety - two children and three Roman Catholic nuns perished in what became one of the worst fire disasters in Chicago's history.

7-Man Junta Takes Over Following Dominican Riots

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — A seven-man civil-military junta took control of the Dominican Republic Tuesday night after Joaquin Balaguer resigned amid bloody violence.

The junta was installed several hours after troops backed by tanks fired into a defiant crowd of hundreds in the heart of the capital, killing at least four persons and wounding 20.

The shooting touched off the most violent rioting in the city in months, and demands mounted for the resignation of Balaguer and his armed forces chief, Gen. Antonio Rodriguez Echavarria, who had been accused of planning to set up a military dictatorship.

The junta—four civilians and three military men—took over the government from the six-man civilian seven-man council of state which had ruled for 30 days. The council, headed by Balaguer, was installed to guide the Caribbean island country for 13 months toward its first elections in over 30 years and dictatorship by the late gener. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo.

The change in government drew immediate fire from the Washington Post, which hailed the junta as anti-Trujillo faction, and the leader of the opposition to Balaguer.

Radio Caribe, a government station, said the new junta will rule until Feb. 27, 1962, the date set for elections and set for an elected government to take over.

The junta, to rule without a presiding officer, retained two members of the deposed council—Antonio Imbert and Luis Amiamcito, only survivors of the band of 12 that plotted Trujillo's assassination last May.

The shooting broke out after a crowd of about 500 massed in Independence Park across from Civil Guard headquarters.

Targets of the demonstration appeared to be Balaguer, a holdover from the Trujillo era who had been dragging his feet on his promise to resign, and Gen. Rodriguez Echavarria.

Police were unable to cope with the demonstrations. Then troops and about six tanks from Camp Ozama arrived. Troops on one of the tanks opened fire and the crowd dived for cover.

The firing brought fresh demands storming into the streets. Some demonstrators dived for buried stones, and set fire to a theatre. Troops moved in to restore order, and there was quiet on the streets in two hours. A dusk-to-dawn curfew was clamped down.

Thus, eight months of strife and disorder following the Trujillo assassination finally found Balaguer out of the government.

National Issues May Make New Session Strenuous One

OTTAWA (CP)—Enough national and regional issues face members of Parliament to make the new session one of the longest and most strenuous in recent years—if it runs its full course.

At the moment the top debate-provoking policy of the Conservative government is the proposed Canada-United States defence arms and the sale of Columbia river power in B.C. to the United States.

John G. Diefenbaker, though still high, are showing a marked improvement over last year and this may temper the opposition attack.

National issues for the most part dominate the Commons debates. Besides Common Market and agricultural problems there are President Kennedy's new tariff - cutting proposals, the government's trade policies and attitude towards trading with Communist China, Cuba, Brazil, and the, exchange rate on the Canadian dollar.

The names of former state secretary Henri Courtemanche and the present holder of that post, Noel Dorion, undoubtedly will come up.

Mr. Courtemanche resigned his Senate seat after a Quebec court found him guilty of accepting a bribe.

Mr. Dorion's handling of the Munsinger affair, in which Gerda Munsinger, a Montreal prostitute with alleged Communist connections, had lived in Germany and Canada with Canadian and British Air Force officers, is also in the Brussels negotiations on British entry to the Common Market and the possibility of having to play a constructive role in the promotion of freer world trade."

But no firm policy decisions are expected. Parliamentary sources say the government is waiting to see how events of its trade interests in Britain and Europe affected if Britain should join the Common Market. It also is waiting to see what kind of tariff-cutting legislation will be passed by the U.S. Congress before it puts questions are expected by late spring.

He said the right to commit patients to it is a complete change of behaviour. One instance, he said, was a belligerent, hard - drinking 19-year-old person after a brain tumor was removed.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The United Nations dispatched a concern today over reports of the massacre of 20 Roman Catholic priests from 18 to 30 Roman Catholics by bands of Congolese troops in the province of Kongol in central Katanga.

The reports received by the UN said 20 European priests were killed. Vatican representatives said, however, that Europeans, priests and a lay brother were the victims.

Three Bodies to Discuss Hospital Requirements at Special Meeting Thursday

A special committee from Hastings County Council will meet with a city council committee and members of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors to discuss future hospital requirements for Belleville and district.

The joint meeting of the three bodies has been set for Thursday evening at the hospital. Members of the special committee from county council will be Warden Harold Vary and reeves Harleigh Hamilton, William Shannon and C. N. Brown.

The invitation for a county committee to attend Thursday evening's joint meeting was extended this morning by Belleville's Mayor Haig, acting as spokesman for a delegation from the hospital board.

Mayor Haig said statistics had proven without doubt the need for increased hospital facilities at Belleville, the problem being how to best provide for the facilities required.

NO DEFINITE PLANS

Ex-Warden Harleigh Hamilton said several suggestions had been forwarded by the hospital board but stated no definite plans for the needed facilities had as yet been made.

Reeve Shannon said it was up to council to decide how far the county wished to go in the support of increased facilities at the hospital.

Reeve Frank Rabel, Frankford, avowed full consideration should be given to the matter by council and he requested that a decision now which would be restricted to 20 years from now. He suggested that the advice of the Ontario Department of Health be asked in this matter.

One of the hottest items of discussion on the agenda for the inaugural session of county council will be the request for withdrawal from the Centre Hastings High School area by the village of Tweed and by the township of Hungerford.

Contentions both for and against the withdrawal are expected to be made to council Thursday, but it is doubtful if council will make a decision at this session.

FAVOR DELAYING ACTION

Even if council approves of the withdrawal, it is doubted if there would be time to prepare the necessary by-law in time for passing at this session.

Councilors generally favored delaying decision on the withdrawal request until a special meeting which is to be called early in February to name a new city reeve.

The morning session heard a request from the C.N.I.B. for a grant of $1,200 to assist in carrying out the work among the blind in Hastings county. C.N.I.B. representative J. Timmins spoke on behalf of the request.

ASKED TO NAME COMMITTEE

The county was also asked to name a special committee to meet with other sub-committees in the City of Quinte District with the idea of forming a Quinte Area Emergency Measures Organization.

Mayor A. M. Haig outlined the reasons for forming such an organization and said the municipal councils in the area would be remiss in their duties if some steps were not taken for the protection of residents in the event of a possible nuclear attack.

He said that the Federal government would pay one-half the costs of the emergency measures organization program.

Standing Committees Of Council

Members of the 1962 standing committees for Hastings county council approved at this morning's session of the county body were as follows:

Board and Bridges Committee—Reeve Shannon, Wallbridge; Earl Sager; C. G. Long, Frederick Clayton Hall; Harold Vary; warden.

Many New Faces Are Seen in County Council

The year 1962 will go down as the year of the big change for Hastings county council, with either one-third or one-half of the 33 members being changed from last year.

Council officials say the number of new faces in council this year is probably the highest on record.

Gone this year are such faces as Carl Whittemore of Deloro village; John Horsepool of Farnham; Victor Hughson of Huntingdon; Ray Hannah of Mayo; A. G. Wilson of Carlow, and Phil Fitzgerald of Tyendinaga township.

In fact introductions were in the order of the day Tuesday as the county fathers gathered at the county buildings in Belleville for their inaugural session of the year.

401 Overpass, Shift in No. 2, Are Planned

Clarke T. Rollins, M.L.A. for East Hastings, announced today that the Ontario Department of Highways, later this month, would call for tenders for the construction of an overpass on Highway 401 at Wyman's, Sidgrod in the Marysburgh area. The purpose is to permit local traffic on the sideroad to cross Highway 401 safely and it is not known whether there will be a cloverleaf installed at this intersection.

As part of the same contract, the Department will let tenders for prices for the re-alignment of Highway No. 2 at Milltown. West of the highway underpass beneath the CNR tracks, there is now a blind intersection at which several serious accidents have occurred. The object of the highway re-alignment would be to eliminate this blind intersection.

Sites of both the proposed projects are in Tyendinaga Township.

Belleville Fish, Game Club Holds Record Annual Meet

The Belleville District Fish and Game Club looked back on its highly successful year at a record-breaking annual banquet last night.

Upwards of 320 of the club's 440 membership crowded the Belleville Memorial Centre Dining Room to hear reports of the year's activities and to view a wide-screen colored movie.

They enjoyed a fine turkey dinner, with prizes going to wild-life motion pictures, heard an outstanding address, and saw lucky anglers and hunters presented with trophy rewards of the club.

Retiring president Gordon McGee chaired the dinner and expressed his appreciation of the efforts of his directorate, press and radio, sports dealers in the district and others who helped make his year of office such a success.

He announced that the club had secured a charter and was now an incorporated business. Bylaws are being drawn up by member Douglas Bateman.

Douglas Omand, head of the wildlife division, Ontario Department of Lands and Forest, Toronto, was the guest speaker.

HAVE PROBLEM

Mr. Omand pointed out that the big problem facing farmers and anglers during the next five or ten years will be where to find bush.

With populations increasing in the southern Ontario districts and sports areas becoming more difficult to find, this district can expect a big influx of sportsmen from these centres.

"Because of hunting areas," he said, "we dam in some parts to lands being posted against hunting. Hunting is one of the most unsportmanslike actions of a lot of hunters. They have problems with farmers. The use of firearms for non-residents on the property."

Mr. Omand said the hunter has a personal responsibility. It is his duty to see a sportsman to point out to those guilty of minor hunting activities, the error of their ways which could give the area restricted.

He said there has been 800,000 hunters and roughly 1,200,000 anglers and the numbers are increasing yearly. Areas of land and water are being reduced because of the decreased hazard in those used.

OPPORTUNITY

"The Lands and Forests Department has had in giving the public the fullest opportunity to the hunting and fishing resources of the province and the facilities to use them."

Wild life, he asserted, can stand a good deal more hunting pressure than it is getting now. Over a long period more game have died from starvation than from hunters' guns.

In closing, Mr. Omand pointed out are now and always will be places where the hunter can get his fish. The problem of securing land exists in the south where land is privately owned. Buying back this land is very expensive.

He reminded sportsmen and hunter-farmer relations pointing out the responsibilities of hunters. The act of mutilation could spoil hunting in the area for years to come." He hoped all sportsmen would help along these lines.

Mr. Omand was introduced by Mr. James Taylor chief conservation officer of the department's Tweed district. He was thanked by director Don MacKinnon who also urged hunters to follow the rules of good sportsmanship.

IN MEMORIAM

CONNORS. — In fond and loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Leslie Connors, who passed away January 18th, 1961.

In quiet we saw you sinking,
In pain we saw you suffer,
Our hearts were almost broken,
But God in love knew best.
Though years have passed and gone,
We could not wish you back.
Sadly missed.
To suffer that again,
To watch you day and over recovering,
Then to lose you once more.
Resting on the bosom of Jesus.
Sweet be your slumber.
Sadly missed by daughter Betty Anderson, son-in-law Jay and granddaughter Beverly Anne.

CONNORS. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Louise Connors, who passed away January 18th, 1959.

Though years in our eyes do not glister,
And our tears are not always seen
There is never a night or a morning
But we think of the mother we loved.
Even in our heart she is present,
Of a loved one laid to rest
Nothing can take from memory it,
Because she was one of the best.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by daughter Florence and son-in-law Leo.

Youth Given 5-Year Term In Penitentiary

TRENTON—In magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday, Gerald Keith Menzie, 18, of Trenton was sentenced to five years in Kingston penitentiary by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The magistrate said that this sentence was for the youth's involvement in the breaking, entering and theft at the Trenton Country Club on Dec. 8. Last week, in Trenton, Menzie pleaded guilty to this charge and admitted that he held two cleaning men in the furnace room of the club at gunpoint.

Menzie also pleaded guilty to two other charges of breaking, entering and theft in Trenton, two similar charges in Frankford and three other charges of breaking, entering or attempted entry. The magistrate said that two years' sentences on each charge were to run concurrently with the five-year penitentiary sentence.

Appearing for the accused, Roderick Campbell pointed out the sentence was passed, that a term in the penitentiary might be regarded as a "liberal graduate course in crime." He suggested that a short sentence in the reformatory and a long probationary term might do a great deal to change the youth's ways, without exposing him to the "hardened element" at Kingston.

Crown Attorney John A. Pringle, told the court, that according to Menzie's pre-sentence report, he had progressed from shoplifting to robbery, involving the use of a weapon.

"He's not a novice," said Mr. Pringle, "it's time he realized that the only person who can help Gerald Keith Menzie is Gerald Keith Menzie."

Magistrate Wills said that he had given a great deal of consideration to the case, and that while it was desirable to rehabilitate the offender, he thought that the public demanded and expected a substantial sentence in the penitentiary to be the result of robbery in which a weapon was involved, even if the weapon was not fired.

T. Bata States Reds Fail in Aid Program

TRENTON — Thomas Bata, speaking to members of the Trenton Rotary Club, this week, said that western scientists, technicians and economists may be more "expert" than they think and that their Soviet counterparts may not be quite so "expert" as the world thinks.

Mr. Bata cited several cases where the Russians had proferred assistance to underdeveloped countries and failed to carry through promises made.

"In a number of cases," said the speaker, "Russia pushed her political efforts too hard and failed to carry through with her promised economic aid."

Mr. Bata said that a sincere attitude on the part of the western nations might result in "new" nations defecting to the west, once they had been "insulted" in some manner by members of the Soviet bloc.

Touching briefly on recent events in the Congo, Mr. Bata said that his company had had two retail stores smashed and looted in Elisabethville, in Katanga Province, but that otherwise his business was carrying on as usual.

Recently, he said, the Congo River had flooded a Bata factory and this would have to be re-located, at least temporarily.

Mr. Bata said that the new administration in the Congo was in very great danger of bringing on a condition of inflation. Officials have "voted themselves" tremendous salaries and have placed themselves in a position where they must pay comparable salaries to others.

"More and more money is being printed," said Mr. Bata. "The currency is going down and down."

Mr. Bata, who is an honorary member of the Trenton Golf club, was thanked for his address by ex-president Ken Couch.

Protest Plan To Sell Park Area for Houses

TRENTON — Trenton Kinsmen Club president Elmwood Avery Reddick has strongly protested" a decision of Trenton council to "sell back" four lots in the Sherwood area originally designated as "park lands" (a required 5 per cent of the housing development), to the B.E.P. Company, developer.

A letter, signed by 44 of the club's residents, protesting the move, was read to town council.

"Three residents were present at the council meeting and one of them agreed to present the viewpoint of the neighbors.

"A parkland is quite necessary to a housing development," he asserted. "We have a large number of small children there and they are too young to cross Byron Street to play in a park. Once the parkland allowance is sold, it's gone forever. When the real estate agent sold us the property he stressed the park. We felt that this was one of the most desirable features for the area."

The clerk-comptroller suggested to a young engineer developed between Elmwood Acres and a planned-for 25-acre park, a park-like area to the north of the present development.

"The developer would hardly agree to exchange four choice building lots for the low-lying lots in the present development," the interjected town engineer Erik Alderson.

"How do you know he would?" asked Mr. Reddick "on the north of the new development" asked Councillor Ross Burtt.

Opinions from the Trenton parks' board and the planning commission committee will be secured before any further action is taken regarding the sale, of the lots to B.E.P.

No 'Cardboard' Used in Building

TRENTON — Trenton's building inspector, William Anderson, said yesterday that there was very little likelihood that any building materials used in local construction in the past ten years, fell in the category of "glorified cardboard," a term used by Montreal's fire chief, Maurice McKie, in a statement to the press last Sunday, following a disastrous fire in that city in which five children perished.

Chief McKie charged that this "glorified cardboard" is pressed pulp substance, containing inflammable sulphur, being used in many buildings throughout Canada and the United States.

Mr. Anderson said that a strict control over building materials had been brought into effect through a by-law passed by Trenton's 1953 council and that all materials to be used by local builders were checked by the inspection department before contractors were allowed to proceed.

Acting Mayors Are Selected

TRENTON — Trenton's acting mayors for 1962 are as follows:

The acting mayors will take over and conduct meetings, attend civic functions and so on if Mayor James MacDonald is absent.

Councillor Duncan McDonald has been named as signing authority for the mayor and will sign cheques and legal papers, along with the clerk-comptroller, O. W. Lavery, if the mayor should not be able to do so.

Given 5 Months For Failure To Attend Court

TRENTON — Donald Tucker of Windsor, charged with failing to appear in county court at Belleville on Nov. 20, 1961, was sentenced to five months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills at Trenton yesterday. Tucker was to have been tried by a judge and jury in Belleville on the charge of car theft. When he failed to put in an appearance, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. On Jan. 4, of his own accord, Tucker returned to Trenton and put up at a motel, where he was arrested by Sgt. Gordon Steenburg of the Trenton police force. He has been in custody since.

Yesterday, Tucker pleaded not guilty to the charge of failing to put in a court appearance. In the witness box, Tucker said that he had been unable to learn the exact date of the suspected court appearance at Belleville, and had come "up north" looking for work.

"Were you 'up north' hunting?" Crown Attorney John A. Pringle suggested.

"Perhaps he was 'hunting' for work," said the magistrate.

The Crown established that Tucker's former employer had learned the exact date of the court date. Tucker had failed to contact him in order to learn the date. A $500 bail bond, put up by a friend of Tucker, was forfeited.

Donald E. Sharpe, 23, of British Columbia, who has been wanted in Ontario for two years, was charged with passing worthless cheques. He pleaded guilty to the charges and was remanded for sentence until Jan. 23.

Cramahe Reeve Elected Warden Northumberland

TRENTON — Gerald Philp, reeve of Cramahe Township, was elected warden of the united counties of Durham and Northumberland yesterday by 42 county reeves and deputy reeves. Supporting Mr. Philp were Douglas McMaster, and Robert Carlaw, reeves of Murray and Brighton respectively, and George Free, reeve of Hamilton.

This is the first time in 70 years that the county warden has been chosen from the same township. Mr. Philp attained the majority vote after four ballots had been taken.

BLAZE IN ATTIC

A blaze in the attic of the home of Mrs. Frankford and Batawa were called to what is commonly known as "the old Miller house" on Glen Miller yesterday around 5 p.m. where fire believed to have originated in the chimney, had broken out in the attic of the home. The fires were extinguished in short time but a traffic snarl up in the vicinity resulted as word of the fire spread. The home, occupied by Miss W. and Miss C. Miller, is a landmark in the district. No one was injured.

support of Conlin Mulvihill, Conservative candidate in Renfrew South, scene of one of the by-elections. Campaign was for Liberal Leonard Quilty and the NDP's Lesage Hutchinson.

Mr. MacDonald's charges were made at a rally for Mr. Laventure in Eganville. He said rumor has it one timber award made to the government involved cancellation of public tenders."

"While Mr. Quade finally did pay more than the tendered bid," Mr. MacDonald said, "the fact remains that, on the original tendering, his was third highest . . . in short, if you are Conservative you can't lose."

Mr. Whitemeyer said the reason he had chosen not to elaborate on his stand on cancelled cut-line during the by-election campaign was that once the royal commission was appointed nothing should be said or done to influence its work.

He quoted Premier Roberts as saying a vote for the Conservatives would be a vote of confidence in the attorney-general.

"VOTE FOR STUPIDITY"

"It would be a vote for inefficiency, confusion, stupidity, ineptitude, and administrative stupidity. It would also be a vote for continuation of dirty constituted procedure . . .

"Leslie Roberts has shown himself to be a worthy follower of McCarthyism and he deserves the same public and parliamentary censure."

The rally was addressed by former Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, who said Leslie Frost's administration is full as premier parallels political scandals in the days when G. Howard Ferguson handed down the premiership to George Henry.

Then as now, he said, a Conservative premier saw his party was headed for defeat and decided to get out.

The Conservatives hold 68 seats in the 98-seat legislature. The Liberals have 20 and NDP five.

Council Agrees Civil Defence Costs Are Low

TRENTON — At Monday's meeting of Trenton council, the members were agreed that Trenton's share of the cost of organizing an area civil defence group, which includes the building of a full-time civil defence co-ordinator, was "very economical" (to quote Councillor Graham).

Mayor MacDonald explained that the cost for setting up a civil defence authority for Trenton, Murray Township and the counties of Hastings and Northumberland would be $26,000 of which Trenton would pay $325 or 2 1-2 cents per capita.

"How is it that we weren't included in the emergency exercise 'Tocsin'?" asked Councillor Worrall. "We didn't even have any air raid sirens. We'll need to have someone from here pushing the area co-ordinator".

Council will amend civil defence by-laws by which the area defence body would be set up and hold some suggestions in its own.

RCAF Will Take Over Missile Base Feb. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF will take over the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile base at North Bay from the U.S. Feb. 1, it was learned authoritatively Tuesday night.

By that date, Boeing Airplane Company of Seattle, Wash., manufacturer of the Bomarc, will have turned the missiles on the 26 launching pads.

Under normal circumstances, the RCAF takes control of the operational base a month after the RCAF takes over.

Still unanswered is the question whether the Bomarcs will carry nuclear warheads, as the United States has urged. The government has not announced any decision on acceptance of American nuclear warheads.

It was also learned authoritatively that all five CF-101 Voodoo jet interceptor squadrons will be operational by mid-April.

One squadron—410 at nearby Uplands — became operational Christmas Day. The squadron at Bagotville, Que., also becomes operational in mid - February, the squadron at Comox, B.C., at the end of March and the squadron at North Bay and Chatham, N.B., in early April.

Ninety airmen: core of the 230 - man RCAF 446 Bomarc squadron at North Bay, completed their training in the U.S. last month and now are at North Bay.

Antique Cars Lost in Blaze At Deseronto

DESERONTO (Staff) — A two-hour blaze yesterday evening gutted a brick service station and demolished a wood addition housing two valuable antique and classic cars, as well as a modern station wagon and many pieces of equipment belonging to the Dawson's Motel here.

A 1934 Rolls Royce and a 1917 Chevrolet were amongst the casualties. Another classic car, a 1925 Rickenbaker, was saved by the fire's intensely frustrated further efforts to save the Rolls Royce.

The Deseronto Fire Brigade and the Napanee Fire Department answered the alarm. Fire fighting efforts were hindered to a degree by the local volunteer department having to bring water from a hydrant almost one quarter of a mile away. The Napanee firefighters were able to pump water from the bay of Quinte when they arrived later.

There was partial insurance coverage on the property damaged. The building will have to be razed and the cars were totally ruined. No estimate was given on the amount of the loss.

Truth Catches up With Fiction

Truth, we are told, is stranger than fiction, but in the case of Emilio Cisneros Jr., and his wife, truth is just catching up with an old story. Cisneros, a resident of Los Angeles, had a friend arrange a blind date and, to his chagrin, discovered his chance companion was his estranged wife.

There is a risque joke based on similar circumstances, the details of which we shall leave to the reader's imagination. For that matter, if there is not in the multitudinous products of authors' pens and imaginations some serious attempt to deal with the same theme, we should be surprised. It has finalesperean possibilities.

Mr. Cisneros, though, did not view the occasion in this philosophical light and, no doubt imagining himself to be the worst wronged of all men, promptly beat his wife. Under these circumstances, we do not blame Mrs. Cisneros for deciding to change her status from a merely estranged wife to a divorced wife. Not that we suggest violence should automatically follow a beating, for in that case there would hardly be an intact marriage left a couple of years after the pledge to love and honor. Any realistic judge would place all lashings in the same general category, whether they be with strap or tongue, and would differ between them solely on the basis of their severity, rather than upon the basis of the instrument used. No, what entitles Mrs. Cisneros to a divorce is her husband's stupidity, his inability to see that in accepting a blind date she had merely done precisely the same thing as he had in seeking one.

This automatic application by the male of the species of a double standard in affairs of the heart is, however, so commonplace as to approach the universal. This is true in particular of the most moral of men, who imagine they demand the same standard of conduct of themselves that they demand of women. Few of them regard those who patronize prostitutes with the same contempt they do the prostitutes themselves and almost no man is willing to admit that the street-walker is practising but one of several kinds of prostitution. Most men prostitute their talents at one time or another. If they refuse to be paid, it is only because they lack the intelligence to recognise their impurity. The intelligent man who regards himself as pure but adds to prostitution the sin of self-deception. Nor is there any double standard here for women, who are equally guilty.

There is a story to the point about the peerless George Bernard Shaw. At a social gathering, marriage came under discussion and one beautiful lady of fashion and family announced her conviction that any woman was a fool who would give her heart and hand where poverty dwelt. Shaw turned to the lady in question and, in a stage whisper asked, "Madam, will you sleep with me tonight for ten pounds?" "Sir," ejaculated the horrified beauty, "what do you think I am?" "We have already established what you are," Shaw replied. "The only question now is a matter of price."

If she had lived in today's welfare state, the lady could have topped the wit by adding, "and social security."

Success Story

For the first time in the history of the automobile industry a manufacturer from without the territorial limits of North America has qualified to become a member of the "Big Three," displacing one of the three American firms which have traditionally laid claim to membership in this group.

The Volkswagen firm of West Germany, consisting of no more than a bombed building, some blueprints, a few machines and some personnel who lived a hand-to-mouth existence not more than 17 years ago, has laid claim to become a member of the "Big Three."

The basis of this firm's claim is extremely simple. By virtue of the fact that it produced more than a million units in 1961 it has achieved third place internationally, behind the American giants of General Motors and Ford.

It is interesting to note that it took the German firm 16 years to produce four million cars, the first million taking 10 years. Prosperity, and production, appear to be favoring the Volkswagen firm despite initial hard times.

There is much to be learned from the success of the Volkswagen enterprise. A determined group, management and labor included, has worked to produce a quality product at a highly competitive price. Harmony has prevailed in this endeavor and we assume that success will not disrupt the state of affairs.

Letters To The Editor

WCTU Gives Views About Alcoholism

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Is alcoholism a disease or a sin?

Following our press report for the November meeting a "Letter to the Editor" on the interested reader appeared in this newspaper. We devoted some time at the close of our last meeting to discussion on our report and the "Letter to the Editor". The interest shown by Mr. Rae in this problem so vitally affecting much suffering humanity, we feel, is the following points were made:

1. The W.C.T.U. accepts the definition of alcoholism (whether as a sin which leads to a disease) condition designated by medical science as alcoholism.

2. Our program of Scientific Alcohol Education is to instruct and forewarn of the dangers of drinking alcohol in any form or in any quantity. This program is especially directed to the young people of our schools and of society.

3. We stand for total abstinence. The only solution is alcohol, so the only way to avoid the disease is to abstain totally from the use of beverage alcohol. On this stand we have the support of the Salvation Army, a number of Christian Churches and many individual members of other churches who do not take a similar stand.

4. We quote the Bible, as God's law concerning this sin.

We believe with Paul that we are to "make no offence" and "Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend." I Cor. 8:13.

We also accept the law of Christian Brotherhood as expressed by Paul, "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth or is offended or is weak". Romans 14-21.

We also accept Paul's statement in I Cor. 6:10 — that no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God.

We would also like to say "Thank You" to Mr. Brant for his helpful and encouraging reply to "the Letter to the Editor" by Mr. Rae. We welcome comments and suggestions concerning our W.C.T.U. work at all times.

On behalf of The Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Buy Oranges From Indies

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The news of the arrival in Halifax of a shipment of Jamaican oranges will be welcomed by thought that Canada might well import more fruit, fresh and processed, from the British West Indies — a Commonwealth partner which doubtless would welcome the trade, no matter how small it may be in terms of the total volume of business between us.

For one thing, it might not be a bad idea to remember the fact that we imported from the United States last year nearly $19,000,000 worth of fresh oranges and orange juices, an expenditure which made a contribution to our trade deficit with that country of some $750,000,000 to 1960. Thus, while Canada-Jamaica trade runs in the favor of this latter by almost two to one, a switch of purchases on this account would at least help a nation struggling toward a democratic independence while lessening, if only slightly, our own dependence on trade with the United States.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MIND AND BODY

The world today appears to be fascinated by the study of psychology and psychiatry. Our generation ago Johnny, if he could not read, was taken by the ear to the set down on a chair and sternly asked by his parents "How come?" Today he is whisked off to a psychiatrist, Mother's read books on psychology and Congressmen call for aid in psychologists to consult with them. Everybody is reading four boy or girl gets into college now if the B.M. machine tape has certain perforations, and he is rejected if it does not. All of which, although definitely mechanical, is based upon certain capacities which the psychologists are supposed to represent.

Psychology is undoubtedly a marvelous branch of knowledge and without it the world would be infinitely poorer. But we can go daffy about almost everything, (even religion), and this generation appears to have gone daffy over psychology and psychiatry.

We claim no authority in any branch of knowledge, and particularly not in any of the sciences, but we venture the prediction that some years hence the craze will be not for psychology but for physiology. In other words we are going to appreciate the fact that everything that happens to us has a physical cause or produces a physical effect. We may face the grim possibility of seizing as age when there will be no cure for everything, (which is almost true today). But certainly the fact that we are physical beings is going to play an increasingly important role in many of our conclusions in the future.

Many Negroes Leave South

Baltimore Evening Sun

Two states, Mississippi and Alabama, have long been recognized as among the most uncompromising in the matter of unwarranted racial desegregation. Now the Census Bureau has given some figures on Negro emigration from the South over the past decade, and Mississippi and Alabama lead the list. Taken together this pair of states accounted for more than 500,000 of the 1,500,000 Negroes who have left the South since 1950 to settle in the North and West.

The historic northward trek in the Civil War era was once again confirmed: New York took in 380,000, Illinois received 190,000, Maryland 91,000 and so on. But the state to which most Negroes travelled was not in the east at all. It was California, the hospitable haven on the Pacific coast for all who have suffered elsewhere, which drew more than 500,000 once-Southern Negroes.

My Optimism Is His Utopianism

I can't appreciate that, you are a smooth-tongued pessimist, by the way.

I believe in intelligent self-interest; you are looking for the magic cheater; he is always looking for God.

I try to watch my health; you are a bit of a hypochondriac; he is a confirming medicine cabinet.

I recognize hazards of policy disagreement; you are very squeezed out in a management reshuffle; he "has the boot."

I make prompt decisions; you are a little impulsive; he flies off the handle.

My people came from honest country stock, but you people were ignorant peasants.

When somebody says some thing I don't understand, he is having communication difficulty; you, I am never having reception difficulty.

An innocent flirtation was what I was having with your cheating wife at the dance — but I failed to add that it was an innocent one because of her, boy because of me.

I regard a piece of information in "strict confidence"; you have a loose tongue; he keeps secrets without the slightest discreation.

An "amicable" man is, naturally, a man who agrees with me.

My child is sensitive; yours is high-strung; his is disturbed. When I have a headache, it is because I am a victim of stress; you suffer from migraine because you are a victim of allergy; he has a migraine because he is a victim of a nervous breakdown.

Case of Colitis Should Be First Carefully Diagnosed

Still another form, often called "nervous colitis," is basically the same disease in the nervous control of the colon, or bowel. It is caused by the irritation of this and so, too, aggravated by the emotional provocations.

Nervous colitis may be "lazy," or technically, an "atonic colon." Here the nervous control of nervous cause may be doing the opposite of irritating. Hypocondriacs, or chronic complainers, are the typical exponents or diseases of the pelvic organs and constitute the symptoms of "colitis."

Citing these examples is necessary before we can really talk scientific about how to get rid of colitis.

Unwanted spotting at your age, in my opinion, definitely deserves careful examination. I would say that a "D and C," meaning dilation and curettage, or scraping, is essential to find out whether the tissue of the uterus is healthy.

Note to M.E.: If your doctor advised against salt, then you should do so. Many seasonings and substitutes are available and they add a lot of tang to food without containing sodium. Here's a thing you are avoid-ing. Grocery and drug stores carry these salt substitutes. Instead of using salt which you can use for flavor without containing salt include spices, peppers, onion, garlic or lime. Many prepared flavoring spices have salt added but a reading of the ingredients will be revealing.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

About 4.15, when most of the school children had gone home, but one p.m all hey of absentees came leisurely along, throwing their satchels. All in disorder. He was to them monastic mood of order and peace; he could enjoy by themselves, talking to himself, gesturing, involved in his own imaginings, unobserved. He would, scoop up one pencil, a rubber, his sharp and then, striking a new attitude, resume his target, and whenever, in it, the school door opened, he'd follow its trend, signs afflicted to the noise, hydrants, all per their duty.

A truck passing offered a temptation. Perhaps he'd have got it. The boy stood reflecting on this last venture, and I could see he was emboldened to look about children had departed. The house sent door to us has pillars. After a thoughtful scrut, he left the pillars and I was watching, he let fly at each with more satisfactory accuracy.

Next, my house. In the window still hung a few pieces of Christmas wreath. Bull's eye, if ever one was offered.

The little boy wound up and let fly. And exactly at the moment when he released his hand, he perceived my face framed in the wreath.

His expression changed on his face to the paralyzed horror of the human figure. I have the idea it is something he will never forget.

TODAY'S TALK

CUSHION UP

Yes, I can remember when rubber heels were a novelty and although an eavesdropping ad-vertiser argued that they were soft and wide, still the prejudice prevailed and the wool on with hide held to reach.

But now how do we find rubber heels? They are worn by very young — and not so young — ladies who now so deftly balance themselves on pinpoint heels have become quite unconscious of the fact that the shoes I can even note that the rubber heels are there in a de-gree.

Why rubber heels? Well, they're this life's one concession to scientific fact as about the terrible jolt that each bit of the heel gives to the body as it hits the pavement. And he tells of the many effects which are not good — not good which result from these hundreds of needless jolts we give to the body every day.

I am no scientist but I like rubber heels! They are my nerves in a much happier frame of behavior and besides I like the quiet sound of the rubber heel. There is too much noise in this world these days anyway — what with fast rubber heels, or some sort of cushion might be invented for the feet, there'd be silence, or their looks, or at least lessened.

The all-heel cushioning throughout.

You often hear the phrase, "He or she puts on my nerves." But if these nerves had what rubber heels give to the shoe, then that person would have a hard time getting on anybody's nerves.

The calm and collected person is the exception in this world.

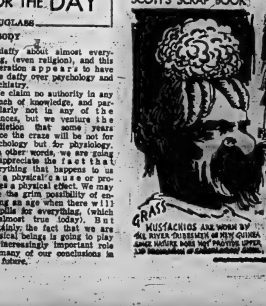
That's the comment below a current cartoon and it is perfectly mindset that the 10-digit 7-D-digit telephone number is here to stay.

But perhaps it is hard enough now for most to remember their own telephone numbers, they never get a chance to learn the telephone companies get up to 20 digits or more?

Imagining in a long-distance call and asking "Is that 6835669573, please, Bonn-by?" only to receive this reply, "Sorry, wrong number, this is Hong Kong. Wrong Kong."



If your Chinese is up to it, ask anyway after his health.

The object of it all, says the telephone companies, is that you may dial direct any subscriber in any country without going through the intermediaries.

But many of us, regretting the good old days of the nice voices and the helpful advice, may well wonder if the beneficial wonder of calling Calcutta by merely twisting the dial are worth the loss of these little pleasures and human frustrations.

Problems of Arab Nations Outlined at Kiwanis Meet

The problems of the Arab nations were outlined to local Kiwanians in a very forthright address by Khalil I. Bebas, director of the Arab Information Centre, Ottawa, yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. Bebas is a native of Palestine, where he received his early education. He studied law in Jerusalem before attending Southwestern University in the United States, where he graduated in economics and political science and received his Master of Arts degree in political science. He is currently a candidate for his doctorate in international affairs and international law at New York University. He has served as chief clerk in the Jordanian Ministry of the Interior and as a member of the Yemen delegation to the United Nations prior to his present appointment in Ottawa.

The creation of the state of Israel was outlined as being one of the major problems facing Arabs today by Mr. Bebas. Over one million Arabs were displaced from their homes and dispossessed of their property when Israel was created, he said.

This action created two difficulties first the humanitarian problem of finding a place for these people, who are mostly farmers and unskilled laborers, in Arab countries which already were burdened with a surplus of this class of people. Secondly difficulty was outlined by the speaker as being a moral one "of enforcing international obligations and commitments against a recalcitrant Israel" in compensating these displaced people.

These two problems create, in turn, a third problem, psychological in nature, of creating at least a minimal trust amongst the Arabs towards the good intentions of Israel. This problem has been compounded, Mr. Bebas suggested, by Israel actions to the contrary, such as the Sinai attack in 1956, and by the steady immigration program in Israel which must eventually result in a project of territorial aggrandizement in order to accommodate this continuing influx.

He emphasized that despite the fact that the creation of Israel required the sacrifice of a large part of the best agricultural land which the state of Jordan had, the Israelis have refused compensation to the many Arabs who lost their lands despite the fact that the Israelis are receiving compensation from Western Germany for having experienced similar sacrifices

POSES PROBLEM

Colonialism in several parts of the Arab world, such as Algeria and the oil-rich sheikdoms of the Arabian Gulf, also pose a problem, the speaker said. This problem has created an element of distrust between the Arab world and the West which has been further complicated by the fact "the West apparently does not have a policy towards the Arab world, but merely a policy towards Communism in the Arab world."

Communism in the Arab world was but a minor problem to the Arabs, Mr. Bebas advised. The Arabs desire to maintain a strict neutrality between the two power blocs, maintaining an independent approach to international relations so that they may judge policy not in terms of how it affects the power bloc struggle but, rather, how it affects Arab interests.

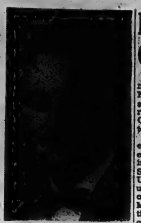
The speaker stated that he felt the cultural environment of the Arab world offered little opportunity for any serious Communist inroads.

Western interference in Arab affairs is undoubtedly spurred on by the fact that western Europe depended upon the Arab Middle East for their supply of oil, Mr. Bebas said. He suggested that this situation had two sides. The Arab nations required the revenue from the sale of oil badly needed internal development and that Europe required it to maintain their economic balance. As long as fair price was realized in this transaction there would be no cause, other than by direct intervention and provocation by the West, to discontinue this arrangement, he advised.

A proper return for the sale of these natural resources is necessary in order to effect and finance the enormous internal changes and advances which have to be undertaken in order to bring the Arab states up to a position of equality regarding modernity in the world today, the speaker emphasized.

He noted that advances have already been made in bringing the Arab nations along the road towards a higher and modern standard of living. Educational facilities are being increased as quickly as possible, a cultural and literary renaissance has begun, the emancipation of women is steadily increasing as is the provision of medical and social services.

PREDICTS AMALGAMATION



The speaker predicted the eventual amalgamation of the various Arab nations is much the same way as both the United States and Canada grew into nations. He stated that this will to unity is quite apparent amongst a large majority of the Arabs but that certain problems would have to be solved before union was achieved.

A most lively and interesting question and answer period followed the speaker's address. Mr. Bebas invited his fellow listeners not to balk at posing what might be considered as embarrassing enquiries.

During this period he stated that the Arabs did not blame the United States and the western countries for all of their problems but that Arabs did fault them for having created the Israel problem through supporting the cause of "political Zionism" because this would create a diversion which would serve to protect western commercial interests.

He emphasized that there was no racial conflict involved between the Arab states and Israel because of common cultural backgrounds. The problem hinged on the refusal of Israel to implement the several resolutions passed by the United Nations requiring either the compensation of the displaced Arabs or the return of these people to Israel to their former lands and properties.

Tabernacle WMS Plans Valentine Tea

The program for the first meeting of 1962 of the afternoon group of the Women's Missionary Society of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, was a "New Year Service," that was carried out by some members of the executive including Mrs. Ross Craig; Mrs. Harold Shorey and Mrs. M. Barlow. Appropriate readings from the Bible and the "Glad Tidings" were used and hymn singing by the whole group with Mrs. E. Boyce at the piano.

Mrs. Barlow, the president, presided and conducted the routine business of the meeting. It was mentioned also the "World Day of Prayer" taking place this year on March 2nd, the meeting place in Belleville at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church indicating that plans were under way.

A "Valentine Tea" was planned for an afternoon in February at the church with convenors, Mrs. E. Biker and Mrs. R. White.

Also planned was a program of missionary study for the year with leaders chosen for each month as well as assistants.

GUEST SPEAKER

The group was most pleased to have as guest, and speaker for the occasion, Miss Hazel MacDonald, who was introduced by Mrs. R. D. MacLean. Miss MacDonald is a missionary on furlough from the Formosan mission field. She recently engaged in deputation work in the Kingston Presbyterial. She is a graduate of the Moody Bible College and came to the W.M.S. staff with valuable experience in the classroom of Virginia for the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. In Canada she served in pioneer work in several districts of the western provinces. In the course of service she took her B.A. degree at the University of British Columbia, then left for some time in Ethiopia.

In 1951 she rejoined the W.M.S. staff for special work in Taiwan where she gives leadership to the Formosan Church in organization and Bible study, and teaches in the Tainan Theological Seminary.

FORMOSAN WORK

It was a story of this work in Formosa that she presented and, with the aid of slides, brought a most interesting review showing the gradual growth of the church, and education and medical care, indicating also the great need for more and more workers and greater interest and support on the part of those at home in Canada.

Mrs. Craig expressed the appreciation of the group to Miss MacDonald for her inspirational discussion, indicating it is first hand information such as this, which spurs on the efforts of those in the guest association of the W.M.S. Missionary Society.

ASSISTS PROSECUTION — Miss Norma Christie of Vancouver is the first woman barrister in British Columbia appointed to assist the crown prosecutor. One of 50 women lawyers in the province, Miss Christie graduated in law from the University of British Columbia in 1954 after serving four years in the navy and a stint as information officer in London for the Canadian government. (CP Photo).

Norma Christie, Vancouver, First Woman Lawyer to Assist in Prosecutions

VANCOUVER (CP) — When the Supreme Court of British Columbia opened its first sitting of the New Year here there was a lady in court—for the prosecution.

Norma Christie is the first woman barrister appointed by the attorney - general's department to assist the Crown in prosecutions. Robed in the traditional black gown of the courtroom lawyer and with a stylish pixie hairdo, Miss Christie took her place beside Crown Prosecutor Victor Dryer to assist him.

Miss Christie went into law when an uncle, W. C. Hamilton, who had been a prominent lawyer in Winnipeg, became her inspiration. She said she was delighted at the confidence shown in her new appointment. But she wanted to know what "all the fuss" was about.

She admits it is unusual for a woman to get such an appointment "but women are people, and people, be they men or women, should be free to pursue their real interests and that doesn't exclude marriage for the woman."

MacKeen, skip.

Jane Forrester; Ruth Murphy; Dorothy McKinnon; Ruth Burrows, skip.

Law Society records show that Miss Christie is one of about 50 women lawyers in British Columbia. There are 1,400 practising male lawyers in the province.

The native of Cardston, Alta., she graduated with a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Alberta, then spent four years in the navy as a Wren. She came to Ottawa with the information section of the department of external affairs at Canada House in London. This involved giving talks about Canada around England.

After that she came to Vancouver and entered the University of British Columbia school of law. She graduated in 1954 with first class honors, standing right behind Rhodes scholar John B. Watson who got the highest marks ever recorded in the faculty.

In her practice here Miss Christie has yet to handle a capital case, has defended more men than women and has more male than female clients.

Now she is on the other side of the fence—counsel for the prosecution.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Bob Spencer and Mrs. Jack Spencer.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jim Milne. The program committee will be Mrs. Cecil Finch and Mrs. Ross Dickie; the refreshment committee Mrs. (Twinwiches), the hostess and Mrs. Jack Spencer, and for supplying the table Mrs. W. Rutherford and Mrs. Ellis Jones. Each member will be requested to donate a tablecloth for the church silverware supply.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

A courteous person always puts the comfort of others above his own. Do you? Answer Yes or No to the following:

1. When in car or taxi do you insist on smoking even if your companions are tearing at their hair?

2. In the office, do you open the window wide on a cold day and provide your colleagues with more than chilling friendship?

3. Do you carry huge packages on crowded buses and subways and poke your way along the aisles?

4. On long car trips, do you insist on piling on mileage instead of stopping occasionally so the family had unwind a bit?

5. At home, do you play the radio or TV at full volume despite the pleas of others to turn it lower?

6. Do you always keep your husband waiting at least a half hour when you have a date to meet at a restaurant?

7. Do you keep your seat on a public conveyance even though the "stand a space" standing near you is obviously older or infirm?

8. Do you push the type 1 into someone into an elevator that already is filled to overflowing?

9. Do you encourage all the family to hurry up with meals or other household jobs, have a schedule to keep?

10. Do you always keep the "comforts" chair in the room and let others loiter on straight-back chairs?

Scoring:

All Yes? You're hardly a comfort to have around.

5-6-7 You still have a polish error, but if shows signs of fading.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Anthony J. — He's too old to make such a drastic change of vocation.

Walter J. — I've reached retirement eligibility as a cop and I'm eager to try something I've always wished to do — play my alto saxophone in a band. I'm faced with a choice now. I can either stay on in the Police Department to the mandatory limit, or I can resign now with a pension, and start a brand new career.

My wife is with me, either way. But it's my brother who helps throwing cold water on my plans to enter a new life. He warns me about the financial uncertainty. But I'm expert at playing the instrument, and expect to win my union card. Then I can join the orchestras for Broadway musicals, Hollywood movies, dance bands — all sorts of combos. And even if I'm thrown back on my average or Social Security, I'll be enjoying my work when I work. Now I don't.

* * *

Anthony J. — This is a weird idea if I ever heard one. Here's Walt with a steady job and real security, ready to check it all for pie in the sky, or what's more like it, music in the air!

He's not 50 yet, and sings very from his Social Security benefits. His pension will bring his income down to half of what he's making now. What happens to his expenses during the long stretches between engagements? Everyone knows there are more musicians "at liberty" than employed. And the musical world isn't waiting for Walt's arrival. There's a long line ahead of him.

Let him hold on to his horn — but union as now, as a hobby and as an amateur. I'm warning him. He can't retaliate. He can't support me on what I'd get when the bills pile up.

* * *

The Council: Boiled down, what Anthony seems to be saying is don't ever say I didn't warn you, and don't come cry, beg to me when the rent's due. And other wet blankets would invoke the old bugaboo about not changing horses in mid-stream. But, horses can be changed in midstream, if you can swim! And jobs can be changed in middle age, if you're equipped. Walter seems to be, and we're on his side.

True, it takes a leap of faith to "make it" from a sure thing to a gamble. But Walter has a faith in his talent and, in the market for same, his wife has faith in his know-how and perseverance. And an orchestra leader would have faith in a man who loves his act to the point of risking "all his kingdom" to express it.

More and more we are hearing of people who take a deep breath, say a little prayer, and quit working at a job which has become dead-end, repetitive and meaningless (save for the salary). They don't quit, to be fired, or for the firm to close down. They become masters of their own fates, strike out in a field they feel drawn to, and finally, in exhilaration and enthusiasm what they may lose (at first) in cash. Recent middle-age transformations in news describe a school teacher changing into a restaurateur, a bank salesman becoming a fishing-boat mate, a railroad engineer turning caretaker of a forest preserve.

The sine qua non, or prerequisites, appear to be met by Walter. There must be some source of interest income; some savings, good credit-standings. And there must be a real ability, plus actual advance planning. Given those, there's no reason why Walter should remain weighted down by work he regards as an iron yoke. And there are excellent odds that he'll tackle his way in a few years, to both fulfillment — and solvency.

There's No Substitute for Quality — that's why we use Red Flame heating oil. Call WO 2-4504.

St. Julien IODE Gives Report

At the January meeting of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. committee chairmen and secretaries reported on the many activities of the ladies during the month of December.

Mrs. M. Patterson, regent of the chapter, read letters of thanks from the senior citizen's club for the pictures of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip presented to them for the club rooms at the recreation centre and from the new Canadians for the Christmas party given for them early in December.

The regent also expressed her thanks to the members who had assisted at the Blood Donors' Clinic on December 18th at the Northern Electric when 150 donors were served with refreshments, at the citizenship tea when 53 new Canadians were welcomed after receiving their citizen's papers, and to those who had helped at the Cancer clinic during the month.

Mrs. R. Taylor, secretary of services at Home and Abroad, had packed six Christmas hampers to take to homes of needy war veterans. Letters and phone calls had been received from all recipients expressing appreciation. Mrs. Taylor read a letter thanking the Chapter for the carton of books which had been shipped to a reading room in a recreation centre for the soldiers stationed in Germany.

CHRISTMAS TREAT

Mrs. K. Putman, educational secretary, told of the Christmas treat that had been sent to the adopted school and showed the picture of the children in the school. A letter from the teacher, Mrs. Reid, thanked the Chapter for the addition of books for their library.

Handicraft materials had been purchased and given to the school for retarded children and 97 I.O.D.E. calendars had been placed in schoolrooms in Belleville and vicinity.

Mrs. H. Thompson reported on the recent I.O.D.E. marathon bridge and also said how much the gifts to the "fifties" in The Home for the Aged were appreciated in some instances. I.O.D.E. gifts were the only ones these elderly people received.

Nominations for the various officers of the Chapter were received, with elections to take place at the February meeting.

Mrs. Patterson reported the amount received from the United Appeal and announced that any members would be welcome to attend the annual meeting of the United Appeal which will be held later this month.

The Experts Say
Many Women Buy Furniture Without Plan Says Expert

By EDNA BLAKELY

TORONTO (CP)—If women decorated their homes with the same care that they dressed, their homes would be much more attractive, says Harold Rosnick, a Toronto interior designer.

Instead of purchasing a piece of furniture and hoping it will "fit into a room, the entire room should be planned in advance. Then the pieces can be purchased one at a time, but they will be co-ordinated.

"People wouldn't build a house without a plan and most women sew with a pattern and cook with a recipe but they buy furniture without a plan," Mr. Rosnick said.

Since most of the family's time is spent in the living room, den or playroom, Mr. Rosnick recommends that it be furnished first.

The best possible furniture should be obtained and it can be bought as the family can afford it.

Mr. Rosnick said he is annoyed by people who ask: "What are they showing?" He said good taste is not a matter of trends but the co-ordination of furniture and accessories into a room which reflects the personality of the owner.

CHANGES UNNECESSARY

Tasteful furniture did not have to be replaced often. "Anything good in design and quality doesn't have to change. It's only novelties that change," If neutral shades were used for major items, the colored accessories could be easily changed.

Other simple changes could be made by switching the arrangement of the furniture.

The style or period of furniture should be chosen to suit the individual's taste. Traditional furniture offers elegance and timelessness.

Modern furniture was functional and easy to care for. Some pieces had dual roles such as benches that doubled as coffee tables. Because it is neat and simple, it could make a small room look spacious.

Swedish modern furniture was easily changed. Since springs were not used in chairs, the cushions could simply be recovered to change the whole color scheme of a room.

Oriental decor was extremely subtle and quiet. It was elegant and because of its proportions, suited apartments and small homes.

The Spanish influence saw the wide use of metal, screens and fibres. The brilliant colors could be used successfully for a warm, attractive room.

If television was to be in a room, the chairs should all have protective, arm covers to save wear and tear on the chair.

Avondale NA Holds Season's First Meeting

The Avondale Neighbor's Aid met for its first meeting of the season on January 11 at the home of Mrs. T. Angus. The meeting was opened by the retiring president, Mrs. E. Hall, who welcomed one guest, 17 members and three children.

The roll call was answered with a New Year's resolution and the yearly dues were paid.

The business session was led by the new president, Mrs. R. Griffith, and the yearly reports were read. The retiring officers were E. Hall, Mrs. S. Lough and Mrs. J. McLean, and two ladies Mrs. H. Wright and Mrs. C. Twiddy, with perfect attendance records, were presented with gifts.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. D. Hall, and Mrs. C. Griffith, Mrs. Hall read the Scripture and Mrs. Twiddy gave a reading "Just for Today".

The busy afternoon was concluded with a game and lunch served by Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Davenport and Mrs. Wiley.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Younger Sister Snubs Her

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I have a younger sister living 25 miles from here. We visit back and forth about once a week or every two weeks.

When my brother-in-law comes into our home, he speaks to me, but my sister literally snubs me all evening. She talks to everyone else except me.

We have never had any disagreements to bring this on.—LEFT OUT.

DEAR LEFT OUT:—You have more clues than I have, but I might suggest a possibility.

Since you are an older sister, it may be that you have undertaken to boss your young sister in the past. She may feel a certain self-consciousness with you now that she is married and you are not.

If she is ignoring you from her own self-consciousness, she does not even realize how you feel. Make a special point of talking to her or write her a letter about this and tell her you are baffled. That you would like to be better friends.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I went with a girl for a month before I asked her to go steady. After this time she seemed to ignore me and make me mad. When we went to dances she got very noisy and acted as if she didn't like me.

I broke up with her and told her why, but she said she still liked me, and we were back together that night.

There happened to be a Christmas dance coming up so I asked her to go with me and she accepted. At the dance she started being loud again and acted as if she didn't care. It has been several days since the dance but she is still acting up, as always.

What should I do?—CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED:—Some one has told her you have to set stand-off-ish with a boy to keep him. Either that or she is still too childish to be anybody's steady.

Do you want her if she acts loud?

* * *

(Ask Doris about your difficulty. She will discuss it or send you to a source of help.)

Five Years Later

"On Thursday May 23rd, in 1957, we had a recipe for a Prize Winning Layer Cake, a custard cream filling and a seven-minute frosting. I baked it for a party shortly before Christmas. The amounts of the baking powder and salt were left out. I guessed at amounts. It turned out all right, but would like to know the exact amounts. My husband enjoyed the cake very much and asks to have it der. ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup milk. You may use your electric beater at medium speed for creaming the butter, sugar and eggs. If you are using a wooden spoon beat until light as whipped cream. Measure butter into beater bowl and beat until very light and fluffy, then gradually add sugar while beating. When mixture is very light beat eggs in one at a time until all are beaten in thoroughly. Sift the flour and measure it. Sift it again with the baking powder and salt. Measure the milk and add vanilla to it. Now add the flour mixture 1/4 at a time, alternating with the milk; 1/3 of it too, at a time, but use folding motion now and beating. Turn into 3 8" layer cake tins which have been buttered on the sides and lined on bottoms with buttered wax paper or use 2 9" layer cake tins and 1 muffin tin for the recipes butter. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. the 3 8" layers required 22 minutes in my oven. The layers would require a little longer—25-26 minutes. Allow to stand 3-5 minutes before turning out on cake racks to cool. When thoroughly cool put together with

CUSTARD CREAM FILLING

One-half cup sugar, ¼ tablespoons flour, shake of salt, 1½ cups milk, 2 egg yolks slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla. (Save whites for frosting). Combine in top of double boiler the sugar, flour and salt and when mixed add milk and yolks, stirring well. Stir over boiling water until thick, cook a few minutes longer. Cool. Add vanilla. Spread when cool between layers.

SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING.

In top of double boiler combine 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, 5 tablespoons of water (level) and 1½ teaspoons corn syrup. Place over boiling water and beat with rotary beater 7 minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from heat add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Sprinkle top and sides with either freshly grated coconut or finely chopped hickory nut kernels. A lovely picture and a baker's delight!

Note: This Custard Cream Filling is wonderful for Cream Puffs or Eclairs.

Fashion Modelling Popular Profession Among Japanese

TOKYO (Reuters) — Fashion modelling is becoming an increasingly popular profession among young Japanese girls.

The trend developed after the war when Western-style fashions began to replace the traditional kimono for Japanese women. Now, 80 per cent of fashions displayed have are Western-style creations.

Magazines, department stores, television and films all stress Western-style dress, leaving the kimono for festive occasions, such as weddings or New Year celebrations.

The Japanese mag of 1962 now is able to compete with her Western cousin in fashionable skirts, blouses, sweaters, jeans, shoes and slacks.

Five agencies for fashion models have been approved by the ministry of labor in Tokyo and together they handle about 400 models. One group deals exclusively with male models.

GOOD MONEY

The manager of one agency said the girls work hard—about 12 hours a day—but earn good money. Her leading girls can earn up to 300,000 yen (€330) a month—a high salary in Japan.

Models working for the major agencies must be slim and between five-foot-three and five-foot-five.

The weekly magazine Bunsho reports there are about 1,000 models in Japan but only the top 30 are paid high wages.

The magazine said the top 10 might earn 300,000 yen ($840) a month. Next coming a group of about 20 who earn between 100,000 yen and 150,000 yen (€280 to €420) a month.

The majority of the rest live on small incomes from occasional modelling for fashion shows, magazines or amateur cameramen's photographic competitions.

British Govt. Criticized In Smallpox Outbreak; Centres Run Out of Vaccine

LONDON (CP)—Fear, indignation and anger swept much of Britain as four new cases of suspected smallpox were reported Tuesday in previously unaffected areas — Manchester, Birmingham and Cardiff.

Thousands continued to line up for vaccinations and again medical centres ran out of vaccine.

In Bradford, centre of the outbreak caused by infected Pakistanis who arrived here recently, more than 10,000 people already have been vaccinated—about one - third of the population.

But the clinics in the Yorkshire city were among those forced to close again because of shortage of vaccine. More was expected to arrive today from London.

So far, five people have died in England of smallpox since Christmas and another death is believed to have been caused by the disease. There are three other confirmed cases and nine suspected cases.

Amid the rush for vaccination there was a flurry of criticism against government regulations covering checks on people entering the country, particularly from places such as Pakistan where the disease is known to be widespread.

A medical official at London Airport said 1,414 passengers on flights from Pakistan and many other countries are checked but those on flights originating in Europe are not. At least one of the Pakistanis who died from smallpox is known to have entered Britain after a stop-over in Europe.

Several members of Parliament and others have suggested more rigid regulations—similar to those in Canada where authorities demand proof of heavy been vaccinated at least five days previous to entry and not more than three years previous.

A health department spokesman said Tuesday no general vaccine campaign is planned in the present circumstances.

"The outbreak is under control, so emergency mass vaccination is not yet needed," he said.

Among the suspected cases reported Tuesday is the Birmingham doctor who treated the first Pakistani to arrive here with the disease.

Two Conservative members of Parliament continued to press for a general debate on Pakistani immigration.

Warden-elect Harold Varty of Hungerford township (right) is seen being congratulated by last year's warden, Harleigh Hamilton, and Mrs. Denyes, wife of the late Eric S. Denyes, who prior to his sudden death had been county clerk for over 27 years.

Harold Varty, Hungerford Township Reeve, Elected Warden of Hastings County

Member of Hastings County Council since 1955 and of the Hungerford township council since 1952, Reeve Harold Varty was named 1962 warden of Hastings at caucus held here for the inaugural session on Tuesday.

Reeve Varty won the warden-ship on first ballot, defeating Reeve William A. Shannon of Marmora village and Reeve Harry Pound of Thurlow township.

Hungerford last had the honor back in 1951 when Harry Coulter was the warden of the county. He succeeds Harleigh Hamilton of Sidney township.

Following his election as warden, the new county council head was escorted to his chair by Reeves Shannon and Pound and was officially sworn in by County Judge J. C. Anderson.

The gallery was filled with county officials, visitors and guests, as Acting Clerk Mrs. Ruth Quaife, called the session to order and read the names of the 1962 councillors. Invocation was conducted by Rev. H. M. Davis of Bridge Street United Church.

TRIBUTE TO PAID

Tribute to the late Eric S. Denyes who, for 27 years, was clerk of the county, was paid by Warden Varty who called for a moment's silence in honor of the former county official who died suddenly two weeks ago. W. R. Sandercock, MLA for West Hastings, and Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for East Hastings, also paid tribute to the former county clerk, and referred to him as a close friend.

Mrs. Eric Denyes, wife of the former county clerk, was presented with a bouquet of roses by Mrs. Quaife on behalf of the county.

Mrs. Denyes told councillors that she was happy to be at the 1962 inaugural session of council.

"When Eric was county clerk I always attended the inaugural session and I know he would want me to be here today. I am sure Eric is here in spirit."

DEDICATED TO JOB

Mrs. Denyes said her husband had been dedicated to his job and to Hastings county and noted that it had pleased him very much when county officials referred to him as "Mr. Hastings County."

Warden Varty asked for the co-operation of county councillors during the current session and throughout the year.

He noted that one of the more important matters on the session agenda was the request of Tweed village and Hungerford township to withdraw from the Centre Hastings High School area. He expected the matter would be dealt with on Thursday.

Indians, Eskimos Getting Lazy, Spoiled Council Hears

OTTAWA (CP)—Are the modern conveniences of civilization bringing racial discrimination to Canada's North and making the Indians and Eskimos relief-conscious parasites?

And should a community decide for itself whether its water supply should be fluoridated?

Those questions provoked concern Tuesday at the meeting of the Northwest Territories Council, governing body of the vast northland's 23,000 inhabitants.

Elected member Knute Lang said Indians and Eskimos lived in the comparable squalor of tents and shacks while whites occupied the modern houses in the towns. This encouraged formation of a "color line."

John W. Goodall, a 71-year-old elected member from Fort Simpson who pushed north 50 years ago in a covered wagon, said the natives—the Indians and Eskimos—are getting lazy and spoiled.

"We're raising a bunch of—and I should it bluntly—parasites."

As for fluoridation, most of the council members agreed that this sort of decision should be placed in the hands of experts.

They turned down a request from elected member A. P. (Pat) Carey of Fort Smith that a plebiscite be held in his community on the issue.

Territories Commissioner Gordon Robertson said that Fort Smith had had fluoridation for five years without any complaints directed to him.

DOWN THEIR THROATS

"Have not the people the right to vote on something that goes down their children's throats?" demanded Mr. Carey.

"You don't vote on pasteurization of milk and that goes down the children's throats," replied Mr. Robertson, who is also deputy minister of northern affairs.

Appointed council member I. Norman Smith, associate editor and vice-president of the Ottawa Journal, said there were certain instances where people's rights were delegated to the experts trained to handle a given situation.

If Mr. Carey, a bush pilot, sought advice on flying from his passengers, Mr. Smith didn't want to fly with him.

"Jest a Second"

"He isn't making much progress — but she is!"

Teletype Auction Service By Hog Producers' Board Said Big Step Forward

OTTAWA (CP)—The teletype auction service inaugurated by the Ontario Hog Producers' Board last summer marks the biggest step forward by farm marketing methods so far, President H. H. Hannam of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said today.

He said hog growers in the three prairie provinces are considering seriously forming a marketing board using the same technique.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture's annual meeting at Banff Jan. 23 to 25 is scheduled to hear a report by Ontario poultrymen about steps so far in lining up teletype auction for eggs.

Mr. Hannam in an interview said that the system offers an ideal way to keep buyers on their toes and is ignorant of the what competitors are paying. It works simply.

A teletype network links packinghouses and other buyers with a central headquarters. There, the various lots of hogs available are listed by teletype and bidding starts from the top down—day $30, $29.50 and so on. When a buyer sees a batch of hogs he'd like, he presses a button to mark his sale—unless someone on the circuit has stepped in ahead of him.

Hannam said this quick-decision feature makes for better prices. If prices aren't good enough in the hog marketing board's opinion, it can "buy in" to keep the hogs for another day.

Mr. Hannam said he understands the special machine controlling the teletype circuit is so accurate it is impossible for two people to tie by pushing the button at the same time.

The Ontario system has between 30 and 40 points on its circuit.

Mr. Hannam said such methods will ward off the alternative of vertical integration—contract farming through large processing or retailing enterprises, with the farmer just a hired hand to look after the farm owned by the big company.

NDP Leader Rejects Idea Of Coalition With Liberals

OTTAWA (CP)—T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, Tuesday rejected the idea of any coalition with the Liberals in the event that no political party wins a clear majority at the next election.

Mr. Douglas, speaking at his first press conference in the Parliamentary Press Gallery, said he thinks it more likely in those circumstances that the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals will form a national government.

Mr. Douglas also was given the opportunity to say that if the New Democrats come to power, and find Canada diseased with nuclear weapons they "will scrap them and "withdraw from the nuclear club."

Only in that way, he said could Canada regain a position of influence among the non-nuclear powers. The New Democrats felt that Canada's role was not that of a great nuclear power but one of working with non-nuclear powers in bringing pressure upon the nuclear powers to cease testing and disarm under proper safeguards for inspection and control.

Mr. Douglas announced that Hazen Argue, M.P. for Assiniboia, had been elected parliamentary leader of the CCF-NDP group at today's first caucus of MP's of the new year.

Mr. Argue reiterated earlier denials that he was flirting with the Liberals.

Mr. Douglas declined to fore-cast an election date or to indicate how the New Party expects to fare in the voting. The James would change between now and an election.

On the party's progress since its founding, he expressed an optimistic view. He thought bet-ter-than 10 per cent of current membership had signed up and he'd be quite happy with 25 per cent. Paid memberships were coming in at a good rate but he had no figure on membership.

The party expected to have a full slate of candidates at the next election, at least within a dozen or 20 of the 265 seats. He had not decided where he will seek a seat himself. He had five or six invitations—all in Saskatchewan—but would decide later.

United States And Euromart Agree on Cuts

BRUSSELS (AP)—The United States and the European Common Market have agreed on a mutual cut of 20 per cent in tariffs on industrial products and some reductions on agricultural products, a common market spokesman announced Tuesday night.

The arrangements were completed at a 36-minute meeting winding up four days of negotiations here between Howard Pyferson, President Kennedy's special assistant for trade matters, and Jean Rey, a member of the executive commission of the market formed by France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxumbourg.

However, some polishing was reported still required.

Regulations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade which sponsored the talks, provide that details must be kept secret until the agreement is signed.

A communique announced it will be signed within the next few days at GATT's headquarters in Geneva. The document will be submitted to the Common Market council in February.

Approval by the U.S. Congress is unnecessary, Kennedy has the authority under existing law to make the cuts covered in the agreement.

A Common Market delegate to GATT, T. C. Hijsen, said similar talks are being held with Britain, Switzerland, Sweden, Finland, and Austria and will later include Canada, Portugal and New Zealand.

In Ottawa, Finance Minister Fleming reserved detailed comment until he studies the agreement in detail, but he said Canada may benefit indirectly.

Canada was not directly involved in the U.S.-Common Market negotiations, but has been bargaining for other tariff concessions with the six - nation community since last September.

Mr. Fleming said that if a new tariff agreement concerns commodities of which Canada is not a principal supplier the lower tariffs the U.S. has obtained would be applicable to Canada under GATT provisions covering most favored nations.

Mining Man Is Indicted

TORONTO (CP)—A true bill indicting mining millionaire Roy Robertson and three other men was returned to Chief Justice J. C. McRuer by a grand jury Tuesday.

The charges arose from an alleged mining stock manipulation involving $500,000. The men were charged after the assets of Stadacona Mines Limited dropped in one day to $66,000 from $383,000.

Robertson, 56, former co-owner of the Montreal Alouettes football club, is indicted on eight charges of theft, fraud and conspiracy.

Also named in the indictment are Jules Regis, 33, a Montreal lawyer, and two Toronto men, D. C. Stuart, 36, and Henry Koury, 40.

Many Many Thanks

To the fine people of Belleville who helped us get our stock and records out of the store during the disastrous fire on Bridge Street last Wednesday. It was simply wonderful. I wish to thank in particular the other jewellers of the city who in some instances closed their stores in order to help. All repairs and customers' goods were saved.

Our temporary quarters are located at 172 Front Street, next to Booth radio, where we will be glad to welcome our customers. We hope to move into our newly built and decorated store at 21 Bridge Street within a few weeks.

Again thank you very much.

Why Is Congo Important?

Second of Series

This is the second of two groups of questions and answers dealing with the Congo situation — especially the controversial United Nations action in Katanga—by Associated Press writers Lynn Heinzerling, Max Harrison and William L. Ryan.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More questions and answers to fill in the background of the Congo-Katanga situation:

Q. Why can't Katanga, invoking the principle of self-determination, simply declare itself an independent nation?

A. No country in the world has been willing to recognize Katanga as a separate entity in the United Nations, various Security Council and General Assembly resolutions firmly oppose separation.

The only question open for discussion, so far as the UN's 104 members were concerned, was whether Katanga would get broad autonomy in a confederation or be placed under a strong central government. Even Belgium, most outspoken supporter of Katanga's President Moise Tshombe, accepted the idea that Katanga belongs within The Congo.

Q. Why not just let Katanga secede and be done with it?

A. The U.S. feeling appears to be that Katanga's mineral wealth is vital to The Congo, to shore it up against threats of Communist infiltration. Katanga would have provided, in the first year of independence, about $160,000,000 — half the Congo budget—had there been no secession attempt. Instead, it provided nothing.

NATO'S FEELINGS

Q. How about the reactions of NATO allies?

A. Britain had grave misgivings about U.S. support of the Katanga action. Fear was expressed in London that the U.S. decision could prove a costly blunder risking eventual Communist victory through defeat of the strongest anti-Communist force in The Congo, Tshombe's Katanga government. The British government felt the UN should not impose political solutions by force. Prime Minister Macmillan noted that if Tshombe were destroyed, the UN would find itself "with a province as large as France on its hands and no means at all of governing it." Similar misgivings were expressed in France and Belgium, both of which have important interests in Katanga's mineral wealth, and Portugal. Canada agreed with the U.S. position.

Q. What was the Kitona pact and what was the U.S. role?

A. At Kitona Tshombe promised to accept the authority of the central government. Edmund Gullion, U.S. ambassador in Leopoldville, "persuaded Tshombe to make the trip to Kitona.

Tshombe jockeyed a bit, backing away from the Kitona declaration. He finally agreed to accept most of it, including the fundamental law under which The Congo is supposed to be governed. He had participated in the writing of that constitution in Brussels before independence in 1960. Kitona brought a truce, but there appeared to be a long process of bargaining ahead.

CONGO TOO WEAK

Q. Why doesn't The Congo use its own armed forces to end the Katanga secession?

A. The Congo has about 25,000 troops (apart from Katanga). The army commander, Gen. Joseph Mobutu, at best can hope to control about 17,000. The other 8,000 are controlled by Gen. Victor Lundula, who has been at Stanleyville with Antoine Gizenga. The Congo has neither the means nor the equipment for the job. But there were indications that Lundula was drawing closer to Mobutu.

Q. What about the effect on the rest of Africa?

A. There is considerable worry in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. Premier Sir Roy Welensky has put forward the view that the West is losing the struggle for influence in Africa. He says, the United States and Britain should do all in their power to keep Africa's strategic ports and resources available to the West. He fears that vacuums will be created by premature withdrawals of colonial authority.

UNION MINIERE

Q. Just what is the Union Miniere? What is its role in these events?

A. The Union Miniere du Haut Katanga is a powerful mining and development company which provides 60 per cent of Katanga's state income and could provide nearly half the state income for the entire Congo. Its control, about 54 per cent, is in the hands of anonymous shareholders. The rest is held by the Congolese state, the British Tanganyika Concessions and the Belgian Societe General de Belgique Bank.

The chief UN officer in The Congo, Dr. Sture Linner, said the Union Miniere allowed its installations to be used for attacks against UN personnel in Elisabethville. He said UN troops were fired on by mortars and machine-guns from points on Union Miniere property. Union Miniere headquarters denied all charges, including allegations of political and military activities.

Q. What does the Congo operation cost and who foots the bill?

A. The operation costs the UN approximately $10,000,000 a month. The total up to the end of 1961 was $180,000,000, more than twice the cost of the UN's general budget for a year. All 104 members of the world organization have been assessed proportionate shares, but the refusal of 36 countries to pay anything has plunged the UN into a financial crisis. Some, including Russia and France, objected to the UN's role; some simply pleaded poverty. The UN hopes to meet the crisis temporarily by a $200,000,000 long-term bond issue, but this will still leave the basic problem unsolved.

Mayor Whitton Resigns Post On Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Charlotte Whitton resigned as a member of the Ottawa Transportation Commission on Tuesday after her bid to have a University of Ottawa professor named to the commission was turned down by city council.

Council voted 16 - 1 to reappoint Marcilhas Lacouciere as an OTC commissioner. The mayor cast the only dissenting ballot.

Miss Whitton was to have nominated Dr. Pierre Gendron, a science teacher.

At one point in the debate the mayor fumbled with her chain of office as though to remove it and there was scattered handclapping in the gallery.

Miss Whitton said she had no intention of leaving the mayoralty.

HEFTY CATCH — Most swordfish caught in Canadian waters weigh about 150 pounds but it is not rare to land 600-pounders. Largest taken by a Canadian fisherman weighed 915 pounds. Photos show a swordfish being hauled into a boat and a full-length view of a swordfish. (CP Photo).

Swordfish Like Company But Seldom Caught Before Ten or After Supper Hour

HALIFAX (CP) — Swordfish $705,000 to nearly 7,000,000 like company but not too close. pounds worth $1,400,000.
They're seldom caught before 10 a.m. or after 6 p.m.

They eat just about everything that swims. In turn they are preyed upon by sea lampreys, killer and sperm whales, tuna and sharks.

These are some of the facts turned up in a two - year research program that was prompted by the sharp growth of the Nova Scotia swordfishing industry in the last 12 years.

The research was directed by two biologists and an economist and sponsored by the Fisheries Research Board of Canada for its biological station near St. Andrews, N.B.

"Its purpose was to study the biology and ecology of swordfish in order to provide background information for use in evaluating the effect of increasing exploitation of the stock and . . . to furnish a sound basis for whatever management is indicated," says fisheries department economist W. E. Doucet.

CATCH INCREASED

From 1949 to 1959 in Nova Scotia, only province in the Maritimes from which swordfish are hunted, the catch jumped from about 2,000,000 pounds valued at

Not satisfied with many theories held by swordfishing skippers, researchers prowled the Atlantic aboard commercial vessels for personal observations. Their findings have been published in a fisheries department bulletin.

Swordfish are distributed throughout the tropical and temperate Atlantic, the Mediterranean, about New Zealand, Hawaii and Japan and in the South Pacific north to California.

Research supports the belief that they move from deep waters to the continental shelf and return to deep water.

The largest swordfish recorded by a Canadian fisherman weighed 915 pounds dressed and was taken off Cape Breton Island. Landing 600-pounders is not rare, but most weigh about 150 pounds. Smallest ever reported was a 13-pounder taken off Cape Breton.

STARTED IN 1900

The first official records of Canadian catches date back to 1909 when 146,500 pounds were landed and brought $13,995.

The Canadian swordfish industry, in contrast with the United States, developed slowly. By the middle 1930s landings reached a level of 2,000,000 pounds and remained relatively stationary through the 1940s.

Expansion of the last decade shows no signs of letting up. New fishing techniques have been perfected along with the growth of fishing fleets. An electric harpoon which electrocutes the fish is one of the new devices.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Pepsi's, thrown back on their heels by their first defeat in a dozen starts last week, face the Fort Hope Ontarios here tonight and it should be a lot closer battle than some people anticipate.

The Ontarios, who were the footballs for the Lakeshore Intermediate clubs at the beginning of the season, have snapped out of their losing streak and with the help of some experienced players have won their last two starts.

The game gets under way at 8.30 and it is hoped a good crowd will turn out to lend some encouragement to a club that plays outstanding hockey and is deserving of a bit better support than has been accorded it up to this time.

It is true that the Pepsi's have more or less dominated the league play up to a couple of weeks ago, defeating the opposition rather handily, but now it seems the "worm has turned."

With more games under their collective belts the circuit squads, showing no fear of Pepsi records or ability, are reaching mid-season form and improving each time out.

A couple of weeks ago the Trenton Globetrotters had a six goal victory over Pepsi's practically all the way and one of those quirks of sport that happen occasionally literally robbed them of the triumph. They were a better club on the night's play and deserved to win.

Last week the Napanee Comets playing inspired hockey were going to be decimated, several little fears of the big red team and hang their first defeat, a 4-3 affair, on the Men O' Lambtands.

The Comets were worthy victors. They rode clear into the vaunted Pepsi's defence and near the dying minutes of the game, with the score 4-3 for them, they tossed a "Kitty-bar-the-door" defence that paid off handsomely.

The Pepsi's apparently have been suffering from that queer sports gremlin that rides random shoulders occasionally. Years ago when we had Eastern Ontario senior baseball the Brockville Magedomes were winning everything in sight—and like the Pepsi's—having a corpsers's guard at the box office.

Fans in the eastern city couldn't be bothered. "We know who's going to win before the game starts," they said.

But things could be different with the Pepsi's now. A defeat and a near-miss may change matters. True, they are one of the strongest teams in the loop, but other squads are improving each game out and the trail may be tougher for Lammy's crew from here in.

Lack of support has changed playing coach Lamirande's mind about entering the club in Allan Cup competition. Which should be good news for the Western Ontario clubs. The Pepsi's at full strength, I honestly believe, would have given Chatham, Windsor or whatever clubs wins the western honors the series of their lives.

It takes money to make the hockey mare go—and that is something that has been lacking in box-office receipts. The Pepsi-Cola Company is not, as some people may believe, the all-out sponsors of the team that bears its name. It gave the club enough money to warrant the name on the sweaters. Other individuals and organization have given donations.

But the box office reaction has been a terrific disappointment. Lamirande battled many obstacles to organize a hockey club for this city and he came up with one that is deserving of at least ordinary support.

Equipment, travel, lunches for players on the road all add up in the cost column. The club's take at the last game, and this one the best of the season, was between $50 and $75. Hardly enough for sticks.

So let's hope the improvement in the opposition leads to improvement at the box office. Fandom is a funny breed. Last fall the general query was: "What are we going to do for hockey?" Lamirande answered the question and the result was a stay-away on the part of the curious.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Blades have won their fourth straight Western Hockey League game, but they paid a high price for it.

The blades host centre Gerry Goyer, injured in the second period fight with Edmonton Flyers on Tuesday night. The doctors said Goyer, his hand injured in a second-period fight with Edmonton defenceman Keith Wahsh, is not expected to play again this season. He made sure a spike for six weeks.

In other engagements Tuesday night, Calgary Stampeders used a late goal by Bev Finlay to edge Vancouver Canucks 5-4 and Spokane Comets upset Portland Buckaroos 3-2.

The second largest crowd of the season at Los Angeles — 7,153 — watched the Blades tighten their hold on third place in the southern division by turning back Edmonton.

Los Angeles coach George Agar accused Wahsh of kicking Goyer with his skates. Wahsh was ejected from the game with a match penalty, which carries an automatic $100 fine and possible suspension.

Wahsh was the second Edmonton player to receive a match penalty to as many nights. Rookie defenceman John Misuik was handed a match penalty and suspended after his first — for striking an official in a game at San Francisco Monday.

The long cut Edmonton's first-place margin to the Northern Division to four points over Calgary.

Wiley O'Rea, Ed Panagabko, Real Chevrefils and Earl John, son scored for Los Angeles; Chuck Hokana and Ed Joyal answered for the Flyers.

Finlay fired the winning goal with 40 seconds remaining in regulation time as Calgary beat Vancouver. The small crowd was attracted by heavy snow, storm.

Whitey Ford Signs For $50,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, baseball's biggest winner in 1961, became the highest salaried pitcher in New York Yankee history Tuesday when he signed a one-year contract for $50,000.

Yogi Berra, who had been Ford's batterymate for 10 years until he turned outfielder last season, also agreed to terms for 1963, signing a contract calling for an estimated $52,000.

Yankee general manager Roy Hamey, who said no one need the signings said both received increases. In Ford's case, it was a $15,000 raise while Berra is believed to have got a "token" boost of $2,000.

Ford in 1961 enjoyed his best season, winning 25 and losing four. The brilliant left - hander, who was 31 last October, added a world series to his Yankees' world series victory over Cincinnati Reds and extended his world series scoreless inning streak to 32, bettering Babe Ruth's old record record of 29 2-3 innings.

The previously highest salaried Yankee pitcher was Allie Reynolds, paid $43,000 in 1952.

Berra's salary during his 119 games last year. He slammed 22 home runs and drove in 61 runs to boost his lifetime totals to 340 homers and 1,367 RBI.

Downes was under contract to give Pender a return in Boston.

He fell at his London home, underwent surgery on an infected thumb and has not boxed since the July fight.

Triandos Signs With Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP)—Catcher Gus Triandos, another of Baltimore Orioles, who had expressed a desire to be traded, was the 18th baseball contract signer Tuesday.

Triandos, batting by Baltimore at the end of the 1954 baseball season in a deal with New York Yankees.

The 30-year-old catcher had let it be known last month he would prefer to leave Baltimore. A deal involving Triandos with Los Angeles Dodgers was reported. None materialized.

Triandos gave as his reason for wanting to be traded a far reaches of the Baltimore stadium fences and had work in catching the Oriole pitchers, a mixture of young speed-ballers and veteran knuckle-ballers.

Triandos has been plagued by hand injuries since 1959.

Last season, he was hitting close to .300 during the first half of the season before a thumb on Aug. 18, was sidelined for three weeks and wound up the lowest batting average of his career, .244.

'Result of Abuses'

Quebec To Probe Boxing, Wrestling

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal commission established by Mayor Jean Drapeau Tuesday calling for an investigation of boxing and wrestling by Attorney-General Georges Lapalme and the ultimate formation of a provincial sports council.

Jean Le Rocbe, chairman of the commission, said a copy of the brief will be delivered later this week to provincial authorities.

The commission said "as a result of abuses" unearthed in boxing and wrestling Mr. Lapalme should "hold an immediate and thorough investigation into these two sports—especially in Montreal and in general in the province."

Another point clarified as urgent was creation of a provincial sports council defined as "a single body, possessed of concrete and unequivocal powers to govern amateur, professional and semi - professional sports and thus promote and coordinate amateur sports and its creations."

Such a body could be financed by taxes paid by professional sports promoters "over and above the amount paid for the issue of permits and operation" such as from horse racing and other activities.

The commission said testimony placed before the body showed "exploitation of boxers for the profit of doubtful characters who are ready to gather together here the underworld banished from the United States by the Kefauver investigation."

Among abuses listed were under-the-table payments, blacklisting of boxers and disrespect for referees and other authorities.

Wrestling was described as "A great joke" and a "degrading exhibition which under the cover of sport television can bring at will into every home, which has the effect of encouraging young people to despise authority and discipline."

Belleville Collegiate hoopsters swept two of three games from Picton Secondary Tuesday night in the C.O.S.S.A. triple-header played last night at Centennial.

The Belleville seniors kept their perfect record intact as they copped their third victory by a 45-35 score. B.C.I. bantams won their first game as they defeated their third victory by a 43-32 score.

Napanee won their first game of the season as they defeated Picton 43-36. Napanee's defensive play and rebounding was evident as they outscored their hosts 16-6 in the second quarter.

Napanee took a new lease on life after the Belleville-Picton break as they cut BCI's lead to 3 points at three-quarter time. The winners outscored the Picton crew in the final period, as their set shooting and effective rebounding proved too much for Napanee.

Bruce Regenbuing and Larry Bateman led the winners with 14 and 12 points respectively.

Bob Paul collected 15 points for the losing cause.

Aussies May Enter Pro Tennis

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australian officials are thinking of going into the professional tennis business in competition with promoter Jack Kramer.

The matter was brought up Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia. Action was deferred until state associations could consider it.

There are a number of professional players who are not committed to play only for Kramer, said Secretary Ken Rosewall, a Sydney delegate, said.

"My association (New South Wales) feels it would be to our advantage if we brought them under our rules to play tournaments and exhibitions arranged by us."

Most of the top professionals belong to an international association headed by Kramer. The troupe is currently performing in Australia, with the state associations barring the pros.

The LTAA also decided to investigate the possibility of broadening the Wightman Cup women's competition to include tennis nations besides the United States and Britain.

Australian women are now regarded as the world's best. Five of them were named to join with the overseas team this year—Margaret Smith, 19; Jan Lehane, 19; Madonna Schacht, 18; Lesley Turner, 18, and Robyn Ebbern, 17.

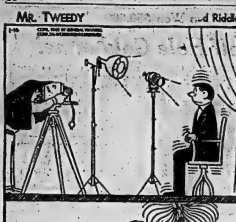
Hole-in-One Won $50,000

Golf Hole Gold Mine!

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Jim Fisher of Belmont, Mass., who makes a habit of holes-in-one, fired a $50,000 ace Tuesday in the first round of the PGA club and quarter-century champions ships.

The 52-year-old Fisher is New England professional golf's gold company which offered $30,000 to any player in the dual tournament making a hole-in-one while playing with its clubs.

He shot his hole-in-one on the 130-yard, 13th hole of the PGA course using a three iron. It was the 13th of his career.



However, he won't get to keep the whole $30,000. He made an agreement with two other players before the tournament began to split the money if any of them got an ace. The money will be split further if anyone else makes a hole-in - one between now and the end of the tournament Sunday.

Cleroux to Fight Gray

HULL, Que. (CP)—Four Canadian title holders, led by heavyweight champion Bob Cleroux, are scheduled to top the card at next Monday's boxing night at Hull Arena.

The card, announced Tuesday, lists Cleroux of Montreal in a 12 - round championship bout against Cecil Gray of Halifax. The fight is not recognized by the Canadian Boxing Federation, which claims Cleroux failed to honor a commitment for a return bout with former champion George Chuvalo of Toronto.

Promoter Bob Guertin said non-title bouts will pit light heavyweight champion Burke Emery of Sherbrooke, Que., against Clarence (Sugar) Ryan of Newark, N.J.; welterweight king Gale Kerwin of Ottawa against Buddy King of Charlotte, N.C., and featherweight titlist Andre Mallette of Sorel, Que., against Pete Martin of Montreal.

Terriers Go on Goal Spree

GALT (CP) — Galt Terriers broke a two-game losing streak here Tuesday night and clambered into third spot in the senior Ontario Hockey Association standings with a 15-4 pasting of Strathroy Rockets.

Ted Snell, a reporter of the WEEL, fired two goals and missed on three bids for a hat trick in the final 10 minutes. He also got an assist for his most productive scoring night since joining Terriers four games ago.

Defenceman Ted Maki also scored a pair of goals as Terriers surged to period leads of 7-1 and 11-1. Don Rope, Pete Kowalchuk, Harry Neale, Joe Hogan, Alec Keeling and Rod Brain obtained the others. Rock, who had only came in the first five minutes from the stick of Willie Hess.

Red Wings Squeak Win Over Petes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a tight squeeze, but Hamilton Red Wings managed a 2-1 victory over the last-place Peterborough Petes Tuesday night to end up in a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings.

Niagara Falls Flyers took a total of 32 shots on Guelph Royals' net for an 8-4 victory.

Lowell MacDonald and Ron Harris scored for Hamilton and Keith Wright scored the Peterborough single.

The game was tied 1-1 in the first period, the Wings scoring their other goal in the second. The Petes tried pulling goalender Chuck Goddard in the final minute of play, but couldn't even things up.

Wayne Maxner, Ron Shocks and Jean Paul Parise each scored twice for Niagara Falls. Singles went to Jack Nairn and Billy Knibbs. The two goals by Parise were his first in junior A play.

Will Admit Women As Members

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Professional Golfers Association decided Tuesday to admit women members.

Announcing this unprecedented step at a meeting here, PGA secretary Col. Harry Reed said:

"We had to face the inevitable. Instead of waiting for it to hit us we went out and met it. Eligibility for membership will be the same as for the men. The women must be attached to a golf club or playing professionals."

"The women will also be able to play in tournaments under the same condition as the men, but they will not be allowed to pick up prize money until their six months' probationary period has expired."

Says Liston Will Meet Patterson

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports Incorporated told friends a month ago that heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson would sign a contract the latter part of this month to meet No. 1 contender Sonny Liston, a boxing source said today.

The source, who asked that his name not be used, said the proposed title bout probably would be held here no later than June.

The source said Patterson preferred Liston, shot at the title last December. In recent weeks Patterson reaffirmed that he would fight Liston with Championship Sports promoting the source said.

In Philadelphia, George Katz, Liston's manager, declined comment.

However, he confirmed a report that he has received a telegram from Ancil Hoffman, who managed Max Baer to the heavyweight title, offering to buy Liston's contract for $50,000.

"Liston, of course, is not for sale at any price," said Katz, who has admitted he hasn't been getting along with Sonny

Corinne Calvet Credits Aid of Countrywoman

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Corinne Calvert is getting her career off the ground after a few years.

In so doing she readily credits the aid of a countrywoman:

"I think Countess Sigmore started the trend. She proved that a Frenchwoman can be something besides a hunk of flesh that looks good in a negli, gee."

The start of Corinne's renewed activity is a role as the confessa in Hemingway's Adventures of a Young Man. But she isn't waiting around for more movie parts.

She has a career: Painting and she's good at it.

Corinne showed me some of the canvases in her home. The paintings are everywhere, even in the bathroom, and some of them seem brilliant. They are splashed with color, and in many of them you can see what the picture is about.

She classifies herself as "an impressionist who lets you know what she is doing."

Art is new to her. When she started dabbling in drama in Paris, she was also studying sculpture and architecture at the Beaux Arts. Drama took precedence as she won fame in French and American films. Then a good role stopped coming, she returned to art with amazing success.

Now she is working till dawn each day to finish 45 paintings for a one-woman show in London in late spring.

The Calvet saga has more to it than a switch from grease paint to oil paint. It also concerns a personal crisis that was resolved only by a return to her native land.

Three years ago, she was upset by her divorce from actor Jeffrey Hunt and by the procession of sexpot roles that were submitted to her. She packed up son Robin and went to live in Paris.

"Whenever anyone runs into disappointment in their lives, she thinks what might have been if they had done things differently," she said. "So I wondered what might have happened to me if I had never started acting.

"I went back to Paris and I lived quietly, avoiding show business friends and the press.

"I tried it for 6 months and it didn't work."

Television Revives Interest In Circus Says Noted Clown

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — That great institution, the circus, in recent years has fallen upon hard times. Other forms of entertainment reached parts of the continent that once depended upon an occasional visit of the travelling tent shows.

But now the publication of Emmett Kelly, the famous clown, television is reviving interest in the big shows.

Kelly, whose Weary Willie character has delighted crowds for two generations, said this: around 1950 the big circus had really "started to go." Crowds were no longer turning out, circuses were combining and sometimes not even leaving winter quarters.

"But now things seem to be picking up. People seem to want to go to the circus again. And I think TV is completely responsible — particularly because the children are interested."

Kelly will be narrator Sunday night of a Project 20 docu, mentary showing behind the scenes circus life on NBC's Show of the Week.

"But today's circuses aren't like the old ones," he conceded. "A lot of us can fly to play special circus dates, and then fly home again. We live in houses, not trains, and our children go to school. It's not like the old days—but it's still the circus.

Jack Le Vien, producer of the highly praised The Valiant Years based on Sir Winston Churchill's memoirs, now plans to relate the Duke of Windsor's story in a series of 90 half-hour shows that not only tell A King's Story, but recall the whole period between two world wars.

Le Vien, who has not yet sold the series to a network, leaves today for Madrid to meet the Duke and Duchess. Prime subject for discussion is whether the duke himself will serve as narrator for the series.

Reds Give Cricket The Old Nyet

LONDON (AP) — Australian cricketers have come up with the idea of introducing cricket in Russia.

They said Tuesday they will visit the Soviet Union in 1964 to demonstrate the game.

The Australian Cricket Council gave the proposal its blessing. Lord's world headquarters of cricket in London, said it is a good idea.

But in Moscow the news was received with blank faces.

"Cricket!" said a Soviet sports official. "We don't play it here. Never have done and are never likely to. "What do you think the Soviet people will be popular with Russians? How do I know? What a strange question."

The thought of putting Russians into white flannels and thrusting cricket bats into their hands came from a club cricket bat maker and Australian cricket fan. They plan a world tour in 1964 and say Russia will be the first stop.

MORE THE MERRIER

Wonderful," said Sir Donald Bradman, chairman of the Australian Cricket Board. "The more countries to play the game the better. There's no embargo on the export of cricket."

The Australians also plan to bring Russians to England to watch the England-Australia Test match at Lord's in 1964.

"They would get a hearty welcome," said Billy Griffith, assistant secretary of the Marylebone Cricket Club, cricket's governing body.

"A man from the Russian Embassy did in fact come to Lord's two years ago and quite enjoyed himself. But he couldn't make head nor tail of the game."

Indoor Ski Centre Opened

BUFFALO (AP)—The world's first indoor ski centre, designed for year-round use, opened here Tuesday.

The Centre is one of seven which Skiing Enterprises says it expects to construct or finance in the next 15 months. One is planned for Montreal.

The ski deck consists of nine conveyor-belt slopes which continuously rotate uphill at a 20-degree angle. There are flat ramps at either end of the slopes, made of white, resilient loop-piled nylon.

The speed of each slope can be adjusted from three miles an hour to 22 m.p.h., depending on skier's skill. A straight slope can be turned into a slalom course by adding sticker markings to it.

The slopes can accommodate an estimated 118 persons at one time and about 2,500 daily.
